AN ARMED MOB.—The citizens of Philadelphia were last night the scene of another outrage against property—another disgraceful violation of law. The sheriff yesterday had information from Manayunk, which you know is in the county of Philadelphia, that a plot was on foot by a large party of hand-loom weavers, of this city, to assault and burn the cotton factory of Mr. Kempton, at that place. The sheriff at once despatched an officer to Manayunk, who there organized the citizens and called out also a military company. A number of persons on horseback were sent out a short distance from the borough, on all the streets and lanes, to give notice of the approach of the assailing party. Thus prepared, the defending party awaited their coming. During the evening a party of three scouts were met by the weavers, who red upon the defenders of the borough and wounded two or three of their number; the fire was returned, when the assailants decamped. Their number is variously given. The fears and imagination of the scouting party sets it down at between two and three hundred persons. Others think the number did not exceed fifty or sixty persons—all of whom, however were armed—some with muskets, and others with clubs. The cause of this outrageous attempt is said to be because, in Mr. Kempton's mill with the aid of a machinery, one woman can do as much work, turn out as many yards, as five or six men at the hand loom. Threats have been several times made, not only against Mr. Kempton's mill, but others; and the owners have for some weeks been compelled to combine and watch their property. This is a dreadful state of affairs and deserves severe punishment.

Shocking Tragedy.—A gentleman direct from Bloomington, informed us last evening of one of the most shocking atrocities in the annals of crime, perpetrated in that vicinity on yesterday morning.

A mulatto slave, belonging to Mr. Jacob Pence, of the neighborhood, and who had been a runaway for a week or two, went early in the morning, between day-break and sunrise, to the house of an old lady named McKay, about two miles from the village, on the road leading to this city, with her grandson, a youth about 10 or 17 years old, and a servant girl, and butchered the lady and the young man in the most shocking manner, splitting their heads open with an axe, and otherwise horribly mauling their bodies. Still, not glutted with his bloody deed, the monster set fire to the house, and threw the servant girl in the hottest of the flames. She, however, succeeded in escaping, though very severely burnt, but before the neighbors could collect in sufficient force to arrest the fire, the dwelling was reduced to ashes, a few articles of furniture only being saved. In the struggle for their lives the old lady and her grandson made their way into the yard, where the horrid butchery was consummated; and when our informant passed, their mangled bodies were then lying a most shocking and appalling spectacle. Many of the neighbors, attracted by the fire, soon collected to the spot, and found the mulatto just making off from the scene of his atrocities. Several went in pursuit, and when overtaken, he turned upon them with the most desperate demonstrations. One of the gentlemen, having a small shot gun, fired upon the villain when within a few feet of him, rushing back at him with the most violent outcry. The charge was lodged in his breast, but being very light, wounded him but slightly. He succeeded in escaping from them; but the number of his pursuers increasing, he was taken in a few hours, resisting to the last with the utmost desperation. It is impossible to describe the sensation that prevailed among the people, who had assembled from the surrounding neighborhood in great numbers; and it was feared their exasperated feelings would not permit them to await the sentence of the law upon the villain who committed the savage deed. When taken, the mulatto confessed all; but, in the confusion and excitement of the crowd, our informant did not learn what motive he assigned for the act. Such a daring and atrocious outrage could only have been prompted by that hellish madness with which the devil sometimes fills the human heart.—Louisville Sun of the 3d inst.

THE SECOND ADVENT.

Bro. Charles Eitch has just given a course of eight lectures here on the prophecies relating to this subject. He argues that all the events in prophecy that precede the coming of Christ, are closed up and that his coming is now "nigh even at the doors." In his opinion 1843 is the time, though "the day and the hour" he does not know. He thinks Christ will descend with a sound of the trumpet—the righteous dead will be raised—the righteous living changed—and all taken up together into the air—that the world will then be destroyed, a new earth fitted up, which the righteous shall inhabit with Christ till the end of a thousand years, when Satan will be loosed for a little season—the wicked dead, raised to make an attack upon the beloved city, which will be destroyed by fire from heaven, and then the general judgment will succeed, and the righteous inhabit the new earth forever. He said many interesting things during his lectures, and was in earnest to have men prepared for the speedy coming of Christ. He also manifested a spirit of kindness and compassion throughout. But his interpretation of some passages was so fanciful, and of others in the same visions, so strictly literal, and he passed over is silence so large a portion of the prophecies which seemed to predict the establishment of Christ's kingdom in the world, that he produced upon many minds, at least, precisely the opposite conviction from what he intended, namely, that he has quite mistaken the meaning of the prophecies. We certainly cannot see, if this doctrine be true, that a large portion of the Bible is of any interest to us in this world. And the subject is involved in so many difficulties, that we are quite certain the year 1843 alone can make known the truth to the most of the human family. While we have great respect for Bro. Fisk, we cannot but say we think he is mistaken on this subject.—Oberlin Evangelist.

A Bloody Character.—A man named Henry Sanson, who died in Paris not long since at the age of 87, has filled the office of executioner under the French Government ever since he was about twenty years of age, and it is supposed that he has taken more lives than any other executioner that ever lived. Having never been himself a politician, he managed the guillotine for both parties during the period when the fearful engine was in constant requisition by successful partisans. In those times, he struck off from thirty to forty heads a day. It was a matter of indifference to him whether his victims were King and Queens, or ragged democrats; or whether there were more or less in number, he being, as he understands it, the servant of the law and bound to obey, asking no questions. He struck off the heads of Louis XVI, Marie Antoinette, Danton, Robespierre, &c., and latterly of Fieschi and Alibaud. Truly Sanson has been a man of blood. What his death bed reflections were, is not stated. Probably such a being was never troubled with reflections.

A Mysterious Affair.—Last Tuesday afternoon, quite a sensation was created in a highly respectable boarding house, in Chesnut above Tenth street, by an ecce resuscitatus of rather a perplexing character. There had been boarding there for several weeks a handsome lady, who styled herself Mrs. W—. Her husband was frequently called from the city, but when he returned, the affectionate behavior of both was matter of remark. These things went on until last Tuesday, when a lady who also claimed the title of Mrs. W—, visited the house, and in no slight state of excitement, protested that her rival was an impostor, and inveigled her husband from his proper home and duties.

A beautiful scene ensued, in the midst of which entered Mr. J. W— himself. He was thunderstruck! It was as much as he could do to stand the tears and lamentations of the one, the furious ravings of the other, and the guilty accusation of his own conscience. At length quiet was restored, and he confessed that the last Mrs. W— was his wife, who resided with him at Pottsville, Pa. where he had also an interesting family—that the pseudo Mrs. W— was a lady to whom he had been illicitly attached for four years, and whom he had all that time endeavored to maintain in respectable society in various places.

Of course the boarders were shocked, and all parties were soon expelled from the premises. What on earth is the world coming to! Sodom and Gomorrah were palaces of morality compared to our Quaker City, and we don't believe that three hundred good men would be sufficient to save it from fiery destruction.—Phila. Times.

HORRIBLE OUTRAGE AND

ATTEMPT TO MURDER.

We learn that an outrage of a desperate nature was perpetrated in Allestown last week, by a man named Fisk, upon a man named Cheney. The particulars as near as we can learn, are as follows: Fisk, Cheney, and a boy, were at work in the woods chopping wood, where they had a camp, and each found and cooked his own provisions; a quarrel ensued—Fisk knocked Cheney down with a club, and after beating and bruising him awhile, ordered him to get up and clear out. This

Cheney attempted, and although scarcely able to rise, got up and endeavored to get out of his reach, but Fisk followed with his club, and again knocked him down; and after mangling and pounding him until he was entirely disabled, took out his knife and cut and mangled him in a most shocking manner, large pieces of the scalp being entirely cleft from the head. Cheney was found the next morning in the woods, where he had been cut by Fisk. He was able to give the particulars of the transaction as above related, and stated that Fisk came to him once in the night, and struck him a few blows with the club and left him. Cheney had $50 dollars in money, which was taken from him it is supposed by Fisk. Although yet alive, we understand that no hopes are entertained of Cheney's recovery. Fisk has been arrested and committed to jail in Hopkinton. It is proper to state that the boy ran off at the first commencement of the affray.

IMPEACHMENT.—Articles of impeachment were presented in the County Court, of New York, against Justices Matsel, Parker and Stevens. Mr. Patterson, who makes the charges, in his report states that they, in three weeks, betwixt the 28th March and 12th April, 1842, caused 70 convicts at Blackwell's Island to be discharged before the terms to which they were sentenced had expired—that they were kept on the island till the night of the 11th April, when they were all brought down to the city to vote at the charter election on the 12th April, and that many of them did vote. The charges are two in number, with specifications, in which it is averred that they caused discharges to be ante dated, also furnished several warrants in blank, to be filled up by the keeper, or others, so that they might discharge such as they saw fit, &c.

Late from Yucatan.—The schooner Laura Virginia, Capt. Thompson, arrived yesterday in six days from Campeachy, brings the latest advices. The Mexicans had not arrived off the port when the L. V. sailed though they were daily if not hourly expected. In the meantime, every preparation was being made at Campeachy for their proper reception. The ports were fully manned, the guns scaled and put in proper order, and the troops drilled continually. 2,000 men arrived from the interior the day before Capt. T. sailed, and every thing betokened a determination on the part of the Yucatecos to make a stand.

In addition to the land forces, a considerable flotilla of gun boats with heavy calibre, had been prepared to aid in the defence. It was understood the Mexican force would not leave Laguna until the reinforcement had arrived from Vera Cruz. The San Antonio had not arrived at Campeachy.

A ship, supposed to be one of the Mexican steamers, was seen off Campeachy. The port was not blockaded.

The brig Ivanhoe, hence for Campeachy, was not spoken by the L. V.—[N. O. Bul. 22d ult.]

Two more Bridges Burnt.—Something must be done, and of an energetic kind, to put a stop to the fire in Michigan, which has recently destroyed so large an amount of property in this vicinity. We to day have to record the burning of two more bridges. Between 11 and 12 o'clock on Tuesday night the Reading Railroad Bridge and the Montgomery County Bridge crossing Mill creek about two miles above Manunk, were destroyed by fire. They crossed the creek in a parallel line, immediately adjoining, and were between two and three hundred feet in length. The county bridge was covered, and being so, on fire first the flames soon spread and communicated to the other. This bridge was not watched, and the watchman of the railroad bridge was not aware of any felonious act until alarmed by the flames already spreading furiously through the other one.

The Reading Railroad company have offered a reward of $1000 for the arrest and conviction of the incendiary.—[Penn. Enq.]

A TORNADO IN MICHIGAN.

The Pontiac Jacksonian of the 16th says.—“A most terrific storm of lightning, wind and rain, passed over this village and towns adjacent, on Monday last. The principle damage appears to have been sustained, so far as we have learned, about five miles north of here, where it is said that in one place, within the compass of two miles square, no less than fourteen barns and houses are unroofed. Oak and hickory trees, three and four feet through, were blown down and twisted in any quantity. The roads in many places are represented to be so filled with fallen timber as to be entirely impassable.”

A New Sect.—There has recently sprung up in the heart of Europe a new sect, which is not without its advocates among ourselves. In France, by a singular misnomer, they call their doctrine the New Christianity, a nomenclature which has not been adopted in England or in this country. They acknowledge nothing as truth in the New Testament, except what they term its democratic spirit, and admit of no immortality except the immortality of the race; that is the same immortality as pertains to the swine and dog.

THE ESTIMATED EXPENSE OF THE REVOLUTIONARY WAR, in specie, was over $125,000,000. To meet this immense charge Congress issued, from 1776 to 1781, $57,476,541 of continental or paper money, which during that time, depreciated nearly two-thirds of its value. In addition to this, Congress obtained loans from France and Holland—from the former, of 20,000,000 livres or 3,878,576 dollars; and from the latter, of 22,000,000 livres or 4,074,073. The first loan was in 1778, the last in 1783.—[Madisonian.]

A TALL CATFISH.—A Frenchman caught a catfish yesterday with a hook and line, in the river near this city, which weighed 187 pounds. It was doubtful for some minutes whether the Frenchman would catch a catfish, or the catfish a Frenchman—it was pull catfish, pull Frenchman—but the Frenchman triumphed, it must have been rare sport to those who witnessed it. We were not there to see.—[Detroit-Advertiser.]

To Protect Lambs against Foxes.—We happened to be in a hardware store the other day, when a farmer came in to inquire for sheep bells. He stated that the only way in which he could protect his lambs against the depredations of the foxes, was by putting bells on a few of the sheep in his flock; when this was done the lambs were safe.—We thought the hint worth remembering, and have put it down here for the benefit of our readers.—[Farmer's Gazette.]

The last Link.—We rejoice to learn that a train of Cars passed over the Attica and Buffalo Railroad on Friday afternoon from Buffalo to Kings, 25 miles out, and some ten miles from Attica.—Only fifteen miles of this road now remain to be completed, which it is said will be done within October, and then the line will be perfect from Buffalo to Albany, and so to Boston, (Mass.) and Concord, N. H.) not to New York.—[N. Y. Tribune.]

On Monday last there was a militia muster at Keeseville, Essex co. and a large number of persons having been collected together on the new foot bridge, now building over the Au Sable, it gave way and they were precipitated into the torrent below. Seven lives were lost; among them two boys. These unfortunate persons were carried over the dam by the current, which is there very rapid.

Tarantulas, says the New Orleans Bulletin, of the most venomous kind and from three to four inches in diameter, are said to inhabit some of the cane brakes on the lake. Their net when spread is strong enough to catch and hold a sparrow, which is immediately eaten.

Storm.—Northampton, Mass., has been visited by a severe storm of rain. It did serious damage to the bridges, mills and canal, and some of the manufacturing establishments in that neighborhood. The storm did not extend far.

Another Theatre Burnt in New Orleans.—The structure known as the Camp St. Theatre in New Orleans was entirely destroyed by fire on the morning of the 22d ult., being the third Theatre burnt in that city within a few months past. The great loser by the present fire is James H. Caldwell, who had the building constructed in 1822, the first Theatre built in Louisiana.

THE LARGEST BIRD.—Temple, in his travels in Peru, states, that he shot a condor, and from notes taken on the spot, gives us the following dimensions of its size: “When the wings are spread, they measure forty feet in extent, from point to point; the feathers are twenty feet in length, and the quill part eight inches in circumference.” This almost realizes the famous roc of Sinbad, in the Arabian Nights; but its dimensions, as here given, rest on good and very recent authority.—Penny Magazine.

MARRIED.—On Sunday the 16th inst. by Elder P. Sessions, Mr. Stephen Hale to Miss Eveline Carter, daughter of Elder Simeon Carter, all of Nauvoo.

On the same day by Elder John Taylor Mr. Lornin Rounday, to Miss Joanna Carter, both of this place.

With each of the above notices we received

A loaf of wedding cake—

On which we did partake

Satisfactorily.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY 21ST INST.

Mary Wilkinson of Lancaster, 66 years; fever.

Isaac Fullard, 31 years; fever.

Henry Franklin, 8 months 4 days fever.

Caroline Kingsbury, 26 years, 7 months.

Novel Kingsbury, infant.

Oiver Whitesides, of Iowa, 12 years; bilious fever.

John Nightingale, 4 years; consumption, cancer.

Marthy Murdock, 14 years 6 months; dropsy on the brain.

Total, 8
WM. HUNTINGTON, Jr. City Sexton.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Partnership heretofore existing between B. R. Bently and James Field having this day been dissolved by mutual consent, the debts of the firm will be settled by B. R. Bently and all debts due the firm received by him.
Nauvoo, Oct 21st, 1842.

27 w2

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th day of October, 1842.

no26 tds.
THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842.

no27-16

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Norman Hart, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Norman Hart, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts under the Act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 14th day of Nov. next, at the District Court-room, in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition; all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated October 15, A. D. 1842.

LEVI DAVIS, Solicitor for petitioner.
G. C. SAMPSON, Counselor.
Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

ESTATE OF RALPH BIRKINHEAD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the fifth day of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at one o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Ralph Birkenhead, late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.
Dated this 13th day of October, 1842.

CHRISTOPHER DIXON, Administrator.
no26-1ds.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now
offered to the citizens of Nauvoo
and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr.
Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry
for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption,
Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion
long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them,
and are doctored for various complaints,
without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispenation, they will restore the tone
of the system generally, and remove all
the unpleasant symptoms arising from too
free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will
not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000
are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain
in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12½ cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

THE undersigned having taken out letters of administration on the estate of Theodore Carlike, late of Hancock county, deceased, herby notifies and requests all persons, having claims against said estate, to present them to the court of Probate, of said county, on the first Monday in the month of November next, in order to have the same adjusted according to law.
All persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment.

JESSE GILMAN, Administrator.
Carthage, Sept. 16, 1842. no23-1r.

ESTATE OF HENRY J. HUNT, DE- CEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of January next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting against the estate of Henry J.
Hunt, late of said county deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

DAVID DE VOL, Administrator.
Dated this 7th day of Oct. 1842. no26-1ds.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple,
L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's.
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
L. Tulle, M. Romney,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is alsolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c.
See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masoie Hall

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-ly.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

WM. CLAYTON,
Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842. 10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new.
Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTICE

LEFT, in my care, in the Month of April last, off the Steam-Boat Aspy, one trunk, with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stouard, Montrose, Iowa; the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of
Mr. Peck, at this time.

S. H. BURTIS.
Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842. no20-1f.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to,
and goods put at the lowest price.

No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842.
no20-3m.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND
ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE
UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAU-
VOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER COURSE.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy.
Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane
Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying,
and Navigation. 5.00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical
Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry. 7.50
And for the study of the Differential
and Integral Calculus, and Newton's Principle. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &C.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line, — Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Sperm, Olive, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Lytharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochin-eal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c., &c.;
stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, salicratus, putty, spices, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash; Van Studdiford's ague and fever pill, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm,
and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand
Store on water street above Davis' Hotel.

A. T. TERRELL.

July, 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills;
two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever, — for sale by.

July 23, 1842.

A. T. TERRELL.

BEESWAX.
The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 in 3) A. T. TERRELL

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo &
adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoce, Hancock county, Ill., 3 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa; a so I house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses, 1 good two horse waggon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoce, and examine the premises.
Good titles will be given.

AMOS TERRY.

SILAS TERRY.

Appanoce, Sept. 23, 1842. no24-1f.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage,
Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.
Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.

J. Salsbery, Plymouth.

Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike

L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.

Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.

Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.

Levi Moffet, Augusta.

Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.

John E. Page, Pittsburgh.

B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.

Jam s Curtis, Horners Town.

W. A. Appleby, Recluse Town.

Israel Iwias, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.

Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

LIST OF LETTERS.

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill., Oct. 17, 1842, which if not taken out before the 1st of January 1843, will be sent to the Post Office Department as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following advertised letters, will please say they are advertised or they may not get them.

Jas Aldridge Jno Carnes
O B Adams F Clark
Jno Adams Albert Clark
J F Abbott Jno Cox
Capt M Anderson Polly Conklin
M B Agnew David Crockett
E Boss H Cutler
Jane Blevin 2 Austin Cowles 2

N Bliss
B R Bently
E W Bigler
Jas Bohonan
L L Beacher
J H Burghort
C Baldwin
Henry Backwater
R Bentley
Jas Brewer
J B Backenstos
Jno Bottle
Geo Babcock
Margaret Brush
Mr Frotherton
Chas Betterworth
Levi Brooken
John Blayard
P A Ben-on Ann Boothe
rhos Bromley
N Boscow
W Broughton
Jesse Baker
H Cooley
Ed Chamberlain
H Clark
Wm Cook
H I Akey or I Conyers
Danl Carter
B Co'e
B Curtis
Wm Corpen
Robt D Foster 5
rhos Filcher
Jas Flanagan
Mr Goodson
S H Godard 2
Morgan Gardner and others truman C
Sarah C
J C
Wm C
David Grant
L M Geer
Carlos Granger
Carlos Gove
J Gallard
DS Holister
Elias Higbee
Ester Hose
A Houghton
H Hacy
J C Haight
Knollon Hanks
Jos Harwood
J Hadlock
rhos Hoste
Joel Huff
F M Higbee
Mary Hoover
Ed Hunter sen
Ed Hunter
Ann Hunter
R Hebbord 2
J N Harron
J A Hicks
Miss Alice Hordman
S Hulet
Stephen Hales
J P Herr
Wm Hales
Jno Haven
G Hills
Thos Johnson
D John on E Jennings
D Judy
Abel Jance
H Jolley
H Kerns 2
F Kinyon
I H Killbough
O Killbourn
I D Lee
r I Langon
Jno Lindsey
J Lynco n
Geo Lyman
Steph n Lits
C L Lewis 2
A Lyman
H Loveland
Sarah Myres
A P Muney
E Malon
R A Moore 2
Robt Maxton 2
S C Menill temperance Mack
Wm Morsden
Jno Miller
Wm Marks
Peter Melling
Mary Maxton
Wm McClery
W G Mullen
F Moon
Geo Miller 3
rhos B Marsh
C Marsh
Jas McClalou
Saml McMurtry
Jno Myers 2
J McElroy
H H Matthews
P Merrick
M Mansfield
Cath Minnerly
E Nelson
L S Nickerson
rhos Nelson

G W Clyde
S W Crandle
Wm S Covert
James Cayton
A Daniels
A Davis 2
J Decker
James Duncan 2
S Denel
I Drake
R B Derby
U Drigs
Simeon Darke 2
Jas Dawning
R Edwards
J Emmitt
Jno Edgar
Hannah Ellis
T S Edwards
Jos Easton
Wm Earl
Jno Eloridge
Horace Eldridge
Pleasant Ewell
Robt Ellison
Edwin Finch 2
J M Finch
Geo Fowler
A F Fan
Jos Fisher
C Fuller
Hannah Flint
D Fry
Wm Nerbit
Wm Niswanger
Oliver Olney
D Osburn
A R Orton
Jedediah Pneen
A Pilkington
N Peney
W. W. Phelps
J Powell
M Phelps
Ad Pratt 2
Jno Patten
Jos Parks
Jos Prockter
Jos Pullen
S Pinkham
J Peck
P Page
Jno Rice
Jos Robinson 2
Jne E Rayce 4
Saml Rolfe
Erio Rodes
J L Robinson 2
A Richardson 2
Elizabeth Ravenscroft
H Roberts
Sophia Rilla
W H Rolloson
Jno Roles
C Rathbone
Messrs Gracy & Reed
Ed Stiff
J C Scofield
A W Sherman
Ed Stephenson
Allen Stout
Alex Stephens
E Spencer or J Harrington
Jno Stewart
Elijah Sheets
Robt Snyder
Nath Stewart
Jno Stewart
Jno Sweat
Jos Shaw
Rich Spencer
Wm Sutton
Jos Smethies
Jane Smith
Geo A Smith
Elisha Smith
J P or Mory Smith
Jno Smith
Joseph Smith
B Stringham
Jno Shofer
Jno turpen
J H Tippetts
R S rorey 2
E Thompson
Jno Thorpe
r D rumball
H Umphry
Robt Wheeler
E J Webb
Geo M Warr
r Wait
rhos Wakefield
A W Whitney
S Winchester
L Wilson
B F Worthington
Jno Williams
B Worthington
D Wood
Miles Wilson
C Weston
Jno B Walker
E F Wiggins
Jno Watkins
Wm C Walker
F D Williams
Jno Wakefield
J S Workman
E D Webb
S Otho Williams
C Young
P H Young
Lewis Ziger 2
SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

Wood wanted at this Office.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 28

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, October 29, 1842.

Whole Number 28

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

POETRY.

[For the Wasp.]

BLACK HAWK'S GRAVE.

BY L. O. LITTLEFIELD.

Shine brilliantly, thou distant stars of night;
Illumine the hero's place of silent sleep;
Rise kindly o'er him, lovely moon, so bright,
While evening birds their watchful vigils keep.
And dewy branches o'er him seem to weep!
It seems a place, far in some 'spirit' land,
The gloom so softly o'er his grave doth creep;
The shades move near it, like some magic wand,
Guided by phantoms: with a noiseless, unseen hand.

Above him's rear'd no 'stone,' no sculptur'd tomb,
With epitaph to tell his rank, or worth;
Imbosom'd in the solitude of gloom,
As if he'd left behind no friend of earth,
Alli'd to him by friendship, or by birth!
He silent sleeps beneath the valley's sod,
Where oft his warlike band has sulli'd forth;
And, in the front of battle, bravely stood,
To shield their wigwam homes, or spill their angry blood.

Mississippi! roll on thy proud waters,
From hills of ice, far in the frozen North!
They leave the land of Indian daughters;
Who quit the song of revelry and mirth
To chant some mournful dirge to his worth.
Fair river! ever let thy waters flow,
Stir'd by the greetings of zephyric breath!
It brings a dirge of melancholly woe,
Like lips of beauty round him, singing soft and low.

THE DEAD.

BY MRS. C. H. W. ESLIN.

THE dead—the dead—they return no more,
With the gentle tone, and the smile of yore;
They come not again from their homes of rest,
To light up joy in the lonely breast;
They leave not the starry fields on high,
To call the smile to the weary eye,
They note us not; and the tears they shed,
Unheeded fall by the buried dead.

They that were wont in joy to throng
With the light free foot, and the voice of song,
With the glad young heart, like a summer rill,
That flashes in brightness round the hill,
Making sweet music where'er it flows,
By the wither'd leaf, or the budding rose,
Like the sound, and sight, from the bright rill's bed,
Was the heart, and voice, of the buried dead.

But they have pass'd like the gleam of light
That tinges the west, ere the shades of night
Passing in brightness, beauty and bloom,
From a dreary world of darkness, and gloom;
The shadows gather around their track,
But the angel spirits turn not back;
The clouds remain, and the light has fled,
But day hath past with the buried dead.

But we that linger by some old haunt
That was wont to echo their voices' chant,
Or stand by the stream, and in thought retrace
On its glassy bosom the vanish'd face;
Or mark on the grass, by the dew-drops wet,
Their very footprints effaceless yet;
It seemeth the ground they were wont to tread,
Was weeping still for the buried dead.

The dead—the dead! Oh! we sadly yearn
For those who can never more return,
Who made, in our lives, those brighter hours,
That came but to whisper of sun and flowers;
There seem'd for ever a joy to dwell
Where'er the light of their glad hearts fell,
But sorrow alone is left to shed
A requiem sigh for the buried dead.

Important News from the South.—By the New Orleans papers of the 27th ult., we have very important intelligence from Mexico and Texas, brought by the Gov. Yell. It will be seen that the war of the former upon the latter has now commenced in earnest, by sea and land, and with a very unpropitious promise to Texas.

The Mexican letters also bring intelligence of the cutter Woodbury, which had been absent over forty days, on a cruise to Mexico with despatches, and about which serious apprehensions began to be entertained. She had arrived safely and again cleared for N. Orleans, with $73,000 in specie.

A bearer of despatches from our Ministers to Mexico to the U. S. government, also arrived at N. O. in the Gov. Yell. The purport of his despatches is said to be to the effect that all the existing difficulties between this country and Mexico were settled amicably, and our relations placed on a better footing than ever. It is further stated, that Campeachy had acceded to the political and other Mexican demands made upon her, and would, for the present at least, compose an integral part of the government. If all this news be true, it puts a different and very dangerous aspect upon Texas affairs, and would lead people to believe that Santa Anna, strengthened on all sides, and ambitious in the extreme, will indeed give the Texans considerable trouble. It was reported at Vera Cruz that an immediate attack, both by sea and land, would be made—in which case, situated as the Texas Navy is at present, some disasters might occur to the Anglo Saxons.

The Texas dates received at New Orleans are to the 24th ult., and contain very disastrous intelligence. San Antonio has been completely surprised and taken by the Mexicans. The news was brought by an arrival from Texas on the morning of the 20th. It appears that the Mexicans numbered 1300, under Gen. Wall, and that they took fifty-three of the principal citizens of San Antonio prisoners, among them the Judge and officers of the Circuit Court, which was in session, President Houston, immediately on hearing the intelligence, issued a proclamation ordering the militia of the neighboring counties to San Antonio and of the counties of the Upper Brazos, and Colorado to Austin, and the citizen of other counties to hold themselves in readiness. His orders were, if the Mexicans evacuated San Antonio, to pursue them beyond the Rio Grande and chastise them.

Galveston was visited on the 18th ult. with a terrible storm, which did great damage to the shipping, destroyed two churches and a number of other buildings. Many families had to flee for shelter to their neighbors, after wading through a raging surf, propelled by a hurricane. Property to the amount of $50,000 was lost.

The Rhode Island Contest.—One of the most enviable privileges possessed by a newspaper of such immense and deeply entrenched patronage as our own, is that of speaking the bold truth, upon a question where men's passions are violently arrayed in support on one side, and in opposition on the other. Journals of a more limited circulation are forced to warp their opinions and shape their statements, so as to steer clear of offending the prejudices ever so unjust and unmanly. We are fortunately not liable to these adverse currents of evil; we depend upon the good sense and the patriotism of the mass at large—a sure and never failing dependence. A favor or disfavor of a few hundreds or even a few thousands, of the prejudiced or bigoted, who have 'a local habitation and name' among us, is to us but small consideration; we can afford to be openly and fearlessly plain in proclaiming what we sincerely believe to be just.

In this spirit, and lifting our judgment above the petty influences that sway too many of the violent partisans—and not deterred, either, by the air of ridicule which several presses have endeavored to throw about the whole Rhode Island contest—we honestly deem, and as honestly pronounce, the suffrage people engaged in a righteous cause! It is a cause, the prototype of which may be found in that which engaged the enthusiasm of Hancock, Adams, Carroll, and Washington. It is the cause of the people against partial and exclusive privileges. It may be laughed at by the conceited fop, who would not that a rough mechanic should come between the wind and his nobility; it may excite the sneers of the haughty aristocrat, perusing a warped account of it in the columns of some such print as that conducted by the defenders of the Dartmoor massacre, and the man who could cheer a monarch, and turn up his nose at the representative of the republic;—but to the lovers of the freedom of his race—to him who feels that tyranny, however plausible, should be frowned down, by every genuine republican, it will appear as the contest of men who battle for the right, against unfair antagonists, seeking to keep power in an exclusive channel.—Sun.

LIGHTNING.

After the flash has been seen, the peal of thunder is heard: and this will be more or fewer seconds after the peal, in proportion to the distance of the thunder.

any space without any perceivable succession of time; nothing seems to be an obstacle to its progress. A multitude of persons taking hands, the first and the last connected with electric machines, all feel the shock in the same instant: and were there a chain as a conductor to go around the globe, the last would feel the shock in the same moment as the first. But as sound depends on the undulations of the air for its propagation, and is known to travel at the rate of only 1142 feet a second; consequently if the flash were only 1142 feet from the spectator, it would be seen in one second, or one swing of the pendulum, before the sound could reach the ear, though the clap and the flash take place at the same instant, and it twice this distance, two seconds and so on.

It is of some consequence to know that lightning at a considerable distance—suppose six or eight seconds of time, is never known to burn, kill, or do injury; when the flash and the clap immediately succeed each other, then there is strong ground for apprehension, as the thunder cloud is near. If the thunder cloud be a mile and a half distant it is never known to kill man or beast. Now its distance may be easily known by means of a pendulum clock, or a watch that has seconds: when the flash is seen count the seconds until the clap is heard. Then compute: if only one second is counted, then the thunder cloud is within 1142 feet, or about 280 yards; if two seconds then its distance is 2284 feet, or 751 yards; if three seconds, then 3426 feet, or 1132 yards; if four seconds, then the cloud is distant 4568 feet, or 1522 yards; if five seconds, then the distance is 5710 feet, or 1903 yards; if six seconds, then the distance is 6852 feet, or 2284 yards, one mile and nearly 1-3:—if seven seconds, then the distance of the cloud is 7994 feet, or 2664 yards, or one mile and a half and 25 yards. Beyond this distance lightning has not been known to do any damage.

HORRIBLE.—The trial of David Maynard, for the murder of his wife Nancy, came on at the recent term of Oyer and Terminer, before Judge Morrel, in Norwich, Conn. The district attorney stated the facts of the case: Maynard, who resided in the town of Columbus, came home on the evening of the 15th of last December, from his work at a neighbor's, a little after dark, and went into his kitchen; after a few words said, he directed his oldest boy to bring him a water-bench whip or gad from an outhouse, and which was about seven feet long, which he cut in two and with which he proceeded to whip his wife severely; on his suspending the blows and leaving the house for a short time, his wife divested herself of all her clothes, in which condition he continued to cruelly beat and strike her; that he then placed her on the bed, and tied each hand to the bed post, and again beat her with the whip; from all which beatings and bruising, she came to her death in the course of the night. That to avert suspicion from himself, he stained her mouth and teeth and linea with blue dye; to create the belief, that in a fit of desperation, she had killed herself by drinking that fluid. The wife was proved to be an intemperate woman, but the jury convicted Maynard of manslaughter in the second degree—the punishment of which may be seven years in the state prison.

From the New York Tribune, September 22.

A severe frost was experienced all over the State on the night between Friday and Saturday. The ground was whitened with it between Auburn and Attica, and we presume nearly all over our own and the neighboring States. The Railroad Trains between Albany and Rochester were much delayed by the slipping of the wheels on the rails, caused by the frost.

The weather had for several days previous been cool and cold, with a fall of rain on Wednesday morning. All the water courses of the interior are unusually high, the canals included. Cayuga Lake is four feet higher than it usually is at this season. Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, were cloudy, chilly, windy November-like days; the frost was kept off till Friday night, by the clouds and wind. It then came hard enough to settle the business of the Indian Corn and other vegetation to which frost is an enemy. A great deal of Corn will be spoiled by it; and we presume the crop throughout the Northern States will be a light one; but there is said to be much old Corn yet in the hands of the farmers.

Snow fell on Friday night or earlier on the high grounds throughout the interior of this State. The stages that came in to Whitehall on Saturday morning were covered with it.

A brutal murder was committed on Monday night, at a camp meeting four miles from Balston Spa. The facts as we heard them, are these:—A man named McKnight, was caught in the act of picking a gentleman's pocket, named Jones, when he turned, drew a knife, and stabbed Jones in the abdomen. He survived but a few hours. The murderer was arrested and secured in prison.

LUMBER—NAUVOO—OUR PROSPECTS, &c.

We neglected to notice, last week, the arrival of another raft of pine lumber, from the Pineries of Wisconsin. It was large and unwieldy, occupying a space, on the surface of the water, measuring near one acre; yet its commanders had the good fortune to land it here without encountering any material inconvenience while floating it down the broad current of the Mississippi. This is as it should be;—this intrepid spirit of enterprise—this assiduous application of labor, and untiring zeal for the public good of our city, augurs well for its speedy approximation to opulence and architectural grandeur. Nor do our citizens manifest any inclination to become weary and 'faint by the way.' Last Wednesday another company left for the Pinery, which is expected to tarry—converting the stately pines into all kinds of lumber, boards, shingle, &c.—until next spring, when they will return home crowned with the abundant fruits of their labor. This lumber is mostly designed for the Temple and Nauvoo House; but it is not expected that these profitable expeditions will be abandoned when the bills for those buildings are filled. Our citizens are determined that Nauvoo shall continue to grow and flourish until it shall stand without a rival in the Western, and, is it too much to say? in the Eastern States. If it continues to prosper, for the next ten years, as it has for the last three, these aspirations will be found to be no vain chimera, no exaggerated flight of the imagination, or imaginary dreams of the future; but what may appear now, to the prejudiced mind, to be stubborn impossibilities, will then resolve themselves into stern realities. Although the turbulent sea of persecution has rolled its tumultuous billows over us, for a time past, and the citadel of our security seemed, at intervals, to be nearly washed away by the desolating surges of its resistless anger,—the night of darkness has passed—an effulgent morn is dawning upon our hopes—the clouds that enveloped us in the folds of their gloomy drapery have hid themselves in the yawning labyrinths of their own shame, and the siren songs of prosperity, happiness, and domestic enjoyment, which now gladden us, portend the happy consummation of our ardent anticipations.

The amount of our city is almost incredible. There are now in successful operation two steam saw mills, one steam grist mill, one water grist mill, one cast iron foundry, and one tool factory—all extensive and valuable establishments. Every day is seen, phoenix-like, the ponderous fronts of new and extensive buildings starting into existence, peering themselves above the roofs of the more humble ones that surround them, and where lots, one day, can boast of no greater ornaments than those given them by nature, will, in the lapse of a few more, smile under the products of cultivation, and be crowned with residences, comfortable and magnificent.

Hold up! hold up! this won't do;—if we speak of our prosperity the 'Journal' man, Cook Bennett, Tom Sharp, (but his lips are sealed now,) and their Anti-Mormon, Anti-Republican, and Anti-Democratic associates—very nice creatures, by the by—will begin to regard us with feelings of envy!

BLACKWELL'S ISLAND.

One of the editors of the New York Aurora, made a visit to Blackwell's Island, not long since, and gave a description of those who are compelled, after a career of vice, villany, wretchedness and ruin, to take a pauper-vagabond's lot at this prison of sinners. His picture of the haridians is a caution to the innocent, the virtuous, and those that live to live again, to shun vice, as the pestilence that walks in darkness, and wastes at noon day. He says:—

We partook of an excellent dinner, of which, most dishes were raised on the island. The potatoes, onions, turnips, egg plants, cauliflowers, &c., were fresh and very fine. The melons at the desert were delicious. Mr. Keen informed us that he raised vegetables enough on the island to supply present consumption for the prisoners. After dinner, he took us over the island. We first visited the hospital for males. Here we found about fifty patients, sick of various diseases, but we were informed, that at present there was not one case of fever. A few were in the last stages of consumption, brought on by vice and dissipation. We then went through the south wing of the prison, containing 210 cells, all of which are occupied at night. Every thing was in perfect order. Next we were conducted to the hospital for females at the south end of the island, and here our feelings were certainly not of a pleasant kind.

In this building, confined to their beds, were upwards of 100 females, the outcasts of society—women who had passed from degradation to degradation, and now, in the last stages of disease, were brought here as vagrants, to die! Good God! if woman in her purity could behold such a scene, and see the end which invariably follows vice, if not naturally inclined to become the victim of lust, she would turn with horror from the contemplation, and become invulnerable to sin. Such a sight!—not one of these women but were the victims of their own propensities; and here they were spread out, bearing their own cognomens of vice. Were they to be pitied or not? We thought they were, and left the hospital with that feeling.—Yet we must review the scene. On one side lay two or three, far gone in consumption. The glaring eye, the pale face, seemed to tell of what was to succeed the results of error—death!—death without friends—hardly hope of future joy. No parent to bend over those who lay in the last gasp of misery! No mother to say, "Daughter, I forgive you; crime is about your skirts, but I, your mother, am here." Also, nothing!—They sink into Potter's Fields forgotten—in fact, unknown; and this is the enjoyment of the prostitute!

On leaving the female hospital we walked around the lower part of the Island, and observed the charges which Mr. Keen was making in its general appearance. He is putting out two or three McAdmized roads, which are much needed. He has, also, set the prisoners, to work grading a part of the Island, which is much needed. In fact, Mr. Keen is a man of observation and industry. Under his superintendence (and it is long continued) this Island will bloom like a rose.

We were conducted to the south wing, which contained over 256 cells—all for females. This was also filled, not a cell being empty. It will be necessary for the city to build an additional prison shortly! In our walk round we observed the prisoners all industriously engaged, under the control of the keepers, in getting out stone. Mr. Keen next took us up to the female department beyond the prison. Here we found about four hundred women, part of whom were picking oakum, and part unemployed. God forgive us from ever having control over such a body. They were of all colors, sizes and appearance. We backed out of the buildings as soon as possible. Mr. Keen then took us into his office, adjoining this building, and exhibited to our inspection his books. Every thing was in apple pie order. On that day, Wednesday, the Island held near a thousand people, exclusive of keepers and guards.

ETERNITY.—A [sectarian] clergyman, in one of his sermons, exclaimed to his hearers, 'Eternity! why you don't know the meaning of that word nor I either, hardly. It is for ever and ever, and five or six eternities a top of that. You might place a row of figures from here to sunset, and cipher them all up, and it would not begin to tell how many ages long eternity is. Why, my friends, after millions and trillions of years have rolled away in eternity, it would be a hundred thousand years until breakfast time.'

There is but one step between the sublime and the ridiculous, and here we have a priestly sample. It about equals the Irishman's account of selling pews in a New England meeting house. Paddy went up to the door and heard the Auctioneer crying—going at $2.00, 200! who bids more, &c., and he came home and said very significantly that God was broke down among the rest of failures, and that they were selling him out in his own house, at auction in New England, to pay his debts!

STEAMBOAT DISASTERS.

Since our last publication, (says the New Orleans Bee of the 22d ult.) we have received intelligence of no less than three steamboat accidents.

The fine steamer Vicksburg, with a cargo of 1200 bales of cotton, struck a snag on Sunday evening, on her way down, near the Red River cut off, and was immediately run upon the bar. She sunk in about eight feet water. The cotton on board will be nearly all saved.

The steamer New Orleans, Captain Fulton, from St. Louis for New Orleans, was snagged and sunk on the 12th inst., at Goose Island, thirty miles above the mouth of the Ohio. She was laden with an assorted cargo of corn, flour, wheat, oil, &c. Boat and cargo a total loss.

The steamer Mentor, Captain Anshutz, from the same place, bound hither with a full cargo, struck a snag below Hamburg, on the 11th instant, and sunk in eight feet water. The boat will be a total loss, and only a small portion of the cargo will be saved.

How to make money.—Let the business of every body else alone, and attend to your own. Don't buy what you don't want. Use every hour to advantage, and study to make even leisure hours useful. Think twice before you throw away a dollar; remember you will have another to make for it. Find recreation in looking after your business, and so, your business will not be neglected in looking after recreation. Buy low, sell fair, and take care of the profits. Look over your books regularly, and if you find an error of a cent trace it out. Should a stroke of misfortune come upon you in trade, RETRENCH, work harder, but never "fly the track." Confront difficulties with unflinching perseverance, and they will disappear at last. Though you should even fail in the struggle you will be honored, but shrink from the task and you will be despised. By following these rules, however, you need never say "fail." Pay debts promptly, and so exact your dues. Keep your word. Take the papers. ADVERTISE.

Riot at Portland.—There was a serious riot at Portland, Maine, on Tuesday evening, which began at the City Hall, in consequence of the attempt of a man named S. S. Foster to deliver a lecture which according to the Argus, was marked by violence of language, and abuses of almost every thing in our political, civil and religious system.

The Mediterranean Squadron.—A Paris paper, le Commerce, says "that the American squadron in the Mediterranean had been reinforced by a 60 gun frigate, the Congress, lately arrived at Mahon." It was not expected in Toulon that the misunderstanding which had arisen between the United States and Morocco, would be amicably adjusted. The envoy sent by the Commodore to the Emperor had not been received, and had returned to Tangiers. The Commodore was waiting precise orders from his Government to commence hostilities with the naval force under his command."

The Count of Paris, now heir presumptive to the throne of France, became five years old the 25th August last.

Foreign Harvests.—The harvest is almost entirely gathered in throughout the east of Europe; and we are enabled to furnish the following comparative estimates, collected from the most accurate accounts:—In Silesia there has been a good average harvest. In Poland, in Galicia, and in the Duchy of Posen, there has been a decidedly good harvest, and the same may be said with respect to Russia. In Hungary, the crops have been most satisfactory; and in the Banat, which is regarded as the granary of the country, they have been doubly as productive as those of last year. In Transylvania and the Turkish provinces, the harvest has also been most plentiful. Similar abundance has also been experienced in Monrovia. Everywhere, the grain is of good quality, and yields from 15 to 20 per cent. more flour than in humid years. It may therefore be fairly predicted that, in the east of Europe the price of wheat will fall instead of rising, even though Foreign demand should be very great.—Allgemeine Zeitung.

PIRATES.—Robert Banning, Esq., of Talbot county, Md., informs the editors of the National Intelligencer that he has two volumes, published in London near a century and a half ago, containing a full and possibly correct history of Kid, the pirates, and other famous freebooters, among whom are two female pirates, Mary Read and Anne Bonny. This work has been in the possession of Mr. Banning's family more than a hundred years, and is supposed to be the only copy in the United States. We wish that some of our booksellers would prevail on Mr. Banning to permit it to be reprinted.

FINANCIAL.—The last good story from the Springs is that of a gentleman who took board at a house where seven dollars per week was charged. He remained five days, and on leaving received a bill of ten dollars, which he promptly paid. It presently occurred to him that something was wrong, and he asked the landlord if his terms were not seven dollars per week? "Oh yes," said the host, "but you have been here only five days, and we charge two dollars per day." "Oh well then," returned the visitor with exceeding naivete: "give me back the three dollars and I will stay with you the week."

DUELS IN NEW ORLEANS.—There must be a great many 'fire eaters' in New Orleans, or certainly plenty of fools, if we may judge by the number of 'affairs of honor' which have taken place recently in the vicinity of that city. We learn from the Crescent, that a duel was fought on the afternoon of the 6th inst., with small swords, and both parties were wounded. Two others were to come off on the evening of the 17th inst., one at Bay St. Louis, weapons rifles, distance 35 paces; and the third near New Orleans, weapons broad swords. The last of these duels, was between the Postmaster of the city and a gentleman connected with the St. Louis Cathedral. The difficulty grew out of the late controversy between the Bishop and members; and other 'affairs' were expected.

There are, says a Southern paper, several islands in the Mississippi river, between the States of Arkansas and Mississippi, which have been long noted as harbors for the most desperate villains which infest the Southern country. These scoundrels are ever ready to perpetrate any crime, the most revolting to humanity; and but a few flat boat men ready enough to lay up for the night at one of these haunts of banditti. Not unfrequently has it happened that boats loaded with produce have been decoyed to the shore, their crews murdered, and the boats sunk, to prevent detection. The Ansan, on her passage up from New Orleans, observed, as she passed Montgomery's Point, four dead bodies floating by. They were evidently murdered, as large and ghastly wounds were seen upon their bodies. They were so offensive that they were not taken up. These men were doubtless the victims of the scoundrels upon one of those islands.

To Travellers.—In New York lately an action was brought against the Captain of the steamboat Swallow, to recover the value of the contents of a travelling bag that was cut and rifled during the passage. The defence set up was, that the captain had ordered his hands not to receive baggage from passengers, and that a notice was posted on the boat declaring that 'all baggage was at the risk of the owners.' The Court overruled the objection, and gave judgment for the plaintiff for the value of the articles lost, besides damages and costs. Boston Traveller.

Keep your children warm when the sun goes down. Without attention to this, September and October are hard months for them to endure.

The manufacture of buttons is getting to be a great business in the U. States—the imports of the article amounting last year to half a million of dollars. This branch of home labor has been commenced but recently in this country. The principal establishment is that of Messrs. Richards at Attleboro, in this State.

The button making business among us has now reached the available sum of 1,500,000 annually, and the capital invested is 1,900,000 giving direct employment to 2580 persons.

The cost of paper, printing, twine, to the various establishments which have sprung up is $25,000 annually. The oldest of the firm at Attleboro has been abroad for the purpose of examining the various modes of manufacturing the article. From the drafts of the machinery taken in his tour, to which has been added Yankee ingenuity, he has now got the works complete, and makes a better button than is sent from Europe. Thirty per cent will protect the American manufacture.—[Boston Daily American.

Rascality.—One of the slickest tricks we have ever heard of was practised upon a gentleman of Livingston, Ky., on the 24th ult. in the Northern Bank. He was standing at the counter, conversing with one of the clerks, with his bank book, from the end of which a check for near $200 was seen protruded in his hand. While thus conversing, a rogue seeing the check gently slipped it from the book, unperceived by the owner, presented it at the counter, had it cashed, and left the bank without being detected. Shortly after the gentleman to whom the check belonged missed it, and requested the teller to stop its payment—his astonishment may be conjectured when told it had already been paid. No clue was furnished to the detection of the adroit scoundrel.

Warning to Bachelors.—Dr. Casper, a celebrated physician of Berlin, says that the mortality of Bachelors, from the ages of 30 to 45, is 27 per cent. Of married men of the same ages, 18 per cent. For 41 bachelors who attain the ages of 40, there are 78 married men. The difference is more striking as age advances. At the age of 60 there are but 22 bachelors alive for 48 married men; at 70 years, 11 bachelors for 27 married men; and at 80 years, for three bachelors there are nine married men.

BARBAROUS.—A traveller relates the following as the mode of torture and execution at Montevideo:—They sow up their prisoners in a wet hide, leaving out the neck and head only, and in this condition they lay them on the ground in the sun to dry. In the process of drying, which the hide soon does in the powerful effect of the sun, it becomes contracted and produces the most excruciating torture on the unfortunate prisoner by the increase of pressure; but if night arrives before he dies from its effects, the hide relaxes again with the moisture from the air, only to prolong his sufferings to the next day, which generally is the last. So cruel a torture is even worse than the boa constrictor can inflict, and the invention of it is said to belong to a barbarian Ramirez

Editors.—Capt. Marryett thus alludes to editors:—“What a life of toil, what an unnatural life, must theirs be, who thus cater through the hours of darkness for the information and amusement of those who have slept through the night, and rise to be instructed by the labor of their vigils. The editors of these must have a most onerous task. It is not the writing of the leading article itself, but the obligation of writing that article every day whether inclined or not—in sickness or in health, in affliction, distress of mind, winter or summer, year after year, tied down to one task, remaining on one spot. It is some thing like walking a thousand miles in a thousand hours. I have a fellow feeling for them, for I know how a monthly periodical will wear down one's existence. In itself, it appears nothing—the labor is not manifest—nor is it the labor—it is the continual attention it requires. Your life becomes as it were, the magazine. One is no sooner corrected and printed, than on comes another. It is the stone of Sysphus—and endless repetition of toil—a constant weight upon the mind—a continual wearing upon the intellect and spirit.”

A First Spree.—“Never was drunk but once in my life,” said a chap once in my hearing; “never mean to be again. The street seemed to be very steep, and I lifted my legs at every step as if I was getting up stairs. Several cart wheels were making convulsions in my brain; and at one time I fancied my head was a large carving and turning establishment, the lathes of which I was keeping in motion with my own feet. I could not conceive what was the reason that the town had turned into such an enormous hill; and what made it worse was, that it seemed all the time growing higher, and threatened to pitch over me.—Stop, stop, thought I, and I'll head this old hill yet—or, at least, it shan't head me. So I turned round to go down and get at the bottom; but hang me if the town didn't turn round with me, heading me all the time, and presenting the high bluff in front of me. Well, sure enough, the ground soon flew up and struck me in the forehead; and as soon as the stars cleared away, I commenced climbing with my hands and knees. The next thing I saw was a big brick house coming full split around the corner! and I believe it ran right over me, for I don't remember any more!”

[Picaune.

HORRID DEATH.—We learn that Dea. Paul Hayward, of Boxboro, was killed by a bull on Tuesday of last week. The beast was savage and unmanageable, and on the previous evening had seriously injured a young man, a neighbor of Mr. Hayward.

A yoke of oxen belonging to a man named Bradley, in Southbury, Ct., were killed by lightning on Sunday the 4th inst. They were standing under a tree which was struck.

THE SABBATH IN FRANCE.—The recent general election in France was held all over the kingdom on the Sabbath. Every conscientious Christian is thus virtually despoiled of his right to hold this office; for, he cannot accept it, while it requires him to desecrate the Lord's day.

COURT MARTIAL OF THE NAUVOO LEGION.

ORDINANCE NO. 4.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the Court Martial of the Nauvoo Legion in General Court Assembled, that any private or non-commissioned officer residing without the City Corporation, may leave the company to which he belongs, at any time, whenever he shall produce satisfactory evidence that he has enrolled himself in the Militia company in the precinct in which he resides.

Sec. 2. Each Regimental or Battalion Adjutant shall receive annually from the treasury of the Legion, two dollars for each company in his respective Regiment or Battalion, provided he shall keep a correct record of all the Regimental or Battalion Orders, revise semi-annually, in the months of April, before the Cohort Drill, and in the month of September before the Legion Drill, the roll of commissioned and non-commissioned officers, and make return thereof to the respective Brigadier Generals; also attend all company elections and keep the record thereof, furnish blank returns for each commandant of companies, for company Battalion, Regimental, Cohort, and Legion parades, and deliver them to said commandants before the said days of parade.

Sec. 3. The Record Book of said Adjutant shall be open to the inspection of the field and general officers.

Sec. 4. The Adjutant's account shall be endorsed by the commanders of Regiments and Battalions with a certificate that he has duly and faithfully performed all the duties required by this ordinance and all other rules and regulations.

Sec. 5. The War Secretary shall receive thirty dollars, and the chief musician ten dollars, each annually, in consideration of faithful performance of all duties required of them, and said officers shall have their accounts certified to by the Major General.

Sec. 6. The Adjutant General shall receive twenty dollars annually in consideration of faithful performance of his duty, which account shall be approved by the Lieutenant General.

Sec. 7. The officers composing the Courts of Assessment and Courts of Appeal shall receive for their services one dollar each, per day, to be approved of by the Major General.

Sec. 8. All disbursements made pursuant to this ordinance shall be paid out of the funds in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

Sec. 9. That all officers wishing to resign shall present their resignation in writing, stating their reasons; thirty days previous to the drill musters.

Sec. 10. All laws, or parts of laws, contrary to the provisions in this ordinance contained or specified, be and the same are hereby repealed.

Sec. 11. This ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Passed, Oct. 15, 1842.

WILSON LAW, Maj. Gen., and Pres. of the Court Martial.

JAMES SLOAN, Secretary.

Approved.

JOSEPH SMITH, Lieut. Gen'l Nauv. Leg.

An Ordinance respecting carrion.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that all carrion be removed without the bounds of this City, or buried three feet under the surface of the ground, by or at the expense of the person or persons owning the animal when it died; and if said person or persons shall neglect or refuse to comply with this ordinance, he or they shall be liable to pay a fine not exceeding ten dollars, at the discretion of the Court, one half of the fine to go to the informer, and the other half to be paid into the City treasury, and to be recoverable in the same manner as fines of a like nature within this city. And if the owner or owners of such dead animals cannot be ascertained, or if known refuse to comply with this ordinance, the Marshal shall cause the animals to be removed or buried at the expense of the city corporation.

Sec. 2. This ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

passed Oct. 25th 1842.

WILSON LAW, Pres. pro tem.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance respecting absent members.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That in case a less number than a quorum of the City Council shall convene, they are hereby authorized to send the Marshal or any other person or persons by them authorized, for any or all absent member or members, as the majority of such members present shall agree, who shall take him or them into his or their custody, and bring him or them forthwith before the Council, at the expense of such absent member or members, respectively, unless such excuse for non-attendance shall be made as the Council when a quorum is convened, shall judge sufficient; and in that case, the expense shall be paid out of the City treasury.

Sec. 2. That the same fees be allowed the City Marshal or other persons employed by the City Council, as are awarded to the City Marshal for like services, and that they shall be collected as all fines are, of a similar kind.

Sec. 3. This ordinance shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

passed Oct. 25th 1842.

WILSON LAW, Pres. pro tem.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

Thoughtful.—Every beat of the heart, is a rap at the door of the tomb.

The grave may know that once we lived, before an unborn to-morrow.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 28TH INST.

Ralph Stafford, aged 38 years; ague and fever.

Jonathan Scofield, aged 45 years; fever.

Joseph Prows, aged 4 years; whooping cough.

Phos Lamb, aged 9 months; canker.

Alma Wilbur, aged 1 year; consumption.

Henry Marks, aged 21 years; bilious fever.

Mary S. Thorn, aged 1 year; fever.

Thomas Preece, aged 55 years; ague and fever.

Esther Preece, aged 26 years; ague and fever.

Ann Ashley, aged 8 years; ague and fever.

Hesekiah Patridge, aged 73 years; ague and fever.

Ezekiel Franklin, aged 17 years; ague and fever.

Catherine Goodale, aged 24 years; consumption.

Simon Drake, aged 41 years; black canker.

Julia M. Taylor, aged 12 years; nervous fever.

Total 15.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

DIED.—In this city, on the 16th inst. Caroline Kingsbury, wife of Joseph C. Kingsbury after an illness of about three months.

The deceased was sister to Bishop N. K. Whitney. She united with the church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Kirtland (then Geauga, now Lake co.,) Ohio, October 1835, and has ever since been a consistent follower of the meek and lowly Jesus; she moved up to Far West, Mo., in company with her husband in the fall of 1838, and after enduring much affliction in consequence of the persecution in Mo., which laid the foundation of a disease that ultimately terminated in her death, she bid adieu to all terrestrial objects. She was a faithful friend, an affectionate wife, and a devout christian; beloved by all who knew her, and much lamented in her death; she was perfectly reconciled to her fate, and died in the hope of a glorious resurrection. ‘Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord; yea, from henceforth saith the spirit, for they rest from all their labors and their works do follow them.’

[COMMUNICATED.]

DIED.—In this city, at his father's residence, on the 22nd inst. of the Billious Fever, after an illness of one week, Mr. Henry Marks, in the 2nd year of his age.

Henry Marks—just verging on the years of manhood—honest, industrious, capable, affectionate, the idol of his parents, beloved by his brothers and sisters, and respected by all who could boast the honor of his acquaintance,—is deeply lamented and deplored by all. His steady habits and business talents, had raised him, though young, to the office of deputy sheriff and constable elect; but death with an unpropitious arm, by a single blow, crushing affection and blighting ardent hopes, sapt the foundation just laid for a beneficial life, and thwarted his career of usefulness to his friends. While anticipations were high, and hopes of future life began to throw their radiance upon his path, and he had just stretched out his hand to struggle with the stern heartlessness of this lower world, he was summoned from earth to mingle in the beatitude of heaven.

O, speculative dogmas of the infidel world!—proclaim not that man is as grass! for in the morn of the Resurrection we shall meet him again! L. O. L.

ESTATE OF JAMES DOYLE DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given that on the first Monday of December next I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of James Doyle, late of said county, deceased, when and where all claimants are notified and requested to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 24th day of October, A. D. 1842.
DANIEL H. WELLS, Administrator.

ROYAL VISIT TO SCOTLAND.

The newspapers are filled with accounts of the Queen's visit to Scotland.—She appears to have been received there with sober enthusiasm. She quitted London on the Monday morning, sailed in the Royal George yacht, towed by two steamers, and was remarkably pleased with the voyage, although she did not escape the usual penalty of seasickness, and no doubt wished that if "Britannia rules the waves," she would rule them a little straighter, as the schoolmaster said. The Royal Squadron reached Leith on Wednesday night, and deferred landing, until the next morning, September, 1.

The Royal George was fitted up with more taste than splendor. The Queen, with her usual good sense, commanded that, during the voyage the usual requirements of state should be all dispensed with, as far as possible. Thus, she was placed exactly on the footing of a friend, rather than a Queen. People kept their hats on in her presence—turned their backs to her now and then—and treated simply with the courtesy due to her sex, rather than rank.

The Queen and Prince Albert had a sitting and a bedroom for their own use. The state rooms were for the accommodation of all her companions. In the private room was a grand pianoforte, and in the Royal bedroom there was a plain French bed, with chintz hangings. Comfort, rather than show seemed to be the one thing needful.

The Royal pair took their meals, on ship board, at their accustomed hours.—Breakfast between 8 and 9; lunch at 2; dinner at 8; to bed by 11. One of the narrators of the events of the voyage has carefully chronicled the fact that the queen eat with a keen appetite, and that Prince Albert was quite knocked up by sea-sickness. Now and then the queen felt squeamish, and the same historian, gravely mentions, as a proof of her royal consideration, that when she did want the basin she employed the services of one of the usual attendants attached to the vessel, and not of any of her ladies in waiting!

Another reporter, who thought it his duty to give a minute account of the voyage, was evidently at a loss to mention that the Queen had been sea-sick. He managed it in this magnificent manner: "At length, the rolling of the vessel produced the consequences usually resulting to voyagers unaccustomed to the sea.—Our gracious and beloved monarch, feeling that she was upon the waters whose undivided sovereignty is all her own, resisted the sensations of illness as long as she could—determined, it would appear, that Empress of the Ocean as she is, she would not yield to them. But Nature was imperative, and her Majesty got sick. She speedily recovered, however, and shortly after ascended to the quarter deck, looking rather pale. Presently, she again felt ill." And so, carefully recording each particular, this writer informed the public of how the Queen looked, and what she said and did while suffering from sea-sickness!

FRANCE.—The French Squadron under Admiral Hugon, arrived at Ajaccio, in Corsica, on the 13th ult. It consisted of eight ships of the line, two frigates, and a steamer, carrying together 11,000 men, and 910 pieces of artillery. The squadron was to remain at Ajaccio until the 22nd.

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th, day of October, 1842. no26-tds.

THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Norman Hart, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Norman Hart, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 14th day of Nov. next, at the District Court-room, in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated October 13, A. D. 1842.

LEVI DAVIS, Solicitor for petitioner.
G. C. SAMPSON, Counselor.

Attest: James F. Jwings, Clerk.

ESTATE OF RALPH BIRKENHEAD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the 15th day of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at one o'clock, P. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Ralph Birkenhead, late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate, also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 13th day of October, 1842.

CHRISTOPHER DIXON, Administrator. no26-tds.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBELL LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, Insult and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispenation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12½ cents) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y1.) J. SNIDER.

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo

DISSOLUTION.

THE Partnership heretofore existing between B. R. Bently and James Field having this day been dissolved by mutual consent, the debts of the firm will be settled by B. R. Bently and all debts due the firm received by him.

Nauvoo, Oct 21st, 1842.

27 w2

ESTATE OF HENRY J. HUNT, DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of January next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting against the estate of Henry J. Hunt, late of said county deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

DAVID DEVOL, Administrator.

Dated this 7th day of Oct. 1842. no26-tds.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple, L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's, R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge, L. Tulle, M. Romney, H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842.

17-ly.

NOTES

DUE the Trustee for labor on the Temple, are left with the Temple Committee for collection. Brethren, remember that your contracts with your God are sacred; the labor is wanted immediately.

WM. CLAYTON,

Temple Recorder.

June 25, 1842.

10-1f.

P. S. Remember the notes due for property also.

LOOK HERE! LOOK HERE!!

WANTED, at the Nauvoo Foundry, a quantity of Stone coal; any persons wishing to furnish it, will please call on Hiram Kimball, or Geo. W. Robinson, at the Post Office.

Old castings will be taken in exchange for new. Nauvoo, June 13th 1842. 10-1f.

NOTICE.

LEFT, in my care, in the Month of April last, off the Steam-Boat A-py, one trunk, with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stoddard, Montrose, Iowa; the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of Mr. Peck, at this time.

S. H. BURTIS.

Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842.

no20-1f.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price.

No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20-3m.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER Q.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
" Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
" Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation. 5.00
For Analytical, Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus, and Newton's Principia. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

DRUGS, MEDICINES, &c.

THE subscriber has opened a Drug Store in Nauvoo, and intends keeping a full assortment of every thing in that line.—Paints, Oils, Varnish, Brushes, Turpentine, Linseed, Spermi, Olive, and Castor Oil; white Lead, red and black Lead, Vermillion, Prussian Blue, Lytharge, Chrome green and yellow, venecian red, spanish brown, lampblack, ivory black, whiting, chalk, yellow ochre, dye stuffs, indigo, cochineal, annatto, madder, copperas, alum, oil vitriol, blue vitriol, logwood, brazilwood, &c., &c.; stationary, plain and ruled cap and letter paper, ink, wafers, quills, sand, &c.; window-glass of all sizes, saleratus, putty, spices, glass ware, perfumery, soaps, snuff, rosin, matches, blacking, every thing in the medicine line, all the patent medicines; all of which will be sold low for cash, Van Studdiford's ague and fever pills, also his medicated lozenges, and cough, worm, and cathartic lozenges, are constantly on hand.

Store on water street above Davis' Hotel.

A. T. TERRELL.

July, 23, 1842.

AGUE AND FEVER.

Gleim's tonic mixture and Dr. Renals' pills, two certain cures for that inveterate pest, the chills and fever.—for sale by.

July 23, 1842.

A. T. TERRELL.

BEESWAX.

The highest price in cash will be paid for Beeswax, by (16 m 3) A. T. TERRELL.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS. Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill., 8 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa: a so I house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses. I good two horse waggon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS TERRY.

SILAS TERRY.

Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842.

no24-1f.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.

Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842.

18-3m

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842.

no27-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Cliffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.

Levi Moffet, Augusta.

Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.

John E. Page, Pittsburgh.

B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Barts, New Egypt.

James Curtis, Horners Town.

W. I. Appleby, Reclless Town.

Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.

Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 29

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, November 1, 1840.

Whole Number 29

THE WASP.

IS EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

THE YOUNG MOTHER.

BY MRS. C. M. SAWYER.

There are tears on thy cheek, young mother—there are tears of anguish on thy cheek—and wan and pallid is the hue of thy tremulous lips! The light of joy hath gone out from thine eyes, and their lids are weighed down with the heavy hand of sorrow. I listen for the glad tones which were wont to greet my coming, but low stifled sobbings, sadder than the moanings of a sea-shell, alone steal upon my ear. Thou art bereft of a new-born life, that was dearer to thee than thine own. The little snow-drop which nestled in thy bosom is faded and withered; a gem hath dropped away from the shining circlet of thy marriage crown, and meet is it that sadness and weeping should now be thine.

But lead me to the darkened room where reposes all of earth that is now left to thee of what was so cherished and so dear. Lead me to the spot where for days, long and weary days, thou hast sat holding back that young life from the grave—struggling with the pitiless Angel of Death, until thy wild pleadings could no longer be uttered; until the cold drops of oblivion, which fell from his dark wings as they waved heavily around thee, quenched the living spark, and thy children was clay.

But lift up the drooping curtain, and let in the cheerful sunlight, for darkness becometh not a scene like this. Let me turn aside the snowy covering from the

upon the dear departed. Ha! and is Death so lovely? I have deemed that the footsteps of the destroyer were marked with desolation; and blood! flowers are sprung up around them! I had looked for the ghastly traces of his withering fingers; and lo beauty and sweetness are all that I behold!

Oh! come, pale weeper, and gaze with me upon what is so passing beautiful! See upon its placid brow a smile—oh! sweeter than the smiles of life!—is still resting. Ay, gaze upon it as thou wouldst gaze upon the face of an angel; for it is the signet which Heaven has impressed upon its own, sealing it for immortality. Gaze reverently, for it is the reflected glory of that unclouded smile, which beams from the brow of the Eternal, and is the light of that spirit-land where thy child yet liveth, and waiteth for thy coming.

Dry up thy tears, young mother, and bide the time of thy re-union:—dry up thy bitter tears, and weep no more.

From the Western New Yorker.

What is there in the whole material universe, or what is there limited to the comprehension of man, for which man should feel indebted to his maker, if it is not for the endowment of human understanding for the bestowment of the mental powers upon the human race? which without cultivation man never would have gained the rank and station which he now fills, but would have been level with the brute creation, ignorant of all the sources of real happiness and enjoyment. Yet He, who created man, in his infinite wisdom, saw fit to bless him with a mind that he might appreciate his condition, not as one attended with troubles, anxieties, and perplexities, necessarily; but as surrounded with all the blessings and comforts, which would tend to make him happy. Now, inasmuch as man is possessed with mental powers, is it not his privilege, or rather duty to improve and cultivate them, that he may be the better qualified to answer the benign purposes of his Creator? Surely it is. If he did not, it would be like a magnificent palace erected for the reception and dwelling of the honored, but regretfully left to rot and decay. If it had not been for the cultivation of the mind, where would have been our Colleges, Academies and Institutions of Learning; our books, papers, pamphlets and every thing of man's invention, from which we treasure up knowledge? They would have been buried in gross obscurity, never to have risen to spread their light over a dark and benighted world. Now, every gale wafts intelligence from country to country; every thing gives it forth, and all in their turn receive it and give it its due by saying 'mind is the great lever of all things: thought, the process by which human purposes are accomplished.' It is much knowledge, that renders the mind and man competent to act in the great stage of intellectual operation. In whatever station in life man may be placed, if he has treasured up knowledge and instilled right principles in his mind, they will accompany him; if he is affluent or sunk to the lowest depths of poverty, yet they do not forsake him, but assist and comfort him in tribulation. They will attend him along the delightful paths of youth, and retire, cheering and reviving him through the gloomy shades of old age, and cause the last days of his existence to be those of peace and contentment. Now as the improvement of the mind ly supplies ability, it is necessary that this ability should be inclined to right purposes; for if a man should possess all knowledge, and yet be destitute of moral principles, he would not be beneficial either to himself or human society; but would be the more dangerous and hurtful, according to his superior talents and faculties. Therefore it may be laid down as a fact, and entamped upon the memory of every tongue and people—that the greatest power we have to secure liberty and right, is moral force combined with knowledge of belles-lettres, which ascribe the cause of their existence to the cultivation of the mind. Yes, we who are favored with a system of religion and morals, by which our condition has been elevated, our freedom obtained and secured; should we not contribute to their support, if by no other way than simply to patronize our Institutions of Learning. Where by well directed industry and attention the mental powers are enlarged, the faculties improved, the mind expanded, and by continual perseverance man enabled to counsel with the wise and great in important affairs. Anon, may we drink deep for knowledge, cultivate the mind, the choicest of human blessings, and speed the wings of mental and moral illumination, until they shall have fanned the darkest corners of the earth.

DARWIN.

EAST INDIA COTTON.

By the last arrivals we have dates from India to July 9. There had been heavy and incessant rains, which must damage, to a great extent, the cotton crop. The papers are also full of accounts of the injury done to the indigo plants. In many places, the planters will not realize half a crop. The following interesting information in relation to American cotton planters is from the Bombay Times:

"Mr. Hawley, one of the American cotton planters, arrived here some days ago, and left for Broach yesterday. He traveled from Coimbatore, along the coast, by dark—not a very agreeable journey at this season of the year. Mr. Mercer, one of the Bengal planters, is also, we believe, on his way to Broach.—The difficulties and obstacles which have hitherto stood in the way of the successful carrying out of this experiment are many and numerous. Mr. Mercer, a few weeks ago, had his bungalow burnt down, and the estate and works, together with his whole property, except the suit of clothes he had on him, by the insurgents in Bundelcund. But the most severe blow of all is the lamented death of Captain Bayles, the superintendent of the plantation at Humeerpore—the originator of the undertaking—occasioned, we fear, by exposure brought on in the too ardent performance of his duty."

At Bombay, Madras, and Calcutta, business was almost at a standstill. The following is from the Madras Spectator:

"The deplorable stagnation of business which has for some time been felt by the shipping of this port, we regret to learn, still continues without charge or alleviation; and, looking to the same unpropitious state of things now prevailing, both at Calcutta and Bombay, we see little prospect of relief till some change for the better takes place in Europe, and the home market again exhibits some signs of activity and improvement."

The only relief to this gloomy picture is the shipment of cotton to India. The following is from a review of the Bombay market, July 19.

"With the exception of cotton shipments to China, there is an almost total suspension of business here at present—Cotton piece goods and twist are entirely unsaleable; the warehouses are glutted with them, while the numerous arrivals from England daily add to the accumulated stock. There is no prospect whatever of any improvement in prices after the monsoon."

In consequence of the demand for this great market, cotton had advanced in price. But, says the paper from which the above is taken, "there is only a small quantity in the place available for purchase, and in general it is of the most inferior quality."

War.—Voltaire thus expresses himself on the subject of war:—A hundred thousand mad animals, whose heads are covered with hats, advance to kill or to be killed by a live number of their fellow mortals covered with turbans. By this strange procedure they want, at best, to decide whether a tract of land to which none of them have any claim, shall belong to a certain man whom they call Sultan or to another whom they called Czar neither of whom ever saw or will see the spot so furiously contended for; and very few of those creatures who thus mutually butcher each other ever beheld the animal for whom they cut each other's throats! From time immemorial this has been the way of mankind almost over all the earth. What an excess of madness is this! and how deservedly might a Superior Being crush to atoms this earthly ball, the bloody nest of such ridiculous murderers!"

THE POINT OF HONOR.—Duel between two Indians.—The following is from the Red River Republican:—

"A desperate and bloody duel was fought by two Indians of this parish, short time since. The particulars of the affair are as follows: A quarrel arose between them, that led to a fight, in which the Indian called Jack was beaten up he could not stand by his brother, who was called John. Two or three days after the fight, Jack, not being satisfied with his beating, called upon John for another fight, in which Jack was again very badly used up, and was besides lacerated in the face. Upon finding himself disfigured, he declared he could not live any longer with honor, and challenged John to mortal combat. It was agreed between them that they should fight with rifles, the muzzles within six inches of each other's breasts. John not having a good one, his nephew of Jack lent John his rifle, declaring that he did not wish his uncle to have any advantage. Both parties fired at the same moment, and immediately fell dead. They were Choctaws, and were very well known to the whites living in the Alexandria Pine Woods."

The marriage of Mademoiselle Rothschild with her cousin, the Baron Nathaniel de Rothschild, was celebrated about the middle of August. All the family were present at this solemnity, the Messrs. Rothschilds from Vienna, from London, from Frankfort, Naples, and also Sir Moses Montefiore, had arrived at Paris a few days before. The ceremony having been before performed the religious ceremony took place at Bologna. The marriage was not only a family festival, it was also a happy one for the poor. Baron James Rothschild each of the twelve charitable officers of Paris, and valuable assistance was distributed to the families of indigent Israelites in the capital.

CHEERFULNESS IN A WIFE.

Charles Dickens, whose writings contain much to admire, and show a keen perception of human character, remarks upon this subject as follows:

"A woman may be of great assistance to her husband, in business, by wearing a cheerful smile continually on her countenance. A man's perplexities and gloominess are increased a hundred fold when his better half moves about with a continual scowl upon her brow. A pleasant, cheerful wife, is a rainbow set in the sky, when her husband's mind is tormented with storms and tempests; but a dissatisfied fretful wife in the hour of trouble, is like one of those fiends who delight in torture lost spirits."

Another writer expresses similar views in language equally forcible but not altogether poetical. He says:

"Good humor in a wife, is like gold leaf in pill. It does not alter the dose, but it makes it go down."

A River Dried Up.—The heats of summer have so dried up the waters of the river Elbe, that the water mills are all at a stand; and at Pirna the river is entirely dry. The waters in retirement have given up a secret kept by them more than 200 years. A square stone, left bare, having the following significant inscription in Saxton patois:—"When last men saw me, in August, 1620, they wept; and they who see me next autumn weep too."

THE PRESENT AGE.

This is an age eventful and unparalleled in the annals of time. It is one whose dark catalogue of injustice and crime, the virtuous mind cannot contemplate without blushing at the degenerate and fallen state of man. The arm of justice, which once threw an impenetrable shield around the human family, has become paralyzed, and falls innoxious when called upon to assert and maintain the rights of mortals. Innocence is trampled under the feet of the oppressor, and mercy knocks in vain at the door for redress. Aristocracy holds the purse of power in her relentless grasp; avarice sits upon the bench of judiciary power; intrigue has scaled ambition's high walls, and set her feet upon the necks of the unfortunate. Bloodshed has become the delight of nations, and private plunder the love of communities. Religion is mocked at; virtue destroyed; and the motives of the well meaning condemned;—the persecution of men for their peculiar faith in the Deity is revolting to the human heart, and when we survey the wide fields of antiquity for precedents of equal barbarity, the mind involuntarily reverts back to those dark and bloody ages when the car of the Inquisition swept proudly on in its career of torture and death, crushing beneath its mighty wheel the lives of martyred millions, in conformity to the ipse dixits of Popish superiority and the laws of a priestly dynasty. This is an age and America a nation which boast of being enlightened by the dawn of civilization—rejoicing at the fall of the Inquisition and that religious oligarchy which threw the bodies of dissenters upon the fatal rack,—yet, after all their boasted religious toleration, they have done more than to place the torch to the fagots arranged for the demise of victims;—they have exiled people from the homes secured to them by the American Constitution, as well as the first fundamental laws of Nature and her God, which proclaim instinctively the equality and rights of man;—they have shed the blood of hundreds—violated the chastity of women—caused the death of infants—desolated neighborhoods—confiscated property, and depopulated villages. The cries of the innocent have been disregarded—wives been slain upon the breasts of husbands—suckling babes been murdered upon the bosoms of mothers—brothers fallen at the side of brothers, and sisters died in defence of sisters. The snowy locks of age have been a source of ridicule by the hoard of upstarts—(as numerous, by the by, as the locust army of Egypt)—fathers of the Revolution been forced from their peaceful residences to find shelter in the howling wilderness, mid drifting snows or angry empests—and widows, in their lonely, helpless situation, been crushed beneath the masculine arm of infuriated demons. O, Missouri! thy fair plains have been the theatre of crimes like these! Thy star of glory is wiped away from the escutcheon of American liberty! thou art alien from the proud station thou once assumed in the greatness of thy sovereignty! and thy once honored name has lost its palmy lustre in the hearts of philanthropists! Weep for the loss of thy former dignity, and lament the commission of atrocities that has rendered you dious for all coming time! And these wrongs have not been redressed by the imposition of the Federal Government. Executives, wrapt in the robes of their undignified importance, reckless of the restrictions placed upon them by the checks and balances of the Constitution, and the solemn oath of their high and responsible office, have disregarded the petitions of humble suppliants, and spurned their intreaties. O, vile and degenerate age!—how art thou fallen from the right galaxy of years wherein the cry of the oppressed was never made in vain! The whole world seems tottering on the verge of some mighty revolution. External broils and intestine commotion sweep over the whole face of the globe; nation is wrangling with nation; kingdom with kingdom, principalities and powers are shaken to their centre by the demon of discord, and Kings rebuked by their subjects who fain would hurl them from their despotic thrones. The problematical state of England proclaims that she approximates the period of her ultimate dissolution; thousands of her subjects, driven to desperation by starvation and hunger, are forming themselves into mobs and taking, with the strong hand, what the wealthy and aristocratic, and those holding the reins of Government, fain would withhold from them. Defeat after defeat has recently lacerated her Navy; the wing of war lowers ominously upon her, thinning the ranks of her soldiery, while all her hostile movements, resulting in consternation and dismay, seems to predict that that ponderous empire must fall or alter her present form of Government. China and India are forced to repel her encroachments with the strong arm of military power, and break off the yoke of oppression which she has for years endeavored to fasten upon them, to which the more effeminate or unfortunate Ireland has, in some measure, fallen the hapless victim. In every country where actual war does not exist, the degeneracy of man is humiliatingly apparent. Scenes of carnage shock the harmony of neighborhoods, at intervals staining the very hearthstones of domestic retirement with the crimson current of human gore. Blight and woe is spread over the whole face of the land; and, like a resistless hailstorm, they drive onward in the work of desolation, crushing the innocent as well as the guilty with its violence. Debauchery, pillage, treachery, treason, disloyalty to Governments and faithlessness to districted communities, characterize the movements of those to whom the public trust is confided. High and dignified places in the departments of Governments are being filled with demagogues and fawning aspirants, promising all things and performing nothing beneficial to the public commonwealth. Men disregarding the prosperity of organized Governments, are bolstered up by party clamor and entrusted with the general weal, doing nothing for the interest of their constituents; but constantly glutting themselves upon the 'loaves and fishes' of office, bloating their private purses out of the revenue of the people, and squandering the public domain. Our penitentiaries are crowding with convicts; plunder, burglary and highway robbery, seem to be the order of the day, and business for the hangman is daily increasing. In our beloved America, State is arrayed against State in some petty contest for pecuniary advantage; districts are involved in difficulty with districts; communities disturbed by the clamor of strife and party litigation; and, in fine, the whole country is overwhelmed in the turbulent whirlpool of vice and sordid avarice. The seeds of discord and disunion are sown among us, secretly threatening the dismemberment of the Union; the South entertains feelings of hostility towards the North, and the North is uncompromising;—party wrangles fill the halls of Congress; members are heaping anathemas upon the head of the President who, we believe, clings sincerely to the Constitution as the rule of his action; representatives resigning their seats to gratify some private feeling of malevolence and defeat the measures of their opponents; the spirit of strife and envy is spreading with lightning rapidity, and the American enchantresses—Freedom, Liberty, and the Rights of Man—we fear will prove incompetent long to support the equilibrium of the Nation. The State Government of Rhode Island is nearly broken to pieces upon the damning car of political ambition;—the once proud sceptre of its gubernatorial office is no longer wielded by an individual elevated by the universal voice of the people; a portion of the public press under its present dynasty, has been forced to put on the muzzle of silence; her subjects are imprisoned, and many of them treated with violence and reduced to penury and want.

The boisterous tumult of bacchanalian rabbles, performing their midnight carousals in the precinct of some vile and degraded resort of infamy and crime, at intervals, break the solitude of night, and the subjects of domestic quiet are startled from the dreamy pillow of peaceful slumber by the demoniac outbreaks of the besotted group. All virtuous, lofty, refined and edifying sentiments, are forgotten in the bewildering fumes of the enebriating cup and drowned in the love of Bacchus. The debauchee, fresh from the tipling shop, from scenes of shame and human depravity, are seen tottering through the streets of every city and village, an object of loathing to every noble and well ordered mind. How often do we read, now a days, from the columns of newspapers, accounts of such pitiful objects, who, after robbing a family of dependent children of their very bread, by disposing of the last shilling they possessed in the world for the intoxicating glass, will wend homeward their zigzag way to insult and abuse them, and, perhaps, in a fit of drunkenness, put a period to their lives! Circumstances like these are daily transpiring. The hireling is oppressed in his wages by the purse-proud aristocrat, and left to plod on through life in a state of starvation, misery and want. Affluence and penury stalk side by side, like the 'shadowy steeds of Night and Morning,'—the purse of opulence never deigning to meliorate the tattered condition of the beggar! England—that haughty and tyrannical nation of Lords and Nobles—affords abundant precedents to warrant these assertions. The religion of Jesus that was established on the earth in the primitive ages of the world, has vanished amid the din of sectarian clamor, and religious bigots, lost in the bewildering mazes of their own speculative fancy, are endeavoring to lead men to heaven by the path which they, in the plenitude of their wisdom, may condescend to point out. O, religious bigotry! O, sectarian fanaticism!—why hast thou departed from the fundamental laws of heaven and chained thy victims in impenetrable darkness forever!

Great God! if this is an enlightened age, what must have been the deplorable condition of the preceding ones! Patriots, sages, philanthropists, and fathers of the world!—arouse from your lethargy; shake off the dark, dank mists of your mental darkness, as the strong lion shakes the benumbing dews from his shaggy mane; increase the assiduity of your ennobling vigils; commence the great work of RE-TRENCHMENT and REFORM,—and let the world stand forth, purified, free, regenerated, and disenthralled!

Our ink is freezing—our 'forums' are freezing—our pen is freezing—our intellect is freezing—our 'devil' is freezing, shivering, and grumbling for the want of WOOD! Do you hear that? Bring in that wood you promised us or we fear we shall soon be 'stereotyped,' editor, devil, type, press and all, in the rude, icy embrace of old howling Boreas.

Meeting was held, last Sunday, on the first floor of the Temple—service by Elder John Taylor—four or five thousand people present.

The 'Naavoo Lyceum,' will meet at Professor Orson Pratt's School Room at early candle light on Saturday evening next—subject for discussion, 'Should Females be educated to the same extent of Males.'

Romance in Real Life.—The Paris Globe furnishes the following Neapolitan romance: The Countess Mulioli was left a rich and beautiful widow, at the age of twenty-two. Innumerable suitors came; but the Duke de Hermillo was the only one whose sighs were reciprocated. Their union was agreed upon, and deferred only till the term of widowhood had expired. One day, at a fete, the young Countess took the fancy of consulting a fortune-teller, who was there for the entertainment of the guests. He, as usual, examined the lines of her hand, and, with a troubled countenance and trepidulous voice, said, "Lady you are at the gates of the temple of happiness; but you will never enter, and will die in despair." The lady was deeply affected by this prediction; and all the affectionate soothings of her lover were scarcely adequate to restore her mind to tranquility. Time and passion, however had obliterated the impression, when the Duke de Hermillo went on a visit to Rome, and the Countess retired to a Convent, anxiously waiting his return. Days, weeks, and months elapsed without the reappearance of her betrothed. At last came from him the following cruel epistle: "Madame! we deceived ourselves in believing that we were destined for each other. To-morrow I shall be married to the Princess Maria Doria. Let us forget our childish fancies, but ever remain friends." This was the stroke of fate; for on finishing the letter, she sank to the ground, and was taken up a lifeless corpse. On the same evening, her father left Naples for Rome; and, five days after, the Duke de Hermillo received three poinard wounds as he was getting into his carriage, and expired on the spot. The ministers of justice in both countries are engaged in investigating these tragical events, which have occasioned the deepest emotion in many noble families.

COLT'S SENTENCE—HIS SINGULAR BEHAVIOR—REFLECTIONS.—A New York editor makes

some well timed and useful comments on the conduct of Colt, the murderer, at the time of his sentence. Every youth ought to ponder them solemnly and honestly:

The behavior of Colt, throughout the scene, is probably the most remarkable in the annals of crime. His confidence, his assurance, his courage, his coolness, all rolled up together, and rising to the sublime of imprudence, as we might call it—surpass any thing on record. He is truly sui generis, and under other aspects, and with a different education, and another destiny, might have served for a hero—or a chieftain of the highest order—for a master spirit to revolutionize the age. He has come to his untimely end, by a want of moral and religious culture—by entertaining mistaken notions on honor and respectability. With a degree of hardihood, that Satan himself could not surpass, he boldly says, "under the same circumstances I would do the like deed again—I was insulted."

In this single word "insulted"—in this small word "insulted"—exists the key that unlocks the mystery of the demoralization of the age. Let us explain.

Our young men, instead, of being taught the precepts of Jesus, as he delivered them on the mount, have their minds filled with personal pride—personal consequences—the false theories of modern honor, with its machinery of insults, satisfaction, resentment, passion, duels, and death. The same principle of inhuman morals, which has brought Colt to his awful end, was the cause of the murder of Cilley—led to the murder of McCoy—brought about the duel between Marshall and Webb, which came very near ending in the murder of the latter.

This principle is the false idea of honor—the false conception of fame—the false feeling of human pride. It is a portion of the same feeling which caused the overthrow of Satan and his angels—and has caused all the sorrow and trouble in the world since the first murder of Abel in sight of paradise, and before the face of the Almighty himself.

Here exists the great error in the education of the youth of the present age of the world. They are taught the vain principle of personal honor; as it is understood by a vain and silly world—and not that holy principle that rests on the rock of moral rectitude, accompanied by moral courage, that will stand the test of the opinions—in time and eternity—of the race of men and of the race of angels. Hence we see the fruits of this false moral education in the weak and worthless administration of justice—in the corruption of banks—legislatures—courts—juries and communities.

THE STREAM OF LIFE.

The following beautiful and impressive illustration of life is from the celebrated Bishop Heber's farewell sermon, delivered many years since, upon the eve of his departure for India, to his parishioners at Hudnet, in England.

"Life bears us on like the stream of a mighty river. Our boat, at first, al-swiftly down the narrow channel through the playful murmurings of the little brook, and winding of its grassy borders. The trees shed their blossoms over our young heads; and the flowers on the brink seem to offer themselves to our young hands, we are in hope and we grasp eagerly at the beauties around us; but the stream hurries us on, and still our hands are empty.
—

"Our course in youth and manhood is along a wilder and deeper flood, and amid objects more striking and magnificent. We are animated by the moving picture of enjoyment and industry passing before us, we are excited by short lived success, or depressed and rendered miserable by some short lived disappointment. But our energy and our dependence are both in vain. The stream bears us on, and our joys and griefs are left behind us. We may be shipwrecked but we cannot anchor; our voyage may be hastened but cannot be delayed; whether rough or smooth the river hastens towards its home—the roaring of the waves is beneath our keel and the land lessens from our eyes, the floods are lifted up around us, and we take our last leave of earth and its inhabitants, and of our further voyage there is no witness but the infinite and Eternal.

"And do we still take so much thought for the future days, when the days which have gone by have so strangely and uniformly deceived us? Can we so still set our hearts upon the creatures of God, when we find, by a sad experience, that the Creator only is permanent? Or shall we, not rather lay aside every sin which does most easily beset us, and think of ourselves henceforth as wayfaring persons only, who have no abiding inheritance but in the hope of a better world, and to whom even the world would be worse than hopeless, if it were not for our Lord Jesus Christ, and the interest which we have obtained in his mercies."

A Mother.—The following beautiful passage, as true as it is beautiful, is from Mr. Jones' novel "The Gipsy." "Round the idea of one's mother, the mind of man clings with a fond affection. It is the first thought stamped upon our infant heart, when yet soft and capable of receiving the most profound impressions, and all the after feelings of the world are more or less light in comparison. I do not know that even in our old age we do not look back to that feeling as the sweetest we have through life. Our passions and our willfulness may lead us far from the object of our filial love: we may learn even to pain her heart, to oppose her wishes, to violate her commands; we may become wild, head strong and angry at her councils or opposition; but when death has stilled her monitory voice, and nothing but calm memory remains to recapitulate her good deeds, affection, like a flower beaten to the ground by a past storm, raises up her head and smiles amidst her tears. Round that idea we have said, the mind clings with fond affection: and even when the earlier period of our loss forces memory to be silent, fancy takes the place of remembrance, and twines the image of our dead parent with a garland of graces, and beauties, and virtues which we doubt not that she possessed."

A Woman of Spirit.—The Providence Chronicle gives the following as a report of a speech made at the Suffrage clam bake at Somerset, by Mrs. Parlin. Providence: "I propose, that if there is a sufficient number of Suffrage ladies present, to lead them to the prison, and liberate William Dean, but I don't want you to deal by me as some of the Suffrage men did by Governor Dorr, run off in the woods, and leave me to fight the battle alone. I am willing to be the first to be shot down; and if I do fall don't stop to pick up my dead body, but press on until you succeed. Neither am I particular about the manner of my burial, place my body in Rhode Island soil, and I shall be happy in having fallen a martyr in the cause of human rights."—[She was greeted with immense cheers.]

Romance of real life.—Some years ago, says a foreign journal, the captain of a corsair carried off the wife of a poor wood-cutter residing in the neighborhood of Messina. After detaining her for several months on board his vessel, he landed her on an island in the South Seas, wholly regardless of what might befall her. It happened that the woman was presented to the savage monarch of the island, who became enamored of her. He made her his wife, placed her on the throne, and at his death left her sole sovereign of his domains. By a European vessel which recently touched at the island, the poor woodcutter has received intelligence of his wife. She sent him presents of such vast value, that he will probably be one of the wealthiest individuals in Sicily until it shall please her majesty, his august spouse, to summon him to her court.

AUTUMN. We are now in the autumn of the year; the season of golden hues and fading verdure. Nature's chill breath is imperceptibly passing over leaf, plant and flower, and imparting to them all the tincture of approaching decay. The green carpet of creation is being superseded by one of yellow or more motley color, and all around and about us tells of the perishable nature of things. It is a season pregnant with reflection, for it admonishes us that decay is an inherent principle of Nature. It bids those of us who have not yet entered the "sear and yellow leaf" of life, to prepare ourselves for that period, to husband our resources for it, as the farmer does his harvest gathering, that we may look back on life's summer with a quiet glow of satisfaction, such as an autumnal evening's sun imparts to a landscape.

To those who have already passed the rubicon of middle life, it tells us that the advent of life's winter is fast approaching. Like an index to some particular passage of a book, it points to the termination of life's journey; to death and to the grave!

A celebrated English surgeon, finding a large pile of paving stones opposite to his door, on his returning home one afternoon in his carriage, swore hastily at the pavior, and desired him to remove them. "Where will I take them to?" asked the Hibernian. "To h—ll!" cried the choleric surgeon. Paddy leant upon his rammer, and then looking up in his face, said with an arch smile, "Hadn't I better take them to Heaven? sure they'd be more out of your honor's way."

The King's Bench Prison, in 1821.—It was a curious place which I had got into this time. It seemed to be an epitome of the great world we had left, only there were not any spinning or weaving going on here, nor rushing of horses, nor rattling of chariots, but all the degrees of luxury and want, of careless pleasure and thoughtful woe, were presented; all the extremes and contraries of our English condition might there be observed. No sooner had we stepped inside the gate, than we were accosted by several men, who offered to let us apartments, entire, or lodgings, or shares of apartments; but we declined making any immediate engagements, preferring to look round, and get some information from those who knew the place. A crowd was collected near the gate, some waiting the arrival of prisoners like ourselves, some taking leave of friends or creditors, or attorneys, or members of their families, returning into the great city, and others whose acquaintance was perhaps now but slight with the world, would be standing there smoking, and sharing mayhap by sympathy, in the painful or pleasurable emotions of their fellows. A number of young and athletic men were stripped and playing at racket against the high walls of the prison, while numerous lookers on sat smoking and drinking, blaming or applauding the players, and betting on the games. Some were hanging out dingy, half-washed linen to dry near their windows; the cobbler's hammer was at work; the barber had stuck out his pole, and displayed his pomatum, tooth-powders, and perukes, as if people there had nothing to care about save cosmetics and curls. The broken down stunted dandy, staid and as a winter's wolf; the ruined gamester; the over speculative stock-jobber; the player in his last act; the honorable tradesman ruined; the spendthrift with nothing to spend; the fox hunter, hunted at last to his earth, all were here. The warrior found bars of vulgar iron too strong for his polished steel; the miser in his living rags hunched beside the priest in his lawn; the banker was here bankrupt; the statesman without estate. The senator in vain called "order, order," each man was thinking, acting, reading, resting, singing, praying, eating, drinking, weeping or suiting for himself and his own concerns just as in the wide world outside. But here all of human reason and passion of pleasure and pain, of hope and despair, were pent up like the rolling, tossing, boiling wave of a volcano, that comes not up to the brim.—[Samuel Bamford's Passages in the Life of a Radical.

SPAIN.—We have Madrid dates to the 8th ult. Washington Irving had presented his credentials to the Regent, with a bride address, to which the Regent responded with professions of admiration for the United States and personal esteem for the Ambassador.

"My kingdom for a horse!" as the men said when they were riding him on a rail.

REPORT OF DEATHS, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 4TH INST.

Ezra Grant, fever.
Mary Ann Bigler, aged 20 years; typhus fever.
John Hulme, aged 40 years; bloody flux.
Agnes A. Baudsley, aged 2 years; black canker.
Thomas Wakefield, aged 32 years; bilious fever.
Total 5.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

MASONIC NOTICE.

A special meeting of Nauvoo Lodge W. D. will be held in the large room over Mr. Joseph Smith's store on Thursday evening next at 6 o'clock. All the members of said Lodge are respectfully requested to be present.

By order of the S. & J. Wardens.

WM. CLAYTON Secretary.
Nauvoo November 7th 1842.

NOTICE.

THE Patent Title holders of the county of Hancock, are requested to attend a meeting to be held at the Court House in Carthage on Saturday the 26th of November, for the purpose of organizing a county association auxiliary to, (and in pursuance of the fifth resolution adopted by the general association) styled the Patent Title Association, organized and held at Macomb on the 23rd September, 1842.

The object of the meeting is for the purpose of giving all Patent Title holders an opportunity to list their lands and become members of the Association by paying to the Society five dollars on or before the first day of December 1842, for each Patent Title he lists, to be paid in the following manner, viz: $1 at the time of listing the land and $1 quarterly if required by the executive committee of the general association; which monies shall go into the hands of the Executive Committee of the General association to be disbursed by them in the prosecution and defence of all and any suits brought by or commenced against any of the members of the Association.

J. W. BRATTLE,

E. F. CHITTENDON,

S. EMMONS.

Nauvoo, Nov. 3rd, 1842.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and Shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND,
A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W.
Nauvoo Nov 3, 1842.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Lionberger, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Lionberger, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,
Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-4w.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Kelly, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Kelly, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,
Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-w4.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Alanson Lyon, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Alanson Lyon, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,
Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-w4.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-1f.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

IN the several counties of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets.

Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842.

no29-1f.

HUSBAND YOUR BITS.

THE Collector, for 1842, will be a long soon, and will expect prompt payment. There are some taxes for 1841 that will be presented for payment.

WALTER BAGBY, Collector, S. & C. no29-1f.

The State House Lady.—On the highest point of the state house, which stands in the centre of our city, is conspicuously placed a female figure, twelve feet in height, holding in her hand the scales of justice. Some wags took it into their heads, on Saturday night last, that this lady was not in the fashion inasmuch as she was minus that all important appendage, a bustle. Accordingly one of those articles was prepared, about the size, we should judge, of a bag of bran, containing three or four bushels, made in shape to conform to the most fashionable bustle. This was placed—and the adventurer must have been a daring one—across the back of the “state house lady,” where it still remains, a conspicuous sample of a very high fashion. The ladies, as they thronged the streets on Sunday, cast many slight glances at the droll figure, and had the high gratification of witnessing a conspicuous display of the beauty which a bustle is calculated to impart to the female form.—Hartford Times.

Dickens' New work.—We have been permitted to make the following extract from the forthcoming work of Mr. Dickens:—“American notes for general circulation.”

Iron City.
“Leaves are bluffs on American rivers, where slaves congregate to dance their aboriginal dances, and at which great quantities of watermelons are drank. Par Paws, a species of large cherry, is used on the Mississippi to feed an animal called Hoosier, and the same river abounds with an odd fish called Sucker. It is great sport in a town there called Kentucky, to shoot at the Corn Crackers, a species of birds that infest the houses. The country, on the whole, is well worth a visit; but we advise a traveller to carry a life-preserver, for when the steam boats are heavily loaded, and after the passengers have paid their fare, they open a boiler and blow some of the passengers overboard, to make room for those they expect to get at the next landing.”

STILL MORE REMARKABLE RUINS IN CENTRAL AMERICA.

We have lately looked over some drawings made by a traveller, recently returned from Central America, representing the ruins of an ancient city; not yet visited by any traveller, which are perhaps more remarkable than ever those visited by Stevens and Catherwood.—They have some general character, but their preservation in some respects is more perfect. The principal of these ruins are at a place called Chichen, situated in the midst of a vast plain, almost midway between the two oceans.

On the tops of the pyramids, resembling those which Mr. Stevens met with in other places, and which he conjectured to be the bases of public buildings, this traveler actually found massive edifices in a state of tolerable preservation. Among them was one different from the rest in possessing a circular form, and in being rounded at the top, in a manner somewhat resembling a dome. He found walls, vaults and floors, covered with a hard composition bearing a high finish, colored interior walls, sculptures in bas relief, some rings for the hanging of large doors, and various other evidences of art and skill in the construction of habitations. We understand that it is the intention of Mr. Norman, the traveler in question, to publish an account of his visit to Yucatan, and a description of these curious remains.

Parson Miller, of world's end memory, had a narrow escape from going out of the world before his own time, at Boston last week. On the arrival of the boat from Portland, he was standing on the wharf, when a wild Moose, which had come on as a passenger, was led off by six men, not liking the looks of the crowd assembled to gaze upon him, he started off dragging the six men with him, and Miller, who stood directly in his way, was butted down and had his clothes considerably torn, fortunately escaping with trifling bodily injury.

Singular Currency.—We find the following in the incidents of the journey of the Texian prisoners, from Santa Fe, now publishing in the N. O. Picayune:—“Our travels were not without smiles as well as grave looks. At Queretaro, and in the towns of the state, much amusement was occasioned by our receiving lumps of soap as small change of silver. In other states current only within their boundaries, are copper coins having a stamp peculiar to each state, dividing the bit, (real) into eights, (octavos,) and fourths, (quartitos.) But here, in lieu of copper coins—for the state of Queretaro has none—pieces of soap with a stamp on them are employed. Yet so strictly are they local in their use that the current soap of one village is refused at places not half a mile distant—well illustrating one of the modes by which substitutes for a metallic currency should be checked in their amount, and the means, however awkward, that will be resorted to in order to satisfy the necessity of a currency.—Some of our men found their value not at all diminished after washing with it; and, probably, the excess of any issue is usually washed up.”

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of Norman Hart, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Norman Hart, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 14th day of Nov. next, at the District Court-room, in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated October 15, A. D. 1842.

LEVI DAVIS, Solicitor for petitioner.
G. C. SAMPSON, Counselor.
Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

ESTATE OF RALPH BIRKINHEAD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the fifth day of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at one o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Ralph Birkinhead, late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 13th day of October, 1842.
CHRISTOPHER DIXON, Administrator.
no26-tds.

GROCERIES.

TARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price.
No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842.
no20-3m.

ESTATE OF JAMES DOYLE DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given that on the first Monday of December next I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of James Doyle, late of said county, deceased, when and where all claimants are notified and requested to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 24th day of October, A. D. 1842.
DANIEL H. WELLS, Administrator.
no28-6w.

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th day of October, 1842.
THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Partnership heretofore existing between B. R. Bently and James Field having this day been dissolved by mutual consent, the debts of the firm will be settled by B. R. Bently and all debts due the firm received by him.

Nauvoo, Oct 21st, 1842.

27 w2

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple,
L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's.
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
L. Tulle, M. Romney,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842.

17-ly.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected.

persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES. These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER. This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12½ cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y1.) J. SNIDER, Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER QTR.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
“ Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
“ Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation. 5.00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus, and Newton's Principia. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

NOTICE.

LEFT, in my care, in the Month of April last, off the Steam-Boat Asprey, one trunk, with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stoddard, Montrose, Iowa; the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of Mr. Peck, at this time.

Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842. S. H. BURTIS. no20-1f

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS. Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill., 8 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa; a so I house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses. I good two horse wagon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS TERRY.

SILAS TERRY.

Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842. no24-1f

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR at Law, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.
Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 12-3m

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.
Oct. 15, 1842. no27-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salabery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reckless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 30

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, November 12, 1842.

Whole Number 30

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
WM. SMITH.At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-tf.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842. no31-tf.

An Ordinance concerning the Public Revenue of the City of Nauvoo.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo that all lands, tenements, and hereditaments, situated in this city, claimed by individuals, or bodies politic or corporate, shall be subject to taxation, except such lands as may be owned by the City Corporation, societies, or corporations, for the purpose of burying ground, the Temple Lot, unimproved church lands, and grounds for the use of literary institutions; The following personal property shall also be taxed, viz: stud horses, asses, mules, horses, mares, cattle, clocks, watches, carriages, waggons, carts, money actually loaned, stock in trade, and all other description of personal property, and the stock of incorporated companies, so that every person shall pay a tax in proportion to the value of the property he or she has in his or her possession, the aforesaid property declared subject to taxation shall be valued according to the true value thereof as hereinafter directed.

Sec. 2. The Recorder is hereby required to obtain from the most correct sources either within this city or elsewhere, abstracts containing a description of all city lots and other lands, so as to enable him to make a list of the same, and the name of the owner, which list with the name of the owner he shall cause to be made out in the form of a book having sufficient space between the lines to insert the description of sub division of every lot or tract, and shall keep the same in his office. The aforesaid description of lots and lands shall be arranged in regular order, beginning with the lowest number on the original plat of the City of Nauvoo, and proceed in the same manner with each of the additions, and then the other lands, beginning at the South West extremity of the city limits, taking notice in which Ward of the city the same may be found.

Sec. 3. There shall be appointed one Assessor and Collector in each ward of the city, whose duty it shall be to take lists of the taxable property and assess the value thereof, within his Ward, each assessor and collector before entering upon the duties of his appointment shall give bond with security to be approved by the Mayor and filed in the office of the Recorder, in the sum of one thousand dollars, and take and subscribe an oath or affirmation, as follows: I A. B. do solemnly (or affirm) that I will faithfully and impartially perform the duties required of me as assessor and collector of the Ward of the city of Nauvoo, according to the best of my skill and judgment.

Sec. 4. Within ten days after the appointment of Assessors and collectors in any wards, the Recorder shall cause to be delivered to each assessor and collector, a copy of his appointment and a transcript from the book described in the 2nd Section of this Ordinance, containing a list and description of all taxable lots and lands lying within the Ward of said Assessor and Collector, with the names of the owners of the same, provided the name of the present owner shall be given when known.

Sec. 5. Every Assessor and Collector upon being notified of his appointment as aforesaid, shall provide a book in which to take down the list of taxable property within his Ward, the names of the owners, and the value of the property, which book shall be ruled and headed in the following form, viz: list of property in the Ward in the City of Nauvoo with the names of the owners, and the value of the property assessed by A. B. for the year 18

Sec. 6. It shall be the duty of each Assessor and Collector to proceed without delay after being furnished with a list of taxable lands lying within his Ward, to take a list of taxable lands and city lots, and all other taxable property within his ward, he shall call at the place of residence of each owner of taxable property for a list of the same, and it shall be the duty of each and every person when called on or applied to by the Assessor and Collector to deliver to such Assessor and Collector, a list and description of all lands and city lots, and all other property in his or her possession, subject to taxation, and the Assessor and Collector shall in the presence of such person list the same in his book and value the same according to the true value thereof, placing the description and value in figures opposite the name of the owner or person listing the same, in the columns of the book marked for that purpose. Lands and lots shall be valued according to their true value without regard to the kind character of title or any conflicting claims to the same, and to enable Assessors and Collectors more effectually to discharge the duties required of them, they are authorized to administer an oath or affirmation to every person listing taxable property, in words following: "You do solemnly swear (or affirm) that you will true answers make to all such questions as may be propounded to you on the present occasion touching the quantity and description of taxable property now possessed or owned by you." If any Assessor and Collector shall be unable to find the owner of any lands or lots contained in the list furnished him by the Recorder, he shall value the same according to the best information that he can be obtained, and shall enter the same on his list in the name of the original, or present owner, if known: Provided the Assessor and Collector shall not be required to enumerate any other kind of personal property than is enumerated in the first section of this ordinance, but shall ascertain the aggregate value thereof, and shall set down the same in said list.

Sec. 7. If any person shall be absent or refuse to deliver to any Assessor, when called on for that purpose, a list of his or her taxable property, as required by law, the Assessor and Collector shall list the same from the best information which he can obtain, and such person shall for such refusal be liable to a penalty of twenty dollars which may be sued for in an action of debt in the name of the City Corporation before the Mayor or any Alderman of the City, and when collected shall be paid into the City Treasury, and the testimony of the Assessor and Collector shall be sufficient evidence in the premises.

Sec. 8. Assessors and Collectors shall finish taking in the list of taxable property within sixty days after receiving the list from the Recorder, and shall return the same together with the original list to the clerk of the Municipal Court, which original list he shall file and preserve in his office, and shall deliver a copy of the same over to the Assessors and Collectors as hereinafter provided.

Sec. 9. Upon the return of the list of taxable property by the Assessors and Collectors to the clerk of the Municipal Court, it shall be the duty of the Clerk aforesaid to cause written notice to be posted up in three of the most public places in the city, stating that the assessment of the city is taken, and that any person feeling aggrieved by the valuation of their property may apply before the Municipal Court at their next sitting, for redress, stating the time when and where they will sit, which notice shall be posted up at least ten days previous to the sitting of the Court aforesaid, and have then and there, the lists or books of assessment aforesaid.

Sec. 10. If the Court shall be satisfied either from their own knowledge or from the testimony of others, that the valuation of the Assessors and Collectors was too high considered in reference to the actual value of the property, or in reference to the valuation fixed upon the property of others, they shall revalue said property, and fix the value which ought to have been fixed by the Assessor and Collector, but applications under this section shall be made at the time stated in the notice provided for in the preceding section, unless the Court shall adjourn for the purpose of giving longer time, and not afterwards.

Sec. 11. Assessors and Collectors shall be required to value and assess any city lots and other lands not included in the list furnished them by the Recorder aforesaid, which they may ascertain to be liable to taxation.

Sec. 12. Within ten days after the sitting of the Municipal Court aforesaid it shall be the duty of the clerk aforesaid to make out and deliver to each Assessor and Collector alphabetical lists of taxable property returned by them as corrected by the Municipal Court aforesaid, and take receipts for the aggregate amount of taxes to be collected upon the lands contained in the lists, and also upon personal property; one of which shall be filed in the office of the City Recorder, and the other shall be delivered to the city Treasurer.

Sec. 13. For the purpose of defraying the necessary expenses attendant upon the enactment, administration, and execution of the laws of this city, it is hereby declared and ordained that a tax of fifty cents upon every hundred dollars worth of taxable property shall be levied and collected from the owners thereof, or the persons in whose names the same may be listed and assessed for taxation.

Sec. 14. The Assessors and Collectors of the city shall, so soon as they receive the lists of taxable property delivered to them by the clerk of the Municipal Court, proceed to collect the taxes charged upon said lists, by calling upon each and every person residing in their respective Wards, at his or her usual place of residence, and requiring payment thereof; if any person shall be absent from home when the Assessor and Collector shall call upon him or her for payment of taxes, the Assessor & Collector shall leave a written or printed notice at the residence of every such person, stating the amount of taxes due from such person, and requiring him or her to make payment of the same within ten days from the date of such notice, specifying the place where said payment shall be made, and such notice shall be considered a demand for the taxes within the meaning of this ordinance.

Sec. 15. If any person shall fail to pay his or her taxes within ten days after the expiration of the time stated in said notice, the Assessor and Collector is authorized and required to seize and levy upon a reasonable portion of personal property of such person, of value sufficient to pay the taxes and cost, and to advertise and sell the same at public vendue; he shall give ten day's notice of the time and place of sale by posting up notices in three of the most public places in his Ward, and if the property shall sell for more than sufficient to satisfy said taxes and cost, the remainder shall be refunded to the owner.

Sec. 16. Upon the receipt or payment of taxes the Assessors and Collectors shall give a receipt therefor, stating in such receipt the amount paid and the value of the property taxed, and also describing each lot or tract of land by its numbers as described in the tax list.

Sec. 17. The Assessors and Collectors shall receive in payment of taxes, City Scrip, gold and silver coin, but for all other funds taken by them they shall be allowed the specie value thereof only. Provided the Assessors and Collectors shall keep an accurate account of the amount of city scrip received by them in payment of taxes, and shall endorse the name of the person from whom he receives the same on each bill so received, and the Treasurer, on settlement with said Assessors and Collectors shall not receive any city scrip which was not received in payment for taxes.

Sec. 18. The Assessors and Collectors shall account for and pay over all taxes due the city, deducting from the same the amount of all taxes which he shall have been unable to collect on account of the insolvency, removal, or non-residence of persons charged with taxes.

Sec. 19. It shall be the duty of the assessors and Collectors to note upon their lists opposite the name of each person whether such person has paid his or her tax, and if not, the reason why, if non-resident, removed, or any other cause, and shall be required to make oath or affirmation that the same is correct according to the best of his information and belief, and if upon investigation by the Municipal Court there shall be found no errors or mistake, or if found, when corrected, the Court aforesaid shall make an allowance for all taxes he shall have been unable to collect for good and sufficient cause. Provided the Court shall be satisfied that such taxes could not have been collected by reasonable and proper diligence, and that such diligence has been used without success.

Sec. 20. If any person shall fail to pay the taxes due upon any city lots or other lands belonging to them, and the assessor shall be unable to find any personal property of such person in this city whereon to levy of value sufficient to pay said taxes and costs, it shall be his duty to make report thereof to the clerk of the Municipal Court of the city on the first Monday of December of each year, unless a longer time be granted by the City Council, which report shall be in the following form:

List of lands and city lots situated within the limits of the city of Nauvoo and State of Illinois, on which taxes remain due and unpaid for the year A. D. 18 .

Names of Owners.	City Lots.	Other Lands.	Cost.	Amount of Tax.	Valuation.	Description.	Ward.
------------------	------------	--------------	-------	----------------	------------	--------------	-------

Sec. 21. Before making the report to the Municipal Court referred to in the preceding section, the Assessors and Collectors shall publish in some newspaper within the city, if any such there be, and if there be no such paper printed in the city, then by putting up a written notice in each Ward at least four weeks previous to reporting to said Court, and the said advertisement shall contain a list of the delinquent lands and city lots to be reported to said court, the names of the owners if known, the amount of taxes due, and costs due thereon, and the year for which the same are due, and shall give notice that application will be made to the Municipal Court for judgment against said lands and city lots for said taxes and costs thereon, and for an order to sell the said lands or city lots for the satisfaction thereof and shall also give notice that on the day next succeeding the said term of the said court all the lands against which judgment shall be pronounced and for the sale of which such order shall be made, will be exposed to public sale at the Recorder's office for the amount of said taxes and costs due thereon, and the Assessor and Collector shall obtain a certificate from the printer of said publication, or if notice be given, by putting up written notice in each Ward, then the collector shall certify to the same, and a copy of said Advertisement together with the certificate of the due publication and report provided for in the 20th section of this ordinance shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the Municipal Court.

Sec. 22. The clerk of the Municipal Court upon the filing of such report and certificate aforesaid, shall receive and record the same in a book to be kept for that purpose, in which he shall enter all judgments, orders, and other proceedings of the court in relation thereto, and shall keep and preserve the same as a part of the records of his office, and shall docket all suits brought for taxes in the usual form of debt, stating that the same is for taxes.

Sec. 23. It shall be the duty of said court to hear and determine, if any defence be made, all suits brought for taxes, and if no defence be made, the said court shall pronounce judgment against said city lots or other lands, and shall thereupon issue an order for the sale of the same, which shall be in the following form, to wit:

State of Illinois,)
City of Nauvoo.) set.

Whereas A. B. Assessor and Collector of Ward in the city of Nauvoo, returned to the Municipal Court of this city on the day of 18 , the following city lots and tracts of land as having been assessed for taxes by the Assessor and Collector of said Ward, for the year 18 , and that the taxes thereon remained due and unpaid on the day of the date of the Assessors and Collectors return, and that the respective owner or owners have no goods and chattels within this city on which the said Assessor and Collector can levy for the taxes and costs due thereon and unpaid on the following described lands and city lots, to wit:

paid for the year herein set forth. Therefore it is considered by the court that judgment be and is hereby entered against the aforesaid tract or tracts of land, or city lots, or parts thereof (as the case may be) in the name of the city of Nauvoo for the sum annexed to each tract of land or city lots, being the amount of taxes and costs due severally thereon; and it is ordered by the court that the several tracts of lands, or city lots, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient of each of them, to satisfy the amount of taxes and costs annexed to them severally, be sold as the law directs.

Sec. 24. It shall be the duty of the clerk within five days after the adjournment of said court to make out under the seal of said court a copy of the Assessors and Collectors report together with the order of the court thereon, which shall constitute the process on which all lands and city lots shall be sold for taxes; and deliver the same to the city Marshal, and the Marshal thereupon shall cause the said lands to be sold on the day specified in the notice given by the Assessors and Collectors, and make return thereof to the clerk aforesaid within ten days after the day of sales.

Sec. 25. Any person or persons owning or claiming lands advertised for sale as aforesaid may pay the taxes and costs due thereon, to the assessor and collector at any time before judgment be pronounced against said lands or city lots, or to the clerk at any time before the report of the Assessor and Collector shall be delivered to the Marshal, and to the Marshal at any time before the sale of the same.

Sec. 26. The clerk of the Municipal Court shall attend all sales of lands or city lots, made by the Marshal, under the provisions of this ordinance, and shall keep a register of the sales in a book to be provided for that purpose, in which he shall enter each lot or parcel of land exposed to sale by the Marshal, copying the description of the same from the advertisement, and when a sale is made he shall enter the name of the purchaser, his place of residence, the quantity of land sold, and when any tract or parcel of land is run down, shall designate what part of said tract is sold, and the amount of the sale and give certificates of purchase to the purchaser.

Sec. 27. Sales of city lots or other lands under this ordinance shall be made between the hours of ten o'clock A. M. and three o'clock P. M. and continue from day to day if necessary, until all is sold and if no person offers to pay the said taxes and costs due thereon, for the whole tract of land or city lot offered by the Marshal, the same shall be struck off to the city, and the city set down as the purchaser thereof.

Sec. 28. When a portion of any such city lot or tract of land shall be struck off on any bid, it shall be taken off from an average quality of the same, considered without the building that may be found thereon.

Sec. 29. Lands or city lots sold under the provisions of this ordinance may be redeemed at any time before the expiration of two years from the date of the sale by any person who will pay double the amount for which the same was sold, and all taxes accruing after such sale, together with six per cent interest on the amount of each subsequent year's tax.

Sec. 30. Immediately after the expiration of two years from the date of the sale of any land for taxes under the provisions of this ordinance, the Marshal shall make out a deed for each city lot or tract of land sold and remaining unredeemed and deliver the same to the purchaser upon the return of the certificate of purchase. Deeds executed by the Marshal shall be in the following form:

Know all men by these presents that whereas on the day of A. D. 18 before the Municipal court of the city of Nauvoo a judgment was obtained in said court in favor of the city of Nauvoo against the (here insert the description of the land) for the sum of dollars and cents, being the amount of taxes and costs assessed upon said tract of land (or city lot) for the year 18 . And whereas on the day of

I, A. B. Marshal of the city aforesaid by virtue of a precept issued out of the Municipal Court of the city aforesaid, dated the day of , and to me directed, did expose to public sale at the in the city aforesaid, in conformity with all the requisitions of the ordinances and laws in such cases made and provided, the tract of land (or city lot) above described, for the satisfaction of the judgment so rendered as aforesaid. And whereas at the time and place aforesaid, C. D. of the and State of having offered to pay the aforesaid sum of dollars and cents for which was the least quantity bid for, the said tract of land (or city lot) was stricken off to him at that price. Now therefore I, A. B. Marshal as aforesaid for and in consideration of the sum of dollars and cents to me in hand paid by the said C. D. at the time of the aforesaid sale, and by virtue of the ordinance in such case made and provided, have granted, bargained, and sold, and by these presents do grant, bargain and sell unto the said C. D. his heirs and assigns the To have and to hold unto him the said C. D. his heirs and assigns for ever, subject however to all the rights of redemption provided by law. In witness whereof I A. B. Marshal as aforesaid, by virtue of the authority aforesaid have hereunto subscribed my name and affixed my seal this day of 18 .

Marshal.

Sec. 31. The clerk of the Municipal Court shall as city Recorder keep a correct account of all monies or treasurers receipts that shall come to his hands, so as to enable him to give a correct statement of the finances of the city at the end of each Municipal year.

Sec. 32. The following fees and compensation shall be allowed to the several offices and persons herein named for services rendered under the provisions of this ordinance, viz: To each Assessor and Collector a sum of two dollars per day for every day necessarily employed in the performance of his duty. To the city treasurer for receiving and paying out the city revenue two per cent upon all sums paid out. To the city recorder and clerk of the Municipal Court for making out transcripts from his record of lands and city lots, and lands sold for taxes, two cents per lot for each list. For assisting the Marshal in the selling lands and city lots for taxes, twenty-five cents for each certificate of purchase. And he shall also be allowed the sum of ten dollars for the strict performance of his duties as herein set forth, and making a complete exhibit of the state of the finances of the city, annually, to be paid out of the city treasury. There shall also be allowed for publishing the advertisement for the sale of lands or city lots the sum of four cents for each lot or parcel of land contained in the list of sales; and also to the Assessor and Collector the sum of two cents for each city lot or parcel of land in said list, and ten per cent for selling personal property for taxes, and the sum of twenty-five cents for advertising the same. Provided he shall not reckon the time so expended in making out said list and advertising and selling, in his settlement. And to the Marshal for selling said lands or city lots, the sum of six cents for each lot or tract sold, to be collected from the sale of said property.

Sec. 33. Any person who may accept the appointment of Assessor and Collector in any Ward in this city, and shall fail to perform the duties required of him, shall forfeit and pay the sum of one hundred dollars for the use of the city to be recovered by action of debt in the name of the city, and shall moreover be liable for all damages sustained by the city by reason of such failure. Provided if any Assessor and Collector is unable from sickness or any other unavoidable casualty to discharge his duties, he shall forthwith tender his resignation to the city recorder, which shall fully discharge him from the penalty aforesaid, and the City Council shall fill such vacancy.

Sec. 34. This ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

Passed October 31st 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

What has become of John C. Bennett is a question that is frequently asked us, and we have found no little difficulty in answering it. The last account that we had of him was that he was in company with a Dr. West, lecturing in Salem Mass.; that they had published that they would make certain "awful disclosures" concerning Mormonism, challenging any Mormon elder to refute their statements. Elder Snow who was laboring in that vicinity accepted the challenge, and stood ready to defend the cause of truth, and to refute their abominable slanders; but when he came forward and offered to do so to his great surprise, and to the astonishment of the public they expressed a great unwillingness to have their principles and statements investigated. The public however called loudly for a debate that they might hear both sides of the question, but they as strenuously refused; among other objections Mr. West stated that the Mormons were not men of moral character, that their adultery and licentiousness had rendered them fit subjects of contempt, and that they ought not to be listened to by any respectable congregation. The public however were not gulled by these statements, and still insisted upon an investigation; while Mr. Bennett and Elder Snow were entering into preliminaries preparatory to the intended discussion, two gentlemen, who were merchants in Salem, arose, and made a statement which went to show that Mr. West's bump of amiableness was quite as prominent as that of John C. Bennett's; they stated that Mr. West had insulted their ladies in a most disgraceful, and shameful manner, and had made certain dishonorable proposals to them, and expressed their indignation at such licentious characters being suffered to lecture on such a subject as that in which they were engaged; the public indignation of course was roused at such developments made by their own citizens, so much so, that some expressed a determination to ride them honorably out of town on a rail, others were for the application of tar and feathers;—in the midst of the confusion Mr. West damped with his compeer John C. Bennett, and left Elder Snow to investigate the subject alone, since which time they have not been heard of, at least by us. Any comment on the above is of course unnecessary, only that

"Birds of a feather

"Will flock together.

We are pleased to find that the public mind is becoming informed about those subjects; we find that the press also is beginning to alter its tone, and to judge righteously. We publish the following from the "Tennessee Telegraph."

"We have received 'THE WASP', extra, printed at Nauvoo, Illinois, containing a defence of Gen. Joseph Smith against the charges preferred against him by Bennett. If the defence is true, (and we have no reason to doubt the statements of those who have come up to his help) the prophet has been sadly belied, and Bennett is a most infamous scoundrel—guilty of all the disgusting charges he laid at the door of the prophet. A public meeting held at Nauvoo passed a resolution which declares that Joseph Smith is a 'good, moral, virtuous and peaceable man, a firm supporter of law and justice, and that he keeps inviolate both the constitution of Illinois and the United States.'

If men in general, and editors in particular who ought to be the true chroniclers of passing events, would judge, speak and write according to testimony and evidence, the Mormons, we presume, would stand on as fair a footing as any of their neighbors, either in the western, or eastern world.

The following is from the "Western Reserve Capinet and Family Visitor," and does honor to the editor of that paper as an intelligent republican, and that he judges of things as they are.

And whereas due notice has been given of the application for judgment against said city lots or other lands, and no owner hath appeared to make defence or shew cause why judgment should not be entered against the said city lots and other lands for the taxes and costs due thereon and un-

to make report thereof to the clerk of the Municipal Court of the city on the first Monday of December of each year, unless a longer time be granted by the City Council, which report shall be in the following form:

List of lands and city lots situated within the limits of the city of Nauvoo and State of Illinois, on which taxes remain due and unpaid for the year A. D. 18 .

Names of Owners.	City Lots.	Other Lands.	City.	Amount of Tax.	Valuation.	Description.	Ward.
------------------	------------	--------------	-------	----------------	------------	--------------	-------

Sec. 21. Before making the report to the Municipal Court referred to in the preceding section, the Assessors and Collectors shall publish in some newspaper within the city, if any such there be, and if there be no such paper printed in the city, then, by putting up a written notice in each Ward at least four weeks previous to reporting to said Court, and the said advertisement shall contain a list of the delinquent lands and city lots to be reported to said court, the names of the owners if known, the amount of taxes due, and costs due thereon, and the year for which the same are due, and shall give notice that application will be made to the Municipal Court for judgment against said lands and city lots for said taxes and costs thereon, and for an order to sell the said lands or city lots for the satisfaction thereof and shall also give notice that on the day next succeeding the said term of the said court all the lands against which judgment shall be pronounced and for the sale of which such order shall be made, will be exposed to public sale at the Recorder's office for the amount of said taxes and costs due thereon, and the Assessor and Collector shall obtain a certificate from the printer of said publication, or if notice be given, by putting up written notice in each Ward, then the collector shall certify to the same, and a copy of said Advertisement together with the certificate of the due publication and report provided for in the 20th section of this ordinance shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the Municipal Court.

Sec. 22. The clerk of the Municipal Court upon the filing of such report and certificate aforesaid, shall receive and record the same in a book to be kept for that purpose, in which he shall enter all judgments, orders, and other proceedings of the court in relation thereto, and shall keep and preserve the same as a part of the records of his office, and shall docket all suits brought for taxes in the usual form of debt, stating that the same is for taxes.

Sec. 23. It shall be the duty of said court to hear and determine, if any defence be made, all suits brought for taxes, and if no defence be made, the said court shall pronounce judgment against said city lots or other lands, and shall thereupon issue an order for the sale of the same, which shall be in the following form, to wit:

State of Illinois,)
City of Nauvoo.) ss.

Whereas A. B. Assessor and Collector of Ward in the city of Nauvoo, returned to the Municipal Court of this city on the day of 18 , the following city lots and tracts of land as having been assessed for taxes by the Assessor and Collector of said Ward, for the year 18 , and that the taxes thereon remained due and unpaid on the day of the date of the Assessors and Collectors return, and that the respective owner or owners have no goods and chattels within this city on which the said Assessor and Collector can levy for the taxes and costs due thereon and unpaid on the following described lands and city lots, to wit:

And whereas due notice has been given of the application for judgment against said city lots or other lands, and no owner hath appeared to make defence or shew cause why judgment should not be entered against the said city lots and other lands for the taxes and costs due thereon and unpaid for the year herein set forth. Therefore it is considered by the court that judgment be and is hereby entered against the aforesaid tract or lots of land, or city lots, or parts thereof (as the case may be) in the name of the city of Nauvoo for the sum annexed to each tract of land or city lots, being the amount of taxes and costs due severally thereon; and it is ordered by the court that the several tracts of lands, or city lots, or so much thereof as shall be sufficient of each of them, to satisfy the amount of taxes and costs annexed to them severally, be sold as the law directs.

Sec. 24. It shall be the duty of the clerk within five days after the adjournment of said court to make out under the seal of said court a copy of the Assessors and Collectors report together with the order of the court thereon, which shall constitute the process on which all lands and city lots shall be sold for taxes, and deliver the same to the city Marshal, and the Marshal thereupon shall cause the said lands to be sold on the day specified in the notice given by the Assessors and Collectors, and make return thereof to the clerk aforesaid within ten days after the day of sales.

Sec. 25. Any person or persons owning or claiming lands advertised for sale as aforesaid may pay the taxes and costs due thereon, to the assessor and collector at any time before judgment be pronounced against said lands or city lots, or to the clerk at any time before the report of the Assessor and Collector shall be delivered to the Marshal, and to the Marshal at any time before the sale of the same.

Sec. 26. The clerk of the Municipal Court shall attend all sales of lands or city lots, made by the Marshal, under the provisions of this ordinance, and shall keep a register of the sales in a book to be provided for that purpose, in which he shall enter each lot or parcel of land exposed to sale by the Marshal, copying the description of the same from the advertisement, and when a sale is made he shall enter the name of the purchaser, his place of residence, the quantity of land sold, and when any tract or parcel of land is run down, shall designate what part of said tract is sold, and the amount of the sale and give certificates of purchase to the purchaser.

Sec. 27. Sales of city lots or other lands under this ordinance shall be made between the hours of ten o'clock A. M. and three o'clock P. M. and continue from day to day if necessary, until all is sold and if no person offers to pay the said amount of tax and cost due thereon for the whole tract of land or city lot offered by the Marshal, the same shall be struck off to the city, and the city set down as the purchaser thereof.

Sec. 28. When a portion of any such city lot or tract of land shall be struck off on any bid, it shall be taken off from an average quality of the same, considered without the building that may be found thereon.

Sec. 29. Lands or city lots sold under the provisions of this ordinance may be redeemed at any time before the expiration of two years from the date of the sale by any person who will pay double the amount for which the same was sold, and all taxes accruing after such sale, together with six per cent interest on the amount of each subsequent year's tax.

Sec. 30. Immediately after the expiration of two years from the date of the sale of any land for taxes under the provisions of this ordinance, the Marshal shall make out a deed for each city lot or tract of land sold and remaining unredeemed and deliver the same to the purchaser upon the return of the certificate of purchase. Deeds executed by the Marshal shall be in the following form:

Know all men by these presents that whereas on the day of A. D. 18 before the Municipal court of the city of Nauvoo a judgment was obtained in said court in favor of the city of Nauvoo against the (here insert the description of the land) for the sum of dollars and cents, being the amount of taxes and costs assessed upon said tract of land (or city lot) for the year 18

And whereas on the day of 18 , I, A. B. Marshal of the city aforesaid by virtue of a precept issued out of the Municipal Court of the city aforesaid, dated the day of , and to me directed, did expose to public sale at the in the city aforesaid, in conformity with all the requisitions of the ordinances and laws in such cases made and provided, the tract of land (or city lot) above described, for the satisfaction of the judgment so rendered as aforesaid. And whereas at the time and place aforesaid, C. D. of the and State of having offered to pay the aforesaid sum of dollars and cents for which was the least quantity bid for, the said tract of land (or city lot) was stricken off to him at that price. Now therefore I, A. B. Marshal as aforesaid for and in consideration of the sum of dollars and cents to me in hand paid by the said C. D. at the time of the aforesaid sale, and by virtue of the ordinance in such case made and provided, have granted, bargained, and sold, and by these presents do grant, bargain and sell unto the said C. D. his heirs and assigns the To have and to hold unto him the said C. D. his heirs and assigns for ever, subject however to all the rights of redemption provided by law. In witness whereof I, A. B. Marshal as aforesaid, by virtue of the authority aforesaid have hereunto subscribed my name and affixed my seal this day of 18 .

— Marshal.

Sec. 31. The clerk of the Municipal Court shall as city Recorder keep a correct account of all monies or treasurers receipts that shall come to his hands, so as to enable him to give a correct statement of the finances of the city at the end of each Municipal year.

Sec. 32. The following fees and compensation shall be allowed to the several offices and persons herein named for services rendered under the provisions of this ordinance, viz. To each Assessor and Collector a sum of two dollars per day for every day necessarily employed in the performance of his duty. To the city treasurer for receiving and paying out the city revenue two per cent upon all sums paid out. To the city recorder and clerk of the Municipal Court for making out transcripts from his record of lands and city lots, and lands sold for taxes, two cents per lot for each list. For assisting the Marshal in the selling lands and city lots for taxes, twenty-five cents for each certificate of purchase. And he shall also be allowed the sum of ten dollars for the strict performance of his duties as herein set forth, and making a complete exhibit of the state of the finances of the city, annually, to be paid out of the city treasury. There shall also be allowed for publishing the advertisement for the sale of lands or city lots the sum of four cents for each lot or parcel of land contained in the list of sales; and also to the Assessor and Collector the sum of two cents for each city lot or parcel of land in said list, and ten per cent for selling personal property for taxes, and the sum of twenty-five cents for advertising the same. Provided he shall not reckon the time so expended in making out said list and advertising and selling, in his settlement. And to the Marshal for selling said lands or city lots, the sum of six cents for each lot or tract sold, to be collected from the sale of said property.

Sec. 33. Any person who may accept the appointment of Assessor and Collector in any Ward in this city, and shall fail to perform the duties required of him, shall forfeit and pay the sum of one hundred dollars for the use of the city to be recovered by action of debt in the name of the city, and shall moreover be liable for all damages sustained by the city by reason of such failure. Provided if any Assessor and Collector is unable from sickness or any other unavoidable casualty to discharge his duties, he shall forthwith tender his resignation to the city recorder, who shall fully discharge him from the penalty aforesaid, and the City Council shall fill such vacancy.

Sec. 34. This ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage. Passed October 31st 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

What has become of John C. Bennett is a question that is frequently asked us, and we have found no little difficulty in answering it. The last account that we had of him was that he was in company with a Dr. West, lecturing in Salem Mass.; that they had published that they would make certain "awful disclosures" concerning Mormonism, challenging any Mormon elder to refute their statements. Elder Snow who was laboring in that vicinity accepted the challenge, and stood ready to defend the cause of truth, and to refute their abominable slanders; but when he came forward and offered to do so to his great surprise, and to the astonishment of the public they expressed a great unwillingness to have their principles and statements investigated. The public however called loudly for a debate that they might hear both sides of the question, but they as strenuously refused; among other objections Mr. West stated that the Mormons were not men of moral character, that their adultery and licentiousness had rendered them fit subjects of contempt, and that they ought not to be listened to by any respectable congregation. The public however were not galled by these statements, and still insisted upon an investigation; while Mr. Bennett and Elder Snow were entering into preliminaries preparatory to the intended discussion, two gentlemen, who were merchants in Salem, arose, and made a statement which went to show that Mr. West's bump of amiteness was quite as prominent as that of John C. Bennett's; they stated that Mr. West had insulted their ladies in a most disgraceful, and shameful manner, and had made certain dishonorable proposals to them, and expressed their indignation at such licentious characters being suffered to lecture on such a subject as that in which they were engaged; the public indignation of course was roused at such developments made by their own citizens, so much so, that some expressed a determination to ride them honorably out of town on a rail, others were for the application of tar and feathers;—in the midst of the confusion Mr. West decamped with his compeer John C. Bennett, and left Elder Snow to investigate the subject alone, since which time they have not been heard of, at least by us. Any comment on the above is of course unnecessary, only that

"Birds of a feather

"Will flock together.

We are pleased to find that the public mind is becoming informed about those subjects; we find that the press also is beginning to alter its tone, and to judge righteously. We publish the following from the "Tennessee Telegraph."

"We have received 'THE WASP,' extra, printed at Nauvoo; Illinois, containing a defence of Gen. Joseph Smith against the charges preferred against him by Bennett. If the defence is true, (and we have no reason to doubt the statements of those who have come up to his help) the prophet has been sadly belied, and Bennett is a most infamous scoundrel—guilty of all the disgusting charges he laid at the door of the prophet. A public meeting held at Nauvoo passed a resolution which declares that Joseph Smith is a 'good, moral, virtuous and peaceable man, a firm supporter of law and justice, and that he keeps inviolate both the constitution of Illinois and the United States.'

If men in general, and editors in particular who ought to be the true chroniclers of passing events, would judge, speak and write according to testimony and evidence, the Mormons, we presume, would stand on as fair a footing as any of their neighbors, either in the western, or eastern world.

The following is from the "Western Reserve Cabinet and Family Visitor," and does honor to the editor of that paper as an intelligent republican, and that he judges of things as they are.

Sundry rumors continue to be afloat in the papers relative to the whereabouts of Joseph Smith the Mormon leader—and one paper states that he is under arrest. Notwithstanding, it seems from his paper of October 1st, which we have just received, that he is quietly living in his city of Nauvoo, peaceably and perseveringly prosecuting his plans—urging forward the building of his Temple, and publishing revelations to the Saints. If he has any vanity he must be hugely gratified at being thus made the lion of the day."

This is a matter of fact that Joseph Smith is quietly and peaceably living in Nauvoo; and thus he would continue to do, and to mind his own business, if let alone by a gang of superstitious ignoramuses who ignore all law and constitutional privileges, and the rights of man, seek to tear in pieces the fair fabric of our Union, by laying plans (to gratify their own private piques) which strike at the foundation of liberty, and lay prostrate in the dust the principles of justice, honor, and republicanism.

They have indeed made him the "lion of the day," and whilst the wisdom of the wise has been brought into requisition to devise means for his destruction, and every whiflet dog in the country has been barking at him, the old lion has lain silent, and undisturbed in his lair, smiling at the folly and imbecility of his pursuers, and no one has yet had the hardihood to "beard him in his den."

It would seem by the following extract from the "New York Herald," that John C. Bennett has turned author, and has fully developed his licentiousness.

"Dr. Cook Bennett has published in Boston his brochure containing the exposures of the Mormons, illustrated with engravings. This book may be classed under the obscene and licentious in the highest degree—neither can we believe half the filthy things it contains. It utterly disgraces its publisher.

SNOW.

On Friday the 11th, the snow fell, through the day, about six inches deep—and, though we have all the appearance of winter, still we cannot believe that the white surveyor has undertaken his winters job for certain, but will give way for, at least, a fortnight of Indian Summer yet.

The Mormons.

ARLINGTON HOUSE, Oct. 16, 1842.

Sir—

Some time since, I addressed a letter to Joseph Smith, the Mormon Prophet, in answer to a letter of his, introducing to my kind attention a friend of his from the Holy City of Nauvoo. In this letter I expressed my regret that the quarre between him and John C. Bennett should have at all found its way to the public eye, this being the sole cause of placing him in his present awkward situation. I likewise commiserated with him in his affliction, and signed myself, at the conclusion of my letter, as his friend, which I really am, and the friend of all good Mormons, as well as other good men.—Why should I not be Joseph Smith's friend? He has done nothing to injure me, nor do I believe he has done any thing to injure ex-Governor Boggs of Missouri. The Governor, no doubt, under strong feelings, may have thought and believed that Smith, had preconcerted the plan for his assassination; but there is no legal evidence whatever of that fact. None by which an unprejudiced jury would convict any man, yet to send this man into Missouri, under the present requisition, would be an act of great injustice, as his ruin would be certain. How could any man, against whom there is a bitter religious prejudice, escape ruin, being in the circumstances of Smith? Look at the history of past ages—see the force of fanaticism and bigotry in bringing to the stake some of the best of men; and in all these cases the persecutors had their pretenses, as well as in the case of the Mormon chief. Nothing follows its victim with such deadly aim as religious zeal, and therefore nothing should be so much guarded against by the civil power.

Smith, I conceive, has just as good a right to establish a church, if he can do it, as Luther, Calvin, Wesley, Fox, or even King Henry the Eighth. All these chiefs in religion had their opponents, and their people their persecutors. Henry the Eighth was a communicated body and bones, soul and all, by his Holiness the Pope, still the church of England has lived, as well as all the other sects. Just so it will be with the Mormons. They may kill one Prophet, and confine in chains half his followers, but another will take his place, and the Mormons will still go ahead.

One of their Elders said to me, in a conversation on this subject, that they were like a mustard plant—"If you don't disturb it, the seed will fall and multiply; and if you kick it about, you only give the seed more soil, and it will multiply the more." Undertake to convince them that they are wrong, and that Smith is an impostor, and the answer is, laying the hand on the heart—"I know in my own soul that it is true, and want no better evidence. I feel happy in my faith, and why should I be disturbed?" Now I cannot see but what this is the sentiment that governs all religiously disposed persons, their object being heaven and happiness, no matter what their church or their creed. They therefore cannot be put down while the constitution of the United States offers them protection, in common with all other sects, and while they believe that their eternal salvation is at stake. From what I know of the people, I fully believe that all the really sincere Mormons would die sooner than abandon their faith and religion.

Gen. J. C. Bennett has stated that, to conquer the Mormon Legion it would require five to one against them, all things taken into consideration, and that they will die to a man sooner than give up their Prophet. Now, as the arrest of this man worth such a sacrifice of life as must necessarily follow an open war with his people? The loss of from one to three thousand lives will no doubt follow in an attempt to accomplish an object not in the end worth a button.

Persecute them, and you are sure to multiply them. This is fully proved since the Missouri persecution, as, since that affair, they have increased one hundred fold.

It is the best policy, both of Missouri and Illinois, to let them alone; for if they are drove farther west they may set up an independent government, under which they can worship the Almighty as may suit their taste. Indeed I would recommend to the Prophet to pull up stakes and take possession of the Oregon territory in his own right, and establish an independent empire. In one hundred years from this time, no nation on earth could conquer such a people. Let not the history of David be forgotten. If the Prophet Joseph would do this, millions would flock to his standard and join his cause. He could then make his own laws by the voice of revelation, and have them executed like the act of one man.

With respect to myself, I would just repeat that I am the Prophet's friend, and the friend of his people, in rely from sympathy, as my arm has ever been lifted on the side of the persecuted and oppressed. I have never in my life followed the fat ox, nor bowed for a favor on my own account to mortal man. While I despise the proud man, I am proud to the proud man and humble to the humble, and, where men were contending, have ever thrown myself on the weakest side.

By inserting this communication, it is presumed that no one will hold the Herald responsible for the sentiments it contains; yet I have no doubt that there are thousands of independent, liberal minded men in this country who think as I do.

Neither the Mormon Prophet nor his people can add anything to my fortune or reputation. I expect nothing from them—they are a poor and industrious people, and have nothing to give. I am influenced in my conduct towards them by a spirit of benevolence and mercy, and hope the Governor and State of Illinois will act in like manner. It is true I was commissioned in their legion, through the instrumentality of their enemy, General J. C. Bennett, and am timely of their own, without my agency; but I was as much their friend before as since. The Missouri persecution fixed my attention and consideration on the people.

It has been recollected too, that the Mormon Prophet and his people are the most ardent friends and promoters of literature and science. These are elementary principles in their social system, and this, certainly, is contrary to every thing like despotism.

I hope, therefore, and with great deference express that hope that Ex-Governor Boggs will withdraw his demand for the Prophet, and let these poor people rest in peace. Both he and Governor Carlin will feel much more at peace with themselves by quashing the whole proceeding.

Most respectfully, your humble servant,

JAMES ARINGTON BENNETT,
Counsel or at Law, &c.

[N. Y. Herald.]

HIGHLY IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO—WAR AGAINST TEXAS—HER CONQUEST ALMOST CERTAIN.

The bark Eugenia, Briscoe, arrived on Saturday night from Vera Cruz, having sailed from that port on the 16th ult. In this vessel have arrived, as passengers, the celebrated Col. Almote, who was in the battle of San Jacinto—and also his brother, accompanied by a suite of aids and officers. A large amount of specie belonging to Mexicans, part probably to the government, has also come, consigned to the commercial house of Hargous & Co.

By this vessel we have private intelligence, and private correspondence, from Vera Cruz and Mexico, of the highest importance to Texas, and the future destiny of that country. We have now certain and positive information, on which we can rely, that the Mexican government, or rather Santa Anna, will soon invade Texas, if not already invaded, by a large army and navy, both by sea and land—the army to be led on by British officers—and the navy by the same. The Mexican fleet already numbers three iron steamers, two gun brigs, and three schooners. The following is a letter:

[Correspondence of the Herald.]

VERA CRUZ, Sept. 16, 1842.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE N. Y. HERALD.

I have just received the annexed statement from one of the crew of the Guadalupe, the war steamer arrived from England.

I shipped on board the steam frigate Guadalupe, Capt. E. Charlewood, at Liverpool, at the close of June last, as I thought for China. The number of crew was, then eighty-six, including engineers, firemen, &c. The day before the steamer left Liverpool, we were all called aft, when Capt. Charlewood read a written agreement, without a stamp, and drawn up by himself. It stated that he wished our hands to go with him—that he was ignorant of the destination of the ship; and that we must ask no questions. We were to receive £3 per month as wages; warrant and petty officers rated according to rank. We sailed from Liverpool on the 4th of July. Two days after, I noticed in the Liverpool Mail, of the 2nd, that the Guadalupe had cleared for Corunna. On the 7th, we called at Cork. Orders were sent on board for the captain to go ashore and report the ship immediately. He thereupon piled on sail and put on steam, and we soon left old Ireland in the rear. On the 15th we touched at Funchal, took in coals, and left on the 18th. Shortly after, the captain ordered the boatswain to pipe all hands to quarters. We were arranged on both sides of the deck. Captain C. then said: "Well, men it is my intention to inform you what my business is. I was ordered not to tell you before. I am bound to Vera Cruz in Mexico. That place is blockaded by a set of half bred Yankees, who call themselves Texans. I am determined to break myself through. I am well convinced that you are all a set of picked men. We have a good ship; with 263 pivots, and we shall no doubt take plenty of prizes."

Two days after we saw the Mexican colors on board, much to our surprise. From that day we were constantly drilled at the pig guns and small arms. It was laughable to see the firemen, all so very green, handling the muskets. We were piped to quarters whenever a vessel hove in sight. On the 25th of August we reached Vera Cruz. On the 29th all hands manned the yards and saluted the Governor. We were then piped to quarters, and Captain C. again spoke: "Well, men, I wish to inform you that this ship is going to exchange flags, that of Mexico will be hoisted to-morrow morning. If any of you have any thing to say, now is your time. Hereafter you must hold your tongues." Several declined serving under the Mexican flag, and wished to leave. Four were permitted to go. The others were told that they must remain as the Mexican Government were anxious for English sailors; so much so, indeed, that the wages of the warrant officers were raised. We were then informed that Captain C. would receive $450 per month, the first lieutenant G. Wright, $150, Doctor Clemenson 150, under purser, and clerk each $150; and, after the capture of Texas, they are to receive three hundred dollars, to pay their passage home; and poor Jack but $25. All those who should lose an arm, an eye, or a leg, were to receive 60%, and 30% for a finger, a toe, or for any scar. This is a list of prices adopted by Santa Anna. He lost a leg, which was probably worth no more than 60%. Hence the list. Three men refused to comply with these regulations and serve in the steamer. They were consequently thrown into prison and confined three days without any food. The British Consul refused to offer them any aid.

If these men should fall what will become of their poor wives and families?

Will they get any money? No thought of this enter the minds of the Mexicans. All they care for is the taking of Texas in six months, with a fleet of three steamers, one 18 gun brig, one 10 gun brig, and three schooners."

This expedition, it will be perceived, was organized in London, under the patronage of the Mexican merchants and bondholders in that quarter. The force already in motion will be sufficient to overwhelm Texas, and to drive every Texian out of that smiling land. The Texian navy, at the last accounts, was laid up and useless, for want of funds. The Mexican navy is in full force—with three iron steamers and plenty of men and ammunition to co-operate with their army. We expect that a decisive blow will soon be leveled at the independence of Texas. The arrival of Col. Almote, as Mexican minister in this country, is probably intended to preserve the peace of the United States of the north and Mexico. Almote is a man of superior talents, great address, perfectly acquainted with our language and institutions.

The British ascendancy in Mexico is now complete. Unless the French and American governments interfere, the existence of Texas as a nation is gone forever. Nothing can save the new republic, but such an intervention. Will it be extended to the Anglo-Saxon race in Texas? We'll see. On the whole, we begin to see some mighty results growing out of this new invasion of Texas. Will it not lead to a union between France and the United States to prevent England and Mexico from destroying an independent republic on this continent? May not the attempt to annihilate Texas lead the great maritime powers into a war on the ocean? Are we not in the beginning of a new crisis in human affairs?

The "Nauvoo Lyceum," will meet at Professor Orson Pratt's School Room at early candle light on Saturday evening next—subject for discussion, "Is there sufficient evidence in the works of nature to prove the existence of a Supreme Being." The ladies and gentlemen of Nauvoo, are respectfully requested to attend.

Never break a promise made to a child, or if you do, give your reasons, and if in fault own it, and ask pardon if necessary.

Never trifle with a child's feelings when under discipline.

Children ought not to be governed by fear of the rod, of private chastisement, or of dark rooms.

REPORT OF DEATHS, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 11TH INST.

Joseph White, 24 years; black cancer. Squire Morris, 27 years; fever. Abel Lamb, Jr. 2 years; black cancer. Marthy Byington, 23 years; fever. Thomas Bromley, 6 months consumption.

Total 5.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Antony Barkman, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Antony Barkman, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 5th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 12th day of November A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN, Solicitor for petitioner.

Sundry rumors continue to be afloat in the papers relative to the whereabouts of Joseph Smith the Mormon leader—and one paper states that he is under arrest. Notwithstanding, it seems from his paper of October 1st, which we have just received, that he is quietly living in his city of Nauvoo, peacefully and perseveringly prosecuting his plans—urging forward the building of his Temple, and publishing revelations to the Saints. If he has any vanity he must be hugely gratified at being thus made the lion of the day."

This is a matter of fact that Joseph Smith is quietly and peaceably living in Nauvoo; and thus he would continue to do, and to mind his own business, if let alone by a gang of superstitious ignoramuses, who ignorant of law and constitutional privileges, and the rights of man, seek to tear in pieces the fair fabric of our Union, by laying plans (to gratify their own private piques) which strike at the foundation of liberty, and lay prostrate in the dust the principles of justice, honor, and republicanism.

They have indeed made him the "lion of the day," and whilst the wisdom of the wise has been brought into requisition to devise means for his destruction, and every whiff of dog in the country has been barking at him, the old lion has lain silent, and undisturbed in his lair, smiling at the folly and imbecility of his pursuers, and no one has yet had the hardihood to "beard him in his den."

It would seem by the following extract from the "New York Herald," that John C. Bennett has turned author, and has fully developed his licentiousness.

"Dr. Cook Bennett has published in Boston his brochure containing the exposures of the Mormons, illustrated with engravings. This book may be classed under the obscene and licentious in the highest degree—neither can we believe half the filthy things it contains. It utterly disgraces its publisher.

SNOW.

On Friday the 11th, the snow fell, through the day, about six inches deep—and, though we have all the appearance of winter, still we cannot believe that the white surfer has undertaken his winters job for certain, but will give way for, at least, a fortnight of Indian Summer yet.

The Mormons.

ARLINGTON HOUSE, Oct. 16, 1842.

GEN. J. G. BENNETT—

SIR:—

Some time since, I addressed a letter to Joseph Smith, the Mormon Prophet, in answer to a letter of his, introducing to my kind attention a friend of his from the Holy City of Nauvoo. In this letter I expressed my regret that the quarrel between him and John C. Bennett should have at all found its way to the public eye, this being the sole cause of placing him in his present awkward situation. I likewise commiserated with him in his affliction, and signed myself, at the conclusion of my letter, as his friend, which I really am, and the friend of all good Mormons, as well as other good men. Why should I not be Joseph Smith's friend? He has done nothing to injure me, nor do I believe he has done any thing to injure ex-Governor Boggs of Missouri. The Governor, no doubt, under strong feelings, may have thought and believed that Smith had preconcerted the plan for his assassination; but there is no legal evidence whatever of that fact. None by which an unprejudiced jury would convict any man, yet to send this man into Missouri, under the present requisition, would be an act of great injustice, as his ruin would be certain. How could any man, against whom there is a bitter religious prejudice, escape ruin, being in the circumstances of Smith? Look at the history of past ages—see the force of fanaticism and bigotry in bringing to the stake some of the best of men; and in all these cases the persecutors had their pretenses, as well as in the case of the Mormon chief. Nothing follows its victim with such deadly aim as religious zeal, and therefore nothing should be so much guarded against by the civil power.

Smith, I conceive, has just as good a right to establish a church, if he can do it, as Luther, Calvin, Wesley, Fox, or even King Henry the Eighth. All these chiefs of religion had their opponents, and their people their persecutors. Henry the Eighth was excommunicated, body and bones, soul and all, by his Holiness the Pope; still the church of England has lived, as well as all the other sects. Just so it will be with the Mormons. They may kill one Prophet, and confine in chains half his followers, but another will take his place, and the Mormons will still go ahead.

One of their Elders said to me, "I was conversing on this subject, that they were like a mustard plant—'If you don't disturb it, the seed will fall and multiply; and if you kick it about, you only give the seed more soil, and it will multiply the more.' Undertake to convince them that they are wrong, and that Smith is an impostor, and the answer is, laying the hand on the heart—'I know in my own soul that it is true, and want no better evidence. I feel happy in my faith, and why should I be disturbed?' Now I cannot see but what this is the sentiment that governs all religiously disposed persons, their object being heaven and happiness, no matter what their church or their creed. They therefore cannot be put down while the constitution of the United States offers them protection, in common with all other sects, and while they believe that their eternal salvation is at stake. From what I know of the people, I fully believe that all the ready-made Mormons would die sooner than abandon the faith and religion."

Gen. J. C. Bennett has stated that, to conquer the Mormon Legion it would require five to one against them, all things taken into consideration, and that they would die to a man sooner than give up their Prophet. Now, is the arrest of this man worth such a sacrifice of life as must necessarily follow an open war with his people? The loss of from one to three thousand lives will no doubt follow in an attempt to accomplish an object not in the end worth a button.

Persecute them, and you are sure to multiply them. This is fully proved since the Missouri persecution, as, since that affair, they have increased one hundred fold.

It is the best policy, both of Missouri and Illinois, to let them alone; for if they are drove further west they may set up an independent government, under which they can worship the Almighty as may suit their taste. Indeed I would recommend to the Prophet to pull up stakes and take possession of the Oregon territory in his own right, and establish an independent empire. In one hundred years from this time, no nation on earth could conquer such a people. Let not the history of David be forgotten. If the Prophet Joseph would do this, millions would flock to his standard and join his cause. He could then make his own laws by the voice of revelation, and have them executed like the act of one man.

With respect to myself, I would just repeat that I am the Prophet's friend, and the friend of his people, in rely from sympathy, as my arm has ever been lifted on the side of the persecuted and oppressed. I have never in my life followed the fat ox, nor bowed for a favor on my own account to mortal man. While I despise the purse-proud man, I am proud to the proud man and humble to the humble, and, where men were contending, have ever thrown myself on the weakest side.

By inserting this communication, it is presumed that no one will hold the Herald responsible for the sentiments it contains; yet I have no doubt that there are thousands of independent, liberal minded men in this country who think as I do.

Neither the Mormon Prophet nor his people can add anything to my fortune or reputation. I expect nothing from them—they are a poor and industrious people, and have nothing to give. I am influenced in my conduct towards them by a spirit of benevolence and mercy, and hope the Governor and State of Illinois will act in like manner. It is true I was commissioned in their region, through the instrumentality of their enemy, General J. C. Bennett, an act entirely of their own, without my agency; but I was as much their friend before as since. The Missouri persecution fixed my attention and commiseration on the people.

It must be recollected, too, that the Mormon Prophet and his people are the most ardent friends and promoters of literature and science. These are elementary principles in their social system, and this, certainly, is contrary to every thing like despotism.

I hope, therefore, and with great deference express that hope that Ex-Governor Boggs will withdraw his demand for the Prophet, and let these poor people rest in peace. Both he and Governor Carlin will feel much more at ease with themselves by quashing the whole proceeding.

Most respectfully, your humble servant,
JAMES ARLINGTON BENNETT,
Counselor at Law, &c.
[N. Y. Herald.]

HIGHLY IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO—WAR AGAINST TEXAS—HER CONQUEST ALMOST CERTAIN.

The bark Eugenia, Briscoe, arrived on Saturday night from Vera Cruz, having sailed from that port on the 16th ult. In this vessel have arrived, as passengers, the celebrated Col. Almonte, who was in the battle of San Jacinto—and also his brother, accompanied by a suite of aids and officers. A large amount of specie belonging to Mexicans, part probably to the government, has also come, consigned to the commercial house of Hargous & Co.

By this vessel we have private intelligence, and private correspondence, from Vera Cruz and Mexico, of the highest importance to Texas, and the future destiny of that country. We have now certain and positive information, on which we can rely, that the Mexican government, or rather Santa Anna, will soon invade Texas, if not already invaded, by a large army and navy, both by sea and land—the army to be led on by British officers—and the navy by the same. The Mexican fleet already numbers three iron steamers, two gun brigs, and three schooners. The following is a letter:

[Correspondence of the Herald.]

VERA CRUZ, Sept. 16, 1842.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE N. Y. HERALD.
I have just received the annexed statement from one of the crew of the Guadalupe, the war steamer arrived from England.

I shipped on board the steam frigate Guadalupe, Capt. E. Charlewood, at Liverpool, at the close of June last, as I thought for China. The number of crew was then eighty-six, including engineers, fire men, &c. The day before the steamer left Liverpool, we were all called aft, when Capt. Charlewood read a written agreement, without a stamp, and drawn up by himself. It stated that he wished all hands to go with him—that he was ignorant of the destination of the ship; and that we must ask no questions. We were to receive £3 per month as wages; warrant and petty officers rated according to rank. We sailed from Liverpool on the 4th of July. Two days after, I noticed in the Liverpool Mail, of the 2nd, that the Guadalupe had cleared for Corunna. On the 7th, we called at Cork. Orders were sent on board for the captain to go ashore and report the ship immediately. He thereupon piled on sail and put on steam, and we soon left old Ireland in the rear. On the 15th we touched at Funchal, took in coals, and left on the 18th. Shortly after, the captain ordered the boatswain to pipe all hands to quarters. We were arranged on both sides of the deck. Captain C. then said: "Well, men it is my intention to inform you what my business is. I was ordered not to tell you before. I am bound to Vera Cruz in Mexico. That place is blockaded by a set of half bred Yankees, who call themselves Texans. I am determined to break myself through. I am well convinced that you are all a set of picked men. We have a good ship, with 263 pivots, and we shall no doubt take plenty of prizes."

Two days after we saw the Mexican colors on board, much to our surprise. From that day we were constantly drilled at the pig guns and small arms. It was laughable to see the firemen, all so very green, handling the muskets. We were piped to quarters whenever a vessel hove in sight. On the 25th of August we reached Vera Cruz. On the 29th all hands manned the yards and saluted the Governor. We were then piped to quarters, and Captain C. again spoke: "Well, men, I wish to inform you that this ship is going to exchange flags, that of Mexico will be hoisted to-morrow morning. If any of you have any thing to say, now is your time. Hereafter you must hold your tongues." Several declined serving under the Mexican flag, and wished to leave. Four were permitted to go. The others were told that they must remain as the Mexican Government were anxious for English sailors; so much so, indeed, that the wages of the warrant officers were raised. We were then informed that Captain C. would receive $450 per month, the first lieutenant G. Wright, $150, Doctor Clemenson 150, under purser, and clerk each $150; and, after the capture of Texas, they are to receive three hundred dollars, to pay their passage home; and poor Jack but $25. All those who should lose an arm, an eye, or a leg, were to receive 60%, and 30% for a finger, a toe, or for any scar. This is a list of prices adopted by Santa Anna. He lost a leg, which was probably worth no more than 60%. Hence the list. Three men refused to comply with these regulations and serve in the steamer. They were consequently thrown into prison and confined three days without any food. The British Consul refused to offer them any aid.

If these men should fall what will become of their poor wives and families?

Will they get any money? No thought of this enter the minds of the Mexicans. All they care for is the taking of Texas in six months, with a fleet of three steamers, one 18 gun brig, one 10 gun brig, and three schooners.

This expedition, it will be perceived, was organized in London, under the patronage of the Mexican merchants and bondholders in that quarter. The force already in motion will be sufficient to overwhelm Texas, and to drive every Texian out of that smiling land. The Texian navy, at the last accounts, was laid up and useless, for want of funds. The Mexican navy is in full force—with three iron steamers and plenty of men and ammunition to co-operate with their army. We expect that a decisive blow will soon be leveled at the independence of Texas. The arrival of Col. Almonte, as Mexican minister in this country, is probably intended to preserve the peace of the United States of the north and Mexico. Almonte is a man of superior talents, great address, perfectly acquainted with our language and institutions.

The British ascendancy in Mexico is now complete. Unless the French and American governments interfere, the existence of Texas as a nation is gone forever. Nothing can save the new republic, but such an intervention. Will it be extended to the Anglo-Saxon race in Texas? We'll see. On the whole, we begin to see some mighty results growing out of this new invasion of Texas. Will it not lead to a union between France and the United States to prevent England and Mexico from destroying an independent republic on this continent? May not the attempt to annihilate Texas lead the great maritime powers into a war on the ocean? Are we not in the beginning of a new crisis in human affairs?

The "Nauvoo Lyceum," will meet at Professor Orson Pratt's School Room at early candle light on Saturday evening next—subject for discussion, "Is there sufficient evidence in the works of nature to prove the existence of a Supreme Being." The ladies and gentlemen of Nauvoo, are respectfully requested to attend.

Never break a promise made to a child, or if you do, give your reasons, and if in fault own it, and ask pardon if necessary. Never trifle with a child's feelings when under discipline.

Children ought not to be governed by fear of the rod, of private chastisement, or of dark rooms.

REPORT OF DEATHS, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 11TH INST.

Joseph White, 24 years; black cancer. Squire Morris, 27 years; fever. Abel Lamb, Jr. 2 years; black cancer. Marthy Byington, 23 years; fever. Thomas Bromley, 6 months consumption.

Total 5.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Antony Barkman, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Antony Barkman, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 5th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 12th day of November A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN, Solicitor for petitioner.

NOTICE.

THE Patent Title holders of the county of Hancock, are requested to attend a meeting to be held at the Court House in Carthage on Saturday the 26th of November, for the purpose of organizing a county association auxiliary to, (and in pursuance of the fifth resolution adopted by the general association) styled the Patent Title Association, organized and held at Macomb on the 23rd September, 1842.

The object of the meeting is for the purpose of giving all Patent Title holders an opportunity to list their lands and become members of the Association by paying to the Society five dollars on or before the first day of December 1842, for each Patent Title he lists, to be paid in the following manner, viz: $1 at the time of listing the land and $1 quarterly if required by the executive committee of the general association; which monies shall go into the hands of the Executive Committee of the General association to be disbursed by them in the prosecution and defence of all and any suits brought by or commenced against any of the members of the Association.

J. W. BRATTLE,
E. F. CHITTENDON,
S. EMMONS,

Nauvoo, Nov. 3rd, 1842.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Kelly, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Kelly, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-w4

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Alanson Lyon, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Alanson Lyon, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-w4.

ESTATE OF RALPH BIRKINHEAD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the fifth day of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at one o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Ralph Birkenhead, late of said county, deceased, when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 13th day of October, 1842.

CHRISTOPHER DIXON, Administrator.

no26-1ds.

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill. will practice in the Hancock Circuit Court, and also in the Supreme Court and District Courts of this State. Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 12-3m.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PHYSICIAN IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business, to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Norman Hart, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Norman Hart, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 14th day of Nov. next, at the District Court-room, in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated October 15. A. D. 1842.

LEVI DAVIS, Solicitor for petitioner.

G. C. SAMPSON, Counselor.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

ESTATE OF JAMES DOYLE DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given that on the first Monday of December next I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of James Doyle, late of said county, deceased, when and where all claimants are notified and requested to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 24th day of October, A. D. 1842.

DANIEL H. WELLS, Administrator.

no28-6w.

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th day of October, 1842.

THOMAS SUMMERS, Administrator.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Lionberger, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Lionberger, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-4w.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and Shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSEND,

A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. if.

Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29.

NEW YORK.—The introduction of the Croton water into New York has reduced the cost of insurance about 15 per cent.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple, L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. Ills.
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
L. Tulle, M. Romney,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash. These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-ly.

NOTICE.

LEFT, in my care, in the Month of April last, off the Steam Boat Asprey, one trunk, with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stouard, Montrose, Iowa; the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of Mr. Peck, at this time.

S. H. BURTIS.

Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842.

no20-1f.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medicinal prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many

Long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, Lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22-yl.) J. SNIDER,

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER QTR.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
" Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
" Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation. 5.00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus and Newton's Principles. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Partnership heretofore existing between B. R. Bently and James Field having this day been dissolved by mutual consent, the debts of the firm will be settled by B. R. Bently and all debts due the firm received by him. Nauvoo, Oct 21st, 1842. 27 w2

HUSBAND YOUR BITS.

THE Collector, for 1842, will be along soon, and will expect prompt payment. There are some taxes for 1841 that will be presented for payment. WALTER BAGBY, Collector, S. & C. no20-1w.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price. No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20-3m.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill., 8 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa; also 1 horse and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses, 1 good two horse wagon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

*AMOS TERRY.

SILAS TERRY.

Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842.

no24-1f.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842.

no27-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WAG.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.

Levi Moffet, Augusta.

Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.

John E. Page, Pittsburgh.

B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.

James Curtis, Horners Town.

W. I. Appleby, Recluse Town.

Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.

Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiere.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

NOTICE.

THE Patent Title holders of the county of Hancock, are requested to attend a meeting to be held at the Court House in Carthage on Saturday the 26th of November, for the purpose of organizing a county association auxiliary to, (and in pursuance of the fifth resolution adopted by the general association) styled the Patent Title Association, organized and held at Macomb on the 23rd September, 1842.

The object of the meeting is for the purpose of giving all Patent Title holders an opportunity to list their lands and become members of the Association by paying to the Society five dollars on or before the first day of December 1842, for each Patent Title he lists, to be paid in the following manner, viz: $1 at the time of listing the land and $1 quarterly if required by the executive committee of the general association; which monies shall go into the hands of the Executive Committee of the General association to be disbursed by them in the prosecution and defence of all and any suits brought by or commenced against any of the members of the Association.

J. W. BRATTLE,
E. F. CHITTENDON,
S. EMMONS.

Nauvoo, Nov. 3rd, 1842.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of Joseph Kelly, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Kelly, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress, in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-w4

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Alanson Lyon, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Alanson Lyon, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-w4.

ESTATE OF RALPH BIRKINHEAD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the fifth day of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at one o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Ralph Birkenhead, late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 13th day of October, 1842.

CHRISTOPHER DIXON, Administrator. no26-tds.

W. H. RALSTON,
ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State. Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTICE IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 21, 1842.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Norman Hart, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given that Norman Hart, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this Court to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts, under the Act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this Court appointing the 14th day of Nov. next, at the District Court-room, in the city of Springfield, in this District, as the time and place for the hearing of said petition: all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause, if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated October 10. A. D. 1842.

LEVI DAVIS, Solicitor for petitioner.

G. C. SAMPSON, Counselor.

Attest: James F. Owings, Clerk.

ESTATE OF JAMES DOYLE DECLARED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given that on the first Monday of December next I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of James Doyle, late of said county, deceased, when and where all claimants are notified and requested to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 24th day of October, A. D. 1842.

DANIEL H. WELLS, Administrator. no25-6w.

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th day of October, 1842.

THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Lionberger, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Lionberger, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-w4.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and Shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND,
A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. if. Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29.

NEW YORK.—The introduction of the Croton water into New York has reduced the cost of insurance about 15 per cent.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple, L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's.
R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge,
H. Tulle, M. Romney,
H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall. Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-ly.

NOTICE.

LEFT, in my care, in the Month of April last, off the Steam-Boat Aspy, one trunk, with a label directed to Miss Elizabeth Stouard, Montrose, Iowa; the owner is requested to prove property, pay charges, and take the same away, or it will be sold to pay said charges. An advertisement of said trunk is in the store of Mr. Peck, at this time.

S. H. BURTIS.

Montrose, Sept. 2, 1842.

no20-1f.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ORSON PRATT.

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER Qr.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
" Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
" Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation. 5.00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus, and Newton's Principia. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

DISSOLUTION.

THE Partnership heretofore existing between B. R. Bently and James Field having this day been dissolved by mutual consent, the debts of the firm will be settled by B. R. Bently and all debts due the firm received by him.

Nauvoo, Oct 21st, 1842.

27 w2

HUSBAND YOUR BITS.

THE Collector, for 1842, will be a long soon, and will expect prompt payment. There are some taxes for 1841 that will be presented for payment. WALTER BAGBY, Collector, S. & C. no29-1w.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price. No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20-3m.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill., 8 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa; also 1 house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses, 1 good two horse wagon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS TERRY.

SILAS TERRY.

Appanoose, Sept. 23, 1842.

no24-1f.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842.

no27-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reelless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.

Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 31.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, December 3, 1842.

Whole Number 31

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH.

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-1f.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842. no31-1f.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State. Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m.

An Ordinance regulating the proceedings on Writs of Habeas Corpus.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that if any person or persons shall be or stand committed, or detained for any criminal or supposed criminal matter, it shall and may be lawful for him, her, or them to apply to the Municipal Court, when in session, or to the Clerk thereof, in vacation, for a Writ of Habeas Corpus, which application shall be in writing, and signed by the prisoner, or some person on his, her, or their behalf, setting forth the facts concerning his, her, or their imprisonment, and in whose custody he, she, or they are detained, and shall be accompanied by a copy of the warrant or warrants of commitment, or an affidavit that the said copy had been demanded of the person or persons in whose custody the prisoner or prisoners are detained, and by him or them refused or neglected to be given; the said court or clerk to whom the application shall be made, shall forthwith award the said Writ of Habeas Corpus, unless it shall appear from the petition itself, or from the documents annexed that the party can neither be discharged nor admitted to bail, nor in any other manner relieved. Which said writ shall be issued under the hand of the clerk, and the seal of the court; which seal may be a written one, until another shall be obtained, and shall be in the following words, to wit: 'Seal of the Municipal Court of the city of Nauvoo,' and said writ shall be in substance as follows, to wit: State of Illinois,)
City of Nauvoo,)

The people of the State of Illinois, to the Marshal of said city, Greeting;

Whereas application has been made before the Municipal Court of said city that the body (or bodies) of A. B. &c., is or are in the custody of C. D. &c. of &c.

These are therefore to command the said C. D. &c. of &c. to safely have the body (or bodies) of said A. B. &c., in his custody detained as it is said, together with the day and cause of his (her or their) caption and detention, by whatsoever name the said A. B. &c., may be known or called, before the Municipal Court of said city, forthwith, to abide such order as the said court shall make in this behalf, and further, if the said C. D. &c., or other person or persons having said A. B. &c., in custody, shall refuse or neglect to comply with the provisions of this writ, you, the Marshal of said city, or other person authorized to serve the same, are hereby required to arrest the person or persons so refusing or neglecting to comply as aforesaid, and bring him or them, together with the person or persons in his or their custody, forthwith, before the Municipal Court aforesaid, to be dealt with according to law; and herein fail not, and bring this writ with you.

Witness J. S. Clerk of the Municipal Court, at Nauvoo, this day of in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and

J. S., Clerk.

and be directed to the city Marshal, and shall be served by delivering a copy thereof to the person or persons in whose custody the prisoner or prisoners are detained, and said writ shall be made returnable forthwith and the form and substance thereof, as hereinafter, and be taken and considered as part and parcel of this ordinance; to the intent that no officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper, or other person, or persons, upon whom such writ shall be served, may pretend ignorance thereof, every such writ and copy thereof served shall be endorsed with these words, 'by the habeas corpus act; and whenever the said writ shall by any person be served upon the sheriff, jailor, keeper, or other person or persons whomsoever, holding said prisoner or prisoners or being brought to him or them, or being served upon any of his or their under officers or deputies at the jail, or place where the prisoner or prisoners are detained, he or they or some of his or their under officers or deputies shall, upon payment or tender of the charges of bringing the said prisoner or prisoners, to be ascertained by the Court awarding the said writ, and endorsed thereon, not exceeding ten cents per mile; and upon sufficient security given to pay the charges of carrying him, her, or them back, if he, she or they shall be remanded, make return of such writ, and bring, or cause to be brought, the body or bodies of the prisoner or prisoners before the Municipal Court forthwith, and certify the true cause of his, her, or their imprisonment, unless the commitment of such person or persons shall be to the county jail, in Hancock county in which case the time shall be prolonged till five days after the delivery of the writ as aforesaid, and not longer. Provided, nevertheless, that in case any person or persons may at any time hereafter be taken and lodged in the city or county jail, under any writ or process, as provided by the city charter of the city of Nauvoo, and shall require a writ of habeas corpus to issue, to bring him, her, or them before the Municipal Court of said city, said writ shall issue to bring him, her, or them before said court, and be directed to the city Marshal to be served upon the person or persons in whose custody such prisoner or prisoners may then be detained.

Sec. 2. Where any person or persons not being committed or detained for any criminal, or supposed criminal matter, shall be confined, or restrained of his, her or their liberty, under any color or pretence whatever, he she, or they may apply for a writ of habeas corpus, as aforesaid.

which application shall be in writing signed by the party, or some person on his, her, or their behalf, setting forth the facts concerning his, her, or their imprisonment, and wherein the illegality of such imprisonment consists, and in whose custody he, she, or they are detained; which application, or petition, shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the party applying, or some other person on his, her, or their behalf; if the confinement or restraint is by virtue of any judicial writ or process, or order, a copy thereof shall be annexed thereto, or an affidavit made that the same had been demanded and refused: the same proceedings shall thereupon be had in all respects, as are directed in the preceding Section, and any officer, person, or persons knowing that he, or they, have an illegal writ, or not having any writ, who shall attempt through any false pretext to take or intimidate any of the inhabitants of this city, through such pretext, shall forfeit for every such offence a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, nor less than five hundred dollars, or in case of failure to pay such forfeiture, to be imprisoned not more than twelve months nor less than six months.

Sec. 3. Upon the return of the writ of habeas corpus, a day shall be set for the hearing of the cause of imprisonment or detention, not exceeding five days thereafter, unless the prisoner or prisoners shall request a longer time. The said prisoner or prisoners may deny any of the material facts set forth in the return, or may allege any fact to shew, either that the imprisonment or detention is unlawful, or that he, she, or they is or are then entitled to his, her, or their discharge, which allegations or denials shall be made on oath. The said return may be amended by leave of the court, before or after the same is filed, as also may all suggestions made against it, that thereby material facts may be ascertained. The said court shall proceed in a summary way to settle the said facts, by hearing the testimony and arguments, as well of all parties interested civilly, if any there be, as of the prisoner or prisoners, and the person or persons who holds him, her, or them in custody, and shall dispose of the prisoner or prisoners as the case may require. If it appear that the prisoner or prisoners are in custody by virtue of process from any court, legally constituted, he, she, or they can be discharged for the following causes: First, where the court has exceeded the limits of its jurisdiction, either as to the matter, place, sum, person, or persons; second, where though the original imprisonment was lawful, yet by some act, omission, or event, which has subsequently taken place, the party has become entitled to his, her, or their discharge; Third, where the process is defective in some substantial form required by law; Fourth, where the process though in proper form has been issued in a case, or under circumstances where the law does not allow process, or orders for imprisonment or arrest, to issue; Fifth, where, although in proper form, the process has been issued or executed by a person or persons, either authorized to issue or execute the same, or where the person or persons having the custody of the prisoner or prisoners under such process is not the person or persons empowered by law to detain him, her, or them; Sixth, where the process appears to have been obtained by false pretence or bribery; Seventh, where there is no general law, nor any judgment, order, or decree of a court, to authorize the process, if in a civil suit, nor any conviction, if in a criminal proceeding. In all cases where the imprisonment is for a criminal or supposed criminal matter, if it shall appear to the said court that there is a sufficient legal cause for the commitment of the prisoner or prisoners, although such commitment may have been informally made, or without due authority, or the process may have been executed by a person or persons not duly authorized, the court shall make a new commitment, in proper form, and directed to the proper officer or officers, or admit the party to bail, if the case be bailable.

Sec. 4. When any person or persons shall be admitted to bail, on habeas corpus, he, she or they shall enter into recognizance with one or more securities in such sum as the court shall direct, having regard to the circumstances of the prisoner or prisoners, and the nature of the offence, conditioned for his, her or their appearance at the next circuit court to be holden in and for the county where the offence was committed, or where the same is to be tried: where the court shall admit to bail, or remand any prisoner or prisoners brought before the court, on any writ of habeas corpus, it shall be the duty of said court to bind all such persons as do declare any thing material to prove the offence with which the prisoner or prisoners are charged, by recognizance, to appear at the proper court having cognizance of the offence, on the first day of the next term thereof, to give evidence touching the said offence, and not to depart the said court without leave: which recognizance, so taken, together with the recognizance entered into by the prisoner or prisoners when he, she, or they are admitted to bail, shall be certified and returned to the proper court on the first day of the next succeeding term thereof.

If any such witness or witnesses shall neglect or refuse to enter into a recognizance as aforesaid, when thereunto required, it shall be lawful for the court to commit him, her, or them to jail until he, she, or they shall enter into such recognizance, or be otherwise discharged by due course of law; if the court shall neglect or refuse to bind any such witness or witnesses, prisoner or prisoners, by recognizance as aforesaid, or to return any such recognizance, when taken as aforesaid, the court shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour in office, and be proceeded against accordingly.

Sec. 5. Where any prisoner or prisoners brought up on a habeas corpus, shall be remanded to prison, it shall be the duty of the Municipal Court remanding him, her, or them, to make out and deliver to the sheriff, or other person or persons to whose custody he, she, or they shall be remanded, an order in writing, stating the cause or causes of remanding him, her, or them. If such prisoner or prisoners shall obtain a second writ of habeas corpus, it shall be the duty of such sheriff or other person or persons upon whom the same shall be served to return therewith the order aforesaid; and if it shall appear that the said prisoner or prisoners were remanded for an offence adjudged not bailable, it shall be taken and received as conclusive, and the prisoner or prisoners shall be remanded without further proceedings.

Sec. 6. It shall not be lawful for the Municipal Court on a second writ of habeas corpus obtained by such prisoner or prisoners to discharge the said prisoner or prisoners if he, she or they are proven guilty of the charges clearly and specifically charged in the warrant of commit-

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 31.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, December 3, 1842.

Whole Number 31

THE WASP.

EDITED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

WM. SMITH.

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS—$1.50 in advance.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-tf.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842. no31-tf.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State. Carthage, Aug. 12, 1842. 12-3m.

An Ordinance regulating the proceedings on Writs of Habeas Corpus.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that if any person or persons shall be or stand committed, or detained for any criminal or supposed criminal matter, it shall and may be lawful for him, her, or them to apply to the Municipal Court, when in session, or to the Clerk thereof, in vacation, for a Writ of Habeas Corpus, which application shall be in writing, and signed by the prisoner, or some person on his, her, or their behalf, setting forth the facts concerning his, her, or their imprisonment, and in whose custody he, she, or they are detained, and shall be accompanied by a copy of the warrant or warrants of commitment, or an affidavit that the said copy had been demanded of the person or persons in whose custody the prisoner or prisoners are detained, and by him or them refused or neglected to be given; the said court or clerk to whom the application shall be made, shall forthwith award the said Writ of Habeas Corpus, unless it shall appear from the petition itself, or from the documents annexed that the party can neither be discharged nor admitted to bail, nor in any other manner relieved. Which said writ shall be issued under the hand of the clerk, and the seal of the court; which seal may be a written one, until another shall be obtained, and shall be in the following words, to wit: 'Seal of the Municipal Court of the city of Nauvoo,' and said writ shall be in substance as follows, to wit: State of Illinois,)
City of Nauvoo.)

The people of the State of Illinois, to the Marshal of said city, Greeting;

Whereas application has been made before the Municipal Court of said city that the body (or bodies) of A. B. &c., is or are in the custody of C. D. &c. of &c.

These are therefore to command the said C. D. &c. of &c. to safely have the body (or bodies) of said A. B. &c., in his custody detained as it is said, together with the day and cause of his (her or their) caption and detention, by whatsoever name the said A. B. &c., may be known or called, before the Municipal Court of said city, forthwith, to abide such order as the said court shall make in this behalf, and further, if the said C. D. &c., or other person or persons having said A. B. &c., in custody, shall refuse or neglect to comply with the provisions of this writ, you, the Marshal of said city, or other person authorized to serve the same, are hereby required to arrest the person or persons so refusing or neglecting to comply as aforesaid, and bring him or them, together with the person or persons in his or their custody, forthwith, before the Municipal Court aforesaid, to be dealt with according to law; and herein fail not, and bring this writ with you.

Witness J. S. Clerk of the Municipal Court, at Nauvoo, this day of in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and J. S., Clerk.

and be directed to the city Marshal, and shall be served by delivering a copy thereof to the person or persons in whose custody the prisoner or prisoners are detained, and said writ shall be made returnable forthwith and the form and substance thereof, as hereinafter, and be taken and considered as part and parcel of this ordinance; to the intent that no officer, sheriff, jailer, keeper, or other person, or persons, upon whom such writ shall be served, may pretend ignorance thereof, every such writ and copy thereof served shall be endorsed with these words, 'by the habeas corpus act; and whenever the said writ shall by any person be served upon the sheriff, jailer, keeper, or other person or persons whomsoever, holding said prisoner or prisoners or being brought to him or them, or being served upon any of his or their under officers or deputies at the jail, or place where the prisoner or prisoners are detained, he or they or some of his or their under officers or deputies shall, upon payment or tender of the charges of bringing the said prisoner or prisoners, to be ascertained by the Court awarding the said writ, and endorsed thereon, not exceeding ten cents per mile; and upon sufficient security given to pay the charges of carrying him, her, or them back, if he, she or they shall be remanded, make return of such writ, and bring, or cause to be brought, the body or bodies of the prisoner or prisoners before the Municipal Court forthwith, and certify the true cause of his, her, or their imprisonment, unless the commitment of such person or persons shall be to the county jail, in Hancock county in which case the time shall be prolonged till five days after the delivery of the writ as aforesaid, and not longer. Provided, nevertheless, that in case any person or persons may at any time hereafter be taken and lodged in the city or county jail, under any writ or process, as provided by the city charter of the city of Nauvoo, and shall require a writ of habeas corpus to issue, to bring him, her, or them before the Municipal Court of said city, said writ shall issue to bring him, her, or them before said court, and be directed to the city Marshal to be served upon the person or persons in whose custody such prisoner or prisoners may then be detained.

Sec. 2. Where any person or persons not being committed or detained for any criminal, or supposed criminal matter, shall be confined, or restrained of his, her or their liberty, under any color or pretence whatever, he, she, or they may apply for a writ of habeas corpus, as aforesaid, which application shall be in writing signed by the party, or some person on his, her, or their behalf, setting forth the facts concerning his, her, or their imprisonment, and wherein the illegality of such imprisonment consists, and in whose custody he, she, or they are detained; which application, or petition, shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the party applying, or some other person on his, her, or their behalf; if the confinement or restraint is by virtue of any judicial writ or process, or order, a copy thereof shall be annexed thereto, or an affidavit made that the same had been demanded and refused; the same proceedings shall thereupon be had in all respects, as are directed in the preceding Section, and any officer, person, or persons knowing that he, or they, have an illegal writ, or not having any writ, who shall attempt through any false pretext to take or intimidate any of the inhabitants of this city, through such pretext, shall forfeit for every such offence a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, nor less than five hundred dollars, or in case of failure to pay such forfeiture, to be imprisoned not more than twelve months nor less than six months.

Sec. 3. Upon the return of the writ of habeas corpus, a day shall be set for the hearing of the cause of imprisonment or detention, not exceeding five days thereafter, unless the prisoner or prisoners shall request a longer time. The said prisoner or prisoners may deny any of the material facts set forth in the return, or may ablige any fact to shew, either that the imprisonment or detention is unlawful, or that he, she, or they are or are then entitled to his, her, or their discharge, which allegations or denials shall be made on oath. The said return may be amended by leave of the court, before or after the same is filed, as also may all suggestions made against it, that thereby material facts may be ascertained. The said court shall proceed in a summary way to settle the said facts, by hearing the testimony and arguments, as well of all parties interested civilly, if any there be, as of the prisoner or prisoners, and the person or persons who holds him, her, or them in custody, and shall dispose of the prisoner or prisoners as the case may require. If it appear that the prisoner or prisoners are in custody by virtue of process from any court, legally constituted, he, she, or they can be discharged for the following causes: First, where the court has exceeded the limits of its jurisdiction, either as to the matter, place, sum, person, or persons; second, where though the original imprisonment was lawful, yet by some act, omission, or event, which has subsequently taken place, the party has become entitled to his, her, or their discharge; Third, where the process is defective in some substantial form required by law; Fourth, where the process though in proper form has been issued in a case, or under circumstances where the law does not allow process, or orders for imprisonment or arrest, to issue; Fifth, where, although in proper form, the process has been issued or executed by a person or persons, either authorized to issue or execute the same, or where the person or persons having the custody of the prisoner or prisoners under such process is not the person or persons empowered by law to detain him, her, or them; Sixth, where the process appears to have been obtained by false pretence or bribery; Seventh, where there is no general law, nor any judgment, order, or decree of a court, to authorize the process, if in a civil suit, nor any conviction, if in a criminal proceeding. In all cases where the imprisonment is for a criminal or supposed criminal matter, if it shall appear to the said court that there is a sufficient legal cause for the commitment of the prisoner or prisoners, although such commitment may have been informally made, or without due authority, or the process may have been executed by a person or persons not duly authorized, the court shall make a new commitment, in proper form, and directed to the proper officer or officers, or admit the party to bail, if the case be bailable.

Sec. 4. When any person or persons shall be admitted to bail, on habeas corpus, he, she or they shall enter into recognizance with one or more securities in such sum as the court shall direct, having regard to the circumstances of the prisoner or prisoners, and the nature of the offence, conditioned for his, her or their appearance at the next circuit court to be holden in and for the county where the offence was committed, or where the same is to be tried; where the court shall admit to bail, or remand any prisoner or prisoners brought before the court, on any writ of habeas corpus, it shall be the duty of said court to bind all such persons as do declare any thing material to prove the offence with which the prisoner or prisoners are charged, by recognizance, to appear at the proper court having cognizance of the offence, on the first day of the next term thereof, to give evidence touching the said offence, and not to depart the said court without leave; which recognizance, so taken, together with the recognizance entered into by the prisoner or prisoners when he, she, or they are admitted to bail, shall be certified and returned to the proper court on the first day of the next succeeding term thereof.

If any such witness or witnesses shall neglect or refuse to enter into a recognizance as aforesaid, when thereunto required, it shall be lawful for the court to commit him, her, or them to jail until he, she, or they shall enter into such recognizance, or be otherwise discharged by due course of law; if the court shall neglect or refuse to bind any such witness or witnesses, prisoner or prisoners, by recognizance as aforesaid, or to return any such recognizance, when taken as aforesaid, the court shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour in office, and be proceeded against accordingly.

Sec. 5. Where any prisoner or prisoners brought up on a habeas corpus, shall be remanded to prison, it shall be the duty of the Municipal Court remanding him, her, or them, to make out and deliver to the sheriff, or other person or persons to whose custody he, she, or they shall be remanded, an order in writing, stating the cause or causes of remanding him, her, or them. If such prisoner or prisoners shall obtain a second writ of habeas corpus, it shall be the duty of such sheriff or other person or persons upon whom the same shall be served to return therewith the order aforesaid; and if it shall appear that the said prisoner or prisoners were remanded for an offence adjudged not bailable, it shall be taken and received as conclusive, and the prisoner or prisoners shall be remanded without further proceedings.

Sec. 6. It shall not be lawful for the Municipal Court on a second writ of habeas corpus obtained by such prisoner or prisoners to discharge the said prisoner or prisoners if he, she or they are proven guilty of the charges clearly and specifically charged in the warrant of commitment, with a criminal offence, but if the prisoner or prisoners shall be found guilty, the Municipal Court shall only admit such prisoner or prisoners to bail, where the offence is bailable by law or ordinance, or remand him, her, or them to prison where the offence is not bailable; or being bailable, if such prisoner or prisoners shall fail to give the bail required.

Sec. 7. No person or persons who have been discharged by order of the Municipal Court on a habeas corpus, shall be again imprisoned, restrained, or kept in custody for the same cause, unless he, she or they, be afterwards indicted for the same offence, or unless by the legal order or process of the Municipal Court wherein he, she or they are bound by recognisance to appear; the following shall not be deemed to be the same cause. First, if after a discharge, for defect of proof, or any material defect in the commitment in a criminal case the prisoner or prisoners should be again arrested upon sufficient proof and committed by legal process, for the same offence; Second if in a civil suit the party or parties have been discharged for any illegality in the judgment or process and are afterwards imprisoned by legal process, for the same cause of action; Third, generally whenever the discharge has been ordered on account of the nonobservance of any of the forms required by law the party or parties may be a second time imprisoned if the cause be legal and the forms required by law observed.

Sec. 8. If any person or persons shall be committed for a criminal matter in case of the absence of a witness or witnesses whose testimony may be considered to be of importance in behalf of the people, the Municipal Court may adjourn from time to time at its discretion, provided they decide upon the case within thirty days, if it shall appear by oath or affirmation that the witness or witnesses for the people of the State are absent, such witness or witnesses being mentioned by name and the court shewn wherein their testimony is material.

Sec. 9. Any person or persons being committed to the city or county jail, as provided in the charter of the city of Nauvoo, or in the custody of any officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper, or other person or persons, or his or their under officer or deputy for any criminal, or supposed criminal matter shall not be removed from said prison or custody, into any prison or custody unless it be by habeas corpus, or by an order of the Municipal Court, or in case of sudden fire infection or other necessities; if any person or persons shall after such commitment as aforesaid, make out, sign, or countersign any warrant or warrants, for such removal, then he or they shall forfeit to the prisoner or prisoners, aggrieved, a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, to be received by the prisoner or prisoners aggrieved, in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

Sec. 10. If any member of the Municipal Court, or the clerk of said court shall corruptly refuse or neglect to issue writ or writs of habeas corpus when legally applied to, in a case where such writ or writs may lawfully issue, or who shall for the purpose of oppression unreasonably delay the issuing of such writ or writs, shall for every such offence forfeit to the prisoner or prisoners, party or parties aggrieved a sum not less than $500.00 and not exceeding one thousand dollars, and be imprisoned for six months.

Sec. 11. If any officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper or other person or persons upon whom any such writ shall be served, shall neglect or refuse to make the returns as aforesaid, or to bring the body of the prisoner or prisoners according to the command of the said writ, within the time required by this ordinance, all and every such officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper, or other person or persons shall be guilty of a contempt of the Municipal Court who issued said writ; whereupon the said court may, and shall, issue an attachment against said officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper, or other person or persons and cause him or them to be committed to the city or county jail as are provided for by the city charter of the city of Nauvoo; there to remain without bail or mainprize, until he or they shall obey the said writ; such officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper, or other person or persons shall also forfeit to the prisoner or prisoners, party or parties, aggrieved a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, and not less than five hundred dollars.

Sec. 12. Any person or persons having a prisoner or prisoners in his or their custody, or under his or their restraint, power or control, for whose relief a writ of habeas corpus is issued who with the intent to avoid the effect of such writ or writs, shall transfer such person or persons to the custody of, or place him, her or them under the control of any other person or persons, or shall conceal him, her or them, or change the place of his, her or their confinement, with intent to avoid the operation of such writ or writs, or with intent to remove him, her or them out of the State, shall forfeit for every such offence one thousand dollars, and may be imprisoned not less than one year, nor more than five years. In any prosecution for the penalty incurred under this section, it shall not be necessary to shew that the writ or writs of habeas corpus had issued at the time of the removal, transfer or concealment therein mentioned, if it be proven that the acts therein forbidden were done with the intent to avoid the operation of such writ or writs.

Sec. 13. Any sheriff, or his deputy, any jailor or coroner, having custody of any prisoner or prisoners, committed on any civil or criminal process, of any court or magistrate, who shall neglect to give such prisoner or prisoners a copy of the process, order or commitment by virtue of which he, she, or they are imprisoned, within six hours after demand made by said prisoner or prisoners, or any one on his, her, or their behalf, shall forfeit five hundred dollars.

Sec. 14. Any person who, knowing that another has been discharged by order of the Municipal Court, on a habeas corpus shall contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, arrest or detain him or her again for the same cause, which was shewn on return of such writ, shall forfeit one thousand dollars, for the first offence and two thousand dollars for every subsequent one.

Sec. 15. All the pecuniary forfeitures incurred under this ordinance shall be and inure to the use of the party for whose benefit the writ of habeas corpus was issued, and shall be sued for and recovered with costs, by the city attorney, in the name of the City, by information, and the amount when recovered, shall without any deduction, be paid to the parties entitled thereto.

Sec. 16. In any action or suit for any offence against the provisions of this ordinance, the defendant or defendants may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in ordinance, the defendant or defendants may plead the general issue and give the special matter in evidence.

Sec. 17. The recovery of said penalties shall be no bar to a civil suit for damages.

Sec. 18. The Municipal Court upon issuing a writ of habeas corpus, may appoint any suitable person to serve the same, other than the Marshal, and shall endorse the appointment on the back of said writ.

Sec. 19. This ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage, any act heretofore to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Passed Nov. 14th 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

DRESS OF MIND.

On Sunday morning before going to church what a dressing there is among all classes, and what a stir to appear gay and pleasing. It is quite sufficient for the great purpose of our existence, to the outside of the platter. Curls may be arranged, fine tortoise-shell combs fixed, sparkling ear-rings hung, splendid garments displayed, and yet perhaps the gay fair one's mind may be poisoned with conceit, troubled with rivalry, and kept on the torture by ignorance and vanity. Windsor soap does not wash out the stains of the heart. Cologne water cannot throw a fragrance over an impure mind, nor will all the rubies of Golconda dazzle the recording angel into forgetfulness of filling up the leaves of the book of retribution.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1842.

1842.

Lo this only have I found, that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions.

Ecc. 7: 29.

At the annual cattle show and agricultural fair of the 'Empire' State of N. York, the following curious piece of Experiencia docet, is among the various reports:—

BREEDING ANIMALS TO ORDER.

Coming down from Albany we had the pleasure of an interview with the celebrated Col. Jacques, of the Ten Hill Farm, near Boston. He was present at the fair, and was chairman of the committee on native cattle. He is said to be the best judge of animals—animals of all kinds—from the mouse up to the horse—that there is in the country. He is the breeder of the famous Cream Pot Cows, four quarts of whose milk will make a pound of butter—and which he guarantees publicly or privately to convert into butter within a minute's time—he has done it before the members of the Massachusetts Legislature. He has some curious notions, upon which some people think him rather enthusiastic, particularly in the matter of breeding animals to order. For example, he guarantees to breed 20 cows to order, either red, white, black, speckled, ring, streaked, or striped—with horns, either long or short, straight, turned up or looped—with large bags or small, and of any color—[he is now breeding a lot with yellow bags and mahogany colored teats]—with wide backs upon which you may lay a bushel of corn without its rolling off, or so narrow as not to hold a single kernel. In short, he will breed you animals to order, and is a perfect L. L. D. in the matter of crossing breeds. He breeds all his Cream Pot Cows with a deep red body, white faces, yellow nose, yellow bags and mahogany colored teats. He claims to be able to transfer the properties of any one cow, whatever they may be, to any other cow—and in the matter of color, to shade animals to fancy. He goes strong for native breeds of cows; and many people think he will eventually ruin the foreign bloods, as the Durham's, the Hereford's, the Devonshires, &c. &c.

'Breeding cattle to order!' Well, old Jacob used to breed them to his own order, or notion, but has made no account of coloring the bags and teats:—such novel invention belongs to the land of 'modern hutmegs' and steady habits.—The real cream of the 19th century.

From a long, curious, laughable, and somewhat porcus homo report of the committee on swine, we extract the closing paragraph, as a fair sample of the growth of civilization, refinement and breeding of the fundamental yankees. Read it.

'Pigs are happy people. We may talk disparagingly about living like a pig. To live like a pig is to live like a gentleman. Although it is not permitted by the order of nature that a pig should laugh, or even smile, he enjoys the next best blessing of humanity, the disposition to grow fat. How easily he goes through the world! He has no fancy stocks to buy—no bank notes to pay—no indignation meetings to attend—no log cabin assemblies to hold. He has no occasion to take the benefit of the Bankrupt Act, or to have his estate confiscated to defray the expenses of the settlement. Free from all the troubles that disturb the busy world, he is as unconcerned among the changes of earthly affairs, as was the citizen who was waked in the earliest light of morning, by being told day was breaking. 'Well,' said he, as he turned again to his repose, 'let Day break, he owes me nothing.'

When we look at the comparative condition of the human race and of the swinish multitude, we may come to the conclusion that if a man will not be a man he had better be a pig.

For the Committee.

WM. LINCOLN, Chairman.

Now, let it be understood, that we care little about the volatile, light and sportive method, of treating subjects of grave, beneficial and (properly appreciated) nation al importance. We give the extracts to show the minds of the great men of the nation:—and truly the words of Solomon, are applicable: vanity of vanities, all is vanity, says the preacher. Not only agriculture, but national policy, men in high places, and even our holy religion, are lampooned, satired, and ridiculed as the combustible dandy, or night-glowing amazon, by that portion of community, which ought, by all means, to stand as light houses to the harbors of safety, sense, and sobriety:—Watchmen upon the walls of liberty, with 'Self love to urge and reason to restrain.'

For The Wasp.

Nauvoo, Dec. 3, 1842.

Ma. Editor.—

On a perusal of the 'History of the Saints,' a book of 324 pages, by Dr. J. C. Bennett, to my astonishment, I find he has published two letters, purporting to be written from this place, over my signature, implicating Joseph Smith, and leaving the impression that a regular correspondence is, or was, kept up between Dr. Bennett and myself. I desire, Mr. Editor, through the medium of your valuable paper, to disabuse the public mind upon this subject, as doubtless,—from what I can learn, and the conviction the appearance of these letters would naturally create—it is pregnant with the belief that such a correspondence actually existed. I have not written but one letter to Dr. J. C. Bennett, since his departure from Nauvoo, and that was strictly of a business character, treating upon none of the exciting topics couched in the communications which appear in his book, over my signature. This letter was sent, unsealed, by Mr. Hamilton, of Carthage, where said Bennett resided at the time. I have received three different letters from him (all by the same mail) in which he desired me to write; but not having any business with him and being desirous not to interfere in the difficulties between himself and President Smith, I refused to comply with his request, and would now have intruded upon your patience were it not for the appearance of these letters. Suffice it to say, I disclaim the authorship of them, and if J. C. Bennett has received any such letters over my signature, they are BASE FORGERIES, and I hope the world will regard them as such.

The careful and critical reader will discover, from the following extract of a letter from Bennett to me, that what I have stated above, relative to my not holding a correspondence with him, is verily true.

'Boston, Sept. 12, 1842.

Col. C. L. Higbee;

Dear Friend:—

My book will follow this letter in a few days. It contains two very fine letters from you to me, two from Frank, and five from Geo. Robinson. They are all in good composition, and will place you on high grounds. You are spoken of in the work in very high terms.

Yours Respectfully and CONFIDENTIALLY,
JOHN C. BENNETT.

'It contains two very fine letters from you to me.' This, together with, 'They are all in good composition, and will place you on high grounds,' would be superfluous information if they had really been written by me. I certainly should have been as well acquainted with them, and the style of their diction, as he, if I had, in truth, been their legitimate author.

My object in this publication is not to vindicate or anathematise either party,—free from the shackles of party litigation I desire peacefully to pursue the duties of my daily avocation; while—thankful for the boon—I hope long to remain a citizen of our flourishing city.

Yours Respectfully,

C. L. HIGBEE.

BACKBITERS AND SLANDERERS.—Slander is petty murder; and that man who wantonly assails the good name of his neighbor, lacks only the opportunity, not the disposition to steal his heart's warrior blood. How revolting is it, that a living man, soon to die, and stand before Christ's judgment seat, should with mock solemnity whisper in another's ear, tales con-

ment, with a criminal offence, but if the prisoner or prisoners shall be found guilty, the Municipal Court shall only admit such prisoner or prisoners to bail, where the offence is bailable by law or ordinance, or remand him, her or them to prison where the offence is not bailable; or being bailable, if such prisoner or prisoners shall fail to give the bail required.

Sec. 7. No person or persons who have been discharged by order of the Municipal Court on a habeas corpus, shall be again imprisoned, restrained, or kept in custody for the same cause, unless he, she or they, be afterwards indicted for the same offence, or unless by the legal order or process of the Municipal Court wherein he, she or they are bound by recognisance to appear; the following shall not be deemed to be the same cause: First, if after a discharge for defect of proof, or any material defect in the commitment in a criminal case the prisoner or prisoners should be again arrested upon sufficient proof and committed by legal process, for the same offence; Second if in a civil suit the party or parties have been discharged for any illegality in the judgment or process and are afterwards imprisoned by legal process, for the same cause of action; Third, generally whenever the discharge has been ordered on account of the nonobservance of any of the forms required by law the party or parties may be a second time imprisoned if the cause be legal and the forms required by law observed.

Sec. 8. If any person or persons shall be committed for a criminal matter in case of the absence of a witness or witnesses whose testimony may be considered to be of importance in behalf of the people, the Municipal Court may adjourn from time to time at its discretion, provided they decide upon the case within thirty days, if it shall appear by oath or affirmation that the witness or witnesses for the people of the State are absent, such witness or witnesses being mentioned by name and the court shewn wherein their testimony is material.

Sec. 9. Any person or persons being committed to the city or county jail, as provided in the charter of the city of Nauvoo, or in the custody of any officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper, or other person or persons, or his or their under officer or deputy for any criminal, or supposed criminal matter shall not be removed from said prison or custody, into any prison or custody unless it be by habeas corpus, or by an order of the Municipal Court, or in case of sudden fire infection or other necessities; if any person or persons shall after such commitment as aforesaid, make out, sign, or countersign any warrant or warrants, for such removal, then he or they shall forfeit to the prisoner or prisoners, aggrieved, a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, to be received by the prisoner or prisoners aggrieved, in the manner hereinafter mentioned.

Sec. 10. If any member of the Municipal Court, or the clerk of said court shall corruptly refuse or neglect to issue writ or writs of habeas corpus when legally applied to, in a case where such writ or writs may lawfully issue, or who shall for the purpose of oppression unreasonably delay the issuing of such writ or writs, shall for every such offence forfeit to the prisoner or prisoners, party or parties aggrieved a sum not less than $500.00 and not exceeding one thousand dollars, and be imprisoned for six months.

Sec. 11. If any officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper or other person or persons upon whom any such writ shall be served, shall neglect or refuse to make the returns as aforesaid, or to bring the body of the prisoner or prisoners according to the command of the said writ, within the time required by this ordinance, all and every such officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper, or other person or persons shall be guilty of a contempt of the Municipal Court who issued said writ; whereupon the said court may, and shall, issue an attachment against said officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper, or other person or persons and cause him or them to be committed to the city or county jail as are provided for by the city charter of the city of Nauvoo; there to remain without bail or mainprize, until he, or they shall obey the said writ; such officer, sheriff, jailor, keeper, or other person or persons shall also forfeit to the prisoner or prisoners, party or parties, aggrieved a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars, and not less than five hundred dollars.

Sec. 12. Any person or persons having a prisoner or prisoners in his or their custody, or under his or their restraint, power or control, for whose relief a writ of habeas corpus is issued, who with the intent to avoid the effect of such writ or writs, shall transfer such person or persons to the custody of, or place him, her or them under the control of any other person or persons, or shall conceal him, her or them, or change the place of his, her or their confinement, with intent to avoid the operation of such writ or writs, or with intent to remove him, her or them out of the State, shall forfeit for every such offence one thousand dollars, and may be imprisoned not less than one year, nor more than five years. In any prosecution for the penalty incurred under this section, it shall not be necessary to shew that the writ or writs of habeas corpus had issued at the time of the removal, transfer or concealment therein mentioned, if it be proven that the acts therein forbidden were done with the intent to avoid the operation of such writ or writs.

Sec. 13. Any sheriff, or his deputy, any jailor or coroner, having custody of any prisoner or prisoners, committed on any civil or criminal process, of any court or magistrate, who shall neglect to give such prisoner or prisoners a copy of the process, order or commitment by virtue of which he, she, or they are imprisoned, within six hours after demand made by said prisoner or prisoners, or any one on his, her, or their behalf, shall forfeit five hundred dollars.

Sec. 14. Any person who, knowing that another has been discharged by order of the Municipal Court, on a habeas corpus shall contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, arrest or detain him or her again for the same cause, which was shewn on return of such writ, shall forfeit one thousand dollars, for the first offence and two thousand dollars for every subsequent one.

Sec. 15. All the pecuniary forfeitures incurred under this ordinance shall be and inure to the use of the party for whose benefit the writ of habeas corpus was issued, and shall be sued for and recovered with costs, by the city attorney, in the name of the City, by information, and the amount when recovered, shall without any deduction, be paid to the parties entitled thereto.

Sec. 16. In any action or suit for any offence against the provisions of this ordinance, the defendant or defendants may plead the general issue, and give the special matter in evidence, the defendant or defendants may plead the general issue and give the special matter in evidence.

Sec. 17. The recovery of said penalties shall be no bar to a civil suit for damages.

Sec. 18. The Municipal Court upon issuing a writ of habeas corpus, may appoint any suitable person to serve the same, other than the Marshal, and shall endorse the appointment on the back of said writ.

Sec. 19. This ordinance to take effect and be in force from and after its passage, any act heretofore to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Passed Nov. 14th 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

DRESS OF MIND.

On Sunday morning before going to church what a dressing there is among all classes, and what a stir to appear gay and pleasing. It is quite sufficient for the great purpose of our existence, to the outside of the platter. Curls may be arranged, fine tortoise shell combs fixed, sparkling ear rings hung, splendid garments displayed, and yet perhaps the gay fair one's mind may be poisoned with conceit, troubled with rivalry, and kept on the torture by ignorance and vanity. Windsor soap does not wash out the stains of the heart. Cologne water cannot throw a fragrance over an impure mind, nor will all the rubies of Golconda dazzle the recording angel into forgetfulness of filling up the leaves of the book of retribution.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1842.

1842.

Lo this only have I found, that God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions.

Ecc. 7: 29.

At the annual cattle show and agricultural fair of the 'Empire' State of N. York, the following curious piece of Experiencia docet, is among the various reports:—

BREEDING ANIMALS TO ORDER.

Coming down from Albany we had the pleasure of an interview with the celebrated Col. Jacques, of the Ten Hill Farm, near Boston. He was present at the fair, and was chairman of the committee on native cattle. He is said to be the best judge of animals—animals of all kinds—from the mouse up to the horse—that there is in the country. He is the breeder of the famous Cream Pot Cows, four quarts of whose milk will make a pound of butter—and which he guarantees publicly or privately to convert into butter within a minute's time—he has done it before the members of the Massachusetts Legislature. He has some curious notions, upon which some people think him rather enthusiastic, particularly in the matter of breeding animals to order. For example, he guarantees to breed 20 cows to order, either red, white, black, speckled, ring, streaked, or striped—with horns, either long or short, straight, turned up or looped—with large bags or small, and of any color—he is now breeding a lot with yellow bags and mahogany colored teats—with wide backs upon which you may lay a bushel of corn without its rolling off, or so narrow as not to hold a single kernel. In short, he will breed you animals to order, and is a perfect L. L. D. in the matter of crossing breeds. He breeds all his Cream Pot Cows with a deep red body, white faces, yellow nose, yellow bags and mahogany colored teats. He claims to be able to transfer the properties of any one cow, whatever they may be, to any other cow—and in the matter of color, to shade animals to fancy. He goes strong for native breeds of cows; and many people think he will eventually ruin the foreign bloods as the Durham's the Hereford's, the Devonshires, &c. &c.

'Breeding cattle to order!' Well, old Jacob used to breed them to his own order, or rather to the order of the farmer of coloring the bugs and teats—such novel invention belongs to the land of 'modern nutmegs' and steady habits.—The real cream of the 19th century.

From a long, curious, laughable, and somewhat porcus-homo report of the committee on swine, we extract the closing paragraph, as a fair sample of the growth of civilization, refinement and breeding of the fundamental yankees. Read it.

'Pigs are happy people. We may talk disparagingly about living like a pig. To live like a pig is to live like a gentleman. Although it is not permitted by the order of nature that a pig should laugh, or even smile, he enjoys the next best blessing of humanity, the disposition to grow fat. How easily he goes through the world! He has no fancy stocks to buy—no bank notes to pay—no indignation meetings to attend—no log cabin assemblies to hold. He has no occasion to take the benefit of the Bankrupt Act, or to have his estate confiscated to defray the expenses of the settlement. Free from all the troubles that disturb the busy world, he is as unconcerned among the changes of earthly affairs, as was the citizen who was waked in the earliest light of morning, by being told day was breaking. 'Well,' said he, as he turned again to his repose, 'let Day break, he owes me nothing.'

When we look at the comparative condition of the human race and of the swinish multitude, we only come to the conclusion that if a man will not be a man he had better be a pig.

For the Committee.

WM. LINCOLN, Chairman.

Now, let it be understood, that we care little about the volatile, light and sportive method, of treating subjects of grave, beneficial and (properly appreciated) nation al importance. We give the extracts to show the minds of the great men of the nation—and truly the words of Solomon, are applicable: vanity of vanities, all is vanity, says the preacher. Not only agriculture, but national policy, men in high places, and even our holy religion, are lampooned, satired, and ridiculed as the combustible dandy, or night-glowing amazon, by that portion of community, which ought, by all means, to stand as light houses to the harbors of safety, sense, and sobriety.—Watchmen upon the walls of liberty, with 'Self love to urge and reason to restrain.'

For The Wasp.

Nauvoo, Dec. 3, 1842.

Ma. Editor.—

On a perusal of the 'History of the Saints,' a book of 324 pages, by Dr. J. C. Bennett, to my astonishment, I find he has published two letters, purporting to be written from this place, over my signature, implicating Joseph Smith, and leaving the impression that a regular correspondence is, or was, kept up between Dr. Bennett and myself. I desire, Mr. Editor, through the medium of your valuable paper, to disabuse the public mind upon this subject, as doubtless,—from what I can learn, and the conviction the appearance of these letters would naturally create—it is pregnant with the belief that such a correspondence actually existed. I have not written but one letter to Dr. J. C. Bennett, since his departure from Nauvoo, and that was strictly of a business character, treating upon none of the exciting topics couched in the communications which appear in his book over my signature. This letter was sent, unsealed, by Mr. Hamilton, of Carthage, where said Bennett resided at the time. I have received three different letters from him (all by the same mail) in which he desired me to write; but not having any business with him and being desirous not to interfere in the difficulties between himself and President Smith, I refused to comply with his request, and would now have intruded upon your patience were it not for the appearance of these letters. Suffice it to say, I disclaim the authorship of them, and if J. C. Bennett has received any such letters over my signature, they are BASE FORGERIES, and I hope the world will regard them as such.

The careful and critical reader will discover, from the following extract of a letter from Bennett to me, that what I have stated above, relative to my not holding a correspondence with him, is verily true.

'Boston, Sept. 12, 1842.

Col. C. L. Higbee;

Dear Friend:—

My book will follow this letter in a few days. It contains two very fine letters from you to me, two from Frank, and five from Geo. Robinson. They are all in good composition, and will place you on high grounds. You are spoken of in the work in very high terms.

Yours Respectfully and CONFIDENTIALLY,
JOHN C. BENNETT.

'It contains two very fine letters from you to me.' This, together with, 'They are all in good composition, and will place you on high grounds,' would be superfluous information if they had really been written by me. I certainly should have been as well acquainted with them, and the style of their diction, as he, if I had, in truth, been their legitimate author.

My object in this publication is not to vindicate or anathematise either party,—free from the shackles of party litigation I desire peacefully to pursue the duties of my daily avocation; while—thankful for the boon—I hope long to remain a citizen of our flourishing city.

Yours Respectfully,

C. L. HIGBEE.

BACKBITERS AND SLANDERERS.—Slander is petty murder; and that man who wantonly assails the good name of his neighbor, lacks only the opportunity, not the disposition to steal his heart's warm blood. How revolting is it, that a living man, soon to die, and stand before Christ's judgment seat, should with mock solemnity whisper in another's ear, tales concerning a third person, which he knows or has even reason to suspect to be false? Wretched mortal! If Satan's image is especially to be found on earth where should we find it but in such a one? The rattle-snake were as trusty a bosom friend as he!

He dares not put his hand in his neighbors pocket, because the bolts, and bars, and chains of a prison would reward his presumption; but he secretly sets in motion a report, which, like the rolling ball of snow, small at first gathers weight and velocity in its progress, until it is sufficient to overwhelm the guiltless sufferer upon whom it is directed.

Innocence is no protection—virtue is no safe-guard. The injured man, unconscious of the gathering shades which threaten to bedim the brightness of his heart's best jewel, meets a friend with lightsome spirit; but ah! the wonted friendly pressure replies not to tell him there is something wrong—the spirits needs no audible words—she has a keenness of apprehension which is not always dependent on sounds and phrases; and silent language is hers. Distress and anxiety come upon him, but his endeavors to discover wherein he has offended are so many convincing proofs of his guilt. "And is it true?" one of his acquaintances inquires of another who is equally a stranger to the truth of the report. "They say so," is the reply; and thus their belief in its veracity is mutually strengthened; and they separate to scatter with new zeal the seeds of defamation.

Canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific.—It is believed this work will be accomplished. Mr. Stephens who has said so much about "Central America," speaks of this great work as follows.

"But if the peace of Europe be not disturbed I am persuaded to believe that the time is not far distant when the attention of the whole civilized and merchantile world will be directed toward it, and steamboats will give the first impulse.—In less than a year English mail-boats will be steaming to Cuba, Jamaica, and the principal ports of Spanish America, touching once a month Juan and Panama. To men of leisure and fortune, jaded with rambling over the ruins of the Old World, a new country will be opened. After a journey on the Nile, a day in Petrea, and a bath in the Euphrates, English and American travellers will be lured by mosquitoes on the lake of Nicaragua, and drink Champagne and Burton Ale on the desolate shores of San Juan on the Pacific. * * * * *

A great city will grow up in the heart of the country, with streams issuing from it, fertilizing as they roll into the interior; her magnificent mountains and valleys, now weeping in desolation and waste, will smile and be glad. The commerce of the world will be changed; the barren region of Terra del Fuego be forgotten; Patagonia become a land of fable; and Cape Horn live only in the recollection of sailors and insurers.—Steamboats will go smoking along the rich coasts of Chili, Peru, Ecuador, Grenada, Guatemala, California, our own Oregon Territory, and the Russian Possessions on the borders of Behling's straits. New markets will be opened for products of agriculture and manufacturers, and the intercourse and communion of numerous bodies of the human race will assimilate and improve the character of nations. The whole world is interested in this work.

Colt's Sea-Marine Battery.—Yesterday afternoon, at four o'clock, the Battery was thronged with an immense crowd of spectators, waiting to see the result of the trial of Colt's sea-marine apparatus. Castle Garden also, was filled with spectators, and numbers put off from the shore in boats, to observe the result of the experiment. The vessel to be blown up, lay moored in the stream, about a hundred yards from Castle Garden. She was a brig of about 300 tons. Her masts were standing, as high as the top mast; but, with the exception of a few ropes to serve as stays, all her rigging was taken off. Colt, the operator, stood upon Governor's Island, from which wires extended to the powder beneath the vessel, a distance of half a mile. The signal concerted was the firing of three guns, one after the other, from the North Carolina; the two first as alarm guns, and the last as a signal.—The third gun was no sooner fired, than instantaneously almost, the electricity was communicated through the wires to the sub marine magazine, which exploded, throwing up the vessel in fragments, seen with difficulty here and there amid an immense mass of water and smoke.—The water was thrown in a column to the height of nearly 100 feet. When the agitation subsided, nothing was seen of the vessel, save in the form of pieces of boards, heavy masses of timber, and a portion of hull.

The result of the trial was highly satisfactory, and a loud shout from the multitude on shore testified their approbation. There is no doubt that this apparatus can be used with effect upon a hostile vessel blockading a harbor. The force of the explosion was prodigious—as was shown by the sudden raising of such a mass of water to such a height, and by the total dispersion of the timbers of the vessel. As a winding up to the whole, numerous boats with buoys, who seemed to be of opinion that all theory should be made subservient to practice, were engaged in securing loose timbers and towing them off, with a view to make a practice use of them.—[N. Y. Jour. of Commerce.

A case of George Lattmore, a mulatto, confined in jail at Boston as a fugitive from the justice of Virginia, has excited some interest. And writ of Habeas Corpus was served upon the jailor, who refused to deliver him up. An order, however, was passed by the Supreme Court that Lattmore should forthwith be brought before them, which was done, and the argument on the Habeas Corpus proceeded with.

In answer to the writ, a charge of robbery, and a claim upon him as a fugitive slave, were put in. This, however, it was argued by the prisoner's counsel, was not satisfactorily established—and he contended farther, that the Police Court had no jurisdiction in the case of a fugitive from justice, and therefore he ought to be released. A constitutional question was also raised.

After the consultation in the library, it was unanimously decided by the Court to restore Lattmore to the custody of the Constables Stratton, to be reconveyed to jail.

As the officers were taking him back, an unsuccessful attempt at rescue was made. The prisoner was brought up before the Police Court on Friday, and the case postponed until Monday—bail for $200 being demanded for his appearance. He will still, however, be kept in prison, until the decision of the claim of his master for him as a fugitive slave is made by the U. S. Circuit Court, to which it is now referred.—[N. Y. American.

Singular Disturbance of a School.—In the town of St. Antoine, department of Doubs, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon of July 27th, three bulls had been fighting in their pasture. One of them finding himself growing tired took to flight, and being pursued by the other two, took refuge in the village school room, at a time when the scholars were all assembled there. Mr. Lapine, the teacher, made vain efforts to drive him out; the bull pushed by his two conquerors, and knocked down the master, who thrown from the otherside of the table. A most horrible scene then commenced, the furious animals continued the contest with each other in the room where there were forty pupils, upset and broke benches and tables, and even the master's desk. The boys finally succeeded in getting into the garden, but were much trampled upon by the animals. We "guess" that hereafter these scholars will recollect the difference between "B and bull's foot!"

Report of deaths, for the week ending Friday, Nov. 18th 1842.

Lydia S. Stout, aged 10 months; black canker.

Christiana Bullock, 6 years; bloody flux.

George Hirst, 2 years; ague and fever.

Alonzo M. Duell, 2 years; dropsey in the head.

Wm. Slater, 5 years; whooping cough.

Bradley Wilson, 72 years; numbness.

Michael Dunn, 45 years; bilious fever.

Total 7.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

REPORT OF DEATHS, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 25TH ULT.

Fredrick Mowry 40 years; dropsy.

Almy Thompson 6 months; consumption.

Joseph Brown 8 years; ague and fever.

Nicholas Welch 47 years; ague and fever.

Alpheus Harmon 44 years; froze to death.

Asa Harmon 23 years; do do

Total 6.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

REPORT OF DEATHS, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 2ND INST.

Elizabeth Hill 3 years 11 months; whoopingcough.

Ann Price 64 years; ague and fever.

James Dodge 5 months; whoopingcough.

Mary Newbery 50 years; canker.

Mirona S. North 2 years 6 months; consumption.

Total 5.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multiform diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix nature.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay.

Nov. 30. 1842. no31-6w.

GRANT & WATT,

TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused. Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

BRADFORD & BROWN,

COMMISSION & FORWARDING

MERCHANTS,

Paydreas St.,

NEW ORLEANS.

Liberal advances made on Goods consigned for sale or to be reshipped to Eastern Ports or West Indies.

Forwarding done promptly and without Storing when possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans.

Geo. Starkey,

Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.

Rowan & Brown,

C. D. BRADFORD. no31 J. L. BROWN.

READY MADE COFFINS.

OF all sizes, kept constantly on hand, on Water Street near the Nauvoo Hotel; by the subscriber.

WM. D. HUNTINGTON,

City Sexton.

N. B. Also coffins made to order.

District court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. Notice is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt, to appear before the District Court of the United States, on the 1st day of February 1842, at the town of Kaskaskia in this District of Illinois, and shew cause, if any they have, why the aforesaid Elisha Tucker should not receive a final discharge from all his debts and a certificate thereof be granted to him.

Dated at Springfield this 4th day of October, A. D. 1842. no31-2w.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street.—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-ff.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at, J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland-Street. 31-ff.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Lionberger, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Lionberger, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Alanson Lyon, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Alanson Lyon, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-w4.

Never trifle with a child or speak beseechingly to it, when it is doing an improper thing, or when watching an opportunity to do so.

Always follow commands with a close and careful watch, until you see that the child does the thing commanded—allowing no evasion, nor modification, unless the child ask for it, and it is expressly granted.

cerning a third person, which he knows or has even reason to suspect to be false? Wretched mortal! If Satan's image is especially to be found on earth where should we find it but in such a one? The rattle-snake were as trusty a bosom friend as he!

He dares not put his hand in his neighbor's pocket, because the bolts, and bars, and chains of a prison would reward his presumption; but he secretly sets in motion a report, which, like the rolling ball of snow, small at first gathers weight and velocity in its progress, until it is sufficient to overwhelm the guiltless sufferer upon whom it is directed.

Innocence is no protection—virtue is no safe-guard. The injured man, unconscious of the gathering shades, which threaten to bedim the brightness of his heart's best jewel, meets a friend with lightsome spirit; but all the wonted friendly pressure replies not to tell him there is something wrong—the spirits needs no audible words—she has a keenness of apprehension which is not always dependent on sounds and phrases; and silent language is hers. Distress and anxiety come upon him, but his endeavors to discover wherein he has offended are so many convincing proofs of his guilt. "And is it true?" one of his acquaintances inquires of another who is equally a stranger to the truth of the report. "They say so," is the reply; and thus their belief in its veracity is mutually strengthened; and they separate to scatter with new zeal the seeds of defamation.

Canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific.—It is believed this work will be accomplished. Mr. Stephens who has said so much about "Central America," speaks of this great work as follows.

"But if the peace of Europe be not disturbed I am persuaded to believe that the time is not far distant when the attention of the whole civilized and merchantile world will be directed toward it, and steamboats will give the first impulse.—In less than a year English mail-boats will be steaming to Cuba, Jamaica, and the principal ports of Spanish America, touching once a month Juan and Panama. To men of leisure and fortune, jaded with rambling over the ruins of the Old World, a new country will be opened. After a journey on the Nile, a day in Petrea, and a bath in the Euphrates, English and American travellers will be bitten by mosquitoes on the lake of Nicaragua, and drink Champagne and Burton Ale on the desolate shores of San Juan on the Pacific. * * * * *

A great city will grow up in the heart of the country, with streams issuing from it, fertilizing as they roll into the interior; her magnificent mountains, and valleys, now weeping in desolation and waste, will smile and be glad. The commerce of the world will be changed; the barren region of Terra del Fuego be forgotten; Patagonia become a land of fable; and Cape Horn live only in the recollection of sailors and insurers.—Steamboats will go smoking along the rich coasts of Chili, Peru, Ecuador, Grenada, Guatemala, California, our own Oregon Territory, and the Russian Possessions on the borders of Behring's straits. New markets will be opened for products of agriculture and manufacturers, and the intercourse and communion of numerous bodies of the human race will assimilate and improve the character of nations. The whole world is interested in this work!

Colt's SUB-MARINE BATTERY.—Yesterday afternoon, at four o'clock, the Battery was thronged with an immense crowd of spectators, waiting to see the result of the trial of Colt's sub-marine apparatus. Castle Garden also, was filled with spectators, and numbers put off from the shore in boats, to observe the result of the experiment. The vessel to be blown up, lay moored in the stream, about a hundred yards from Castle Garden. She was a brig of about 300 tons. Her masts were standing, as high as the top mast; but, with the exception of a few ropes to serve as stays, all her rigging was taken off. Colt, the operator, stood upon Governor's Island, from which wires extended to the powder beneath the vessel, a distance of half a mile. The signal concerted was the firing of three guns, one after the other, from the North Carolina; the two first as alarm guns, and the last as a signal.—The third gun was no sooner fired, than instantaneously almost, the electricity was communicated through the wires to the sub marine magazine, which exploded, throwing up the vessel in fragments, seen with difficulty here and there amid an immense mass of water and smoke.—The water was thrown in a column to the height of nearly 100 feet. When the agitation subsided, nothing was seen of the vessel, save in the form of pieces of boards, heavy masses of timber, and a portion of hull.

The result of the trial was highly satisfactory, and a loud shout from the multitude on shore testified their approbation. There is no doubt that this apparatus can be used with effect upon a hostile vessel blockading a harbor. The force of the explosion was prodigious—as was shown by the sudden raising of such a mass of water to such a height, and by the total dispersion of the timbers of the vessel. As a winding up to the whole, numerous boats with buoys, who seemed to be of opinion that all theory should be made subservient to practice, were engaged in securing loose timbers and towing them off, with a view to make a practice use of them.—[N. Y. Jour. of Commerce.

A case of George Lattimore, a mulatto, confined in jail at Boston as a fugitive from the justice of Virginia, has excited some interest. And writ of Habeas Corpus was served upon the jailor, who refused to deliver him up. An order, however, was passed by the Supreme Court that Lattimore should forthwith be brought before them, which was done, and the argument on the Habeas Corpus proceeded with.

In answer to the writ, a charge of robbery, and a claim upon him as a fugitive slave, were put in. This, however, it was argued by the prisoner's counsel, was not satisfactorily established—and he contended further, that the Police Court had no jurisdiction in the case of a fugitive from justice, and therefore he ought to be released. A constitutional question was also raised.

After the consultation in the library, it was unanimously decided by the Court to restore Lattimore to the custody of the Constables Straitton, to be reconveyed to jail.

As the officers were taking him back, an unsuccessful attempt at rescue was made. The prisoner was brought up before the Police Court on Friday, and the case postponed until Monday—bail for $200 being demanded for his appearance. He will still, however, be kept in prison, until the decision of the claim of his master for him as a fugitive slave is made by the U. S. Circuit Court, to which it is now referred.—[N. Y. American.

Singular Disturbance of a School.—In the town of St. Antoine, department of Doubs, about 4 o'clock in the afternoon of July 27th, three bulls had been fighting in their pasture. One of them finding himself growing tired took to flight, and being pursued by the other two, took refuge in the village school room, at a time when the scholars were all assembled there. Mr. Lepine, the teacher, made vain efforts to drive him out; the bull pushed by his two conquerors, and knocked down the master, who thrown from the otherside of the table. A most horrible scene then commenced, the furious animals continued the contest with each other in the room where there were forty pupils, upset and broke benches and tables, and even the master's desk. The boys finally succeeded in getting into the garden, but were much trampled upon by the animals. We "guess" that hereafter these scholars will recollect the difference between "B and bull's foot!"

Report of deaths, for the week ending Friday, Nov. 18th 1842.

Lydia S. Stout, aged 10 months; black canker.

Christiana Bullock, 6 years; bloody flux.

George Hirst, 2 years; ague and fever.

Alonzo M. Duell, 2 years; dropsey in the head.

Wm. Slater, 5 years; whooping cough.

Bradley Wilson, 72 years; numbness.

Michael Dunn, 45 years; bilious fever.

Total 7.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

REPORT OF DEATHS, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 25TH ULT.

Fredrick Mowry 40 years; dropsy.

Almy Thorpson 6 months; consumption.

Joseph Brown 8 years; ague and fever.

Nicholas Welch 47 years; ague and fever.

Alpheus Harmon 44 years; froze to death.

Asa Harmon 23 years; do do

Total 6.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

REPORT OF DEATHS, FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 2ND INST.

Elizabeth Hill 3 years 11 months; whoopingcough.

Ann Price 64 years; ague and fever.

James Dodge 5 months; whoopingcough.

Mary Newbery 50 years; canker.

Mirona S. North 2 years 6 months; consumption.

Total 5.

WM. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multiform diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix nature.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay.

Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

GRANT & WATT,

TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused. Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

BRADFORD & BROWN,

COMMISSION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

Poydras St.,

NEW ORLEANS.

Liberal advances made on Goods consigned for sale or to be reshipped to Eastern Ports or West Indies.

Forwarding done promptly and without Storing when possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans.

Geo. Starkey,

Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.

Rowan & Brown,

C. D. BRADFORD. no31 J. L. BROWN.

READY MADE COFFINS.

OF all sizes, kept constantly on hand, on Water Street near the Nauvoo Hotel; by the subscriber.

WM. D. HUNTINGTON,

City Sexton.

N. B. Also coffins made to order.

District court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. Notice is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt, to appear before the District Court of the United States, on the 1st day of February 1842, at the town of Kaskaskia in this District of Illinois, and shew cause, if any they have, why the aforesaid Elisha Tucker should not receive a final discharge from all his debts and a certificate thereof be granted to him.

Dated at Springfield this 4th day of October, A. D. 1842. no31-2w.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street.—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-4f.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-4f.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Lionberger, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Lionberger, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and shew cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Alanson Lyon, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Alanson Lyon, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 14th day of November next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and shew cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 28th day of October A. D. 1842.

CALVIN A. WARREN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 29-w4.

Never trifle with a child or speak beseechingly to it, when it is doing an improper thing, or when watching an opportunity to do so.

Always follow commands with a close and careful watch, until you see that the child does the thing commanded—allowing no evasion, nor modification, unless the child ask for it, and it is expressly granted.

KNOWLEDGE.

The following is from Bentley's Miscellany for September.

Anecdotal reminiscence of an English missionary named Clarke, who went out to convert the natives of India to Christianity, but failing in his efforts returned in despair to Calcutta. We give the rest of the anecdote in the writer's own words:

One day our missionary learned, to his great joy, that a Brahmin of the very first rank had arrived in the metropolis. Determined to bring matters to an issue, Clarke wrote to him, and begged him to meet him on a certain day, when he undertook to convince him, (the Hindoo priest) of the errors of his faith. To this the Brahmin consented, and at the time appointed the heathen and the christian champion met to discuss, in the presence of several witnesses, the merits of their respective creeds. As is usual in polemical discussions, the controversy was opened by several inconsequential queries and answers. For half an hour neither party had put forth a startling proposition; the wily Indian taken care to confine himself to the defensive. Tired at length by this scene, Clarke suddenly and abruptly asked him:

"Are you forbidden to eat anything in which animal life exists?" "I am."

"Have you ever broken through this law?" "Never."

"May you not unconsciously have been led into this crime?" "Impossible."

"Will you swear to it?" "Most solemnly I do."

"Do you ever eat pomegranates?" "Daily."

"Bring me some of that fruit, then," rejoined Clarke, turning to a servant. His order was complied with; the pomegranates were brought.

"Choose one," The Brahmin did so. "Cut it in two." With this direction he complied. "Place it here," and Clarke assisted him to put it beneath a microscope. "Now look at it."

The Brahmin did so, but no sooner did he apply his eye, than he started back with affright. The fruit was perfectly alive with animalculae. The puzzled Hindoo drew out the pomegranate (which perhaps, my readers are not aware, is more closely filled with insects than any other fruit,) looked at it, examined it, replaced it, and again beheld the myriads of living creatures with which it was rife. He felt it with his hand to convince himself that there was no trick in the affair. Then suddenly drawing himself up, he slowly uttered, "Bussuch hi,"—[Enough—it is true.]

"You acknowledge, then, that you have sinned unconsciously. That every thing being filled with animalculae, invisible to the naked eye, you can neither eat nor drink without committing a crime."

The abashed Hindoo bowed. "Shall I show you how full of similar insects every drop of water is?" "No! I have seen enough."

"Do you desire further proof?" "I have a favor to ask."

"What is it? If I can I will grant it."

"Give me your microscope. I cannot buy it; give it to me."

Clarke paused for a moment, for he had that morning paid ten guineas for it; and, being a poor man, he could ill afford to part with it. But as the Indian was urgent, almost to entreaty, he at length consented, [especially as he thought the other would afford him in return some curiosity of equal value] and presented it to him.

The Brahmin took it, gave one look of triumph round the hall, and suddenly raising his arm, dashed it into a thousand atoms on the marble floor.

"What do you mean by this?" exclaimed Clarke, in undisguised astonishment.

"It means, Sir Christian, replied the Hindoo in a cold grave tone, it means that I was a happy, a good, proud man. By means of yonder instrument you have robbed me of all future happiness. You have condemned me to descend to my grave wretched and miserable."

With these words the unfortunate Brahmin quitted the hall, and soon after retired up the country.

LATE FROM TEXAS.

The invasion of Texas seems to have commenced in earnest. The Huntsville Herald has received the New Orleans Picayune of the 15th, which says that Gen. Burleson, with 1100 Texian troops, had pursued the Mexicans under Wall from San Antonio. The enemy were fortifying themselves at the river Medina; Burleson but waited for reinforcements to attack them there.

Captain Caldwell, of the Santa Fe expedition had a brush with Wall and his troops within twenty miles of San Antonio, east of the river Sewilla. The Mexicans surrounded Caldwell and his party, which numbered about 100. The brave fellows knew too much about Mexican treachery to surrender to them. They fought their way through them. They killed 100 Mexicans, and wounded a 100 more, and lost not a man themselves.

A company of 50 men from Lagrange, in attempting to reinforce Caldwell, were cut off by the Mexicans, 40 of them killed, 7 taken prisoners, and 3 escaped.

It was currently reported that Austin had been burned by the Mexicans, though it is very doubtful if such be the fact.

We are pained to learn that the noble hearted young Van Ness, who had suffered all the punishments and privations of a Mexican captivity, was made prisoner by the Mexicans at San Antonio, where he had been adjusting the affairs of a deceased brother, and was, with another man, taken out by General Wall, and shot down.

Is there not retributive justice for such acts of unmitigated cruelty.

Judicious mothers will always keep in mind that they are the first book read, and the last one laid aside in every child's library. Every look, word, tone and gesture—may even dress, makes an impression.

Remember that children are men in miniature, and though they are childish, and should be allowed to act as children, still all our dealings with them should be manly though not morose.

Be always kind and cheerful in their presence, playful, but never light, communicative, but never extravagant in statements, nor vulgar in language or gesture.

A man with money knows not the want of friends.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple, L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. Hs., R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge, L. Tullie, M. Romney, H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting beads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-ly.

ESTATE OF RALPH BIRKINHEAD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the 15th day of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at one o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Ralph Birkenhead, late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 13th day of October, 1842.

CHRISTOPHER DIXON, Administrator. no26-10s.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and Shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND, A. WASHBURN.

Three, or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. W. Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

ESTATE OF JAMES DOYLE DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given that on the first Monday of December next I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of James Doyle, late of said county, deceased, when and where all claimants are notified and requested to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 21th day of October, A. D. 1842.

DANIEL H. WELLS, Administrator. no28-6w.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many children have been cured of long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, Insult and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y1.) J. SNIDER.

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER QR.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
" Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
" Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation, 5.00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus and Newton's Principia. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th, day of October, 1842.

THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price. No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20-3m.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill., 3 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa; also 1 house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses, 1 good two horse wagon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS TERRY.

SILAS TERRY.

Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842. no24-1c.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842. no27-1c.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salisbury, Plymouth
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chaffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pagr, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam. s. Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reclless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

KNOWLEDGE.

The following is from Bentley's Miscellany for September.

Anecdotal reminiscence of an English missionary named Clarke, who went out to convert the natives of India to Christianity, but failing in his efforts returned in despair to Calcutta. We give the rest of the anecdote in the writer's own words:

One day our missionary learned, to his great joy, that a Brahmin of the very first rank had arrived in the metropolis. Determined to bring matters to an issue, Clarke wrote to him, and begged him to meet him on a certain day, when he undertook to convince him, (the Hindoo priest) of the errors of his faith. To this the Brahmin consented, and at the time appointed the heathen and the christian champion met to discuss, in the presence of several witnesses, the merits of their respective creeds. As is usual in polemical discussions, the controversy was opened by several inconsequential queries and answers. For half an hour neither party had put forth a startling proposition; the wily Indian taken care to confine himself to the defensive. Tired at length by this scene, Clarke suddenly and abruptly asked him:

"Are you forbidden to eat anything in which animal life exists?" "I am."

"Have you ever broken through this law?" "Never."

"May you not unconsciously have been led into this crime?" "Impossible."

"Will you swear to it?" "Most solemnly I do."

"Do you ever eat pomegranates?" "Daily."

"Bring me some of that fruit, then," rejoined Clarke, turning to a servant. His order was complied with; the pomegranates were brought.

"Choose one," The Brahmin did so. "Cut it in two." With this direction he complied. "Place it here," and Clarke assisted him to put it beneath a microscope. "Now look at it."

The Brahmin did so, but no sooner did he apply his eye, than he started back with affright. The fruit was perfectly alive with animalculae. The puzzled Hindoo drew out the pomegranate (which perhaps, my readers are not aware, is more closely filled with insects than any other fruit,) looked at it, examined it, replaced it, and again beheld the myriads of living creatures with which it was rife. He felt it with his hand to convince himself that there was no trick in the affair. Then suddenly drawing himself up, he slowly uttered, "Bussuck hi,"—[Enough—it is true].

"You acknowledge, then, that you have sinned unconsciously. That every thing being filled with animalculae, invisible to the naked eye, you can neither eat nor drink without committing a crime."

The abashed Hindoo bowed.

"Shall I show you how full of similar insects every drop of water is?" "No! I have seen enough."

"Do you desire further proof?" I have a favor to ask."

"What is it? If I can I will grant it."

"Give me your microscope. I cannot buy it: give it to me."

Clarke paused for a moment, for he had that morning paid ten guineas for it; and, being a poor man, he could ill afford to part with it. But as the Indian was urgent, almost to entreaty, he at length consented, [especially as he thought the other would afford him in return some curiosity of equal value] and presented it to him.

The Brahmin took it, gave one look of triumph round the hall, and suddenly raising his arm, dashed it into a thousand atoms on the marble floor.

"What do you mean by this?" exclaimed Clarke, in undisguised astonishment.

"It means, Sir Christian, replied the Hindoo in a cold grave tone, it means that I was a happy, a good, proud man. By means of yonder instrument you have robbed me of all future happiness. You have condemned me to descend to my grave wretched and miserable."

With these words the unfortunate Brahmin quitted the hall, and soon after retired up the country.

LATE FROM TEXAS.

The invasion of Texas seems to have commenced in earnest. The Huntsville Herald has received the New Orleans Picayune of the 15th, which says that Gen. Burleson, with 1100 Texian troops, had pursued the Mexicans under Wall from San Antonio. The enemy were fortifying themselves at the river Medina; Burleson but waited for reinforcements to attack them there.

Captain Caldwell, of the Santa Fe expedition had a brush with Wall and his troops within twenty miles of San Antonio, east of the river Sewilla. The Mexicans surrounded Caldwell and his party, which numbered about 100. The brave fellows knew too much about Mexican treachery to surrender to them. They fought their way through them. They killed 100 Mexicans, and wounded a 100 more, and lost not a man themselves.

A company of 50 men from Lagrange, in attempting to reinforce Caldwell, were cut off by the Mexicans, 40 of them killed, 7 taken prisoners, and 3 escaped.

It was currently reported that Austin had been burned by the Mexicans, though it is very doubtful if such be the fact.

We are pained to learn that the noble hearted young Van Ness, who had suffered all the punishments and tortures of a Mexican captivity, was taken prisoner by the Mexicans at San Antonio, where he had been adjusting the affairs of a deceased brother, and was, with another man, taken out by General Wall, and shot down.

Is there not retributive justice for such acts of unmitigated cruelty.

Judicious mothers will always keep in mind that they are the first book read, and the last one laid aside in every child's library. Every look, word, tone and gesture—may even dress, makes an impression.

Remember that children are men in miniature, and though they are childish, and should be allowed to act as children, still all our dealings with them should be manly though not morose.

Be always kind and cheerful in their presence, playful, but never light, communicative, but never extravagant in statements, nor vulgar in language or gesture.

A man with money knows not the want of friends.

WINDOW SASH.

WE, carpenters, builders, &c., of the city of Nauvoo, recommend H. Hammond's patent upper and improved lower window sash springs, as a very superior article:

W. Weeks, principal carpenter of Temple, L. Woodworth, do do Nauv. H's, R. Hadlock, J. W. Coolidge, A. Talle, M. Romney, H. Riding.

All windows should be made narrow, high and with parting leads.

For the proper ventilation of a room, it is absolutely necessary to lower the upper sash.

These springs are warranted not to loose their elasticity or break, have points for preserving the notches in the sash, directions for selecting the appropriate sizes and properly putting them into windows.

For sale, wholesale and retail, at several of the hardware stores in St. Louis, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, &c. See a window with these springs in operation at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Aug. 13, 1842. 17-ly.

ESTATE OF RALPH BIRKINHEAD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the fifth day of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at one o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Ralph Birkenhead, late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 13th day of October, 1842.

CHRISTOPHER DIXON, Administrator.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and Shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND, A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. W. Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business, to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

ESTATE OF JAMES DOYLE DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given that on the first Monday of December next I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of James Doyle, late of said county, deceased, when and where all claimants are notified and requested to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 24th day of October, A. D. 1842.

DANIEL H. WELLS, Administrator.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPFUR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22-y1.) J. SNIDER.

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER QTR.

For Reading and Writing $2,50
" Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3,00
" Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation, 5,00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7,50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus and Newton's Principia. 10,00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-5v.

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOID DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloid late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th day of October, 1842.

THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price.

No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842.

no20-3m.

TAVERN STAND.

FOR sale, in Appanooce, Hancock county, Ill., 3 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa; also 1 house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses; 1 good two horse waggon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanooce, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS TERRY.

SILAS TERRY.

Appanooce, Sept. 28, 1842. no24-1f.

FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842. no27-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salisbury, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Curtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. L. Appleby, Reelless Town.

Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiar.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 32.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, December 10, 1842.

Whole Number 32

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY

JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,At the corner of Water and Esplanade Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.
TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.RATES OF ADVERTISING,
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House.

no29-tf.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.

Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842.

no31-tf.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.

Carthage, Aug. 13, 1842. 13-3m-

MEXICAN POLITY.

Our readers may form some idea of the character of the Mexican government, by the incidental remarks on the subject in the subjoined extract from the Mobile Herald, the editor of which paper was one of the prisoners taken by the Mexicans in the Santa Fe expedition.

This is called the "age of improvement," by hundreds who scarcely give the term a thought, which to compare the relative standard of improvement as it is at present, compared with that of former periods of time. It is a common phrase, and its truthfulness is not to be questioned in these enlightened days—at least in a country where newspapers are allowed to circulate without any other restraint than of public opinion—well-directed public opinion we mean. We have been forcibly impressed with the correctness of the saying, by such observations as could be made during a march of at least twenty-five hundred miles, from one extremity of the "Republic" of Mexico to the other. We quote the word "Republic," because it is a misnomer, not only in the maps and histories of the day, but in the actual spirit of the government under which its various States and Departments are swayed. It is as complete a military despotism as exists anywhere upon the face of the earth, and republicanism nowhere finds an abiding place, from one limit of the country to the other. There is no public press—every newspaper being either under subornment to the ruling potentate, or under the supervision of his agents, and oftentimes the minions and vassals of his supremacy. There is not, as far as we could ever discover, the apology for the name of a republic, in any department of the government—least of all in the judicial proceedings of the country. Trial by jury is unknown to the courts, and we have known persons who have been immured in their prisons for years, and years, on charges for different offences, without being able to obtain even the benefit of the decision of a trial by the judiciary of the country. Compare these facts with the condition of our own happy government, and that of England, and who will not say we live in an age of improvement? Added to this, the fact that no man in Mexico can hold legal titles to property, cannot receive the rites and solemnization of marriage, unless he is duly initiated into all the vows and forms of the Catholic or Romish religion—a different species of Catholicism from that we see in this country or Ireland. But we can produce another circumstance; one that will be understood by all, and while it goes to prove that Mexico is at least a half-century behind the progression of the times, shows conclusively that we live in an age of improvement—it is a fact, that in all our journey from Santa Fe to Vera Cruz, we never saw a plough that was not entirely constructed of wood, or a spade or shovel that was not made of the same material, with the exception of a few instances of a thin strip of iron on the extreme edge of the instrument; and never an axe that did not more resemble an Indian tomahawk than the neat and well turned instrument we are accustomed to see in this country and in England. These are facts that can be well authenticated by every traveller in that country, and giving them all a basis at least for the trite and common saying that "we live in an age of improvement."

From the Cincinnati Gazette.
WESTERN INTERESTS.

The intelligent editor of the Pittsburgh Daily Gazette, in referring to our remarks on this subject has the following:

"Another matter of importance to Pittsburgh, is the improvement of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. The former, the Ohio, as the great highway between the east and the west, in view of all its interests, the most important river in the nation. The immense and rich country on its banks and tributary streams is now looking for a market up stream in place of down, seeking the eastern market by way of the Pennsylvania and Ohio Canals, and shortly we expect to have to add, by the Baltimore Rail Road. The improvement of the Ohio alone is of sufficient national importance to attract the attention of Congress; but by connecting it with the improvement of the Mississippi, the Missouri, and the lakes, the whole mighty West can be brought to thunder at the doors of the capital for her portion of the favors of government."

No place in the west will be more benefited by these improvements than Pittsburgh. Situated at the head of the Ohio river, she will always be the head of navigation for boats or rail road cars, in every direction, radiating from her as a centre. All feeling, then, for improving her, tend to her benefit, and should call forth corresponding activity on the part of her citizens. We have daily referred to this subject at present, for the purpose of introducing the following remarks from the Cincinnati Gazette:

To further this great object, the editor recommends the call of a public meeting, in order that the voice of Pittsburgh may be heard. "Would it not be well for our citizens to meet together, and appoint a committee to collect facts, and prepare a memorial to Congress on this subject. It appears to us our interests require that this step should be taken."

Another measure we would mention. Between the first and tenth of November, the opening of the Baltimore Rail Road to Cumberland will be celebrated. The cities of Wheeling and Pittsburgh are to be represented, and we understand a convention will be held for the purpose of taking some steps with regard to the improvement of the Ohio. Ought we not to be represented also? It would afford a fine opportunity to consult with our friends at the east, and to devise some concerted plan of action with regard to our common interests.

Our readers will pardon us for referring to this matter so frequently; but it is so important to Cincinnati, and the whole west, that we have not been able to refrain from urging its consideration upon them.

AN ALABAMA COURT SCENE.

"Judge the fellows are all here now; let's open the Court!" said a man in a calico suit, (shirt, pantaloons and jacket,) as the door was thrown open, and some twelve or thirteen promiscuous looking persons were marshalled into the old barn.

It was about noon-day, and all the morning had been ornamentally obscured by a soaking shower. The complainant, defendant, witnesses, and all in any way connected with the case, had travelled seven miles to find this only spot in a large region where justice was assumed to be under distribution. Into the county court-house they came well-soaked, wet, and nearly every man with the stump of a bad smelling cigar in his mouth. Two or three were very drunk, and lay right down on benches and boxes about the place, to go to sleep. One man had thought enough to kindle a fire, gathering such materials as was at hand, and around this fire the party gathered to get themselves partially dry. It was a September day, and though not very cold, a dry jacket was more comfortable than a wet one.

"Who opens the case?" said the Judge, as he turned over an empty box made to carry dry goods, and lying useless in a corner of the place.

A fellow standing before the fire, turned round and said, "Why Judge, if you mean that dry goods case, it is open already!"

Then there was a laugh, and as the Judge sat down, another man asked him if he was going to keep the prisoner's box all to himself!

The deputy constable then said "he'd be d—d if the court should 'nt be kept in order," ordering at the same time, Bill Bruce to give him a cigar.

The counsel for the plaintiff next came forward, and was commencing an eloquent address, when the Judge stopped him in a familiar way, expressing an urgent and immediate necessity for a chew of tobacco.

"Does 'nt chew, Judge," said the attorney.

"I know you do," replied the Judge.

The defendant then stepped forward and politely supplied the Judge with tobacco.

After this the trial went on, and an accompaniment of the most ludicrous incidents prevailed. One of the witnesses when wanted, was so sound asleep on a bench, that the two lawyers and the constable, with their united efforts, couldn't wake him. When at last aroused, he told the whole court to go to h—ll, and lay down to go to sleep again.

An old sow rooted the door open, and came grunting into the court surrounded by her brood of squealing pigs.

"Drive her out!" was the instantaneous decision of the Judge.

"Have mercy on the widow and fatherless!" exclaimed a hiccupping drunken fellow on a bench.

"Judge," said the counsel for the defendant, "your time I know is precious, as must be the case with so able and valued a member of society. This case is perfectly clear, and I know your learning and lucid intellect pierced through it at the first glance. For me to argue, would be not only a waste of my own time, but an insult to your penetration. Much might be said but nothing is needed. Before any other Judge I would lay down the rules of the law, but where I know they have been deeply studied and wisely understood. I look around me, and behold an humble house of logs, yet I see before me the spirit of truth, the unpurchasable distributor of law, and the old tenement rises before my mental vision proud and beautiful as a majestic temple of Justice. Judge, I have a bottle of prime old Monongahela in my pocket; for the respect I bear your character, allow me to make you a present of it."

"Verdict for the defendant!" said the Judge.—N. O. Pic.

A formidable sea-dog.—A correspondent of the Montreal Herald, writing from Washington, gives the following account of a marine monster now in process of construction at the Washington navy yard:

As an item of news I might tell you of the steam-ship of war Union, Captain Hunter, now lying at the Washington navy yard. If accounts of her be true she might be more appropriately called The Unique, for she is the only one of her kind. Her tonnage is near 1200, and she is propelled by a horizontal wheel submerged some 15 feet below the surface. This wheel is protected by a sort of false bottom, so that it may be considered altogether within the boat. Her armament is, I think, eight 68 pounders for solid or hollow shot, and her speed is to be 12 miles per hour. Her bow is exceedingly sharp and is built pigeon-breasted so as to cause an enemy's balls aller-ofleur at any but a large angle, and it is said that even in this case her powers of resistance are uncommonly great.

The particular purpose she is intended to serve is to meet broadside on, and cut an enemy's ship in two, and this, favor, it is supposed, she can effect for any marine edifice now afloat. After the concussion, she is to back her engines, and retire for another attack on a second enemy, or to allow her boats to pick up the surviving crew of her vanquished foe; and what is more astonishing than all is, that her machinery is so constructed as suddenly to shift its place, without detriment or derangement. This last precaution is obviously necessary to her effectiveness for the purpose intended. She is, in short, represented as a sort of steam marine battering ram, or Roman beaked trireme, with the modern advantages of the steam engine and Paixhan gun. Such is briefly the literal description given of this vessel; whether she will answer the expectations formed of her cannot, of course, now be told, but she will be ready for sea by the 1st December.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I—No. 32

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, December 10, 1842.

Whole Number 32

THE WASP.

IS EDITED BY

J. W. WALKER.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,

At the corner of Water and Court Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

Terms—$1.50 invariably in advance.

Singles of advertising,

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 50 cents.

GEO. BARNES, JR.,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock Co., Ill., at the Court House.

GEO. P. SMITH,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.

Nauvoo, Hancock Co., Ill., 1842.

W. H. RICHMOND,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock County, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit Court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State. Carthage, Aug. 15, 1842.

MEXICAN POLITICS.

Our readers may form some idea of the character of the Mexican government, by the incidental remarks on the subject in the subjoined extract from the Mobile Herald, the editor of which paper was one of the prisoners taken by the Mexicans in the recent expedition.

This is called the "age of improvement," by hundreds who scarcely give the term a thought, which to compare the relative standard of improvement as it is at present, compared with that of former periods of time. It is a common phrase, and its truthfulness is not to be questioned in these enlightened days—at least in a country where newspapers are allowed to circulate without any other restraint than of public opinion—well-directed public opinion we mean. We have been forcibly impressed with the correctness of the saying, by such observations as could be made during a march of at least twenty-five hundred miles, from one extremity of the "Republic" of Mexico to the other. We quote the word "Republic," because it is a misnomer, not only in the maps and histories of the day, but in the actual spirit of the government under which its various States and Departments are swayed. It is as complete a military despotism as exists anywhere upon the face of the globe, and republicanism no where finds an abiding place, from one limit of the country to the other. There is no participation—every newspaper being under subordination to the ruling power, or under the supervision of its agents, and officiating the demands and wishes of his supremacy. There is not, as far as we could ever discover, the shadow of the name of a monarch in any department of the government—least of all in the judicial proceedings of the country. Trial by jury is unknown to the courts, and we have known persons who have been immured in their prisons for years, and years, on charges and different offences, without being able to obtain even the benefit of the decision of a trial by the judiciary of the country. Compare these facts with the condition of our own happy government, and that of England, and who will say we live in an age of improvement? Added to this, the fact that no one in Mexico can hold legal titles to property, cannot receive the rites and solemnization of marriage, unless he is duly initiated into all the vows and forms of the Catholic or Romish religion—a different species of Catholicism from that we see in this country or Ireland. But we can produce another circumstance; one that will be understood by all, and while it goes to prove that Mexico is at least a half century behind the progression of the times, shows conclusively that we live in an age of improvement—it is a fact, that in all our journey from Santa Fe to Vera Cruz, we never saw a plough that was not entirely constructed of wood, or a spade or shovel that was not made of the same material, with the exception of a few instances of a thin strip of iron on the extreme edge of the instrument; and never saw one that did not more resemble an Indian tomahawk than the neat and well turned instrument we are accustomed to see in this country and in England. These are facts that can be well authenticated by every traveller in that country, and giving them all a basis at least for the true and common-saying that "we live in an age of improvement."

From the Cincinnati Gazette.
WESTERN INTERESTS.

The intelligent editor of the Pittsburgh Daily Gazette, in referring to our remarks on this subject has the following:

"Another matter of importance to Pittsburgh, is the improvement of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers. The Ohio, as the national highway between the east and the west, in view of all its interests, the most important river in the nation. The immense and rich country on its banks and tributary streams is now looking for a market up stream in place of down, seeking the eastern market by way of the Pennsylvania and Ohio Canals, and shortly we expect to have to add, by the Baltimore Rail Road. The improvement of the Ohio alone is of sufficient national importance to attract the attention of Congress; but by connecting it with the improvement of the Mississippi, the Missouri, and the lakes, the whole mighty West can be brought to the door at the doors of the capital for her portion of the favors of government."

No place in the west will be more benefited by these improvements than Pittsburgh. Situated at the head of the Ohio river, she will always be the head of navigation for boats or rail road cars, or any other mode of transportation. As a center, for the trade of the west, and as a point of departure for the trade of the east, she will be a great benefit to the country. To further the great object of improving the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, we have only to look to the fact, that the improvement of the Ohio alone is of sufficient national importance to attract the attention of Congress; but by connecting it with the improvement of the Mississippi, the Missouri, and the lakes, the whole mighty West can be brought to the door at the doors of the capital for her portion of the favors of government."

Another measure we would mention. Between the first and tenth of November, the opening of the Baltimore Rail Road to Cumberland will be celebrated. The cities of Wheeling and Pittsburgh are to be represented, and we understand a convention will be held for the purpose of taking some steps with regard to the improvement of the Ohio. Ought we not to be represented also? It would afford a fine opportunity to consult with our friends at the east, and to devise some concerted plan of action with regard to our common interests.

Our readers will pardon us for referring to this matter so frequently; but it is so important to Cincinnati, and the whole west, that we have not been able to refrain from urging its consideration upon them.

AN ALABAMA COURT SCENE.

"Judge the fellows are all here now; let's open the Court!" said a man in a calico suit, (shirt, pantaloons and jacket,) as the door was thrown open, and some twelve or thirteen persons were looking persons were marshalled into the old barn.

It was about noon-day, and all the morning had been ornamentally obscured by a soaking shower. The complainant, defendant, witnesses, and all in any way connected with the case, had travelled seven miles to find this only spot in a large region where justice was assumed to be under distribution. Into the county court-house they came all soaking wet, and nearly every man with the stump of a bad smelling cigar in his mouth. Two or three were very drunk, and lay right down on benches and boxes about the place, to go to sleep. One man had thought enough to kindle a fire, gathering such materials as was at hand, and around this the rest of the party gathered to get themselves partially dry. It was a September day, and though not very cold, a dry jacket was more comfortable than a wet one.

"Who opens the case?" said the Judge, as he turned over an empty box made to carry dry goods, and lying useless in a corner of the place.

A fellow standing before the fire, turned round and said, "Why Judge, if you mean that dry goods case, it is open already!"

Then there was a laugh, and as the Judge sat down, another man asked him if he was going to keep the prisoner's box all to himself!

The deputy constable then said "he'd be d—d if the court should not be kept in order," ordering at the same time, Bill Bruce to give him a cigar.

The counsel for the plaintiff next came forward, and was commencing an eloquent address, when the Judge stopped him in a familiar way, expressing an urgent and immediate necessity for a chew of tobacco.

"I don't chew, Judge," said the attorney.

"I know you don't," replied the Judge. The defendant then stepped forward and politely supplied the Judge with tobacco.

After this the trial went on, and an accompaniment of the most ludicrous incidents prevailed. One of the witnesses when wanted, was so sound asleep on a bench, that the two lawyers and the constable, with their united choros could not wake him. When at last aroused, he told the whole court to go to h—ll, and lay down to go to sleep again.

An old sow rooted the door open, and came grunting into the court surrounded by her brood of squealing pigs.

"Drive her out!" was the instantaneous decision of the Judge.

"Have mercy on the widow and fatherless!" examined a hiccupping drunken fellow on a bench.

"Judge," said the counsel for the defendant, "your time I know is precious, as must be the case with so able and valued a member of society. This case is perfectly clear, and I know your learning and lucid intellect pierced through it at the first glance. For me to argue, would be not only a waste of my own time, but an insult to your penetration. Much might be said but nothing is needed. Before any other Judge I would lay down the rules of the law, but where I know they have been deeply studied and wisely understood. I look around me, and behold an humble house of logs, yet I see before me the spirit of truth, the unpurchasable distributor of law, and the old tenement rises before my mental vision proud and beautiful as a majestic temple of Justice. Judge, I have a bottle of prime old Monongahela in my pocket; for the respect I bear your character, allow me to make you a present of it."

"Verdict for the defendant!" said the Judge.—N. O. Pia.

A formidable sea-dog.—A correspondent of the Montreal Herald, writing from Washington, gives the following account of a marine monster now in process of construction at the Washington navy yard:

As an item of news I might tell you of the steam-ship of war Union, Captain Hunter, now lying at the Washington navy yard. If accounts of her be true she might be more appropriately called The Unique, for she is the only one of her kind. Her tonnage is near 1200, and she is propelled by a horizontal wheel submerged some 15 feet below the surface. This wheel is protected by a sort of false bottom, so that it may be considered altogether within the boat. Her armament is, I think, eight 68 pounders for solid or hollow shot, and her speed is to be 12 miles per hour. Her bow is exceedingly sharp and is built pigeon-breasted so as to cause an enemy's balls aller-ouffeur at any but a large angle, and it is said that even in this case her powers of resistance are uncommonly great.

The particular purpose she is intended to serve is to meet broadside on, and cut an enemy's ship in two, and this favor, it is supposed, she can effect for any marine edifice now afloat. After the concussion, she is to back her engines, and retire for another attack on a second enemy, or to allow her boats to pick up the surviving crew of her vanquished foe; and what is more astonishing than all is, that her enginery is so constructed as suddenly to shift its place, without detriment or derangement. This last precaution is obviously necessary to her effectiveness for the purpose intended. She is, in short, represented as a sort of steam marine battering ram, or Roman beaked trireme, with the modern advantages of the steam engine and Paixhan gun. Such is briefly the literal description given of this vessel; whether she will answer the expectations formed of her cannot, of course, now be told, but she will be ready for sea by the 1st December.

VALEDICTORY.

I would respectfully say to the patrons of the Wasp, that having been elected a Representative for the county of Hancock, it will be impossible for me to take the supervision of the paper any longer. The public, however, will lose nothing by the change, as Mr. Taylor, who succeeds me, is fully competent for the task.

WM. SMITH.

INTRODUCTORY.

It will be seen by the above that the Wasp has changed hands, and that Mr. Wm. Smith has laid aside the arduous calling of Editor for the more responsible duties of the Legislative Hall. Revolutions and changes have thrown upon us the onerous duties of the Editorial department of this paper.

We boast not of superior intelligence; nor do we make any pretensions of a literary nature; the winds have not yet wafted our celebrity upon their genial breezes, to all nations; nor has the Goddess of Fame spread her mantle over us; we possess not the philosopher's stone, and consequently have no peculiar claims upon the public; but having taken our seat in the chair editorial, we shall use our humble endeavors to make the paper useful and interesting. JOHN TAYLOR.

N. B. All letters must be addressed to John Taylor, post paid, to receive attention.

A change of hands, and a disappointment in obtaining some materials for our establishment, made the delay of our paper unavoidable for two or three of the last weeks; but, as 'Richard is now himself again,' we hope to furnish our subscribers, regularly every Saturday evening, with our little, but, we hope, somewhat interesting sheet.

BOOKS.

'And further, by these, my son, be admonished of making many books, there is no end.'—Bible.

It is impossible to give an outline of the books that have graced or disgraced the world, since the beginning. In the days of the Judges in Israel, there was a populous place, called the City of Books; and in this printing age, and land of light, it cannot be supposed less than truth, to say that the new world is deluged with papers, pamphlets, tracts and books, good and bad, wise and foolish, and earthly and catchpenny. In fact New England has blackened paper enough to have covered the United States—in the way of book making;—and all for a little money. Mormonism has been an exhaustless fountain to intoxicate leaky brains: Book has followed book, giving a full and complete history of the Latter-Day Saints;—and yet every few months quickens and brings forth a new book, full of alarming disclosures, or curious matter, about startling enough to make—vox faucibus hæsit. A book a year, at first, was not a very heavy tax upon the purses of the purchasers of second handed stories; but as the Mormons increased, the books increased, and this year has come near its dozen, from the Missouri monster—down to the striped pig of Boston Massachusetts by J. C. Bennett. Well, all we shall say, is, that the world is determined to write us into note, and whether it be done by lies, or truth, or persecution or patronage, is all the same, so that the will of God be done.

A peck of trouble.—The St. Louis Gazette, in noticing the intended change of the Wasp to 'The Dove of the West,' measures out a peck of 'small potatoes,' and says 'the Editor should seek among the creeping things of the earth for a name for his Journal,' rather than among the fowls of the air.

Although the Gazette may creep unto Bloody Island, crawl round a negro burnt alive, and hop over Boggs's extermination of the Mormons, still his advice as to the name of our intended paper, is but a Peck of dirt, in this boasted land of liberty.—The richest diamonds are found in Toads' heads.

Esq. at the end of a man's name, now a days, has about the same signification of the quirl in a pig tail: it means good keeping, not good breeding.

Rev. before a man's name, is somewhat like a bell upon one of the cattle,—to find them by its sound, not for merit to the wearer.

Dr. is another appellation that entices more pennies, than it cures pains.

A little sin.—It is said that some people in New England, have become so pi-ous on the basis of Millerism, that they have to commit a little sin for fear of being translated before their time comes.

UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC.

The company chartered by the government of New Grenada to construct a ship canal connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans have completed their surveys, made a road over the Isthmus, and are proceeding to make the canal. An authentic account in the Cincinnati Chronicle says:

The company having completed a provisional or temporary road from the bay of Chagres on the Pacific to the town of Chagres on the Atlantic ocean, is not only freed from the necessity of requiring additional time, but the republic of New Grenada could not refuse it without violating its engagements, since the company have completed its contract before even the expiration of the time limited for the construction of any communication whatever. Besides this, it has caused the whole country through which the project canal is to pass, as well as all the rivers and water courses which must contribute to it, to be thoroughly explored.

These explorations, conducted with great talent by the engineer, Morel, have demonstrated that the Isthmus of Panama, instead of being a ridge of rocks, as many geographers have described it, is, on the contrary, a valley from four to thirteen miles in width, and scattered over with conical heights of from 20 to 60 feet elevation, which, on the east and west, rest upon low chains varying from 110 to 415 feet in height. Among these small conical heights, wind in all directions various streams and rivers, which descend from the termination of the Andes and unite in two principal channels. The one, which is the river Chagres, throws itself into the Caribbean Sea; the other, called the Rio Grande, flows towards the Pacific ocean. The dividing country between these rivers has an elevation of only 22 feet above the highest known level of the sea, or of 64 feet above low tides, the flood-tides sometimes attaining a height of 27 feet.

The excavation or cutting necessary to unite the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans by means of the river Vinto, Bernardino, and Pazfan, is only twelve miles and a half; the fall will be regulated by four double locks of 188 feet in length. The whole of the projected canal will be 49 miles in length, 136 feet in breadth at the surface of the water, and 55 feet at the bottom, 20 feet in depth, and will be navigable for vessels of from 1,000 to 1,400 tons. All the rivers which are to serve as parts in the canal have, at the lowest water, a depth varying from 8 to 15 feet; they will be swept and excavated to a depth of 20 feet, and kept at that depth by means of two guard-locks. The country through which the canal will pass presents a clayish and coaly soil, with no rock except at the mouth of the Chagres, where the formation is so slaty that it will present no obstacle.

Although the construction of the canal of the Panama will require no purchases of land and no outlay for stone, lime, or cement, all which materials are to be found on the spot, still the company has not hesitated to estimate its cost at the highest rates of constructing such works, as those, for example of the Caledonian canal of Scotland, and the Louisville canal,—the rate of 352,900 francs, or about $66,157 per mile; so that the 42 miles of canal, properly so called, will cost 11,821,800 francs, or about $2,778,615. In these estimates are included the cost of four steam tow-boats, two folding bridges of cast iron, 140 feet in length, and several smaller ones.

This junction of the two oceans, by bringing the islands of the Pacific, China, Japan, Australia, Borneo, Sumatra, &c. some 4,000 leagues nearer to us, by rendering the navigation of the ocean less dangerous, less expensive, and more expeditious, will effect a great revolution in the commerce of the whole world, a revolution of which America will experience the benefit before all other nations.

OLD LAWS OF VIRGINIA.

The following are extracted from an old collection of the laws of Virginia. They appear to have been in force as late as the year 1733, in which year the 'Collection' was published at Williamsburg. The first act in the book provides for the erection of a church or chapel of ease in every parish.

'Chapter XCI. Divulgers of false news. (Passed 1661, 1662.)

'1. Whereas, many idle and busy-headed people do forge and divulge false rumors and reports to the great disturbance of the peace of his Majesty's liege people of this colony.

'2. Be it enacted, That what person or persons soever shall forego or divulge any such false reports tending to the trouble of the country he shall be by the next justice of the peace, sent for and bound over to the next county court, where, if he produce not his author, he shall be fined two thousand pounds of tobacco; (or less, if the court think fit to lessen it;) and besides, give bonds for his behaviour, if it appear to the court that he did maliciously publish or invent it.'

The following are from the acts passed in 1668:

'Chapter III. An act against persons that refuse to have their children baptized.

Whereas, many schismatical persons, either out of averseness to the Orthodox established Religion, or out of the new fangled conceits of their own heretical invention, refuse to have their children baptized.

'Be it therefore enacted by this present General Assembly and the authority thereof, That all and every person or persons, that, in contempt of the Divine Sacrament of Baptism, shall refuse, when he or they may carry his or their child, or children to a lawful minister in that county where he or they dwell, to have them baptised, shall be amerced two thousand pounds of tobacco; half to the parish—half to the informer.

'Chapter V.—An act for the punishment of scandalous persons.

'1. Whereas, many babbling women slander and scandalize their neighbors, for which their poor husbands are often involved in chargeable and vexatious suits and cast in great damages:

'2. Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in actions of slander, occasioned by the wife, after judgment passed for the damages, the woman shall be punished by ducking; and if the slander be so enormous as to be adjudged at greater damages than five hundred pounds of tobacco, then the woman to suffer ducking for each five hundred pounds of tobacco adjudged against the husband, if he refuse to pay the tobacco.'

As an act was passed in 1705 for 'the building and maintaining of prisons, pillories, whipping posts, stocks and ducking stools in every county,' we may infer that this last quoted act was not suffered to remain a dead letter, and that occasionally the husbands of these 'babbling women,' were ungallant enough to 'refuse to pay the tobacco.'—[Southern Literary Messenger.

BEAD MANUFACTORY.—We went to see the manufactory of Beads, which Venice has been famed for 400 years! We saw sheaves of glass waving like corn, in the laps of women, who assorted the vitreous harvest according to its size. In another stage, a number of women with shears were clipping the long threads into very small bits, the elements of the beads. In the next room lay fragments of 300 colors, and patterns innumerable, filling forty or fifty baskets. A very distressing part of the operation was to be seen below, where, on approaching a long shed, open on one side of the air, and glowing with thirty fires in all its length, stood a number of poor wretches, whose daily and hourly employment it was to receive the bits of sifted glass, cut as we had seen above, and melt them into beads, by means of charcoal and sand, in the midst of these dreadful fire blasts, which they were constantly feeding, and within three feet of where they then stood, streaming at every pore, stooping to draw out the candron and pour its contents upon a tray, which they then, in this state of their own bodies, drag forth into the air. A new copper of cold materials already awaits them, which must be thrust forthwith into the furnace, and a cool superintendent is there to see that there is no remission! The turning, the feedings, the renewed sweat, cease not till night comes to put a pause to miseries which are to last for life! The workmen all die young. We never thought of beads as such an expensive luxury before. A six penny necklace may cost the life of an artisan!—[Blackwood for June.

THE NAMELESS TOMB.

There are some words written or only uttered under touching circumstances, that go direct to the heart and vibrate upon its tenderest emotions. Over and over again have we read, with the deepest interest, the following passage from the address of Robert Emmett to his Judge: 'I am going to my cold and silent grave; my lamp of life is nearly extinguished; my race is nearly run; the grave opens to receive me, and I sink into its bosom. I have put one request to ask at my departure from this world—it is the charity of its silence. Let no man write my epitaph: for as no man who knows my motives now dares vindicate them let not prejudice or ignorance asperse them. Let them and me repose in obscurity and peace, and my tomb remain unenscribed, until other men can do justice to my character. When my country takes her place among the nations of the earth, then, and not till then, let my epitaph be written. I have done.—N. O. Pic.

PERSONALITIES.—The usage of the conductors of the English press is never to refer to one another by name. It would be well if this practice were adopted in this country. So far as the public is concerned, the designation of such and such a paper is sufficiently defined. Instead of this, however, many editors speak of one another as Mr. A. or Mr. B. or Mr. C. Then come disputes, and the disputes from political become personal. Then we have accounts of the debts and credits, the wives and children &c. of the contending parties, with many other matters which cannot be, or ought not to be, of interest to any but the parties concerned. The gross and disgusting personalities in which our papers abound, would be much diminished in number if it were made a general rule not to refer to an editor by name, and to regard only his public career as of importance enough to merit a moment's attention from the public.—N. Y. Morning Post.

IDLE DAUGHTERS.—It is, says Mrs. Ellis, almost a painful spectacle in families where the mother is the drudge, to see the daughters elegantly dressed, reclining at their ease, with their reading; beguiling themselves of the lapse of hours, days and weeks, and never dreaming of their responsibilities or their duty. These individuals will often tell you, with an air of affected compassion—for who can believe it real?—that 'poor dear mamma is working herself to death.' Yet no sooner do you propose that they should assist her, than they declare she is quite in her element—in short, that she would never be happy if she had only half as much to do!

Several shocks of an earthquake were felt at Three Rivers, Sorel and adjacent parts, on Monday morning the 7th inst. about nine o'clock. They were preceded by a noise like that of an explosion, and the shocks were sufficiently strong to excite some apprehensions. Something of the kind is said to have been perceived in the neighborhood of Quebec about the same time.—[Quebec Gazette, Nov. 9th.

VALEDICTORY.

I would respectfully say to the patrons of the Wasp, that having been elected a Representative for the county of Hancock, it will be impossible for me to take the supervision of the paper any longer. The public, however, will lose nothing by the change, as Mr. Taylor, who succeeds me, is fully competent for the task.

WM. SMITH.

INTRODUCTORY.

It will be seen by the above that the Wasp has changed hands, and that Mr. Wm. Smith has laid aside the arduous calling of Editor for the more responsible duties of the Legislative Hall. Revolutions and changes have thrown upon us the onerous duties of the Editorial department of this paper.

We boast not of superior intelligence; nor do we make any pretensions of a literary nature; the winds have not yet wafted our celebrity upon their genial breezes, to all nations; nor has the Goddess of Fame spread her mantle over us; we possess not the philosopher's stone, and consequently have no peculiar claims upon the public;—but having taken our seat in the chair editorial, we shall use our humble endeavors to make the paper useful and interesting. JOHN TAYLOR.

N. B. All letters must be addressed to John Taylor, post paid, to receive attention.

A change of hands, and a disappointment in obtaining some materials for our establishment, made the delay of our paper unavoidable for two or three of the last weeks; but, as 'Richard is now himself again,' we hope to furnish our subscribers, regularly every Saturday evening, with our little, but, we hope, somewhat interesting sheet.

BOOKS.

'And further, by these, my son, be admonished of making many books, there is no end.'—Bible.

It is impossible to give an outline of the books that have graced or disgraced the world, since the beginning. In the days of the Judges in Israel, there was a populous place, called the City of Books; and in this printing age, and land of light, it cannot be supposed less than truth, to say that the new world is deluged with paper and bad, wise and wicked, sentimental and foolish, and earthly and catchpenny. In fact New England has blackened paper enough to have covered the United States—in the way of book making;—and all for a little money. Mormonism has been an exhaustless fountain to intoxicate leaky brains: Book has followed book, giving a full and complete history of the Latter-Day Saints, and yet every few months quickens and brings forth a new book, full of alarming disclosures, or curious matter about startling enough to make—vox faucibus hæsit. A book a year, at first, was not a very heavy tax upon the purses of the purchasers of second handed stories; but as the Mormons increased, the books increased, and this year has come near its dozen, from the Missouri monster—down to the striped pig of Boston Massachusetts by J. C. Bennett. Well, all we shall say, is, that the world is determined to write us into note, and whether it be done by lies, or truth, or persecution or patronage, is all the same, so that the will of God be done.

A peck of trouble.—The St. Louis Gazette, in noticing the intended change of the Wasp to 'The Dove of the West,' measures out a Peck of 'small potatoes,' and says 'the Editor should seek among the creeping things of the earth for a name for his Journal,' rather than among the fowls of the air.'

Although the Gazette may creep unto Bloody Island, crawl round a negro burnt alive, and hop over Boggs's extermination of the Mormons, still his advice as to the name of our intended paper, is but a Peck of dirt, in this boasted land of liberty.—The richest diamonds are found in Toads' heads.

Esq. at the end of a man's name, now a days, has about the same signification of the quirk in a pig tail: it means good keeping, not good breeding.

Rev. before a man's name, is somewhat like a bell upon one of the cattle,—to find them by its sound, not for merit to the wearer.

Dr. is another appellation that catches more pennies, than it cures pains.

A little sin.—It is said that some people in New England, have become so pious on the basis of Millerism, that they have to commit a little sin for fear of being translated before their time comes.

UNION OF THE ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC.

The company chartered by the government of New Grenada to construct a ship canal connecting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans have completed their surveys, made a road over the Isthmus, and are proceeding to make the canal. An authentic account in the Cincinnati Chronicle says:

The company having completed a provisional or temporary road from the bay of Charera on the Pacific to the town of Chagres on the Atlantic ocean, is not only freed from the necessity of requiring additional time, but the republic of New Grenada could not refuse it without violating its engagements, since the company have completed its contract before even the expiration of the time limited for the construction of any communication whatever. Besides this, it has caused the whole country through which the project canal is to pass, as well as all the rivers and water courses which must contribute to it, to be thoroughly explored.

These explorations, conducted with great talent by the engineer, Morel, have demonstrated that the Isthmus of Panama, instead of being a ridge of rocks, as many geographers have described it, is, on the contrary, a valley from four to thirteen miles in width, and scattered over with conical heights of from 20 to 60 feet elevation, which, on the east and west, rest upon low chains varying from 110 to 415 feet in height. Among these small conical heights, wind in all directions various streams and rivers, which descend from the termination of the Andes and unite in two principal channels. The one, which is the river Chagres, throws itself into the Caribbean Sea; the other, called the Rio Grande, flows towards the Pacific ocean. The dividing country between these rivers has an elevation of only 37 feet above the highest known level of the sea, or of 64 feet above low tides, the flood-tides sometimes attaining a height of 27 feet.

The excavation or cutting necessary to unite the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans by means of the river Vinto, Bernardino, and Fafan, is only twelve miles and a half; the fall will be regulated by four double locks of 188 feet in length. The whole of the projected canal will be 49 miles in length, 136 feet in breadth at the surface of the water, and 55 feet at the bottom, 20 feet in depth, and will be navigable for vessels of from 1,000 to 1,400 tons. All the rivers which are to serve as parts in the canal have, at the lowest water, a depth varying from 8 to 15 feet; they will be swept and excavated to a depth of 20 feet, and kept at that depth by means of two guard locks. The country through which the canal will pass presents a clayish and coaly soil, with no rock except at the mouth of the Chagres, where the formation is so slaty that it will present no obstacle.

Although the construction of the canal of the Panama will require no purchases of land and no outlay for stone, lime, or cement, all which materials are to be found on the spot, still the company has not hesitated to estimate its cost at the highest rates of constructing such works, as those, for example, of the Caledonian canal of Scotland, and the Louisville canal,—the rate of $52,900 francs, or about $66,157 per mile; so that the 42 miles of canal, properly so called, will cost 11,821,800 francs, or about $2,778,615. In these estimates are included the cost of four steam tow-boats, two folding bridges of cast iron, 140 feet in length, and several smaller ones.

This junction of the two oceans, by bringing the islands of the Pacific, China, Japan, Australia, Borneo, Sumatra, &c. some 4,000 leagues nearer to us, by rendering the navigation of the ocean less dangerous, less expensive, and more expeditious, will effect a great revolution in the commerce of the whole world, a revolution of which America will experience the benefits before all other nations.

OLD LAWS OF VIRGINIA.

The following are extracted from an old collection of the laws of Virginia. They appear to have been in force as late as the year 1733, in which year the 'Collection' was published at Williamsburg. The first act in the book provides for the erection of a church or chapel of ease in every parish.

Chapter XCI. Divulgers of false news. (Passed 1661, 1662.)

1. Whereas, many idle and busy-headed people do forge and divulge false rumors and reports to the great disturbance of the peace of his Majesty's liege people of this colony.

2. Be it enacted, That what person or persons soever shall forego or divulge any such false reports tending to the trouble of the country he shall be by the next justice of the peace, sent for and bound over to the next county court, where, if he produce not his author, he shall be fined two thousand pounds of tobacco; (or less, if the court think fit to lessen it;) and besides, give bonds for his behaviour, if it appear to the court that he did maliciously publish or invent it.

The following are from the acts passed in 1668:

Chapter III. An act against persons that refuse to have their children baptized.

Whereas, many schismatical persons, either out of averseness to the Orthodox established Religion, or out of the new fangled conceits of their own heretical invention, refuse to have their children baptized.

Be it therefore enacted by this present General Assembly and the authority thereof, That all and every person or persons, that, in contempt of the Divine Sacrament of Baptism, shall refuse, when he or they may carry his or their child, or children to a lawful minister in that county where he or they dwell, to have them baptised, shall be amerced two thousand pounds of tobacco; half to the parish—half to the informer.

Chapter V.—An act for the punishment of scandalous persons.

1. Whereas, many babbling women slander and scandalize their neighbors, for which their poor husbands are often involved in chargeable and vexatious suits and cast in great damages:

2. Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That in actions of slander, occasioned by the wife, after judgment passed for the damages, the woman shall be punished by ducking; and if the slander be so enormous as to be adjudged at greater damages than five hundred pounds of tobacco, then the woman to suffer ducking for each five hundred pounds of tobacco adjudged against the husband, if he refuse to pay the tobacco.

As an act was passed in 1705 'for the building and maintaining of prisons, pillories, whipping posts, stocks and ducking stools in every county,' we may infer that this last quoted act was not suffered to remain a dead letter, and that occasionally the husbands of these 'babbling women,' were ungallant enough to 'refuse to pay the tobacco.'—[Southern Literary Messenger.

BEAD MANUFACTORY.—We went to see the manufactory of Beads, which Venice has been famed for 400 years. We saw sheaves of glass waiting like corn, in the laps of women, who assorted the vitreous harvest according to its size. In another stage, a number of women with shears were clipping the long threads into very small bits, the elements of the beads. In the next room lay fragments of 300 colors, and patterns innumerable, filling forty or fifty baskets. A very distressing part of the operation was to be seen below, where, on approaching a long shed, open on one side of the air, and glowing with thirty fires in all its length, stood a number of poor wretches, whose daily and hourly employment it was to receive the bits of sifted glass, cut as we had seen above, and melt them into beads, by means of charcoal and sand, in the midst of these dreadful fire blasts, when they were constantly feeding, and within three feet of where they then stood, streaming at every pore, stooping to draw out the cauldron and pour its contents upon a tray, which they then, in the shade of their own bodies, drag forth into the air. A new copper of cold materials already awaits them, which must be thrust forthwith into the furnace, and a cool superintendent is there to see that there is no remission! The turning, the feeding, the renewed sweat, cease not till night comes to put a pause to miseries which are to last for life! The workmen all die young. We never thought of beads as such an expensive luxury before. A six penny necklace may cost the life of an artisan!—[Blackwood for June.

THE NAMELESS TOMB.

There are some words written or only uttered under touching circumstances, that go direct to the heart and vibrate upon its tenderest emotions. Over and over again have we read, with the deepest interest, the following passage from the address of Robert Emmett to his Judge: 'I am going to my cold and silent grave; my lamp of life is nearly extinguished; my race is nearly run; the grave opens to receive me, and I sink into its bosom. I have but one request to ask at my departure from this world—it is the clemency of its silence. Let no man write my epitaph: for as no man who knows my motives now dares vindicate them let not prejudice or ignorance asperse them. Let them and me repose in obscurity and peace, and my tomb remain unmarked, until other men can do justice to my character. When my country takes her place among the nations of the earth, then, and not till then, let my epitaph be written. I have done.—N. O. Pic.

PERSONALITIES.—The usage of the conductors of the English press is never to refer to one another by name. It would be well if this practice were adopted in this country. So far as the public is concerned, the designation of such and such a paper is sufficiently definite. Instead of this, however, many editors speak of one another as Mr. A. or Mr. B. or Mr. C. Then come disputes, and the disputes from political become personal. Then we have accounts of the jeus and creus, the wives and children &c. of the contending parties, with many other matters which cannot be, or ought not to be, of interest to any but the parties concerned. The gross and disgusting personalities in which our papers abound, would be much diminished in number if it were made a general rule not to refer to an editor by name, and to regard only his public career as of importance enough to merit a moment's attention from the public.—N. Y. Morning Post.

THE DAUGHTERS.—It is, says Mrs. Ellis, almost a painful spectacle to families where the mother is the drudge, to see the daughters elegantly dressed, reclining at their ease, with their reading, beguiling themselves of the lapse of hours, days and weeks, and never dreaming of their responsibilities or their duty. These individuals will often tell you, with an air of affected compassion—for who can believe it real?—that 'poor dear mamma is working herself to death.' Yet no sooner do you propose that they should assist her, than they declare she is quite in her element—in short, that she would never be happy if she had only half as much to do!

Several shocks of an earthquake were felt at Three Rivers, Sorel and adjacent parts, on Monday morning the 7th inst. about nine o'clock. They were preceded by a noise like that of an explosion, and the shocks were sufficiently strong to excite some apprehensions. Something of the kind is said to have been perceived in the neighborhood of Quebec about the same time.—[Quebec Gazette, Nov. 9th.

EFFECTS OF EXPANSION.

A cannon ball, when heated, cannot be made to enter an opening through which, when cold, it passes rapidly. A glass stopper sticking fast in the neck of a bottle, may be released by surrounding the neck with a cloth taken out of warm water, or by immersing the bottle in the water up to the neck. The binding ring is thus heated and expanded sooner than the stopper, and so, becomes slack or loose upon it. Pipes for conveying hot water, steam, hot air, &c., if of considerable length, must have jointings that allow a degree of shortening and lengthening, otherwise a change of temperature may destroy them. An incompetent person undertook to warm a large manufactory by steam, from one boiler. He laid a rigid main pipe along a passage, and opened lateral branches through holes into the several apartments, but, on his first admitting the steam, the expansion of the main pipe tore it away from all its branches. In an iron railing, a gate which during a cold day, may be loose, and easily shut or opened, in a warm day may stick, owing to their being greater expansion of it and of the neighboring railing, than of the earth on which they are placed. Thus, also, the centre of the arch of an iron bridge is higher in warm than in cold weather; while, on the contrary, in a suspension or chain bridge, the centre is lowered. The iron pillars now so much used to support the front walls of houses, of which the ground stories serve as shops with spacious windows, in warm weather really lift up the wall which rests upon them; and in cold weather allow it again to sink or subside in a degree considerably greater than if the wall were brick from top to bottom. The pitch of a piano forte is lowered in a warm dry, or in a warm room, owing to the expansion of the strings being greater than the wooden framework; and in cold the reverse will happen. A harp or piano, which is well tuned in a morning drawing room, cannot be perfectly in tune when the crowded evening party has heated the room. Bellwires, too slack in summer may not be of the proper length in the winter. There exists a most extraordinary exception, already mentioned, to the law of expansion by heat and contraction by cold, producing unspeakable benefits in nature—namely, in the case of water. Water contracts, according to the law, only down to the temperature of forty degrees; while, from that to thirty-two degrees, which is its freezing point, it again dilates. A very curious consequence of this peculiarity is exhibited in the wells of the glaciers of Switzerland and elsewhere, that when once a pool shallow well on the ice commences, it goes on quickly deepening itself, until it penetrates to the earth beneath. Supposing the surface of the water originally to have nearly the temperature of the melting ice, or thirty-two degrees, but to be afterwards heated by the air and sun, instead of the water being thereby dilated, or specifically higher and detained at the surface, it becomes heavier the more nearly it is heated to forty degrees, and therefore sinks down to the bottom of the pit, or well; but there, by dissolving some of the ice, and being consequently cooled, it is again rendered lighter, and rises, to be heated as before again to descend; and circulation and digging cannot cease until the water has bored its way quite through.—Arnott.

VENTILATION IN PUBLIC BUILDINGS.—A correspondent complains bitterly of the want of ventilation in our churches and lecture rooms. He finds the air close and unhealthy—causing a feeling of dullness, stupidity and sleepiness in the congregation.

We fear that there is but too much justice in his remarks, and are quite willing to endorse the sentiments contained in the following article from the Philadelphia Gazette:

"The want of ventilation in our public buildings and private dwellings in this country, is, no doubt, a faithful source of the many diseases of the lungs which prevail among us. In Europe, no architect is considered good, who has not paid great attention to this part of his art. We often, for the sake of economizing space or materials, or sometimes in order to make a better appearance, neglect this essential in the construction of buildings. A dislike to fresh air is in some sort characteristic of Americans. Perhaps this is one cause of their lean and fallow aspect. In steam-boats, coaches or rail-road cars, the traveller who has some respect for the kind of air he inhales, finds much difficulty in inducing his neighbors, if the weather be at all cold, to allow him to lower a window. The fear of catching cold overcomes all other considerations. We are disposed to think that this ever present fear, of taking colds, predisposes to them, else those people whose whole thoughts are directed to precautionary measures against them, who swathe themselves in flannels and overcoats, and tremble at a blast of air as they would at a demon, would not be so continually subject."

COLT.—On the 16th inst., two days before he was to be hanged, hundreds flocked to the New York City prison to see the miserable man, but no one was admitted but his friends or those admitted by them. He was said to be under deep concern of mind relative to a future state and the awful judgment of the world, in which the dark deeds of the heart the inmost and most hidden ones will be brought plainly to view. The late efforts to save him inspired a faint hope in his bosom which would bring severer pangs when he saw his doom approaching. At last accounts a temporary reprieve of the Governor was asked by highly respectable citizens of New York.—[Cincinnati Times.]

"My dear husband," said an amiable and witty wife to her truant lord, the morning after returning home at a late hour, somewhat the worse for an evening's dissipation. "Do you think, really, that man and wife are both one, as is sometimes said? Certainly, my dear, how shall it be otherwise?" But why ask that question? "Because," she replied, "if that be the fact, I am bound to express my regret and ask your forgiveness for being imprudent last night. Pardon me this offence, and I promise you I never will get drunk again." The rebuke was effectual.

Be Happy.—"And Hope, enchanted, smiled and waved her golden hair."

Many persons of a melancholy temperament, are prone to indulge very sombre reflections on human life. The whole expanse of nature yields no vision to their languid imagination, but that of misery. The appearances of comfort they denominate a dream; those of misfortune the reality. Our very existence is pronounced a curse our exit is a blessing. But hold! gentle reader. Grant not thy implicit assent to the correctness of thoughts like these. Give them, first some examination; then, if thou seest not their impropriety, let thy soul embrace them, and make thyself unhappy.

An Ordinance regulating the erection and removal of Slaughter Houses within the City of Nauvoo.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Nauvoo, that any establishment, house, or houses now erected, or which may hereafter be erected within the limits of the corporation of said city, for the purpose of slaughtering cattle, sheep, hogs, or other animals, said establishment, house, or houses being situated within one half mile of any dwelling house within said city, shall be considered public nuisance or nuisances, and shall be removed according to the ordinances in such case made and provided, said nuisances to be removed at the expense of the owner.

Sec. 2. If the owner of any such establishment, house, or houses, shall, on being duly warned by the Mayor or an officer appointed by him, refuse to remove such nuisance or nuisances, he shall be fined, in the sum of one hundred dollars for each house, or establishment, for every week that he continues to use such establishment, house, or houses, for the purpose of slaughter.

Sec. 3. If such nuisance is not removed within one month of the time that the person or persons received warning thereof, the Mayor shall have power to remove such nuisance at the expense of the offending party, in addition to the above named fines, and the Mayor shall draw from the city Treasury all necessary expenses incurred by such removal, which said fines and expenses shall be collected before an Alderman, or the Mayor, as in other cases of debt.

Sec. 4. This ordinance to take effect, and be in force, from and after its passage.

Passed Nov. 26, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

For the Wasp.

MARRIED.—In this city on Thursday evening Dec. 1st by President Joseph Smith, Elder Jonathan H. Holmes, to Miss Elvira A. Cowles.

The following lines were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, on the day after the nuptials,

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

Like two streams, whose onward courses
Mingling in one current blend—
Like two waves, whose gentle forces
To the ocean's bosom tend.

Like two rays that kiss each other
In the presence of the sun—
Like two drops that run together,
And forever are but one.

Now your mutual vows are plighted,
May your hearts no longer twain—
May your spirits be united
In an everlasting chain.

City of Nauvoo, Dec. 2, 1842.

Report of deaths for the week ending Friday the 9th inst.

David U. North, aged 1 year; whooping cough.

John Moon, aged 70 years; fever.

Ann Henderson, aged 8 years; canker.

Total 3.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

BRADFORD PROWSE,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.

J. H. Mathews, Warsaw.

Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Benjamin Whitaker, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Benjamin Whitaker, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 22nd day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 7th day of December A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,
Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 32-w2.

Of all sizes, kept constantly on hand, and made to order, on Water Street, near the Nauvoo Hotel, by the subscriber, W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton, Dec. 10, 1842. no31-6m.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of George D. Grant, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that George D. Grant, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 22nd day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 22nd day of December A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 31-w2.

District court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. Notice is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt, to appear before the District Court of the United States, on the 1st day of February 1842, at the town of Kaskaskia in this District of Illinois, and shew cause, if any they have, why the aforesaid Elisha Tucker should not receive a final discharge from all his debts and a certificate thereof be granted to him.

Dated at Springfield this 4th day of October, A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 32-2w.

J. Q. ADAMS AND TEMPERANCE.

The following passage occurs in a recent address of the venerable Ex-president on the subject of temperance.

"In the ardor of your zeal for moral reform, forget not the rights of personal freedom. All excess is of the nature of intemperance. Self-government is the foundation of all our political and social institutions, and it is by self-government alone that the laws of temperance can be enforced. In the effort to recover your brother from leading the primrose path of dalliance with the Circean cup, allure him by kindness, rather than repel him by reproach. Teach him still more by example than by precept. Seek not to force upon him by Legislative enactment, that virtue which he can possess by the dictates of his own conscience, and the energy of his own will. Let no tincture of party politics be mingled with the pure fountain of temperance. May the watch word of moral reform be the inscription upon your banners, and may the standard of your spiritual and anti-spiritual warfare, in concert with their congenial armies, be borne along in triumph, till the cause of temperance shall spread 'conquering and to conquer, from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth.'"

It is said that the oil dealers of Cincinnati have changed their symbol. Instead of a whale bone for a sign, they now swing out a pig's tail.

The value of the English pound sterling has been fixed by Congress at $4.84.

The cars on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad make the trip between Baltimore and Cumberland, a distance of one hundred and seventy eight miles, in about 10 hours.

EFFECTS OF EXPANSION.

A cannon ball, when heated, cannot be made to enter an opening through which, when cold, it passes rapidly. A glass stopper sticking fast in the neck of a bottle, may be released by surrounding the neck with a cloth taken out of warm water, or by immersing the bottle in the water up to the neck. The binding ring is thus heated and expanded sooner than the stopper, and so becomes slack or loose upon it. Pipes for conveying hot water, steam, hot air, &c., if of considerable length, must have jointings that allow a degree of shortening and lengthening, otherwise a change of temperature may destroy them. An incompetent person undertook to warm a large manufactory by steam, from one boiler. He laid a rigid main pipe along a passage, and opened lateral branches through holes into the several apartments, but, on his first admitting the steam, the expansion of the main pipe tore it away from all its branches. In an iron railing, a gate which during a cold day, may be loose, and easily shut or opened, in a warm day may stick, owing to their being greater expansion of it and of the neighboring railing, than of the earth on which they are placed.—Thus, also, the centre of the arch of an iron bridge is higher in warm than in cold weather; while, on the contrary, in a suspension or chain bridge, the centre is lowered. The iron pillars now so much used to support the front walls of houses, of which the ground stories serve as shops with spacious windows, in warm weather really lift up the wall which rests upon them; and in cold weather allow it again to sink or subside in a degree considerably greater than if the wall were brick from top to bottom. The pitch of a piano forte is lowered in a warm dry, or in a warm room, owing to the expansion of the strings being greater than the wooden framework; and in cold the reverse will happen. A harp or piano, which is well turned in a morning in a warm room, cannot be perfectly in tune when the crowded evening party has heated the room. Bellwires, too slack in summer may not be of the proper length in the winter. There exists a most extraordinary exception, already mentioned, to the law of expansion by heat and contraction by cold, producing unspeakable benefits in nature—namely, in the case of water. Water contracts, according to the law, only down to the temperature of forty degrees; while, from that to thirty-two degrees, which is its freezing point, it again dilates. A very curious consequence of this peculiarity is exhibited in the wells of the glaciers of Switzerland and elsewhere, that when once a pool shallow well on the ice commences, it goes on quickly deepening itself, until it penetrates to the earth beneath. Supposing the surface of the water originally to have nearly the temperature of the melting ice, or thirty-two degrees, but to be afterwards heated by the air and sun, instead of the water being thereby dilated, or specifically higher and detained at the surface, it becomes heavier the more nearly it is heated to forty degrees, and therefore sinks down to the bottom of the pit, or well; but there, by dissolving some of the ice, and being consequently cooled, it is again rendered lighter, and rises, to be heated as before again to descend; and circulation and digging cannot cease until the water has bored its way quite through.—Arnott.

VENTILATION IN PUBLIC BUILDINGS.—A correspondent complains bitterly of the want of ventilation in our churches and lecture rooms. He finds the air close and unhealthy—causing a feeling of dullness, stupidity and sleepiness in the congregation.

We fear that there is but too much justice in his remarks; and are quite willing to endorse the sentiments contained in the following article from the Philadelphia Gazette:

"The want of ventilation in our public buildings and private dwellings in this country, is, no doubt, a faithful source of the many diseases of the lungs which prevail among us. In Europe, no architect is considered good, who has not paid great attention to this part of his art. We often, for the sake of economizing space or materials, or sometimes in order to make a better appearance, neglect this essential in the construction of buildings. A dislike to fresh air is in some sort characteristic of Americans. Perhaps this is one cause of their lean and sallow aspect. In steam-boats, coaches or railroad cars, the traveller who has some respect for the kind of air he inhales, finds much difficulty in inducing his neighbors, if the weather be at all cold, to allow him to lower a window. The fear of catching cold overcomes all other considerations. We are disposed to think that this ever present fear of taking cold, predisposes to them, else those people whose whole thoughts are directed to precautionary measures against them, who swathe themselves in flannels and overcoats, and tremble at a blast of air as they would at a demon, would not be so continually subject."

COLT.—On the 16th inst., two days before he was to be hanged, hundreds flocked to the New York City prison to see the miserable man, but no one was admitted but his friends or those admitted by them. He was said to be under deep concern of mind relative to a future state and the awful judgment of the world, in which the dark deeds of the heart the inmost and most hidden ones will be brought plainly to view. The late efforts to save him inspired a faint hope in his bosom which would bring searer pangs when he saw his doom approaching. At last accounts a temporary reprieve of the Governor was asked by highly respectable citizens of New York. — [Cincinnati Times.]

"My dear husband," said an amiable and witty wife to her truant lord, the morning after returning home at a late hour, somewhat the worse for an evening's dissipation. "Do you think, really, that man and wife are both one, as is sometimes said?—Certainly, my dear, how shall it be otherwise? But why ask that question?" "Because," she replied, "if that be the fact, I am bound to express my regret and ask your forgiveness for being imprudent last night. Pardon me this offence, and I promise you I never will get drunk again." The rebuke was effectual.

Do Henry and Mrs. H. are enchanted.

smiled and waved her golden hair." Many persons of a melancholy temperament are prone to indulge very sombre reflections on human life. The whole expanse of nature yields no vision to their languid imagination, but that of misery. The appearances of comfort they denominate a dream; those of misfortune the reality. Our very existence is pronounced a curse our exit is a blessing. But hold! gentle reader. Grant not thy implicit assent to the correctness of thoughts like these. Give them, first some examination; then, if thou seest not their impropriety, let thy soul embrace them, and make thyself unhappy.

An Ordinance regulating the erection and removal of Slaughter Houses within the City of Nauvoo.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Nauvoo, that any establishment, house, or houses now erected, or which may hereafter be erected within the limits of the corporation of said city, for the purpose of slaughtering cattle, sheep, hogs, or other animals, said establishment, house, or houses being situated within one half mile of any dwelling house within said city, shall be considered public nuisance or nuisances, and shall be removed according to the ordinances in such case made and provided, said nuisances to be removed at the expense of the owner.

Sec. 2. If the owner of any such establishment, house, or houses, shall, on being duly warned by the Mayor or an officer appointed by him, refuse to remove such nuisance or nuisances, he shall be fined in the sum of one hundred dollars for each house, or establishment, for every week that he continues to use such establishment, house, or houses, for the purpose of slaughter.

Sec. 3. If such nuisance is not removed within one month of the time that the person or persons received warning thereof, the Mayor shall have power to remove such nuisance at the expense of the offending party, in addition to the above named fines, and the Mayor shall draw from the city Treasury all necessary expenses incurred by such removal, which said fines and expenses shall be collected before an Alderman, or the Mayor, as in other cases of debt.

Sec. 4. This ordinance to take effect, and be in force, from and after its passage.

Passed Nov. 26, 1842.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

For the Wasp.

MARRIED.—In this city on Thursday evening Dec. 1st by President Joseph Smith, Elder Jonathan H. Holmes, to Miss Elvira A. Cowles.

The following lines were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Holmes, on the day after the nuptials,

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

Like two streams, whose onward courses
Mingling in one current blend—
Like two waves, whose gentle forces
To the ocean's bosom tend.

Like two rays that kiss each other
In the presence of the sun—
Like two drops that run together,
And forever are but one.

Now your mutual vows are plighted,
May your hearts no longer twain—
May your spirits be united
In an everlasting chain.

City of Nauvoo, Dec. 2, 1842.

Report of deaths for the week ending Friday the 9th inst.

David U. North, aged 1 year; hooping cough.

John Moon, aged 70 years; fever.

Ann Henderson, aged 8 years; canker.

Total 3.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without delay when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,

Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.

A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,

Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.

December 10, 1842. no32—

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Benjamin Whitaker, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Benjamin Whitaker, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 22nd day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 7th day of December A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 32-w2.

READY MADE COFFINS

Of all sizes, kept constantly on hand, and made to order, on Water Street, near the Nauvoo Hotel, by the subscriber, W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton, Dec. 10, 1842. no31-6m.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of George D. Grant, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that George D. Grant, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 22nd day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 22nd day of December A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 31-w2.

District court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt, to be discharged from his debts. Notice is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt, to appear before the District Court of the United States, on the 1st day of February 1842, at the town of Kaskaskia in this District of Illinois, and shew cause, if any they have, why the aforesaid Elisha Tucker should not receive a final discharge from all his debts and a certificate thereof be granted to him.

Dated at Springfield this 4th day of October, A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 32-2w.

J. Q. ADAMS AND TEMPERANCE.

The following passage occurs in a recent address of the venerable president on the subject of temperance.

"In the ardor of your zeal for moral reform, forget not the rights of personal freedom. All excess is of the nature of intemperance. Self-government is the foundation of all our political and social institutions, and it is by self-government alone that the laws of temperance can be enforced. In the effort to recover your brother from leading the primrose path of dalliance with the Circean cup, allure him by kindness, rather than repel him by reproach. Teach him still more by example than by precept. Seek not to force upon him by Legislative enactment, that virtue which he can possess by the dictates of his own conscience, and the energy of his own will. Let no tincture of party politics be mingled with the pure fountain of temperance. May the watch word of moral reform be the inscription upon your banners, and may the standard of your spiritual and anti-spiritual warfare, in concert with their congenial armies, be borne along in triumph, till the cause of temperance shall spread 'conquering and to conquer, from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth.'"

It is said that the oil dealers of Cincinnati have changed their symbol. Instead of a whale bone for a sign, they now swing out a pig's tail.

The value of the English pound sterling has been fixed by Congress at $4.81.

The cars on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad make the trip between Baltimore and Cumberland, a distance of one hundred and seventy eight miles, in about 10 hours.

NEWS FROM CANADA.—The news from Kingston is that his Excellency Sir Charles Bagot, the Governor General, has been visited with a severe and dangerous illness. The nature of the disease is not certainly known, and serious apprehensions are entertained of his life.

Edward Gibbon Wakefield has been returned to represent the "Helots" of Beauharnois in the Provincial Assembly.

The Canada papers are filled with very interesting details of the recent earthquake at Montreal, Three rivers, the St. Maurice Forges, and other places. There was a sudden sound, a rumbling noise, an explosion like a twenty-four pounder, a violent trembling of the earth, the rocking of houses, the cracking of walls, the cries of women and children, the terror of the men, the falling of chimneys, and various other remarkable and terrific phenomena. But little damage, however, was done.

SINGULAR ACCIDENT.—On the 7th instant, when the stage of the Wheeling line stopped at the office in Bedford, Pa. it was discovered that a mare which had been tied to one of the stage horses, had one of her forelegs broken, and it was found necessary to kill her. On a subsequent examination it was ascertained that the entire foot of the other fore leg was wholly off, having separated where it united with the pastern joint. A search being made, the hoof was found at the distance of three-quarters of a mile from where the stage stopped, and that the animal had come that distance in the painful situation she was when her life was taken. The accident is supposed to have occurred at a bridge about two miles west of Bedford, but that the hoof was not thrown off until the animal came to the place where it was found.—Baltimore Patriot.

A Traitor's Reward.—The following version of a well known fact is related in the Journal and Letters of the late Samuel Conover, himself a Tory and a refugee from America:

"In the House of Commons, March 20, 1782, Lord Surrey happening to espy Arnold, the American seceding General, in the House, sent him a message to depart, threatening in case of refusal, to move for breaking up the gallery; to which the General answered that he was introduced by a member; to which Lord Surrey replied he might stay, if he would. which General Arnold complied. This is the second instance of public disrespect he has met with; the King having been forced to engage his royal word not to employ or pension him: a just reward for treachery, which is ever odious.

FROM YUCATAN.—The latest intelligence from Campeachy, via New Orleans is to the 21st of October. The Mexican advance guard, under Gen. Morales, was still at Champton, (six leagues from Campeachy,) waiting reinforcements, somewhat distressed for want of supplies and the prevalence of sickness. Bodies of troops were marching from the various parts of Yucatan to attack the Mexicans, and it was thought that the latter would be driven off unless speedily reinforced.

Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, son of Napoleon's younger brother, (Jerome, King of Westphalia,) is chairman of an Agricultural Society in Maryland.

District court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. Notice is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt, to appear before the District Court of the United States, on the 1st day of February 1842, at the town of Kaskaskia in this District of Illinois, and shew cause, if any they have, why the aforesaid Elisha Tucker should not receive a final discharge from all his debts and a certificate thereof be granted to him.

Dated at Springfield this 4th day of October, A. D. 1842. no31-2w.

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine: each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multifarious diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill, as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix naturae.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay. Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

GRANT & WATT,

TAILORS,

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused. Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

BRIDFORD & BROWN,

COMMISSION & FORWARDING

MERCHANTS,

NEW ORLEANS.

Liberal advances made on Goods consigned for sale or to be reshipped to Eastern Ports or West Indies.

Forwarding done promptly and without storing when possible.

Agents to

H. E. Moffat, New Orleans.
Geo. Starkey,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
Rowan & Brown,
C. D. BRADFORD. no31 J. L. BROWN.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-11.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street. Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of

Medicines, Paints and Oils,
Pure, Wines,
Glass, Putty,
School, Books,
Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN,
Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-11.

ESTATE OF RALPH BIRKINHEAD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the fifteenth day of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at one o'clock, P. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Ralph Birkinhead, late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay. Dated this 12th day of October, 1842.

CHRISTOPHER DIXON, Administrator. no31-11s.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKIN Wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

E. W. TOWNSEND,
A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. if. Nauvoo, Nov. 8, 1842. no29.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuance of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business, to give complete satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

ESTATE OF JAMES DOYLE DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given that on the first Monday of December next I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of James Doyle, late of said county, deceased, when and where all claimants are notified and requested to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 24th day of October, A. D. 1842. DANIEL H. WELLS, Administrator. no28-6w.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medicinal prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 100,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y1.) J. SNIDER.

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ORSON PRATT,
PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND
ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE
UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAU-
VOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TERMINATION PER QU.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy,
Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane
Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying,
and Navigation. 5.00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical
Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
And for the study of the Differential
and Integral Calculus and Newton's Principle. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no22-3w.

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th day of October, 1842. THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price. No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20-3m.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill. 3 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa: a so I house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses. I good two horse waggon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, but or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS TERRY.
SILAS TERRY.
Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842. no24-1f.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a good log house and barn and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.
Oct. 15, 1842. no27-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chittin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. L. Appleby, Reckless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erasmus Snow, Sacon.
Freeman Nicholson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.
John Johnson, Kirland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

NEWS FROM CANADA.—The news from Kingston is that his Excellency Sir Charles Bagot, the Governor General, has been visited with a severe and dangerous illness. The nature of the disease is not certainly known, and serious apprehensions are entertained of his life.

Edward Gibbon Wakefield has been returned to represent the "Helots" of Beauharnois in the Provincial Assembly.

The Canada papers are filled with very interesting details of the recent earthquake at Montreal, Three rivers, the St. Maurice Forges, and other places. There was a sudden sound, a rumbling noise, an explosion like a twenty-four pounder, a violent trembling of the earth, the rocking of houses, the cracking of walls, the cries of women and children, the terror of the men, the falling of chimneys, and various other remarkable and terrific phenomena. But little damage, however, was done.

SINGULAR ACCIDENT.—On the 7th instant, when the stage of the Wheeling line stopped at the office in Bedford, Pa. it was discovered that a mare which had been tied to one of the stage horses, had one of her forelegs broken, and it was found necessary to kill her. On a subsequent examination it was ascertained that the entire foot of the other fore leg was wholly off, having separated where it united with the pastern joint. Search being made, the hoof was found at the distance of three-quarters of a mile from where the stage stopped, and that the animal had come that distance in the painful situation she was when her life was taken. The accident is supposed to have occurred at a bridge about two miles west of Bedford, but that the hoof was not thrown off until the animal came to the place where it was found.—Baltimore Patriot.

A Traitor's Reward.—The following version of a well known fact is related in the Journal and Letters of the late Samuel Conover, himself a Tory and a refugee from America:

"In the House of Commons, March 20, 1782, Lord Surrey happening to espy Arnold, the American seceding General, in the House, sent him a message to depart, threatening in case of refusal, to move for breaking up the gallery; to which the General answered that he was introduced by a member; to which Lord Surrey replied he might stay, if he would promise never to enter it again, with which General Arnold complied. This is the second instance of public disrespect he has met with; the King having been forced to engage his royal word not to employ or pension him: a just reward for treachery, which is ever odious.

FROM YUCATAN.—The latest intelligence from Campeachy, via New Orleans is to the 21st of October. The Mexican advance guard, under Gen. Morales, was still at Champton, (six leagues from Campeachy,) waiting reinforcements, somewhat distressed for want of supplies and the prevalence of sickness. Bodies of troops were marching from the various parts of Yucatan to attack the Mexicans, and it was thought that the latter would be driven off unless speedily reinforced.

Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, son of Napoleon's younger brother, (Jerome, King of Westphalia,) is chairman of an Agricultural Society in Maryland.

District court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. Notice is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt, to appear before the District Court of the United States, on the 1st day of February 1842, at the town of Kaskaskia in this District of Illinois, and shew cause, if any they have, why the aforesaid Elisha Tucker should not receive a final discharge from all his debts and a certificate thereof be granted to him.

Dated at Springfield this 4th day of October, A. D. 1842. no31-2w.

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten years' experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine, each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multifarious diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix naturae.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay. Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

GRANT & WATT,

TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused. Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

BRADFORD & BROWN,

COMMISSION & FORWARDING MERCHANTS,

POYDRER ST.

NEW ORLEANS.

Liberal advances made on Goods consigned for sale or to be reshipped to Eastern Ports or West Indies.

Forwarding done promptly and without storing when possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans.
Geo. Starkey,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
Rowan & Brown,

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-11.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street.—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-11.

ESTATE OF RALPH BIRKINHEAD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the fifteenth day of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at one o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Ralph Birkinhead, late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate, also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay. Dated this 12th day of October, 1842.

CHRISTOPHER DIXON, Administrator. no26-11s.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND,
A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. 11f. Nauvoo, Nov. 8, 1842. no20.

DR. J. F. WELD,

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returning his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business, to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

ESTATE OF JAMES DOYLE DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given that on the first Monday of December next I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of James Doyle, late of said county, deceased, when and where all claimants are notified and requested to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 21th day of October, A. D. 1842. DANIEL H. WELLS, Administrator. no26-6w.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medicinal prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city, in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children can take them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often addicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y1.) J. SNIDER, Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ORSON PRATT,

PROFESSOR OF MATHEMATICS AND ENGLISH LITERATURE, IN THE UNIVERSITY OF THE CITY OF NAUVOO.

MOST respectfully announces to the gentlemen and ladies of this city and vicinity, that he will commence his regular course of instruction in the various branches of education, pertaining to the Department over which he has the supervision, on Monday, the 26th day of September, A. D. 1842, at a building situated a few rods north of the Temple.

TUITION PER QR.

For Reading and Writing $2.50
Geography, Grammar, and Arithmetic 3.00
Philosophy, Chemistry, Astronomy, Algebra, Geometry, Conic Sections, Plane Trigonometry, Mensuration, Surveying, and Navigation. 5.00
For Analytical Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and Analytical Geometry 7.50
And for the study of the Differential and Integral Calculus and Newton's Principia. 10.00
City of Nauvoo, Sept. 12, 1842. no23-3w.

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th day of October, 1842. THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price. No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20-3m.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill. 1 1/2 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa: a so l house and lot and blacksmith shop; which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses. I good two horse waggon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS TERRY.
SILAS TERRY.

Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842. no24-11f.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, Ill. 1 1/2 miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842. no27-11f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Har ow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam's Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Rockless Town.
Israel Ivins, Mous River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Fregman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirt and.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 33.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, December 17, 1842.

Whole Number 33

THE WASP.

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29 tf.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care. In the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.
Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842.
no31-tf.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage,
Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the
Hancock Circuit Court, and also in the Supreme
Circuit and District Courts of this State.
Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m.

GOV. FORD'S INAUGURAL AD- DRESS.

Fellow-Citizens of the Senate,

and House of Representatives:

Being about to take upon myself the high trust, confided to me by the people,
I feel it my duty to express to you, this first opportunity afforded me, my most grateful acknowledgements for their partiality; and to assure you that whatever of zeal and humble ability I may possess, shall be faithfully and honestly devoted to their service, as the only means in my power, of requiting in some degree the great honor of the public favor.

Indeed, so profound is my gratitude for the suffrages of my fellow-citizens, that I regret only my limited means and poor capacity to serve them as well and as much as I could wish. The situation of the State presents a field of labor, where every thing is required to be done, and but little to do with. Our young State, once standing so proudly amongst her sisters of the Union; growing, populating and flourishing beyond all former precedent, has, by ill advised legislation, and by a worse execution of laws, bad in themselves, been reduced in a short space of time to a condition mortifying to our love of country. It is not my design to cast censure upon the former government of the State. For perhaps, if we had been the public servants, during that time of disastrous legislation, we might have been possessed by the same phren-zy which precipitated our predecessors, and in fact nearly the whole people of this, and many other States of the Union, upon that course of policy which now appears to us so extravagant.

It may, nevertheless, be useful to inquire somewhat into the causes, which have contributed to produce our present embarrassments, not with the view to censure any one, but as a guide to future legislation. Undoubtedly our present great indebtedness is mainly attributable to the general desire of sudden and unwarrantable gain. We have not been satisfied with the slow, but sure profits of industry and lawful commerce. Speculation in every branch of business was the order of the day, and every possible means was hastily and greedily adopted to give an artificial value to property.—

In accomplishing this object, as to the manner and means, we surrendered our judgments to the dictates of a wild imagination. No scheme was so extravagant as not to appear plausible to some. The most wild calculations were made of the advantages of a system of internal improvement, of the resources of the State to meet all expenditures; and of our final ability to pay all indebtedness without taxation.

Mere possibilities appeared to be highly probable; and probabilities wore the livery of certainty itself.

These few leading causes of our present difficulties, are presented for attentive and sober consideration; so that on applying the remedy we may avoid all former delusion. Indeed, we must be thoroughly assured, that if we are to render any efficient service to our common constituents, we must take the course directly opposite, in many particulars, to that which has been hitherto pursued.
We must get back to the dictates of common sense and sober judgement. The days of phrenzied and ingenious scheming are numbered, and our future measures, whatever they may be, must be characterised by simplicity and by common sense, otherwise no manner of success can be expected.

The manner in which the accounts of the State have been kept, with reference to the internal improvement system, renders it extremely difficult to ascertain our true situation. The law heretofore has not required an account of the whole indebtedness to be kept in any public office at the seat of Government. A part of the information necessary to a knowledge of our true condition, is to be obtained only at the canal office at Lockport, to which it has not been convenient for me to have access, another portion is attainable only from the various public agents engaged in negotiating loans. I have, therefore, but little confidence, that the statement which I make will be entirely correct, though perhaps enough so for present practical purposes.

The whole amount of the State debt, excluding interest now due, may be put down at the sum of fifteen millions one hundred and eighty-seven thousand three hundred and forty-eight dollars and seventy one cents; which sum, from the best information which I can obtain, appears to be composed of the following items:

Bonds negotiated on account of the Canal,	$3,747,000 00
Scrip and certificates of indebted- ness issued to contractors by the Canal Board,	689,408 00
Bonds negotiated on account of the system of internal improvements,	5,085,444 00
Scrip issued to contractors on ac- count of internal improvement,	929,305, 53
Bonds issued to and purchased by the State Bank on account of State stock,	1,765,000 00
Bonds issued to and purchased by the Bank of Illinois on account of State stock,	900,000 00
Bonds issued on account of the State House at Springfield,	121,000 00
Due the Government of the United States, when called for, on account of surplus revenue deposited in the State Treasury, 477,919 00

A portion of this sum, by act of the General Assembly, was added to the school fund and consequently, by our present law, we are indebted to the school fund on that account in the sum of 335,592 00

Due the school, college and seminary funds for moneys borrowed by act of the General Assembly to assist, in paying the current expenses of the State, 472,492 18

Due the State Bank of Illinois for paying Auditor's warrants and interest on the same, 294,190 00

To the Bank of Illinois at Shawnee-town on settlement, 369,998 00

Upon the whole of this sum, except so much as is due to the school, college and seminary funds, and so much as is due to the United States on account of surplus revenue deposited, interest is now due from the first day of July, 1841. It has hitherto been supposed, that the profits of the State stock in the two Banks would be amply sufficient to pay interest, not only on the sum paid in bonds, amounting to two millions six hundred and sixty-five thousand dollars, but also on the further sum of three hundred and thirty-five thousand five hundred and ninety-two dollars, part of the surplus revenue, first added to the school fund and then converted into Bank stock.—
But the failure of those Banks, and their present precarious situation, renders it almost certain, that if we continue our connection with them the amount of bonds paid in will be nearly a total loss, and consequently that sum will form one of the demands upon which interest will have to be provided in future. Those Banks have not for a long time past, so far as I am informed, declared or paid any dividends in favor of the State: consequently, the interest provided by law to be paid to the several counties on the sum of $335,592, part of the surplus revenue added to the school fund, has formed a demand on the State Treasury and has been paid out of the ordinary revenues derived from taxes. I cannot believe that it was the intention of former legislatures to make this a permanent demand upon the treasury to be raised by taxation. It must undoubtedly have been supposed by our predecessors that the profits of banking would be fully sufficient to meet the appropriation. I therefore submit to the General Assembly whether the State is any longer bound to pay interest on that sum, unless it can be derived from the profits of the investment.

Many persons suppose, and I think with great probability, that an arrangement can be made with the two banks, by which the State can get back the two millions, six hundred and sixty-five thousand dollars in bonds, which have been issued to them.

As the banks have not furnished the proper departments with the information from time to time, required by law, nor published any account of the State of their business, it is at present impossible to judge whether the assets of those institutions will upon a final settlement, be more or less than the market value of our bonds. If these assets should amount to more than the market value of the bonds, so as to make it probable, that our bank stock would sell for more than our bonds, I would recommend a sale of the stock and with the avails purchase bonds to a greater amount. But I apprehend that our stock in those institutions could not be readily and advantageously sold. The State owns a majority of stock in both of the banks, and by law is entitled to only a minority of the directors. The minority in interest controls the majority. This being the case, it does not appear to me probable that this stock would be desirable to individual owners. In fact, by the fundamental error committed by our predecessors, in giving a majority of the directors to the private stockholders, the State stock has been rendered of little or no value to the State. I would accordingly recommend, if we can by any just arrangements with the Banks, get back our funds invested, without loss, that such an arrangement should be made. I feel further warranted in making this recommendation, by former experience of the disastrous attempts at State speculation, in which we always have been and always will be the losers. States and nations cannot possess the facilities and shrewdness in bargaining, which characterize the business of sagacious individuals in their own affairs, and can never attempt it without being circumvented in a thousand ways, unforeseen and unprovided for by the Legislation.

If this arrangement can be made, the remaining indebtedness will amount to $12,186,756 71, from which, if we exclude the sum of $477,919 being the surplus revenue deposited in the Treasury, and for which we are not as yet accountable, and probably never will be, we find the sum of $11,608,837 71 of principal, upon which interest ought to be paid, amounting annually to the sum of $696,530.

I am happy to have it in my power, to announce to the Legislature, and through them to the world, that there is no disposition, so far as I know, in any department of the Government, to withhold from people of this State, to avoid the payment of this debt. Although the elections in August last, were conducted with much warmth on the part of the candidates and people, not more than one or two individuals were found willing to offer their services upon the principles of repudiation; and those individuals were unsuccessful in their elections. Thus demonstrating beyond the possibility of a doubt that neither public nor individual honor and honesty are extinct, but that as strong an attachment to the principles of justice, and as sound a state of moral feeling exists here as is to be found elsewhere.

Nevertheless, the magnitude of the debt and the failure on the part of the State to pay interest, have been attended by the most injurious consequences. Our people have been rendered unhappy, and look with alarm at the prospect before them. Many of them if possible would dispose of their property at a considerable sacrifice, with a view to emigration; another considerable portion at the north, for this reason have desired to have their district of country annexed to Wisconsin Territory. Emigration to the State has almost ceased; our fellow citizens of other States, for want of proper information, have considered us as little better than a band of outlaws; individual and State credit have been destroyed, and our citizens when abroad, are made, by constant reproaches and insults, to feel the degradation of our condition.

CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.

The Astor House, N. Y., took fire on the 23rd ult., a portion of which was burnt. It was, however, soon extinguished, without much loss.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 33.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, December 17, 1842.

Whole Number 33

THE WASP.

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,
At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING,
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-tf.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842. no31-tf.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State. Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m.

GOV. FORD'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

Fellow-Citizens of the Senate

and House of Representatives:

Being about to take upon myself the high trust, confided to me by the people, duty and inclination alike prompt, I express to you, this first opportunity afforded me, my most grateful acknowledgements for their partiality; and to assure you that whatever of zeal and humble ability I may possess, shall be faithfully and honestly devoted to their service, as the only means in my power, of requiting in some degree the great honor of the public favor.

Indeed, so profound is my gratitude for the suffrages of my fellow-citizens, that I regret only my limited means and poor capacity to serve them as well and as much as I could wish. The situation of the State presents a field of labor, where every thing is required to be done, and but little to do with. Our young State, once standing so proudly amongst her sisters of the Union; growing, populating and flourishing beyond all former precedent, has, by ill advised legislation, and by a worse execution of laws, bad in themselves, been reduced in a short space of time to a condition mortifying to our love of country. It is not my design to cast censure upon the former government of the State. For perhaps, if we had been the public servants, during that time of disastrous legislation, we might have been possessed by the same phrenzy which precipitated our predecessors, and in fact nearly the whole people of this, and many other States of the Union, upon that course of policy which now appears to us so extravagant.

It may, nevertheless, be useful to inquire somewhat into the causes, which have contributed to produce our present embarrassments—not with the view to censure any one, but as a guide to future legislation. Undoubtedly our present great indebtedness is mainly attributable to the general desire of sudden and unwarrantable gain. We have not been satisfied with the slow, but sure profits of industry and lawful commerce. Speculation in every branch of business was the order of the day, and every possible means was hastily and greedily adopted to give an artificial value to property. In accomplishing this object, as to the manner and means, we surrendered our judgments to the dictates of a wild imagination. No scheme was so extravagant as not to appear plausible to some. The most wild calculations were made of the advantages of a system of internal improvement, of the resources of the State to meet all expenditures; and of our final ability to pay all indebtedness without taxation.

Mere possibilities appeared to be highly probable; and probabilities wore the livery of certainty itself.

These few leading causes of our present difficulties, are presented for attentive and sober consideration; so that on applying the remedy we may avoid all former delusion. Indeed, we must be thoroughly assured, that if we are to render any efficient service to our common constituents, we must take the course directly opposite, in many particulars, to that which has been hitherto pursued. We must get back to the dictates of common sense and sober judgement. The days of phrenzy and ingenious scheming are numbered, and our future measures, whatever they may be, must be characterized by simplicity and by common sense, otherwise no manner of success can be expected.

The manner in which the accounts of the State have been kept, with reference to the internal improvement system, renders it extremely difficult to ascertain our true situation. The law heretofore has not required an account of the whole indebtedness to be kept in any public office at the seat of Government. A part of the information necessary to a knowledge of our true condition, is to be obtained only at the canal office at Lockport, to which it has not been convenient for me to have access, another portion is attainable only from the various public agents engaged in negotiating loans. I have, therefore, but little confidence, that the statement which I make will be entirely correct, though perhaps enough so for present practical purposes.

The whole amount of the State debt, excluding interest now due, may be put down at the sum of fifteen millions one hundred and eighty-seven thousand three hundred and forty-eight dollars and seventy one cents; which sum, from the best information which I can obtain, appears to be composed of the following items:

Bonds negotiated on account of the Canal,	$3,747,000 00
Scrip and certificates of indebtedness issued to contractors by the Canal Board,	689,408 00
Bonds negotiated on account of the system of internal improvements,	5,085,444 00
Scrip issued to contractors on account of internal improvement,	929,305, 53
Bonds issued to and purchased by the State Bank on account of State stock,	1,765,000 00
Bonds issued to and purchased by the Bank of Illinois on account of State stock,	900,000 00
Bonds issued on account of the State House at Springfield,	121,000 00
Due the Government of the United States, when called for on account of surplus revenue deposited in the State Treasury, 477,919 00

A portion of this sum, by act of the General Assembly, was added to the school fund and consequently, by our present law, we are indebted to the school fund on that account in the sum of 335,592 00

Due the school, college and seminary funds for moneys borrowed by act of the General Assembly to assist, in paying the current expenses of the State, 472,492 18

Due the State Bank of Illinois for paying Auditor's warrants and interest on the same, 294,190 00

To the Bank of Illinois at Shawneetown on settlement, 369,098 00

Upon the whole of this sum, except so much as is due to the school, college and seminary funds, and so much as is due to the United States on account of surplus revenue deposited, interest is now due from the first day of July, 1841. It has hitherto been supposed, that the profits of the State stock in the two Banks would be amply sufficient to pay interest, not only on the sum paid in bonds, amounting to two millions six hundred and sixty-five thousand dollars, but also on the further sum of three hundred and thirty-five thousand five hundred and ninety-two dollars, part of the surplus revenue, first added to the school fund and then converted into Bank stock. But the failure of those Banks, and their present precarious situation, renders it almost certain, that if we continue our connection with them the amount of bonds paid in will be nearly a total loss, and consequently that sum will form one of the demands upon which interest will have to be provided in future. Those Banks have not for a long time past, so far as I am informed, declared or paid any dividends in favor of the State; consequently, the interest provided by law to be paid to the several counties on the sum of $335,592, part of the surplus revenue added to the school fund, has formed a demand on the State Treasury and has been paid out of the ordinary revenues derived from taxes. I cannot believe that it was the intention of former legislatures to make this a permanent demand upon the treasury to be raised by taxation. It must undoubtedly have been supposed by our predecessors that the profits of banking would be fully sufficient to meet the appropriation. I therefore submit to the General Assembly whether the State is any longer bound to pay interest on that sum, unless it can be derived from the profits of the investment.

Many persons suppose, and I think with great probability, that an arrangement can be made with the two banks, by which the State can get back the two millions, six hundred and sixty-five thousand dollars in bonds, which have been issued to them.

As the banks have not furnished the proper departments with the information from time to time, required by law, nor published any account of the State of their business, it is at present impossible to judge whether the assets of those institutions will upon a final settlement, be more or less than the market value of our bonds. If these assets should amount to more than the market value of the bonds, so as to make it probable, that our bank stock would sell for more than our bonds, I would recommend a sale of the stock and with the avails purchase bonds to a greater amount. But I apprehend that our stock in those institutions could not be readily and advantageously sold. The State owns a majority of stock in both of the banks, and by law is entitled to only a minority of the directors. The minority in interest controls the majority. This being the case, it does not appear to me probable that this stock would be desirable to individual owners. In fact, by the fundamental error committed by our predecessors, in giving a majority of the directors to the private stockholders, the State stock has been rendered of little or no value to the State. I would accordingly recommend, if we can by any just arrangements with the Banks, get back our funds invested, without loss, that such an arrangement should be made. I feel further warranted in making this recommendation, by former experience of the disastrous attempts at State speculation, in which we always have been and always will be the losers. States and nations cannot possess the facilities and shrewdness in bargaining, which characterize the business of sagacious individuals in their own affairs, and can never attempt it without being circumvented in a thousand ways, unforeseen and unprovided for by the Legislature.

If this arrangement can be made, the remaining indebtedness will amount to $12,186,756 71, from which, if we exclude the sum of $477,919 being the surplus revenue deposited in the Treasury, and for which we are not as yet accountable, and probably never will be, we find the sum of $11,608,837 71 of principal, upon which interest ought to be paid, amounting annually to the sum of $696,530.

I am happy to have it in my power, to announce to the Legislature, and through them to the world, that there is no disposition, so far as I know, in any department of the Government, or with the people of this State, to avoid the payment of this debt. Although the elections in August last, were conducted with much warmth on the part of the candidates and people, not more than one or two individuals were found willing to offer their services upon the principles of repudiation; and those individuals were unsuccessful in their elections. Thus demonstrating beyond the possibility of a doubt, that neither public nor individual honor and honesty are extinct, but that as strong an attachment to the principles of justice, and as sound a state of moral feeling exists here as is to be found elsewhere.

Nevertheless, the magnitude of the debt and the failure on the part of the State to pay interest, have been attended by the most injurious consequences. Our people have been rendered unhappy, and look with alarm at the prospect before them. Many of them if possible would dispose of their property at a considerable sacrifice, with a view to emigration; another considerable portion at the north, for this reason have desired to have their district of country annexed to Wisconsin Territory. Emigration to the State has almost ceased; our fellow citizens of other States, for want of proper information, have considered us as little better than a band of outlaws; individual and State credit have been destroyed, and our citizens when abroad, are made, by constant reproaches and insults, to feel the degradation of our condition.

CONCLUDED NEXT WEEK.

The Astor House, N. Y., took fire on the 23rd ult., a portion of which was burnt. It was, however, soon extinguished, without much loss.

Remarks on Inflammation, next week.

We have not room to insert the whole of the Governor's Inaugural Address this week; the remainder may be looked for in our next.

Elder Orson Hyde, has just returned from his mission to Jerusalem; he has performed this most arduous undertaking with great credit to himself, as a minister of the Lord Jesus Christ; he has, during his travels, published a very interesting book, on the organization, faith, principles, and doctrines of the Latter Day Saints. He has become proficient in the German tongue, and has translated and published his book in that language. He sailed from Liverpool (England) in company with a number of saints destined to this place, who, however, were detained in St. Louis in consequence of the river's being frozen up.

We have lately received a letter from Liverpool, dated Oct. 26, 1842, which states that four vessels sailed on the following dates, and with the following numbers:

Sidney sailed Sept. 17, numb. pas. 180.
Medford " " 25, " " 214
Henry " " 28, " " 157
Emerald " Oct. 25, " " 250

Our correspondent says, 'In the last vessel which left the river yesterday, are Elder P. P. Pratt and family.'

The passengers that came with one of those vessels are stuck fast about forty miles below St. Louis, or were when the following communication was penned. We hope they are now liberated.

More River Distress.—The following communication was handed to us yesterday. We readily give it a place, but we confess our inability to devise a remedy for the distress. It strikes us that the most speedy and proper course of remedy would be for the owners of the Alex. Scott to despatch a light draught boat down to bring up the passengers. We do not pretend to know what may be the contract subsisting between the passengers and the Scott, but be it what it may, humanity, if not the interest of the owners, requires that this course should be taken. We have seen several of the passengers on the Scott, who have come up by land;—it is true they speak in severe terms of their treatment, but then they probably took only to their own side of the case. We know the officers, and believe they are incapable of a wilful wrong. On the other hand, it should be remembered that these persons on the Scott contracted to be delivered in St. Louis. They are strangers in the land, and many of them have not the means nor the physical ability to reach St. Louis by land;—this is especially the case of men with families and children, and to leave their families would be useless, if not worse. The Scott has been reported as unable to get up several days ago, and we have been somewhat surprised that no effort has as yet been made to get up her passengers. We believe that since she was reported, a boat has been sent to the relief of another, and returned. We agree with the writer of the following, that something should be done for the relief of those on board; and if a boat is not sent to their relief, the citizens should take it into hands.

To the Editor of the Republican:

'Sir—I consider it my duty to acquaint the inhabitants of St. Louis, through the medium of your valuable Journal, with the state of the passengers on board the Alexander Scott, as I embarked with them from New Orleans, and after laying aground, in all, six days, and being obliged to spend one night in the woods, I left them, on Friday last, without any hopes of deliverance till the water may rise. There were on board upwards of two hundred souls, principally women and children, mainly from England and Scotland, and, at the time I left, between forty and fifty destitute of food and means, and many more will soon be in the same circumstances, and about five miles from any place where they can obtain provisions (Chester.) I mention this matter in hopes that some means may suggest themselves to you, for relieving the wants of our suffering fellow creatures.'

I am, sir, your obedient servant,
JOHN GREENHOW.
December 1, 1842.

The very able and learned article on 'Habeas Corpus,' written by Justin Butterfield, United States Attorney, for the District of Illinois, is worthy of attention. He shows, in a very learned manner, what our right and privileges are, pertaining to that subject, and fully sustains the proceedings and views of the City Council, and the Municipal Court; it is sustained by the usages of all enlightened Courts, and accords with the opinion of every intelligent man,—the opinions of Ex-Governor Boggs, Gov. Reynolds, of Mo., and Gov. Carlin, to the contrary notwithstanding.

LETTER TO SIDNEY RIGDON, ESQ.

Chicago, Oct. 20th 1842.

SIDNEY RIGDON, Esq.:—
Dear Sir: In answer to your favours of the 17th inst. Mr. Warren was correct in the information he gave you of my opinion of the illegality of the requisition made by the Governor of Missouri, upon the Governor of this State, for the surrender of Joseph Smith, and that the Governor of this State should cause him to be arrested, for the purpose of being surrendered; I had no doubt, but the Supreme Court of this State would discharge him upon Habeas Corpus,—subsequent examination has confirmed me in that opinion. I understand from your letter, and from the statement of facts made to me by Mr. Warren, that the requisition of the Governor of Missouri, is accompanied by an affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs, stating in substance, that on the 6th day of May last he was shot while sitting in his house, with intent to kill, and as he verily believes, the act was committed by O. P. Rockwell, and that Joseph Smith was accessory to the crime before its commission, and that he has fled from justice; that it can be proved that Joseph Smith was not in the State of Missouri at the time the crime was committed; but was in this State; that it is untrue that he was in the State of Missouri at the time of the commission of the said crime, or has been there at any time since; he could not, therefore, have fled from that State since the commission of the said crime.

The right on the part of the Governor of Missouri to demand Smith, and the duty on the part of the Governor of this State to deliver him up, if they exist, are given and imposed by that clause of the Constitution of the United States, which declares that a person charged in any State with Treason, Felony, or other crime who shall flee from justice and be found in another State; shall on demand of the Executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.

It is unnecessary to refer to the act of Congress in relation to the delivery up of fugitives from justice, as Congress has just so much power and no more than is expressly given by the said clause in the Constitution—the Constitution is the best exponent of itself,—what persons then can be surrendered up by the Governor of one State to the Governor of another? First, He must be a person charged with Treason, Felony, or other crime; it is sufficient if he be charged with the commission of crime, either by indictment found or by affidavit. Second, 'He must be a person who shall flee from justice and be found in another State.' It is not sufficient to satisfy this branch of the Constitution, that he should be 'charged' with having fled from justice, unless he has actually fled from the State where the offence was committed to another State, the Governor of this State has no jurisdiction over his person and cannot deliver him up. When Mr. Smith is brought up on a Habeas Corpus, he will have a right, under the 3rd Sec. of our Habeas Corpus Act, to introduce testimony and shew that the 'process upon which he is arrested was obtained by false pretence,' that it is untrue, that he fled from the State of Missouri, to evade being brought to justice there, for the crime of which he is charged, he will have the right to place himself upon the position of the Constitution of the United States, and say I am a citizen of the State of Illinois; I have not fled from the State of Missouri or from the 'justice' of that State, on account of the commission of the crime with which I am charged. I am ready to prove that the charge of having fled from that State is false, and I am not, therefore, subject under the Constitution of the United States to be delivered up to that State for trial.

You say in your letter to me that you doubt whether on a Habeas Corpus the Court would have a right to try the question whether Smith was in Missouri at the time of the commission of the crime of which he is charged. To this I answer, that upon a Habeas Corpus the Court would be bound to try the question whether Smith fled from justice from Missouri to this State; the affidavit of Mr. Boggs is not conclusive on this point—it may be rebutted—unless Smith is a person who has fled from justice he is not subject to be delivered up,—under the express provisions of our own Habeas Corpus Act, he has a right to shew that the affidavit is false and that the order for his arrest was obtained by false pretences. Again, the affidavit on its face was not sufficient to authorise the arrest of Smith, it is evasive and deceptive—it does not shew that he fled from the State of Missouri to evade justice for the commission of the crime of which he is charged by Gov. Boggs.

Robert G. Williams, in the year 1835, was indicted in the State of Alabama for attempting to incite rebellion and insurrection in that State; he was demanded by the Gov. of that State, of the Gov. of New York, and the requisition stated that he had fled from justice—the Governor of the State of New York (Marcy) took notice that the said Williams was a citizen of the State of New York, and had not fled from justice from Alabama, and on that ground alone refused to surrender him up. This was a stronger case than that of Smith's, as an indictment HAD BEEN FOUND. Gov. Marcy puts his refusal upon the express ground that by the Constitution of the United States the Governor of one State had no right to demand, nor the Governor of another State a right to surrender up one of his citizens unless he had fled from justice; and it was the right and the duty of the Governor upon whom the demand was made to inquire into the fact whether he had fled from justice before he made the surrender. I have the book containing all the proceedings in this case of Williams: there are several other cases equally in point, and they all proceed upon the ground that the Governor of a State has no jurisdiction over the body of a citizen to arrest and surrender him up to a foreign State unless he is a fugitive from that State, unless he has fled from that State to evade justice, or in other words to evade being tried for the offence with which he is charged. In a despotic form of Government the sovereign power is the will of the Monarch who can act in every instance, as may suit his pleasure; but can the Governor of one of our States, of his own mere will, without any authority from the Constitution or the Legislative power of the State, arrest and deliver up to a foreign Government any person whatever? If he can do this, then is the liberty of the citizen wholly at his disposal.

The writ of Habeas Corpus is a suit which every person imprisoned or unlawfully detained has a right to prosecute for the recovery of his liberty, and if he is in custody by process from a competent power he is entitled to his discharge when the jurisdiction has been exceeded.

The Governor of this State has no power or jurisdiction over the person of a citizen of this State to arrest and cause him to be delivered up and transported to another State, except the power expressly given to him by the Constitution of the United States, and what is that power? It only authorises the Governor of one State to surrender up a fugitive from justice to return him back to the State from whence he has fled. First, The person to be surrendered up must be a fugitive from the State to which it is attempted to surrender him. Second, He must be a fugitive from justice; in other words he must have been in the State when and where the crime was committed and have fled from that State to evade being apprehended and tried for that crime. Third, Unless he is in fact such a fugitive from justice, the Governor has no power, by the laws or Constitution, to deliver him up. Fourth, If he is charged with being a fugitive from justice and the Governor cause him to be apprehended on that charge; he has a right to sue out a Habeas Corpus and when brought up on that writ he has the undoubted right of showing that the Governor has no Constitutional power to deliver him up to another State; that he has not 'fled from justice into this State,' and is not such a person as the Constitution authorises the Governor to deliver up, and that it would be an excess of jurisdiction on the part of the Governor to deliver him up. The question to be examined into upon the return of the Habeas Corpus would be a mere question of locality, the question would be, was Smith in this State or not at the time the crime was committed in Missouri? If he was in this State at that time, then he could not be a fugitive from justice, from Missouri, in the sense of the Constitution, and the Governor would have no power to deliver him up.

The argument that because Gov. Boggs has made affidavit that Smith has fled from justice, his affidavit is to be taken as conclusive on that point, and that upon the return of a Habeas Corpus, Smith would be precluded from controverting or showing the falsity of that affidavit, is too absurd to require a serious answer.

The liberties of the citizens of this State are not held on quite so feeble a tenure, nor does the Constitution authorise the Governor to transport the citizens of this State upon a mere 'charge' made by a citizen of another State; such is not the reading of the Constitution; that 'instrument only authorises the delivery up of such persons 'who shall flee,' upon the demand of the Executive authority of the State from which they 'fled'—there must have been a 'flight' in fact and indeed from the State where the offence was committed or the Governor has no jurisdiction to 'deliver up.' If the charge of having 'fled' is made, and the Governor acting in pais is attempting to deliver up upon that charge, the person attempted to be made the victim has a clear undoubted constitutional right, by means of a writ of Habeas Corpus, to test its truth before a judicial tribunal of the country, and if the charge is proven to be false, the Governor is ousted of his jurisdiction over the person of the prisoner, and he is restored to his liberty before he has undergone the penalty of the transportation to a foreign country, upon the mere charge of an interested or partial witness.

The power of the Executive of a State to surrender up a citizen to be transported to a foreign State for trial, is a most tremendous power which might be greatly abused, were it not limited by Constitutional checks, and the citizen secured against its despotic exercise by the writ of Habeas Corpus. In the case of Williams, the Governor of New York, in his reply to the Governor of Alabama, says, 'What occurs daily in the ordinary course of criminal proceedings, may take place in regard to persons transported to a distant jurisdiction for trial. It may happen that an innocent man will be accused, and, if demanded, he must be delivered up, should your exposition of the Constitution be sanctioned. Under these circumstances his condition would be perilous indeed; drugged from his home, far removed from friends; borne down by the weight of imputed guilt, and unable, probably to obtain the evidence by which he might vindicate his innocence; if appearances were against him he could scarcely hope to escape unmerited condemnation.'

The American Colonists regarded the exercise of this power, as an act of revolting tyranny, and assigned it in the declaration of Independence, as one of the prominent causes that impelled them to a separation from the British Empire. A power which may be thus oppressively used should be resorted to with the greatest caution. When its exercise is invoked it is not sufficient that the case may apparently come within the letter of the Constitution; it is the duty of the Executive, before yielding a blind obedience to the letter of the law, to see that the case comes within the spirit and meaning of the Constitution. It may be pleasing as well as instructive to look into the proceedings of the Executive of our sister State, and witness, that by faithfully administering the law in relation to the delivery up of fugitives from justice, according to its spirit and meaning they have saved at least two of the citizens of Illinois from becoming victims to its abuse. In the year 1839 the Governor of the State of New York was presented with the copy of an indictment by a grand jury in the city of New York against John & Nathan Aldrich, for fraud in obtaining goods by false pretences, and was requested to make a requisition upon the Governor of Illinois, to surrender them up as fugitives from justice. Now here was a case which came exactly within the letter of the Law of Congress, in relation to fugitives from justice. An indictment had been found charging them with having committed a crime. But did the Governor of New York make the 'requisition?' No; he referred the application to the Hon. John C. Spencer, now Secretary of War, and one of the most enlightened lawyers of the age.

The following is an extract of Mr. Spencer's opinion upon the case:

'The Constitutional provision under which requisitions may be made by the Governor of one State upon the Governor of another, was a substitute for the principal recognised by the law of Nations, by which one sovereign is bound to deliver to another, fugitives who have committed certain offences. These offences are of the deepest grade of criminality, and robbers, murderers, and incendiaries, are those enumerated, as proper to be surrendered. Following the analogy thus suggested, the provision in our Constitution, it would seem, should be construed to embrace similar cases only, except, perhaps, those offences which arise from an abuse of the same Consti-

'Remarks on Inflammation,' next week.

We have not room to insert the whole of the Governor's inaugural Address this week; the remainder may be looked for in our next.

Elder Orson Hyde, has just returned from his mission to Jerusalem; he has performed this most arduous undertaking with great credit to himself, as a minister of the Lord Jesus Christ; he has, during his travels, published a very interesting book, on the organization, faith, principles, and doctrines of the Latter Day Saints. He has become proficient in the German tongue and has translated and published his book in that language. He sailed from Liverpool (England) in company with a number of saints destined to this place, who, however, were detained in St. Louis in consequence of the river's being frozen up.

We have lately received a letter from Liverpool, dated Oct. 26, 1842, which states that four vessels sailed on the following dates, and with the following numbers:

Sidney sailed Sept. 17, numb. pas. 180.
Medford " 25, " 214
Henry " 28, " 157
Enterprise Oct. 25, " 250

Our correspondent says, 'In the last vessel which left the river yesterday, are Elder P. P. Pratt and family.'

The passengers that came with one of those vessels are stuck fast about forty miles below St. Louis, or were when the following communication was penned. We hope they are now liberated.

More River Distress.—The following communication was handed to us yesterday. We readily give it a place, but we confess our inability to devise a remedy for the distress. It strikes us that the most speedy and proper course of remedy would be for the owners of the Alex. Scott to despatch a light draught boat down to bring up the passengers. We do not pretend to know what may be the contract subsisting between the passengers and the Scott, but be it what it may, humanity, if not the interest of the owners, requires that this course should be taken. We have seen several of the passengers on the Scott, who have come up by land;—it is true they speak in severe terms of their treatment, but then they probably had only a partial view of the case. We know the officers, and believe they are incapable of a wilful wrong. On the other hand, it should be remembered that these persons on the Scott contracted to be delivered in St. Louis. They are strangers in the land, and many of them have not the means nor the physical ability to reach St. Louis by land;—this is especially the case of men with families and children, and to leave their families would be useless, if not worse. The Scott has been reported as unable to get up several days ago, and we have been somewhat surprised that no effort has as yet been made to get up her passengers. We believe that since she was reported, a boat has been sent to the relief of another, and returned. We agree with the writer of the following, that something should be done for the relief of those on board; and if a boat is not sent to their relief, the citizens should take it into hands.

To the Editor of the Republican:

'Sir—I consider it my duty to acquaint the inhabitants of St. Louis, through the medium of your valuable Journal, with the state of the passengers on board the Alexander Scott, as I embarked with them from New Orleans, and after laying aground, in all, six days, and being obliged to spend one night in the woods, I left them, on Friday last, without any hopes of deliverance till the water may rise. There were on board upwards of two hundred souls, principally women and children, mainly from England and Scotland, and, at the time I left, between forty and fifty destitute of food and means, and many more will soon be in the same circumstances, and about five miles from any place where they can obtain provisions (Chester.) I mention this matter in hopes that some means may suggest themselves to you, for relieving the wants of our suffering fellow creatures.'

I am, sir, your obedient servant,
JOHN GREENHOW.

December 1, 1842.

The very able and learned article on 'Habeas Corpus,' written by Justin Butterfield, United States Attorney, for the District of Illinois, is worthy of attention. He shows, in a very learned manner, what our right and privileges are, pertaining to that subject, and fully sustains the proceedings and views of the City Council, and the Municipal Court; it is sustained by the usages of all enlightened Courts, and accords with the opinion of every intelligent man,—the opinions of Ex-Governor Boggs, Gov. Reynolds, of Mo., and Gov. Carlin, to the contrary notwithstanding.

LETTER TO SIDNEY RIGDON, ESQ.

Chicago, Oct. 20th 1842.

SIDNEY RIGDON, ESQ.:—
Dear Sir: In answer to your favours of the 17th inst. Mr. Warren was correct in the information he gave you of my opinion of the illegality of the requisition made by the Governor of Missouri, upon the Governor of this State, for the surrender of Joseph Smith, and that the Governor of this State should cause him to be arrested, for the purpose of being surrendered. I had no doubt, but the Supreme Court of this State would discharge him upon Habeas Corpus.—subsequent examination has confirmed me in that opinion. I understand from your letter, and from the statement of facts made to me by Mr. Warren, that the requisition of the Governor of Missouri, is accompanied by an affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs, stating in substance, that on the 6th day of May last, he was shot while sitting in his house, with intent to kill, and as he verily believes, the act was committed by O. P. Rockwell, and that Joseph Smith was necessary to the crime before its commission, and that he has fled from justice; that it can be proved that Joseph Smith was not in the State of Missouri at the time the crime was committed—but was in this State; that it is untrue that he was in the State of Missouri at the time of the commission of the said crime, or has been there at any time since; he could not, therefore, have fled from that State since the commission of the said crime.

The right on the part of the Governor of Missouri to demand Smith, and the duty on the part of the Governor of this State to deliver him up: if they exist, are given and imposed by that clause of the Constitution of the United States, which declares that a person charged in any State with Treason, Felony, or other crime who shall flee from justice and be found in another State; shall on demand of the Executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.

It is unnecessary to refer to the act of Congress in relation to the delivery up of fugitives from justice, as Congress has just so much power and no more than is expressly given by the said clause in the Constitution—the Constitution is the best exponent of itself—what persons then can be surrendered up by the Governor of one State to the Governor of another? First, he must be a person charged with Treason, Felony, or other crime; it is sufficient if he is charged with the commission of crime, either by indictment found or by affidavit. Second, 'He must be a person who shall flee from justice and be found in another State.' It is not sufficient to satisfy this branch of the Constitution, that he should be 'charged' with having fled from justice, unless he has actually fled from the State where the offence was committed to another State, the Governor of this State has no jurisdiction over his person and cannot deliver him up. When Mr. Smith is brought up on a Habeas Corpus, he will have a right, under the 3rd Sec. of our Habeas Corpus Act, to introduce testimony and shew that the 'process upon which he is arrested was obtained by false pretence,' that it is untrue, that he fled from the State of Missouri, to evade being brought to justice there, for the crime of which he is charged, he will have the right to place himself upon the platform of the Constitution of the United States, and say I am a citizen of the State of Illinois; I have not fled from the State of Missouri or from the 'justice' of that State, on account of the commission of the crime with which I am charged. I am ready to prove that the charge of having fled from that State is false, and I am not, therefore, subject under the Constitution of the United States to be delivered up to that State for trial.

You say in your letter to me that you doubt whether on a Habeas Corpus the Court would have a right to try the question whether Smith was in Missouri at the time of the commission of the crime of which he is charged. To this I answer that upon a Habeas Corpus the Court would be bound to try the question whether Smith fled from justice from Missouri to this State; the affidavit of Mr. Boggs is not conclusive on this point—it may be rebutted—unless Smith is a person who has fled from justice he is not subject to be delivered up.—under the express provisions of our own Habeas Corpus Act, he has a right to shew that the affidavit is false, and that the order for his arrest was obtained by false pretences. Again, the affidavit on its face was not sufficient to authorise the arrest of Smith, it is evasive and deceptive—it does not shew that he fled from the State of Missouri to evade justice for the commission of the crime of which he is charged by Gov. Boggs.

Robert G. Williams, in the year 1835, was indicted in the State of Alabama for attempting to incite rebellion and insurrection in that State; he was demanded by the Gov. of that State, of the Gov. of New York, and the requisition stated that he had fled from justice—the Governor of the State of New York (Marcy) took notice that the said Williams was a citizen of the State of New York, and had not fled from justice from Alabama, and on that ground alone refused to surrender him up. This was a stronger case than that of Smith's, as an indictment HAD BEEN FOUND. Gov. Marcy puts his refusal upon the express ground that by the Constitution of the United States the Governor of one State had no right to demand, nor the Governor of another State a right to surrender up one of his citizens, unless he had fled from justice; and it was the right and the duty of the Governor upon whom the demand was made to inquire into the fact whether he had fled from justice before he made the surrender. I have the book containing all the proceedings in this case of Williams: there are several other cases, equally in point, and they all proceed upon the ground that the Governor of a State has no jurisdiction over the body of a citizen to arrest and surrender him up to a foreign State unless he is a fugitive from that State, unless he has fled from that State to evade justice, or in other words to evade being tried for the offence with which he is charged. In a despotic form of Government the sovereign power is the will of the Monarch who can act in every instance as may suit his pleasure; but can the Governor of one of our States, of his own mere will, without any authority from the Constitution, or the Legislative power of the State, arrest and deliver up to a foreign Government any person whatever? If he can do this, then is the liberty of the citizen wholly at his disposal.

The writ of Habeas Corpus is a writ which every person imprisoned or unlawfully detained has a right to prosecute for the recovery of his liberty, and if he is in custody by process from a competent power he is entitled to his discharge when the jurisdiction has been extended.

The Governor of this State has no power or jurisdiction over the person of a citizen of this State to arrest and cause him to be delivered up and transported to another State, except the power expressly given to him by the Constitution of the United States, and what is that power? It only authorises the Governor of one State to surrender up a fugitive from justice to return him back to the State from whence he has fled. First, The person to be surrendered up must be a fugitive from the State to which it is attempted to surrender him. Second, He must be a fugitive from justice; in other words he must have been in the State when and where the crime was committed and have fled from that State to evade being apprehended and tried for that crime. Third, Unless he is in fact such a fugitive from justice, the Governor has no power, by the laws or Constitution, to deliver him up. Fourth, If he is charged with being a fugitive from justice and the Governor cause him to be apprehended, he has no right to sue out a Habeas Corpus and when brought up on that writ he has the undoubted right of showing that the Governor has no Constitutional power to deliver him up to another State; that he has not 'fled from justice into this State,' and is not such a person as the Constitution authorises the Governor to deliver up, and that it would be an excess of jurisdiction on the part of the Governor to deliver him up. The question to be examined into upon the return of the Habeas Corpus would be a mere question of locality, the question would be, was Smith in this State or not at the time the crime was committed in Missouri? If he was in this State at that time, then he could not be a fugitive from justice, from Missouri, in the sense of the Constitution, and the Governor would have no power to deliver him up.

The argument that because Gov. Boggs has made affidavit that Smith has fled from justice, his affidavit is to be taken as conclusive on that point, and that upon the return of a Habeas Corpus, Smith would be precluded from controverting or showing the falsity of that affidavit, is too absurd to require a serious answer.

The liberties of the citizens of this State are not held on quite so feeble a tenure, nor does the Constitution authorise the Governor to transport the citizens of this State upon a mere 'charge' made by a citizen of another State; such is not the reading of the Constitution; that instrument only authorises the delivery up of such persons 'who shall flee,' upon the demand of the Executive authority of the State from which they 'fled'—there must have been a 'flight in fact and indeed from the State where the offence was committed or the Governor has no jurisdiction to 'deliver up.' If the charge of having 'fled' is made, and the Governor acting in pais is attempting to deliver up upon that charge, the person attempted to be made the victim has a clear undoubted constitutional right, by means of a writ of Habeas Corpus, to test its truth before a judicial tribunal of the country, and if the charge is proven to be false, the Governor is ousted of his jurisdiction over the person of the prisoner, and he is restored to his liberty before he has undergone the penalty of the transportation to a foreign country, upon the mere charge of an interested or partial witness.

The power of the Executive of a State to surrender up a citizen to be transported to a foreign State for trial; is a most tremendous power which might be greatly abused, were it not limited by Constitutional checks, and the citizen secured against its despotic exercise by the writ of Habeas Corpus. In the case of Williams, the Governor of New York, in his reply to the Governor of Alabama, says, 'What occurs daily in the ordinary course of criminal proceedings, may take place in regard to persons transported to a distant jurisdiction for trial. It may happen that an innocent man will be accused, and, if demanded, he must be delivered up, should your exposition of the Constitution be sanctioned. Under these circumstances his condition would be perilous indeed; dragged from his home, far removed from friends; borne down by the weight of imputed guilt, and unable, probably to obtain the evidence by which he might vindicate his innocence; if appearances were against him he could scarcely hope to escape unmerited condemnation.'

The American Colonists regarded the exercise of this power, as an act of revolting tyranny, and assigned it in the declaration of Independence, as one of the prominent causes that impelled them to a separation from the British Empire. A power which may be thus oppressively used should be resorted to with the greatest caution. When its exercise is invoked it is not sufficient that the case may apparently come within the letter of the Constitution; it is the duty of the Executive, before yielding a blind obedience to the letter of the law, to see that the case comes within the spirit and meaning of the Constitution. It may be pleasing as well as instructive to look into the proceedings of the Executive of our sister State, and witness, that by faithfully administering the law in relation to the delivery up of fugitives from justice, according to its spirit and meaning they have saved at least two of the citizens of Illinois from becoming victims to its abuse. In the year 1839 the Governor of the State of New York was presented with the copy of an indictment by a grand jury in the city of New York against John & Nathan Aldrich, for fraud in obtaining goods by false pretences, and was requested to make a requisition upon the Governor of Illinois, to surrender them up as fugitives from justice. Now here was a case which came exactly within the letter of the Law of Congress, in relation to fugitives from justice. An indictment had been found charging them with having committed a crime. But did the Governor of New York make the 'requisition?' No; he referred the application to the Hon. John C. Spencer, now Secretary of War, and one of the most enlightened lawyers of the age.

The following is an extract of Mr. Spencer's opinion upon the case:

'The Constitutional provision under which requisitions may be made by the Governor of one State upon the Governor of another, was a substitute for the principal recognised by the law of Nations, by which one sovereign is bound to deliver to another, fugitives who have committed certain offences. These offences are of the deepest grade of criminality, and robbers, murderers, and incendiaries, are those enumerated, as proper to be surrendered. Following the analogy thus suggested, the provision in our Constitution, it would seem, should be construed to embrace similar cases only, except, perhaps, those offences which arise from an abuse of the same Constitutional provision—that provision must be guarded with the utmost care or it will become intolerable.

"I do not think the circumstances of the case before me are of such grave import, or the offence itself of such high grade as to justify the requisition desired. The power given by the Constitution ought not to be cheapened, nor applied to trifling offences, nor indeed to any that was not originally contemplated."

For the reasons stated in Mr. Spencer's opinion the Governor of New York refused to make the requisition upon the Governor of Illinois. The case certainly came within the letter of the law; but not within its spirit and meaning,—so with the affidavit of Gov. Boggs, when he swears that Smith had fled from justice, it may come within the letter of the Constitution; but does it come within its spirit and meaning? does it show that Smith was in Missouri at the time of the commission of the crime and that he fled from that State to evade being brought to justice for that crime? or does it refer to the flight of Smith and the Mormons from Missouri some years since?

I will refer to one more case of a similar nature. Lord Campbell, formerly Attorney General of England, in a recent debate in Parliament upon the subject of the Creole, made the following remarks, "To show how cautious States should be in making such concessions one to the other reciprocally, he would mention a case, that occurred when he was Attorney General. A treaty had been agreed upon between the State of New York and the province of Canada, by which the Government of each agreed reciprocally to deliver up the citizens or subjects of the other against whom Grand Juries had found a bill, and who had sought refuge within the territories of the other. It happened that a slave had escaped from his master, at New York, and had got to Canada. To facilitate his escape, he rode a horse of his master's for a part of the way; but turned him back on reaching the frontier. The authorities of New York well knew that England would not give up a runaway slave, and that as they could not claim him under the treaty; they therefore had a bill of indictment against him before a New York Grand Jury for stealing the horse, though it was clear the animus furandi was wanting. The Grand Jury, however, found a true bill against him for the felony, and he was claimed under the treaty. The Governor, under such circumstances, refused to give him up until he had consulted the Government in England. He (Lord Campbell) was consulted and gave it as his opinion that the man ought not to be given up, as the true bill where no felony had been committed, did not bring the case within the treaty. The man was not given up, and there the matter rested. This, he repeated, showed the necessity of the greatest caution where reciprocal rights of surrender were granted between States."

It is not to be presumed that the Executive of this State would, knowingly, lend his aid in dragging one of our citizens, who is not a fugitive from justice, into a foreign State, for trial. The Governor has, undoubtedly, been misled by the evasive affidavit which accompanied the requisition. I would advise that Mr. Smith procure respectable and sufficient affidavits to prove, beyond all question that he was in this State, and not in Missouri, at the time the crime, with which he is charged, was committed, and, upon these affidavits, apply to the Governor to countermand the warrant he has issued for his arrest. If he should refuse so to do, I am clearly of the opinion that upon the above state of facts, the Supreme Court will discharge him upon Habeas Corpus.

Respectfully your ob't serv't,
JUSTIN BUTTERFIELD.

COMMERCE.

The following observations are taken from an address delivered by the late Dr. Channing, of Boston, before the Mercantile Library Company of Philadelphia, in May 1841.

Commerce is a noble calling. It mediates between distant nations, and makes men's wants, not as formerly, stimulants

to war, but bonds of peace. The universal intellectual activity of which I have spoken, is due, in no small degree, to commerce, which spreads the thoughts, inventions, and writings of great men over the earth, and gathers scientific and literary men every where into an intellectual republic. So it carries abroad the missionary, the Bible, the Cross, and is giving universality to true religion. Gentlemen, allow me to express an earnest desire and hope, that the merchants of this country will carry on their calling with these generous views. Let them not pursue it for themselves alone. Let them rejoice to spread improvements far and wide, and to unite men to more friendly ties. Let them adopt maxims of trade, which will establish general confidence. Especially in their intercourse with less cultivated tribes, let them feel themselves bound to be harbingers of civilization. Let their voyages be missions of humanity, useful arts, science, and religion. It is a painful thought, that commerce instead of enlightening and purifying less privileged communities, has too often made the name of Christian hateful to them; has carried to the savage not our useful arts and mild faith, but weapons of war and the intoxicating draught. I call not on God to smite with his lightnings, to overwhelm with his storms the accursed ship, which goes to the ignorant, rude native, freighted with poison and death; which goes to add new ferocity to savage life, new licentiousness to savage sensuality. I have learned not to call down fire from heaven. But, in the name of humanity, of religion, of God, I implore the merchants of this country, not to use the light of a higher civilization to corrupt, to destroy our uncivilized brethren.—Brethren they are in those rude huts, in that wild attire. Establish with them an intercourse of usefulness, justice, and charity. Before they can understand the name of Christ, let them see his spirit in those by whom it is borne. It has been said, that the commerce of our country, is not only corrupting uncivilized countries; but that it wears a deeper, more damning stain; that, in spite of the laws of the land and the protest of nations, it sometimes lends itself to the slave trade; that by its capital, and accommodations, and swift sailers, and false papers, and prostituted flag, it takes part in tearing the African from his home and native shore, and in dooming him, first to the horrors of the middle passage, and then to the hopelessness of perpetual bondage. Even on men so fallen I call down no curse. May they find forgiveness from God through the pains of sincere repentance; but continuing what they are can I help shrinking from them as among the most infamous of their race?

Allow me to say a word to the merchants of our country on another subject. The time is come, when they are particularly called to take yet more generous views of their vocation, and to commerce add universality as yet unknown. I refer to the juster principles which are gaining ground on the subject of free trade, and to the growing disposition of nations to promote it. Free trade!—this is the plain duty and plain interest of the human race. To level all barriers to free exchange; to cut up the system of restriction, root and branch; to open every port on earth to every product; this is the office of enlightened humanity. To this a free nation should especially pledge itself. Freedom of the seas; freedom of harbours; an intercourse of nations, free as the winds, this is not a dream of philanthropists. We are tending towards it, and let us hasten it. Under a more Christian civilization, we shall look back on our present restrictions, as we do on the swaddling bands by which, in darker times, the human body was compressed. The growing freedom of trade is another and glorious illustration of the tendency of our age to universality.

THE BATTLE OF THE COWPENS.

It may with truth be said, that in no battle of the American Revolution was the contest more unequal, or the victory more signal and complete, than that of the Cowpens. The British army was superior in numbers, in discipline, in arms, and in every thing that can constitute an army, save the soul and spirit of the soldier, and the noble daring of the officer. In Infantry they were as five to four, and in Cavalry as three to one!—The American army under Gen. Morgan, was a retreating detachment, without artillery, without proper arms, and without baggage or provisions. In the language of a distinguished historian of that period—the earth was their bed, the heavens their covering, and the rivulets which they crossed, their only drink.

The battle-ground of the Cowpens is in Spartanburg District, about seventeen miles north of the Court House, and four or five miles from the North Carolina line. The surrounding country is a beautiful and almost perfect plain, with a fine growth of tall pines, oak and chestnut. On the memorable 17th of January, 1781, the entire country for miles around the battle-ground, was one vast untouched forest. The inhabitants of the lower part of the District, had been in the habit of driving their cattle into this part of the country for the purpose of grazing, and had erected pens in the neighborhood for the purpose of salting and marking them. Hence the origin of the name of the battle-ground. The field of battle, however, is about two miles distant from the Cowpens, but inasmuch as there was no other or nearer known place in the neighborhood, it was called "The Battle of the Cowpens." The night previous to the battle, the American army had encamped on the ground. The position was a favorable one, and lay immediately between the head waters of "Suck Creek," a branch of "Buck Creek," which are not more than two or three hundred yards apart. The forces under General Morgan were drawn up, about day light, on the ridge extending from one of these spring branches to the other. These branches, at this time, were well lined with cane and small reeds, which made it exceedingly difficult to cross over them. General Morgan was retreating into North Carolina, and had determined to give battle on the other side of the Broad River, but General Pickens informed him that if they crossed the river the militia could not be kept together. A large portion of them had joined the army the day previous, and under no regular discipline. This determined the Commanding General to wait for Tarleton, whose forces had been marching all night to overtake the American Army, before they could get over Broad River. The North and South Carolina Militia, under the command of General Pickens, were posted one hundred and fifty or two hundred yards in advance of the continental troops, under Colonel Howard. Colonel Brondon's Regiment was placed on the left of the road leading from Union District into North Carolina; and the Regiments of Colonels Thomas and Roebuck on the right. They were ordered to stand the fire of the enemy as long as possible, and then retreat and form again on the right and left of the continental troops.

About sunrise the British army appeared in sight, and marched within one or two hundred yards of the American lines, and then displayed to the right and left with a corps of cavalry on each wing. General Pickens ordered the militia not to fire until the enemy came within thirty paces of them. They were also permitted to shelter themselves behind trees, which was at least a prudent, if not a very scientific mode of fighting. At the celebration of the anniversary of this battle, in 1835, the writer of these sketches was shown, by several of the soldiers, the identical trees from behind which they fired during the engagement. The British, when formed, rushed forward with a shout and huzza, as if an anticipation of an easy victory. The horse of Colonel Brondon was shot under him, and his regiment immediately fired on the enemy, in violation of their orders to wait, until he had approached within thirty paces. The regiments of Colonels Thomas and Roebuck soon commenced also a brisk and destructive fire. The enemy now made a charge with fixed bayonets, and the militia gave way. The brunt of the battle was now borne by the regular troops, whilst the militia formed in rear and renewed the engagement. Three hundred of the British were killed and wounded, and five hundred of them taken prisoners. The remnant of Tarleton's cavalry was pursued by Colonel Washington on fifteen or twenty miles, to Goudelock's, where he was informed the British were out of his reach. This, however, was a false statement made by Mrs. Goudelock in order to save the life of her husband, whom Col. Tarleton had just pressed into his service, to pilot him across the Pacolet. This good lady supposed that if Col. Washington overtook the British an engagement would necessarily ensue, and her husband might be killed in the action. She therefore suffered the feelings of a wife to prevail over those of patriotism and morality. For the fact was, that Tarleton had just got out of sight as Washington rode up. Had the American cavalry continued their pursuit fifteen minutes longer, the remnant of the British troops would have been either captured or killed.

The next day after the battle, a portion of the militia was despatched to bury the dead. Three places of burying are now to be distinctly seen. The largest is near the chimney of a cabin some hundred yards above the battle ground. The second is fifty or hundred yards distant, and the third on the spot where the battle took place. One of the soldiers who assisted in the burying, observed, at the celebration before alluded to, that the dead were found in straight lines across the battle ground, and that it gave them a most singular appearance when seen at a distance. The only vestiges of the battle, now to be seen, are the trees which have been cut for bullets. Some of these chops are twenty or thirty feet high—an evidence of bad shooting by one or the other of the parties. A great many of the bullets are yet to be found in the trees. The writer saw several which were pewter, and had no doubt been moulded from a spoon or plate.—Lead being scarce, some good whig had made the best substitute in his power, at the expenses of his table, and the convenience of his family. At the time the battle was fought, there was no undergrowth on the ground, and objects might be seen at a great distance through the woods; but since that time bushes and saplings have sprung up and destroyed, in a great measure, the beauty of the forest.

Closing of the Ohio Canal.—The Newark Gazette of Thursday makes the sudden visit of winter, and says—"On Friday the canal was frozen over, and the boats were fastened with icy chains to our wharfs, on Saturday the weather moderated some, and an attempt was made to break the ice; which by the next morning was frozen again, but boats have been breaking their way with snail like pace ever since, anxious to reach their destination with their cargoes. This morning again the ice is strong enough to bear an ordinary man, while some twenty boats are endeavoring to get through."

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Simeon Cooley, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Simeon Cooley, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 29th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this district as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 29th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-w2.

tutional provision—that provision must be guarded with the utmost care or it will become intolerable.

"I do not think the circumstances of the case before me are of such grave import, or the offence itself of such high grade as to justify the requisition desired. The power given by the Constitution ought not to be cheapened, nor applied to trifling offences, nor indeed to any that was not originally contemplated."

For the reasons stated in Mr. Spencer's opinion the Governor of New York refused to make the requisition upon the Governor of Illinois. The case certainly came within the letter of the law; but not within its spirit and meaning,—so with the affidavit of Gov. Boggs, when he swears that Smith had fled from justice, it may come within the letter of the Constitution; but does it come within its spirit and meaning? does it show that Smith was in Missouri at the time of the commission of the crime and that he fled from that State to evade being brought to justice for that crime? or does it refer to the flight of Smith and the Mormons from Missouri some years since?

I will refer to one more case of a similar nature. Lord Campbell, formerly Attorney General of England, in a recent debate in Parliament upon the subject of the Creole, made the following remarks, "To show how cautious States should be in making such concessions one to the other reciprocally, he would mention a case that occurred when he was Attorney General. A treaty had been agreed upon between the State of New York and the province of Canada, by which the Government of each agreed reciprocally to deliver up the citizens or subjects of the other against whom Grand Juries had found a bill, and who had sought refuge within the territories of the other. It happened that a slave had escaped from his master, at New York, and had got to Canada. To facilitate his escape, he rode a horse of his master's for a part of the way; but turned him back on reaching the frontier. The authorities of New York well knew that England would not give up a runaway slave, and that as they could not claim him under the treaty; they therefore had a bill of indictment against him before a New York Grand Jury for stealing the horse, though it was clear the animus furandi was wanting. The Grand Jury, however, found a true bill against him for the felony, and he was claimed under the treaty. The Governor, under such circumstances, refused to give him up."

England. He (Lord Campbell) was consulted and gave it as his opinion that the man ought not to be given up, as the true bill where no felony had been committed, did not bring the case within the treaty. The man was not given up, and there the matter rested. This, he repeated, showed the necessity of the greatest caution where reciprocal rights of surrender were granted between States."

It is not to be presumed that the Executive of this State would, knowingly, lend his aid in dragging one of our citizens, who is not a fugitive from justice, into a foreign State, for trial. The Governor has, undoubtedly, been misled by the evasive affidavit which accompanied the requisition. I would advise that Mr. Smith procure respectable and sufficient affidavits to prove, beyond all question that he was in this State, and not in Missouri, at the time the crime, with which he is charged, was committed, and, upon these affidavits, apply to the Governor to countermand the warrant he has issued for his arrest. If he should refuse so to do, I am clearly of the opinion that upon the above state of facts, the Supreme Court will discharge him upon Habeas Corpus.

Respectfully your ob't serv't,
JUSTIN BUTTERFIELD.

COMMERCE.

The following observations are taken from an address delivered by the late Dr. Channing, of Boston, before the Mercantile Library Company of Philadelphia, in May 1841.

Commerce is a noble calling. It mediates between distant nations, and makes men's wants, not as formerly, stimulants

to war, but bonds of peace. The universal intellectual activity of which I have spoken, is due, in no small degree, to commerce, which spreads the thoughts, inventions, and writings of great men over the earth, and gathers scientific and literary men every where into an intellectual republic. So it carries abroad the missionary, the Bible, the Cross, and is giving universality to true religion. Gentlemen, allow me to express an earnest desire and hope, that the merchants of this country will carry on their calling with these generous views. Let them not pursue it for themselves alone. Let them rejoice to spread improvements far and wide, and to unite men to more friendly ties. Let them adopt maxims of trade, which will establish general confidence. Especially in their intercourse with less cultivated tribes, let them feel themselves bound to be harbingers of civilization. Let their voyages be missions of humanity, useful arts, science, and religion. It is a painful thought, that commerce instead of enlightening and purifying less privileged communities, has too often made the name of Christian hateful to them: has carried to the savage not our useful arts and mild faith, but weapons of war and the intoxicating draught. I call not on God to smite with his lightnings, to overwhelm with his storms the accursed ship, which goes to the ignorant, rude native, freighted with poison and death; which goes to add new ferocity to savage life, new licentiousness to savage sensuality. I have learned not to call down fire from heaven. But, in the name of humanity, of religion, of God, I implore the merchants of this country, not to use the light of a higher civilization to corrupt, to destroy our uncivilized brethren.—Brethren they are in those rude huts, in that wild attire. Establish with them an intercourse of usefulness, justice, and charity. Before they can understand the name of Christ, let them see his spirit in those by whom it is borne. It has been said, that the commerce of our country, is not only corrupting uncivilized countries; but that it wears a deeper, more damning stain; that, in spite of the laws of the land and the protest of nations, it sometimes lends itself to the slave trade; that by its capital, and accommodations, and swift sailers, and false papers, and prostituted flag, it takes part in tearing the African from his home and native shore, and in dooming him, first to the horrors of the middle passage, and then to the hopelessness of perpetual bondage. Even on men so fallen I call down no curse. May they find forgiveness from God through the means of sincere repentance; but continuing what they are can I help shrinking from them as among the most infamous of their race?

Allow me to say a word to the merchants of our country on another subject. The time is come, when they are particularly called to take yet more generous views of their vocation, and to commerce add universality as yet unknown. I refer to the juster principles which are gaining ground on the subject of free trade, and to the growing disposition of nations to promote it. Free trade!—this is the plain duty and plain interest of the human race. To level all barriers to free exchange; to cut up the system of restriction, root and branch; to open every port on earth to every product; this is the office of enlightened humanity. To this a free nation should especially pledge itself. Freedom of the seas; freedom of harbours; an intercourse of nations, free as the winds, this is not a dream of philanthropists. We are tending towards it, and let us hasten it. Under a more Christian civilization, we shall look back on our present restrictions, as we do on the swaddling bands by which, in darker times, the human body was compressed. The growing freedom of trade is another and glorious illustration of the tendency of our age to universality.

THE BATTLE OF THE COWPENS.

It may with truth be said, that in no battle of the American Revolution was the contest more unequal, or the victory more signal and complete, than that of the Cowpens. The British army was superior in numbers, in discipline, in arms, and in every thing that can constitute an army, save the soul and spirit of the soldier, and the noble daring of the officer. In Infantry they were as five to four, and in Cavalry as three to one!—The American army under Gen. Morgan, was a retreating detachment, without artillery, without proper arms, and without baggage or provisions. In the language of a distinguished historian of that period—the earth was their bed, the heavens their covering, and the rivulets which they crossed, their only drink.

The battle-ground of the Cowpens is in Spartanburg District, about seventeen miles north of the Court House, an hour or five miles from the North Carolina line. The surrounding country is a beautiful and almost perfect plain, with a fine growth of tall pines, oak and chestnut. On the memorable 17th of January, 1781, the entire country for miles around the battle-ground, was one vast untouched forest. The inhabitants of the lower part of the District, had been in the habit of driving their cattle into this part of the country for the purpose of grazing, and had erected pens in the neighborhood for the purpose of salting and marking them. Hence the origin of the name of the battle-ground. The field of battle, however, is about two miles distant from the Cowpens; but inasmuch as there was no other or nearer known place in the neighborhood, it was called "The Battle of the Cowpens." The night previous to the battle, the American army had encamped on the ground. The position was a favorable one, and lay immediately between the head waters of "Suck Creek," a branch of "Buck Creek," which are not more than two or three hundred yards apart. The forces under General Morgan were drawn up, about day-light, on the ridge extending from one of these spring branches to the other. These branches, at this time, were well lined with cane and small reeds, which made it exceedingly difficult to cross over them. General Morgan was retreating into North Carolina, and had determined to give battle on the other side of the Broad River, but General Pickens informed him that if they crossed the river the militia could not be kept together. A large portion of them had joined the army the day previous, and under no regular discipline. This determined the Commanding General to wait for Tarleton, whose forces had been marching all night to overtake the American Army, before they could get over Broad River. The North and South Carolina Militia, under the command of General Pickens, were posted in advance of the continental troops, under Colonel Howard. Colonel Brondon's Regiment was placed on the left of the road leading from Union District into North Carolina; and the Regiments of Colonels Thomas and Roebuck on the right. They were ordered to stand the fire of the enemy as long as possible, and then retreat and form again on the right and left of the continental troops.

About sunrise the British army appeared in sight, and marched within one or two hundred yards of the American lines, and then displayed to the right and left with a corps of cavalry on each wing. General Pickens ordered the militia not to fire until the enemy came within thirty paces of them. They were also permitted to shelter themselves behind trees, which was at least a prudent, if not a very scientific mode of fighting. At the celebration of the anniversary of this battle, in 1835, the writer of these sketches was shown, by several of the soldiers, the identical trees from behind which they fired during the engagement. The British, when formed, rushed forward with a shout and huzza, as if an anticipation of an easy victory. The horse of Colonel Brondon was shot under him, and his regiment immediately fired on the enemy, in violation of their orders to wait, until he had approached within thirty paces. The regiments of Colonels Thomas and Roebuck soon commenced also a brisk and destructive fire. The enemy now made a charge with fixed bayonets, and the militia gave way. The brunt of the battle was now borne by the regular troops, whilst the militia formed in rear and renewed the engagement. Three hundred of the British were killed and wounded, and five hundred of them taken prisoners. The remnant of Tarleton's cavalry was pursued by Colonel Washington fifteen or twenty miles, to Goudelock's, where he was informed the British were out of his reach. This, however, was a false statement made by Mrs. Goudelock in order to save the life of her husband, whom Col. Tarleton had just pressed into his service, to pilot him across the Pacolet. This good lady supposed that if Col. Washington overtook the British an engagement would necessarily ensue, and her husband might be killed in the action. She therefore suffered the feelings of a wife to prevail over those of patriotism and morality. For the fact was, that Tarleton had just got out of sight as Washington rode up. Had the American cavalry continued their pursuit fifteen minutes longer, the remnant of the British troops would have been either captured or killed.

The next day after the battle, a portion of the militia was despatched to bury the dead. Three places of burying are now to be distinctly seen. The largest is near the chimney of a cabin some hundred yards above the battle-ground. The second is fifty or hundred yards distant, and the third on the spot where the battle took place. One of the soldiers who assisted in the burying, observed, at the celebration before alluded to, that the dead were found in straight lines across the battle-ground, and that it gave them a most singular appearance when seen at a distance. The only vestiges of the battle, now to be seen, are the trees which have been cut for bullets. Some of these chops are twenty or thirty feet high—an evidence of bad shooting by one or the other of the parties. A great many of the bullets are yet to be found in the trees. The writer saw several which were pewter, and had no doubt been moulded from a spoon or plate.—Lead being scarce, some good whig had made the best substitute in his power, at the expenses of his table, and the convenience of his family. At the time the battle was fought, there was no undergrowth on the ground, and objects might be seen at a great distance through the woods; but since that time bushes and saplings have sprung up and destroyed, in a great measure, the beauty of the forest.

Closing of the Ohio Canal.—The Newark Gazette of Thursday notices the sudden visit of winter, and says—"On Friday the canal was frozen over, and the boats were fastened with icy chains to our wharfs, on Saturday the weather moderated some, and an attempt was made to break the ice; which by the next morning was frozen again, but boats have been breaking their way with snail like pace ever since, anxious to reach their destination with their cargoes. This morning again the ice is strong enough to bear an ordinary man, while some twenty boats are endeavoring to get through."

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Simeon Cooley, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Simeon Cooley, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 29th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this district as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 29th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 32-w2.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Paydree St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce, and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.

A. H. Mathews, Warsaw.

Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.

December 10, 1842. no32-

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Benjamin Whitaker, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Benjamin Whitaker, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 22nd day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 7th day of December A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 32-w2.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Isaac C. Howd, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Isaac C. Howd, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 29th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-2w.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Stanton, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Stanton, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 20th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-w2

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine: each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multiform diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure; and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix naturae.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay.
Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

OF all sizes, kept constantly on hand, and made to order, on Water Street near the Nauvoo Hotel, by the subscriber, W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.
Dec. 10, 1842. no31-6w.

GRANT & WATT,
TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused.
Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
COMMISSION & FORWARDING
MERCHANTS,

NEW ORLEANS.

Liberal advances made on Goods consigned for sale or to be reshipped to Eastern Ports or West Indies.

Forwarding done promptly and without Storing when possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans.

Geo. Starkey,

Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.

Rowan & Brown,

C. D. BRADFORD. no31 J. L. BROWN.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at, J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-11.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of

Medicines. Paints and Oils,
Pure, Wines,
Glass, Putty,
School, Books,
Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 29, 1842. 31-11.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND,
A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. 11.
Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

ESTATE OF JAMES DOYLE DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given that on the first Monday of December next I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at this office in Carthage, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of James Doyle, late of said county, deceased, when and where all claimants are notified and requested to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 24th day of October, A. D. 1842.
DANIEL H. WELLS, Administrator.
no28-6w.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.
These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.
This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

District court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois

In the matter of the petition of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. Notice is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt, to appear before the District Court of the United States, on the 1st day of February 1842, at the town of Kaskaskia in this District of Illinois, and shew cause, if any they have, why the aforesaid Elisha Tucker should not receive a final discharge from all his debts and a certificate thereof be granted to him.

Dated at Springfield this 4th day of October, A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 32-2w.

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th, day of October, 1842.
THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price.

No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842.
no20 3m.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill. 3 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa: a so l house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash or part in good horses. I good two horse waggon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS PERRY.

SILAS PERRY.

Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842. no24-11.

FARM FOR SALE

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation, and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842. no27-11.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Labarp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Mecomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Curtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Rectess Town.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiro.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Benjamin Whitaker, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Benjamin Whitaker, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 22nd day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 7th day of December A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 32-w2.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Isaac C. Howd, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Isaac C. Howd, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 29th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-2w.

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Stanton, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Stanton, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 20th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-w2

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multiform diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix naturae.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay.
Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

OF all sizes, kept constantly on hand, and made to order, on Water Street near the Nauvoo Hotel, by the subscriber, W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.
Dec. 10, 1842. no31-6m.

GRANT & WATT,

TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused.
Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

BRADFORD & BROWN,

COMMISSION & FORWARDING

MERCHANTS,

Poydras St.,

NEW ORLEANS.

Liberal advances made on Goods consigned for sale or to be reshipped to Eastern Ports or West Indies.

Forwarding done promptly and without storing when possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans.
Geo. Starkey,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
Rowan & Brown,
C. D. BRADFORD. no31 J. L. BROWN

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at, J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-1f.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street. Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-1f.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSEND,

A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. 1f.
Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no20.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

ESTATE OF JAMES DOYLE DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given that on the first Monday of December next I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of James Doyle, late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are notified and requested to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 24th day of October, A. D. 1842.
DANIEL H. WELLS, Administrator.
no28-6w.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being removed.

persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, over prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

District court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt to be discharged from his debts. Notice is hereby given to all creditors and others interested of Elisha Tucker, a bankrupt, to appear before the District Court of the United States, on the 1st day of February 1842, at the town of Kaskaskia in this District of Illinois, and shew cause, if any they have, why the aforesaid Elisha Tucker should not receive a final discharge from all his debts and a certificate thereof be granted to him.

Dated at Springfield this 4th day of October, A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 32-2w.

ESTATE OF CHARLES B. BLOYD DECEASED.

PUBLIC notice is hereby given, that on the first Monday of December next, I shall attend before the Probate Justice of the Peace of Hancock county, at his office in Carthage, at 10 o'clock, A. M. for the purpose of settling and adjusting all claims against the estate of Charles B. Bloyd late of said county, deceased; when and where all claimants are required to present their demands for adjustment. All persons indebted to said estate are also notified to make payment to the undersigned without delay.

Dated this 12th day of October, 1842.

THOMAS SUMMERS Administrator.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price.
No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842.
no20 3m.

TAVERN STAND

FOR sale, in Appanoose, Hancock county, Ill., 8 miles above Nauvoo, opposite the ferry landing, leading to Iowa: a so l house and lot and blacksmith shop, which I will sell low for cash. Part in good horses, 1 good two horse waggon will be taken. Possession given immediately. Any one wishing to settle near Nauvoo will do well to call, hit or miss, at the Tavern in Appanoose, and examine the premises. Good titles will be given.

AMOS PERRY.

SILAS PERRY.

Appanoose, Sept. 28, 1842. no24-1f.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842. no27-1f.

AGENTS. THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Cluffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Magomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. J. Appleby, Redress Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

TRAVELING AGENTS.

Hiram Kimball.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 34.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, December 24, 1842.

Whole Number 34

THE WASP.

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

GOV. FORD'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

Fellow Citizens of the Senate
and House of Representatives:
(CONCLUDED.)

And yet we have never repudiated. The last Legislature adopted measures, which they in good faith thought amply sufficient to meet all liabilities until the present time. They set apart a fund to pay the interest bonds, and authorized the sale of those bonds at any price, for the purpose of raising money to pay accruing interest.

The measure was not a wise one, but it was adopted in good faith; and would probably have succeeded if the unforeseen scarcity and derangement in money matters, and the failure of the banks, upon which we partly relied, had not prevented it.

An enquiry of great interest to the people here presents itself to be made; which is, how is the money to be raised in future to pay interest? Can it be raised otherwise than by taxation? And if not, would justice and sound policy and the ability of the people, justify immediate payment.

Two full years' interest will be due on the whole amount of debt, before the property belonging to the State can be sold or taxes collected, amounting to the sum of $1,393,060. The exigencies of the State will require the further sum of $135,968, to be raised from the taxes, to pay the current expenses of the Government, making in the whole the sum of $1,528,828, for the first year, and the sum of $832,498, annually thereafter.

The means of payment without taxation, consist in about four hundred and seventy thousand, four hundred and sixty seven acres of land, in various parts of the State; about two thousand one hundred and ninety one town lots, on the line of the canal; the canal itself; the contemplated water power belonging to the canal two mill seats on the Little Wabash river; fifty-five miles of finished railroad; various commencements of other railroads; railroad iron, and the State stock in the banks, if no arrangement can be made to recover the bonds held by them.

It is believed, that the State stock and the unfinished railroads, would be nearly if not quite unsaleable. The water power on the canal, would be of no value before the work is completed; the town lots also mainly depend upon the completion of the canal, for a marketable quality as well as value; the railroad iron is unsuitable for any other purpose, and therefore of little value in market; and the remaining property of the State, though valuable, could not be sold for cash, for a year or two to come, without incurring ruinous losses. Any sale of the canal or canal lands, or lots, before the completion of the work, would be impossible, for any just equivalent. The forced sale of all this property at this time, or for some time to come, would scarcely yield a sum sufficient to pay more than one or two years' interest; leaving the principle debt and future interest, a continuing demand upon the people.

The following considerations have operated forcibly on my mind, in bringing me reluctantly to the conclusion that payment in money at present, raised by taxation, is impossible.

1st. The taxable property in the State, by the assessment of 1841, amounted to $69,831,419. About one and a half per cent., on this amount would have to be imposed, whereas, the people are scarcely able to pay the present tax of thirty cents on the hundred dollars.

2d. This tax would be in addition to the county taxes, amounting generally to the half of one per cent.

3d. The late census exhibits the fact, that there were in the State in 1841, 123,500 male inhabitants over the age of fifteen and under the age of fifty years. We know that our population has increased but little since that time; from which it is safe to infer, that there are not more than eighty-five thousand, able-bodied men, efficiently engaged in the production of the material which is to maintain themselves and the residue of the population, and the surplus of which is to furnish the means from which the revenue is to be raised.

4th. The amount of good money in the State, would scarcely exceed, and probably not equal double the amount to be raised by taxation for a single year, and at least one half of this is confined in the banks, so as to be of no manner of use in our business.

5th. Our people are almost generally engaged in agriculture, and whilst so employed, can never expect so great a proportion of money, in circulation as is possessed by commercial and manufacturing districts. The cost in money of agricultural pursuits is less, and less, is paid out in carrying them on, which accounts for the greater ability of commercial and manufacturing countries to raise money by taxation.

Thus we arrive at a conclusion of painful interest, that the State is not in a condition to fulfill its solemn engagements; and however mortifying it is to our pride, there is still one consolation, which is, that it has been produced by a want of ability, and not by a want of inclination. The main thing with which the world can justly reproach us is, that we were visionary and reckless; that without sober deliberation, we jumped headlong into ambitious schemes of public aggrandizement which were not justifiable by our resources. Nor are our original creditors free from reproach, on the same account.

They as men of intelligence, sufficient for the proper management of large capital, ought as well as ourselves, to have foreseen our future want of ability, and the consequent catastrophe which our common error has produced.

It is barely possible, that a most rigorous system of oppressive taxation would yield a sum sufficient to pay interest for a single year. But such a tax could not be repeated.

The apprehension of it would spread consternation and alarm throughout the breadth of the land. Our citizens would sell their property at any sacrifice and leave us for some happier home. The whole world would avoid our shores, as they would avoid certain destruction.—We would depopulate the State of its present inhabitants, and prevent any future accession by alarming strangers abroad.

Under these circumstances, it appears to me, to be neither to the interest of the people, nor solidly advantageous to our efforts, that we should make a violent and spasmodic exertion to raise money by taxation. If our creditors are ever to be paid, it will not be by the mere territory composing the State, nor by the abstract thing called the State sovereignty, but by the people, who may be here, the inhabitants of the land; and how are they to be paid, if we depopulate our country?

Two causes have operated to prevent an increase of population for a year or two past; one is the prevalent fear of exorbitant taxes; the other the reproach to which we are exposed abroad. The remedy for the first is obvious. Let it be known in the first place that no oppressive and exterminating taxation is to be resorted to, in the second we must convince our creditors and the world, that the disgrace of repudiation is not countenanced amongst us. That we are honest, and mean to pay, as soon as we are able. I would therefore recommend to the General Assembly to speak on this subject in the most decisive manner, so as to give every assurance, that in due time, we will tax ourselves, according to our ability, to pay our debts. The consequence will be, that our creditors, who are persons of power and influence, instead of reproaching us and getting up a moral crusade against us, as against a confederated band of unprincipled swindlers, with the view to coerce us to our duty, will be directly interested in doing us all the good in their power. They no doubt will exert themselves to send us substantial inhabitants; and will point out our fertile soil, to all who may wish a new home in the West.

If this policy shall be adopted, it is believed that we may expect a vast and speedy increase of our numbers and wealth. The large extent of our territory, the variety of climate and production, and the unrivalled fertility of our soil, must with the current of emigration again directed towards us, infallibly and speedily raise us from our present condition. In the mean time we are imperatively required to make every exertion and sacrifice consistent with self preservation, to keep the faith of the State. Let us offer to our creditors all that we have, at fair and reasonable prices, at least the forty-two thousand acres of land entered under the internal improvement system, together with two hundred and ten thousand acres donated to the State by the General Government, the railroads finished and unfinished, and all the property of the State, pertaining to the railroad system.

It is believed that many of our creditors would receive this property at reasonable prices, and if so, a large amount of our debt would be immediately extinguished; if not, the lands will be continually increasing in value, and becoming more and more available as a resource in future.

The canal lands and lots and other property belonging to it, stand upon a different footing. This property was first given to the State, in trust to make the canal. It was afterwards appropriated by the General Assembly to that specific object, and solemnly pledged to creditors for the payment of money heretofore borrowed, and which money has been used in the construction of the canal, so far as it has proceeded. Those creditors therefore have such a separate and exclusive right to its avails, as would not without their consent, justify throwing it into an aggregate fund for a general payment of debt. If they should require it, we would be bound in duty and honor to surrender it to them. It is however believed that no such requisition will be made. They understand their true interest too well; they know as well as ourselves, the importance and profitable character of this great work, and would prefer looking to its probable completion rather than an immediate sacrifice of the means of carrying it on for ultimate payment. They must, and do understand, that if this property should be sacrificed, the State will have no means of payment, for a long time to come; whereas if the canal progresses to completion, the lands and lots and water power will be quadrupled in value, and the tolls alone would in a short time pay interest on all the debt contracted for its construction.

In this view of the subject, it is manifestly for the interest of the people, as well as our creditors that the work should progress to completion, if possible before any of the canal lands or other property shall be sold, and it is equally the interest of all, that the work should not be abandoned, but prosecuted with all the energy and reasonable means in our power, as one of the surest and speediest measures tending to the extinguishment of our debt.

The sum of four millions eight hundred thousand dollars, or thereabouts, has already been expended on this work, in its construction, and in the payment of interest; seven hundred and fifty thousand five hundred and thirty dollars and forty-two cents of which has been raised by a sale of lands, lots, timber and stone.—10,580 acres of land were sold in 1830 for $14,204 87; also at the same time 126 lots in Chicago and 9 lots in Ottawa, were sold for $4,594. Since 1830, 295 acres have been sold for $302,248 40; and about 119 lots in La Salle, Ottawa and Lockport, for $77,793; stone and timber to the amount $9,659. And sales were made in Ottawa and Chicago in 1836 for which cash has been received to the amount of $544,074 97; and there is now due the canal fund on account of sales, the sum of $207,682 53.

In addition to this balance, the property belonging to the canal fund is as follows:—230,467 acres of land, 370 lots in Chicago, 676 in La Salle, 1528 in La Salle, other town property to be laid out at Juliet, Dupage and other places; and the water power on the entire line of the canal; the whole valued, by the acting canal commissioner, from whom these statistics were derived, at the sum of $5,050,000. It is however due to the subject to state, that this valuation is predicated upon the hypothesis that the canal is to be completed, or in sure prospect thereof.

This work has progressed nearly five-eighths towards completion, even according to the plan hitherto pursued of an enlarged canal, the deep cut through the summit level, mostly rock, and using the lake as a feeder. One of my predecessors in his message of December, 1834, recommended that a commencement should be made of a steamboat canal, and to use the waters of the lake as a feeder, thereby to improve the navigation of the Illinois river, and by increasing its current, probably render its shores more healthy. The example of New York was relied on, to show that we like her,

THE WASP.

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,
At the corner of Water and Rain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING,
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

GOV. FORD'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

Fellow Citizens of the Senate
and House of Representatives:
(CONCLUDED.)

And yet we have never repudiated. The last Legislature adopted measures, which they in good faith thought amply sufficient to meet all liabilities until the present time. They set apart a fund to pay the interest bonds, and authorized the sale of those bonds at any price, for the purpose of raising money to pay accruing interest.

The measure was not a wise one, but it was adopted in good faith; and would probably have succeeded if the unforeseen scarcity and derangement in money matters, and the failure of the banks, upon which we partly relied, had not prevented it.

An enquiry of great interest to the people here presents itself to be made; which is, how is the money to be raised in future to pay interest? Can it be raised otherwise than by taxation? And if not, would justice and sound policy and the ability of the people, justify immediate payment.

Two full years' interest will be due on the whole amount of debt, before the property belonging to the State can be sold or taxes collected, amounting to the sum of $1,393,000. The State will require the further sum of $135,968, to be raised from the taxes, to pay the current expenses of the Government, making in the whole the sum of $1,528,828, for the first year, and the sum of $832,493, annually thereafter.

The means of payment without taxation, consist in about four hundred and seventy thousand, four hundred and sixty seven acres of land, in various parts of the State; about two thousand one hundred and nine town lots, on the line of the canal; the canal itself; the contemplated water power belonging to the canal two mill seats on the Little Wabash river; fifty-five miles of finished railroad; various commencements of other railroads; railroad iron, and the State stock in the banks, if no arrangement can be made to recover the bonds held by them.

It is believed that the State stock and the unfinished railroads, would be nearly if not quite unsaleable. The water power on the canal, would be of no value before the work is completed; the town lots also mainly depend upon the completion of the canal, for a marketable quality as well as value; the railroad iron is unsuitable for any other purpose, and therefore of little value in market; and the remaining property of the State, though valuable, could not be sold for cash, for a year or two to come, without incurring ruinous losses. Any sale of the canal or canal lands, or lots, before the completion of the work, would be impossible, for any just equivalent. The forced sale of all this property at this time, or for some time to come, would scarcely yield a sum sufficient to pay more than one or two years' interest; leaving the principle debt and future interest, a continuing demand upon the people.

The following considerations have operated forcibly on my mind, in bringing me reluctantly to the conclusion that payment in money at present, raised by taxation, is impossible.

1st. The taxable property in the State, by the assessment of 1841, amounted to $69,831,419. About one and a half per cent., on this amount would have to be imposed, whereas, the people are scarcely able to pay the present tax of thirty cents on the hundred dollars.

2d. This tax would be in addition to the county taxes, amounting generally to the half of one per cent.

3d. The late census exhibits the fact, that there were in the State in 1841, 123,500 male inhabitants over the age of fifteen and under the age of fifty years. We know that our population has increased but little since that time; from which it is safe to infer, that there are not more than eighty-five thousand, able-bodied men, efficiently engaged in the production of the material which is to maintain themselves and the residue of the population, and the surplus of which is to furnish the means from which the revenue is to be raised.

4th. The amount of good money in the State, would scarcely exceed, and probably not equal double the amount to be raised by taxation for a single year, and at least one half of this is confined in the banks, so as to be of no manner of use in our business.

5th. Our people are almost generally engaged in agriculture, and whilst so employed, can never expect so great a proportion of money, in circulation as is possessed by commercial and manufacturing districts. The cost, in money of agricultural pursuits is less, and less, is paid out in carrying them on, which accounts for the greater ability of commercial and manufacturing countries to raise money by taxation.

Thus we arrive at a conclusion of painful interest, that the State is not in a condition to fulfill its solemn engagements; and however mortifying it is to our pride, there is still one consolation, which is, that it has been produced by a want of ability, and not by a want of inclination. The main thing with which the world can justly reproach us, is that we were visionary and reckless; that without sober deliberation, we jumped headlong into ambitious schemes of public aggrandizement which were not justifiable by our resources. Nor are our original creditors free from reproach, on the same account.

They as men of intelligence, sufficient for the proper management of large capital, ought as well as ourselves, to have foreseen our future want of ability, and the consequent catastrophe which our common error has produced.

It is barely possible, that a most rigorous system of oppressive taxation would yield a sum sufficient to pay interest for a single year. But such a tax could not be repeated.

The apprehension of it would spread consternation and alarm throughout the breadth of the land. Our citizens would sell their property at any sacrifice and leave us for some happier home. The whole world would avoid our shores, as they would avoid certain destruction. We would depopulate the State of its present inhabitants, and prevent any future accession by alarming strangers abroad.

Under these circumstances, it appears to me, to be neither to the interest of the people, nor solidly advantageous to our efforts, that we should make a violent and spasmodic exertion to raise money by taxation. If our creditors are ever to be paid, it will not be by the mere territory composing the State, nor by the abstract thing called the State sovereignty, but by the people, who may be here, the inhabitants of the land; and how are they to be paid if we depopulate our country?

Two causes have operated to prevent an increase of population for a year or two past; one is the prevalent fear of exorbitant taxes; the other the reproach to which we are subject abroad. The remedy for this is obvious. Let it be known in the first place that no oppressive and exterminating taxation is to be resorted to, in the second we must convince our creditors and the world, that the disgrace of repudiation is not countenanced amongst us. That we are honest, and mean to pay, as soon as we are able. I would therefore recommend to the General Assembly to speak on this subject in the most decisive manner, so as to give every assurance, that in due time, we will tax ourselves, according to our ability, to pay our debts. The consequence will be, that our creditors, who are persons of power and influence, instead of reproaching us and getting up a moral crusade against us, as against a confederated band of unprincipled swindlers, with the view to coerce us to our duty, will be directly interested in doing us all the good in their power. They no doubt will exert themselves to send us substantial inhabitants; and will point out our fertile soil, to all who may wish a new home in the West.

If this policy shall be adopted, it is believed that we may safely rely upon a and wealth. The large extent of our territory, the variety of climate and production, and the unrivalled fertility of our soil, must with the current of emigration again directed towards us, infallibly and speedily raise us from our present condition. In the meantime we are imperatively required to make every exertion and sacrifice consistent with self preservation, to keep the faith of the State. Let us offer to our creditors all that we have, at fair and reasonable prices, at least the forty-two thousand acres of land entered under the internal improvement system, together with two hundred and ten thousand acres donated to the State by the General Government, the railroads finished and unfinished, and all the property of the State, pertaining to the railroad system.

It is believed that many of our creditors would receive this property at reasonable prices, and if so, a large amount of our debt would be immediately extinguished; if not, the lands will be continually increasing in value, and becoming more and more available as a resource in future.

The canal lands and lots and other property belonging to it, stand upon a different footing. This property was first given to the State, in trust to make the canal. It was afterwards appropriated by the General Assembly to that specific object, and solemnly pledged to creditors for the payment of money heretofore borrowed, and which money has been used in the construction of the canal, so far as it has proceeded. Those creditors therefore have such a separate and exclusive right to its avails, as would not without their consent, justify throwing it into an aggregate fund for a general payment of debt. If they should require it, we would be bound in duty and honor to surrender it to them. It is however believed that no such requisition will be made. They understand their true interest too well; they know as well as ourselves, the importance and profitable character of this great work, and would prefer looking to its probable completion rather than an immediate sacrifice of the means of carrying it on for ultimate payment. They must, and do understand, that if this property should be sacrificed, the State will have no means of payment, for a long time to come; whereas if the canal progresses to completion, the lands and lots and water power will be quadrupled in value, and the tolls alone would in a short time pay interest on all the debt contracted for its construction.

In this view of the subject, it is manifestly for the interest of the people, as well as our creditors that the work should progress to completion, if possible before any of the canal lands or other property shall be sold, and it is equally the interest of all, that the work should not be abandoned, but prosecuted with all the energy and reasonable means in our power, as one of the surest and speediest measures tending to the extinguishment of our debt.

The sum of four millions eight hundred thousand dollars, or thereabouts, has already been expended on this work, in its construction, and in the payment of interest; seven hundred and fifty thousand five hundred and thirty dollars and forty-two cents of which has been raised by a sale of lands, lots, timber and stone.—10,580 acres of land were sold in 1830 for $14,204 87; also at the same time 126 lots in Chicago and 9 lots in Ottawa, were sold for $4,594. Since 1830 40,295 acres have been sold for $302,248 40; and about 119 lots in La Salle, Ottawa and Lockport, for $77,793; stone and timber to the amount $9,659. And sales were made in Ottawa and Chicago in 1836 for which cash has been received to the amount of $544,074 97; and there is now due the canal fund on account of sales, the sum of $207,682 53.

In addition to this balance, the property belonging to the canal fund is as follows:—230,467 acres of land, 370 lots in Chicago, 100 in Lockport, 83 in Ottawa, 1528 in La Salle, other town property to be laid out at Juliet, Dupage and other places; and the water power on the entire line of the canal; the whole valued, by the acting canal commissioner, from whom these statistics were derived, at the sum of $5,050,000. It is however due to the subject to state, that this valuation is predicated upon the hypothesis that the canal is to be completed, or in sure prospect thereof.

This work has progressed nearly five-eighths towards completion, even according to the plan hitherto pursued of an enlarged canal, the deep cut through the summit level, mostly rock, and using the lake as a feeder. One of my predecessors in his message of December, 1834, recommended that a commencement should be made of a steamboat canal, and to use the waters of the lake as a feeder, thereby to improve the navigation of the Illinois river, and by increasing its current, probably render its shores more healthy. The example of New York was relied on, to show that we like her,

if we commenced and finished a canal of a smaller size, in the first instance, would soon be compelled to enlarge it; it does not however, appear to have occurred to the statesman of that day, that the smaller canal was most suitable to our resources, and that if New York had proceeded to make her enlarged work in the first instance, in the infancy of her means very probably her effort would have been as abortive, as many persons fear, ours has been. One thing, is pretty certain, which is, that enough has already been expended to have finished a canal of moderate size, and sufficient for all the wants of the people for many years to come. But such magnificent ideas had seized upon our imaginations, that moderation in any thing was out of the question. The project of a steamboat canal, of improving the navigation of the Illinois river, and rendering its shores more healthy, is alluded to only for the purpose of showing the inflated and bombastic notions prevailing at the time, which by bewildering and depraving the public intellect, finally led to the extravagances subsequently committed, in the way of railroads and other internal improvements. Of all the internal improvements authorized by former legislation, the canal was perhaps the only one which ought at the time, to have been undertaken. The Congress of the United States had made a most munificent grant of lands, which we held in trust for this express purpose. Therefore in prosecuting this enterprise we had means independent of taxes; so that our predecessors could not have been charged with extravagance of design, if their efforts had been confined to this one work.

It is confidently believed, that the residue of the work, on this great enterprise can be completed, on a plan of a small high level canal, amply sufficient for the purposes of trade for years to come, and at a cost of one half less than the estimates for the plan heretofore pursued.

The cost of completing it, according to the original plan, is estimated at about $3,000,000; whereas if one of a more moderate size upon the high level plan, using the Desplaines and Calumet rivers as feeders, should be adopted, the highest estimate would not exceed $1,500,000.

It is freely conceded that the more magnificent plan hitherto pursued, is entirely the most captivating, and would be altogether preferred, if our resources were adequate thereto. But it is the present, or early use of the canal, which is most desired by the people. Providence bountifully crowns their labor with the greatest abundance; but the greater portion of them are restricted to a single and inadequate market. This communication would open another, and a better market for three-fourths of the people of this State, and a large portion of those of Missouri and Iowa; and by withdrawing them from the southern mart, the residue of the produce, which is obliged to go there, would put a formidable rival out of its way. This is a consideration which ought to weigh heavily with that portion of the State which, from geographical position, seems least interested in the work. The early completion of the canal is also greatly to be desired, as the only present means of paying interest on the debt already incurred.

As it has already been stated, the School Fund amounts to $808,104 39, of this, $335,592 21 is derived from the surplus revenue; $415,575 52 from the three per cent school fund, and $56,917 66, from sale of seminary lands. It appears also, that there is now due to the State on account of the three per cent fund, the further sum of $37,206 39; and $41,909 35 appears to be coming to the State as our distributive share of the proceeds of the sales of the public lands. This latter sum, if received, the General Assembly can rightfully appropriate as the wants of the State may require, but the former is sacred to the purpose of education. It has been our former practice, on account of a deficiency of revenue and too much fear of levying adequate taxes, to borrow this fund as it occurred, to pay the current expenses of government, and promise an interest of six per cent to be distributed amongst the several counties. Good faith, imposed on the United States from which it is derived, and to the rising generation, created the most sacred obligation that this interest should have been punctually paid in good money. On the contrary, it has been paid, for nearly a year past, in depreciated paper, and there is no provision by existing laws, for paying it otherwise in future. It does seem then, that if we find ourselves unable to make payment in cash or its just equivalent, it is little better than robbery to continue the system of borrowing, and a guilt, but little less, is contracted, if we refuse to make provision for paying interest in good funds, on the sum already borrowed. It is unfortunate that no system of revenue and expenditure has ever existed in this State; the appropriations have generally exceeded the revenue, and hence the necessity of borrowing the school fund as a means of paying current expenses. At this moment our domestic debt amounts to about $313,089 19, and there is, of present means, about $12,117 28, in the paper of the two banks, in the treasury to pay it. Appropriations have been constantly voted without reference, or enquiry as to the competency of the revenue to pay them; and thus we have been getting deeper and deeper in debt, as if our purpose were to subsist by the expedients, and throw the burdens of present government upon future generations. It does seem to me, that the main cause, to which this want of system is to be attributed, is that our predecessors have not sufficiently confided in the reports of competent financial committees, who, from their position and the inquiries necessarily to be made by them, could survey the whole ground of revenue and expenditure. A reformation in this particular is absolutely essential to any advancement in correcting existing evils.

The State taxes for the year 1841 amounted to $210,445, of which, the sum of $160,000 has been collected, the residue is to be accounted for, either as having been expended in collecting or allowed as credits for the delinquencies of tax payers. The gross amount of revenue for 1842, will probably amount to $240,000, of which, according to former precedent, $210,000 may be collected. The expenditures of the State in 1841, amounted to $236,412, and in 1842, $135,491.

The present system of revenue is the most expensive and complicated which could well have been devised; more officers are employed in collecting, than in any other State, and the compensation allowed them is unnecessarily high. No

Treasurer, at the Seat of Government, and six others, consisting of an assessor and collector, clerks of the circuit and the county commissioner's court, and sheriff and printer for each county are employed at an expense estimated as equal to twelve and one half per cent upon the whole assessment. The cost of printing the delinquent list, alone, amounts to $5,530 80. By abolishing the ceremony of carrying the delinquent list into the circuit court for judgment, the agency of one of the clerks, and the cost of several transcripts, could be dispensed with; and by requiring the whole duty of collection to be performed by either the sheriff or collector, the amount of compensation could be reduced.

The amount of expenditures also, in every department of government is unnecessarily high, and appropriations have constantly been made, which could have been dispensed with. The amount of salaries, if paid in good money, ought to be reduced. Many officers on the canal and railroad ought to be abolished. A greater amount of public printing & binding, than was absolutely necessary, has been ordered, and a higher price has been paid for the same than will be justified by the present worth and scarcity of money. Special appropriations have been made, for the last two years, which need not occur again in the next. For the State House, for furniture, for a library, for publishing reports, for rents, for portraits of Washington and Lafayette, for witnesses, contested elections, clerk hire, paper, taking the census, presidential election, and to various individuals, amounting to about $51,000. These various reformations ought to reduce the expenditures for the next two years, about $80,000.

The use of the State Bank, for fiscal purposes, by creating a necessity for paying interest on Auditor's warrants, has cost the State since 1837, about $50,000, and we are now paying that institution, for acting as the treasury of the State, and for the privilege of using its depreciated paper, a sum, varying between five and ten thousand dollars annually. Allow me respectfully to suggest that the desperate condition of the State, and the universal voice of our constituents, imperatively demand a reformation in all these particulars, and the practice of the strictest economy.

The state of the Banks and the currency, will claim a large portion of your attention. These institutions have been allowed from time to time to suspend specie payments for most of the time since the summer of 1837. They have both become insolvent since the last session of the General Assembly, although no specie was demanded of them. All confidence in them has ceased, their notes have been greatly depreciated; and although the Banks of the west and south west have generally resumed, no day has yet been appointed for a resumption of this State. We have suffered all the evils of a depreciated paper circulation; the first of which is a great and sudden scarcity of money. The specie, which ought to be in circulation, is locked up in the Banks; a large amount of the depreciated paper has been purchased up and held on speculation, and the residue, has just been sufficient to keep money of a better character from coming amongst us. Consequently we have been left without money; property has fallen unusually low in price, and the products of the farmer have been almost unsaleable. The question now is, whether Bank suspension with all its attendant evils shall be further tolerated and permanently engrafted on our institutions as an article of settled policy. It is continually asked in the community, what will be done by the General Assembly to make our currency better? The answer is, obvious; compel the Banks to resume specie payments. If they cannot resume, no measure short of legislating money into their vaults, will enhance the value of their paper.

I therefore recommend to the General Assembly to order a resumption of specie payments at an early day, and if the Banks cannot comply, to provide for winding them up with the least possible delay and withdrawing their notes from circulation.

I am not prepared with information to state whether they can or cannot maintain a resumption. I will, however, venture the opinion, that neither of them will be in a condition to resume, unless their specie on hand should be nearly equal to their immediate liabilities. If they had been mere neighborhood banks, with a circulation confined to one or two counties, they might, by honesty and correct dealing, soon regain the public confidence, but these have been great and imposing institutions, with a circulation of $4,500,000, scattered over the whole west and south. And it seems to me difficult to regain a confidence which has been lost in so great a district of country. It would be proper, at all events, for the General Assembly to make the most thorough and impartial examination into the state of their business, and upon a full knowledge of all facts, provide such a remedy as will relieve the country from the curse and blight of broken banks, and their depreciated paper.

A great deal has been said about certain charters granted to the people of Nauvoo. These charters are objectionable on many accounts, but particularly on account of the powers granted. The people of the State have become aroused the subject, and anxiously desire that those charters should be modified so as to give the inhabitants of Nauvoo no greater privileges than those enjoyed by others of our fellow citizens.

If a sound currency can be restored, if the arrangement can be made with the banks for a return of our bonds, if upon any plan the canal can be finished, so as, by the tolls and property belonging thereto, the people can be relieved of the debt incurred for its construction, and if we can so dispose of the residue of State property, as to liquidate a reasonable amount of the remaining debt, we will have accomplished that which is of the most vital interest at present.

In conclusion, I beg you to be assured of my thorough disposition to co-operate with you in all measures calculated to advance the public welfare.

THOMAS FORD.

Springfield, Dec. 8. 1842.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1842.

REMARKS ON CHARTERED RIGHTS.

It will be seen by the inaugural address of Gov. Ford, that our city charters are considered objectionable, by his excellency, on many accounts; but particularly on account of the powers granted. He states that the people of the State have become aroused on the subject and anxiously desire that those charters should be modified, so as to give the inhabitants of the city of Nauvoo no greater privileges than those enjoyed by others of our fellow citizens. The House of Representatives have taken up the subject and many of the Honorable members feel very desirous to take from us our chartered rights. We insert the whole of the particulars pertaining to this discussion as published in the Sangamo Journal of Dec. 15.

Now it does and always has appeared strange to us that such a feverish excitement and such a continuous dogged jealousy should exist on the minds of community pertaining to us as a people; and more particularly that such feelings should be cherished by Honorable members; and that opportunities should be sought to misrepresent us; and to speak evil of our religion, in the Senate Chamber, and in the Legislative Hall.

If indeed we as a people do possess peculiar, exclusive privileges; if we have violently, or fraudulently taken from any men their rights; if we have refused to be subject to any legal enactments; if we have transcended the bounds of our chartered privileges; or violated the Constitution of the State, or that of the United States; we refuse not to be dealt with legally, fairly, and constitutionally; but if we have broken no law, and have kept within the limits of our chartered rights, and those rights are not exclusive; we throw ourse ves under the banner of our great republic; we stand proudly erect, and proclaim ourselves American citizens; we claim the rights of the free sons of Columbia; we rest under the shade of our glorious Constitution; the broad folds of which we trust, will secure us from the power of religious bigots, and fanatics; the hand of persecution, and the power of tyranny and despotism.

His Excellency seems to think that our charters are 'objectionable on many accounts; but particularly on account of the powers granted.' What the many things are that are objectionable we are at a loss to know, as we have never observed them in the city charter; nor have Honorable members who have discussed this subject, informed us of them; we have heard a great deal said about exclusive rights, and extraordinary powers; but we have never yet been shown where those powers exist; and unless we have more light thrown upon the subject than has yet been made manifest, we must remain ignorant. Our city Charter grants us the privilege of electing our own Mayor, City Council, Aldermen, Marshall and Constables; of creating all offices and making all laws that shall be considered for the benefit, well being, peace and happiness of the city of Nauvoo, not repugnant to the Constitution of the United States or of this State.

Is there any thing objectionable in this? any powers that a duly advised Senator, or Legislator, would deprecate? or that a philanthropist, or republican would not subscribe to? We have, too, our charter for the Nauvoo Legion, University, and Agricultural Society.

As it regards the first of these, we say that it is equipped, officered, and organized, in a manner that not only does credit to the city of Nauvoo, but to the State of Illinois; and is acknowledged by all who have seen its numbers, uniform and discipline, and witnessed its evolutions, to be one of the most efficient military bodies in this State; have they transcended their power, been negligent in their duties, or violated the law? They have not. We ask then, would it be wise? would it be politic? would it be consonant with the feelings of enlightened republicans? and more especially of the intelligent citizens of Illinois, to trample under foot this mantle of protection; this shield of defence; and sacrifice at the shrine of religious bigotry, party spirit, and idle rumor, a band of patriots, who have voluntarily proffered their services to their country, at their country's call? rather let us imitate their example; then should we have a military force that would bid defiance to all aggressors; whose banners would float proudly, and triumphantly throughout the land; and whose prowess and military power, would become a proverb throughout the Union. Their voluntary action, the proficiency that they have made in military tactics, if found among other citizens; than the Mormons, would be lauded to the skies; they would be hailed as patriots; as highminded philanthropists, and as honorable men; but because they are found in Nauvoo, shall narrow bigotry, and religious persecution (without evidence) brand them as designing persons and traitors to their country? No! says our Constitution; No! says the Constitution of the United States; No! reiterates every patriot and republican! for at such conduct the Goddess of Liberty would weep; and of such pro-

if we commenced and finished a canal of a smaller size, in the first instance, would soon be compelled to enlarge it; it does not however, appear to have occurred to the statesman of that day, that the smaller canal was most suitable to our resources, and that if New York had proceeded to make her enlarged work in the first instance, in the infancy of her means very probably her effort would have been as abortive, as many persons fear, ours has been. One thing is pretty certain, which is, that enough has already been expended to have finished a canal of moderate size, and sufficient for all the wants of the people for many years to come.— But such magnificent ideas had seized upon our imaginations, that moderation in any thing was out of the question.— The project of a steamboat canal, of improving the navigation of the Illinois river, and rendering its shores more healthy, is alluded to only for the purpose of showing the inflated and bombastic notions prevailing at the time, which by bewildering and depraving the public intellect, finally led to the extravagances subsequently committed, in the way of railroads and other internal improvements. Of all the internal improvements authorized by former legislation, the canal was perhaps the only one which ought at the time, to have been undertaken. The Congress of the United States had made a most munificent grant of lands, which we held in trust for this express purpose. Therefore in prosecuting this enterprise we had means independent of taxes; so that our predecessors could not have been charged with extravagance of design, if their efforts had been confined to this one work.

It is confidently believed, that the residue of the work, on this great enterprise can be completed, on a plan of a small high level canal, amply sufficient for the purposes of trade for years to come, and at a cost of one half less than the estimates for the plan heretofore pursued.

The cost of completing it, according to the original plan, is estimated at about $3,000,000; whereas if one of a more moderate size upon the high level plan, using the Desplaines and Calumet rivers as feeders, should be adopted, the highest estimate would not exceed $1,500,000.

It is freely conceded that the more magnificent plan hitherto pursued, is entirely the most captivating, and would be altogether preferred, if our resources were adequate thereto. But it is the present, or early use of the canal, which is most desired by the people. Providence crowns their labor with the greatest abundance; but the greater portion of them are restricted to a single and inadequate market. This communication would open another, and a better market for three-fourths of the people of this State, and a large portion of those of Missouri and Iowa; and by withdrawing them from the southern mart, the residue of the produce, which is obliged to go there, would put a formidable rival out of its way. This is a consideration which ought to weigh heavily with that portion of the State which, from geographical position, seems least interested in the work. The early completion of the canal is also greatly to be desired, as the only present means of paying interest on the debt already incurred.

As it has already been stated, the School Fund amounts to $809,104 39, of this, $335,592 21 is derived from the surplus revenue, $415,575 52 from the three per cent school fund, and $56,917 66, from sale of seminary lands. It appears also, that there is now due to the State on account of the three per cent fund, the further sum of $37,206 39; and $41,909 35 appears to be coming to the State as our distributive share of the proceeds of the sales of the public lands. This latter sum, if received, the General Assembly can rightfully appropriate as the wants of the State may require, but the former is sacred to the purpose of education. It has been our former practice, on account of a deficiency of revenue and too much fear of levying adequate taxes, to borrow this fund as it occurred, to pay the current expenses of government, and promise an interest of six per cent to be distributed amongst the several counties. Good faith, to ourselves, to the United States from which it is derived, and to the rising generation, created the most sacred obligation that this interest should have been punctually paid in good money. On the contrary, it has been paid, for nearly a year past, in depreciated paper, and there is no provision by existing laws, for paying it otherwise in future. It does seem then, that if we find ourselves unable to make payment in cash or its just equivalent, it is little better than robbery to continue the system of borrowing, and a guilt, but little less, is contracted, if we refuse to make provision for paying interest in good funds, on the sum already borrowed. It is unfortunate that no system of revenue and expenditure has ever existed in this State; the appropriations have generally exceeded the revenue, and hence the necessity of borrowing the school fund as a means of paying current expenses. At this moment our domestic debt amounts to about $313,089 19, and there is, of present means, about $12,117 28, in the paper of the two banks, in the treasury to pay it. Appropriations have been constantly voted without reference, or enquiry as to the competency of the revenue to pay them; and thus we have been getting deeper and deeper in debt, as if our purpose were to subsist by the expedients, and throw the burdens of present government upon future generations. It does seem to me, that the main cause, to which this want of system is to be attributed, is that our predecessors have not sufficiently confided in the reports of competent financial committees, who, from their position and the inquiries necessarily to be made by them, could survey the whole ground of revenue and expenditure. A reformation in this particular is absolutely essential to any advancement in correcting existing evils.

The State taxes for the year 1841 amounted to $210,445, of which, the sum of $169,000 has been collected, the residue is to be accounted for, either as having been expended in collecting or allowed as credits for the delinquencies of tax payers. The gross amount of revenue for 1842, will probably amount to $240,000, of which, according to former precedent, $210,000 may be collected. The expenditures of the State in 1841, amounted to $236,412, and in 1842, $135,494.

The present system of revenue is the most expensive and complicated which could well have been devised; more officers are employed in collecting, than in any other State, and the compensation allowed them is unnecessarily high. No less than two officers, the Auditor and Treasurer, at the Seat of Government, and six others, consisting of an assessor and collector, clerks of the circuit and the county commissioner's court, and sheriff and printer for each county are employed at an expense estimated as equal to twelve and one half per cent upon the whole assessment. The cost of printing the delinquent list, alone, amounts to $5,530 80. By abolishing the ceremony of carrying the delinquent list into the circuit court for judgment, the agency of one of the clerks, and the cost of several transcripts, could be dispensed with; and by requiring the whole duty of collection to be performed by either the sheriff or collector, the amount of compensation could be reduced.

The amount of expenditures also, in every department of government is unnecessarily high, and appropriations have constantly been made, which could have been dispensed with. The amount of salaries, if paid in good money, ought to be reduced. Many officers on the canal and railroad ought to be abolished. A greater amount of public printing & binding, than was absolutely necessary, has been ordered, and a higher price has been paid for the same than will be justified by the present worth and scarcity of money. Special appropriations have been made, for the last two years, which need not occur again in the next. For the State House, for furniture, for a library, for publishing reports, for rents, for portraits of Washington and Lafayette, for witnesses, contested elections, clerk hire, paper, taking the census, presidential election, and to various individuals, amounting to about $51,000. These various reformations ought to reduce the expenditures for the next two years, about $80,000.

The use of the State Bank, for fiscal purposes, by creating a necessity for paying interest on Auditor's warrants, has cost the State since 1837, about $50,000, and we are now paying that institution, for acting as the treasury of the State, and for the privilege of using its depreciated paper, a sum, varying between five and ten thousand dollars annually. Allow me respectfully to suggest that the desperate condition of the State, and the universal voice of our constituents, imperatively demand a reformation in all these particulars, and the practice of the strictest economy.

The state of the Banks and the currency, will claim a large portion of your attention. These institutions have been allowed from time to time to suspend specie payments for most of the time since the summer of 1837. They have both become insolvent since the last session of the General Assembly, although no specie was demanded of them. All confidence in them has ceased, their notes have been greatly depreciated; and although the Banks of the west and south west have generally resumed, no day has yet been appointed for a resumption of this State. We have suffered all the evils of a depreciated paper circulation, the first of which is a great and sudden scarcity of money. The specie, which ought to be in circulation, is locked up in the Banks; a large amount of the depreciated paper has been purchased up and held on speculation, and the residue, has just been sufficient to keep money of a better character from coming amongst us. Consequently we have been left without money; property has fallen unusually low in price, and the products of the farmer have been almost unsaleable. The question now is, whether Bank suspension with all its attendant evils shall be further tolerated and permanently engrafted on our institutions as an article of settled policy. It is continually asked in the community, what will be done by the General Assembly to make our currency better? The answer is, obvious; compel the Banks to resume specie payments. If they cannot resume, no measure short of legislating money into their vaults, will enhance the value of their paper.

I therefore recommend to the General Assembly to order a resumption of specie payments at an early day, and if the Banks cannot comply, to provide for winding them up with the least possible delay, and withdrawing their notes from circulation.

I am not prepared with information to state whether they can or cannot maintain a resumption. I will, however, venture the opinion, that neither of them will be in a condition to resume, unless their specie on hand should be nearly equal to their immediate liabilities. If they had been mere neighborhood banks, with a circulation confined to one or two counties, they might, by honesty and correct dealing, soon regain the public confidence, but these have been great and imposing institutions, with a circulation of $4,500,000, scattered over the whole west and south. And it seems to me difficult to regain a confidence which has been lost in so great a district of country. It would be proper, at all events, for the General Assembly to make the most thorough and impartial examination into the state of their business, and upon a full knowledge of all facts, provide such a remedy as will relieve the country from the curse and blight of broken banks, and their depreciated paper.

A great deal has been said about certain charters granted to the people of Nauvoo. These charters are objectionable on many accounts, but particularly on account of the powers granted. The people of the State have become aroused the subject, and anxiously desire that those charters should be modified so as to give the inhabitants of Nauvoo no greater privileges than those enjoyed by others of our fellow citizens.

If a sound currency can be restored, if the arrangement can be made with the banks for a return of our bonds, if upon any plan the canal can be finished, so as, by the tolls and property belonging thereto, the people can be relieved of the debt incurred for its construction, and if we can so dispose of the residue of State property, as to liquidate a reasonable amount of the remaining debt, we will have accomplished that which is of the most vital interest at present.

In conclusion, I beg you to be assured of my thorough disposition to co-operate with you in all measures calculated to advance the public welfare.

THOMAS FORD.

Springfield, Dec. 8. 1842.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1842.

REMARKS ON CHARTERED RIGHTS.

It will be seen by the inaugural address of Gov. Ford, that our city charters are considered objectionable, by his excellency, on many accounts; but particularly on account of the powers granted. He states that the people of the State have become aroused on the subject and anxiously desire that those charters should be modified, so as to give the inhabitants of the city of Nauvoo no greater privileges than those enjoyed by others of our fellow citizens. The House of Representatives have taken up the subject and many of the honorable members feel very desirous to take from us our chartered rights. We insert the whole of the particulars pertaining to this discussion as published in the Sangamo Journal of Dec. 15.

Now it does and always has appeared strange to us that such a feverish excitement and such a continuous dogged jealousy should exist on the minds of community pertaining to us as a people; and more particularly that such feelings should be cherished by honorable members; and that opportunities should be sought to misrepresent us, and to speak evil of our religion, in the Senate Chamber, and in the Legislative Hall.

If indeed we as a people do possess peculiar, exclusive privileges: if we have violated, or fraudulently taken from any man their rights; if we have refused to be subject to any legal enactments; if we have transgressed the bounds of our chartered privileges; or violated the Constitution of the State, or that of the United States; we refuse not to be dealt with legally, fairly, and constitutionally: but if we have broken no law, and have kept within the limits of our chartered rights, and those rights are not exclusive: we throw ourselves under the banner of our great republic; we stand proudly erect, and proclaim ourselves American citizens; we claim the rights of the free sons of Columbia: we rest under the shade of our glorious Constitution: the broad folds of which we trust, will secure us from the power of religious bigots, and fanatics; the hand of persecution, and the power of tyranny and despotism.

His Excellency seems to think that our charters are objectionable on many accounts; but particularly on account of the powers granted. What the many things are that are objectionable we are at a loss to know, as we have never observed them in the city charter; nor have honorable members who have discussed this subject, informed us of them; we have heard a great deal said about exclusive rights, and extraordinary powers, but we have never yet been shown where those powers exist; and unless we have some right which others do not possess, there has yet been made manifest, we must remain ignorant. Our city Charter grants us the privilege of electing our own Mayor, City Council, Aldermen, Marshall and Constables; of creating all offices and making all laws that shall be considered for the benefit, well being, peace and happiness of the city of Nauvoo, not repugnant to the Constitution of the United States or of this State.

Is there any thing objectionable in this? any powers that a duly advised Senator, or Legislator, would deprecate? or that a philanthropist, or republican would not subscribe to? We have, too, our charter for the Nauvoo Legion, University, and Agricultural Society.

As it regards the first of these, we say that it is equipped, officered, and organized, in a manner that not only does credit to the city of Nauvoo, but to the State of Illinois; and is acknowledged by all who have seen its numbers, uniform and discipline, and witnessed its evolutions, to be one of the most efficient military bodies in this State: have they transgressed their power, been negligent in their duties, or violated the law? They have not. We ask then, would it be wise? would it be politic? would it be consonant with the feelings of enlightened republicans? and more especially of the intelligent citizens of Illinois, to trample under foot this mantle of protection; this shield of defence; and sacrifice at the shrine of religious bigotry, party spirit, and idle rumor, a band of patriots, who have voluntarily proffered their services to their country, at their countries call? rather let us imitate their example; then should we have a military force that would bid defiance to all aggressors: whose banners would float proudly, and triumphantly throughout the land; and whose prowess and military power, would become a proverb throughout the Union. Their voluntary action, the proficiency that they have made in military tactics, if found among other citizens, than the Mormons, would be lauded to the skies: they would be hailed as patriots; as high minded philanthropists, and as honorable men; but because they are found in Nauvoo, shall narrow bigotry, and religious persecution (without evidence) brand them as designing persons and traitors to their country! No! says our Constitution; No! says the Constitution of the United States; No! reiterates every patriot and republican! for at such conduct the Goddess of Liberty would weep; and of such proceedings even the monarchs of Europe would be ashamed.

Concerning our charters for a University, and an Agricultural and Manufacturing Society; we presume that there are not any of the intelligent inhabitants of the State of Illinois who would, upon mature deliberation, wish for such a thing as the repeal. The first has a tendency to refine the mind, enlarge the intellect, and promote learning, literature and science; while the second has a tendency to increase our resources, improve our agriculture, encourage home manufacture, and be a source of wealth, not only to Nauvoo, but to the surrounding country, and to the State. Is there any thing objectionable in this? or would it be consonant with the high-minded, the energetic, and the intelligent citizens of Illinois to proscrib learning, science, trade and agriculture?

But we are very gravely told that the people of the State have become aroused, and anxiously desire that those charters should be repealed, or modified; and one of the Honorable members, Mr. Hicks, also zealous to fulfil the wishes of his constituents, that he wishes them annulled, root and branch, immediately; without reference, without testimony, without examination, without evidence, and in the absence of any positive knowledge of whether they were right or wrong; as if we were on the eve of some fearful event, thought that the House could not be better employed now than in voting these charters a down. And what is the reason assigned by Honorable members for this unprecedented course of conduct? That the interests of the community require it, and that it is the wish of their constituents to have this business despatched immediately; that they may have ample evidence that they are doing their duty.

With all deference, however, to the opinions of his Excellency, and that of Honorable members, who have spoken on this subject; we would beg leave to differ with them in relation to the views that are entertained by the citizens of this State generally, and particularly by the intelligent portion of them.

That a prejudice exists in certain sections of the country, where they have no means of obtaining information concerning us and our proceedings; but through the false statements, the vile abuse, and the published detraction and slander (principally of a religious nature,) that is found in the columns of the Angamo Journal, the Quincy Whig, and other publications, of a similar kind, we are free to admit; but that this feeling is general, that it arises from any extraordinary powers that we possess or from an abuse of our chartered privileges, we think cannot be sustained; and we trust that there will be found a respectable majority of Honorable members, within the walls of the Legislative Hall, that will sustain the liberal and enlightened views of the Hon. Mr. McClelland, that he was in favor of giving the Mormons equal rights. He was satisfied that they had been persecuted; that great efforts had been made to get up an excitement against them; and that they did as much right to protect on as any other sect. He did not believe that the charter of Nauvoo contained any greater powers than had been granted to other cities.

"The people of Illinois," feel highly exasperated, and desire a repeal of our charter!!! It cannot be possible; what have we done to them that they should desire it? At a time when the interests of the State have been declining;—when in consequence of foolish, and wild legislative enactments the State has been overwhelmed with debt;—when the State has no alternative left, but that of a dishonorable repudiation;—at a time when many of the citizens have left the State in consequence of a burdensome taxation;—at a time when our banks have become insolvent, and our credit destroyed, when our wisest men have stood confounded, and have not known what method to adopt to save the State from ruin. While all hearts have flitted the Mormons have been pouring in a flood of emigration, which is unprecedented in the history of this State; and with that emigration a proportionate increase of wealth;—they have built up a city which bids fair soon, to be the largest city in the west. They have converted a desolate waste into fields and gardens; they have enhanced the value of property, for many miles around Nauvoo, tenfold; they have created a market that takes in a great portion of the surplus produce, that is raised within thirty and forty miles of Nauvoo; and in the city of Nauvoo alone (which three years ago was a barren waste) their city and county tax amounts to upwards of four thousand dollars, (as per last assessment;) they have commenced some splendid buildings, that in point of magnitude, architectural design, elegant workmanship, and splendid appearance, will rival or outvie any buildings in the west, and will be an ornament to the State of Illinois; and they have also raised a large independent military body which does honor to the State, and is one of its strongest defenses; they are making arrangements to manufacture pottery that will equal the finest porcelain ware; that now have to be imported from England, at an enormous expense; and have in contemplation to manufacture iron, and also cotton, silk, and woolen goods; and is this an injury to the citizens of Illinois? The Mormons have also maintained as good morals, and there have been as few delinquencies among them, as among the same number of people in this, or any other State in the Union. Can it be possible then that "the people of Illinois" should desire to proscrib our privileges? We believe not. The Mormons as Mr. McClelland states "have been persecuted, and political demagogues, religious bigots, and partisan papers, have fanned the flame, and made dishonorable use of religious prejudice for political effect; but do these men call themselves, "the people of Illinois." Will that honorable body of men composing the Legislative Assembly be governed by such illiberal views; or will the respectable and enlightened portion of the inhabitants of this State subscribe to such narrow contracted, bigoted, and unsympathetic views? God forbid! we believe they will not.

The following from the Chicago Democrat sustains us in our remarks, pertaining to attitude and persecution.

JOSEPH SMITH.

"We do not pick up a single newspaper but has something to say about the distinguished sectarian. One locates him here and another there. One says he is doing this evil thing and another that. When, in fact, they know nothing about him. We are in the regular receipt of the Nauvoo papers, one of which, religious, the Times & States, is edited by him; and, all through the excitement, he has been at Nauvoo, diligently attending to his own business. Ours is a political paper and it shall favor no religious sect at all, but shall deal with all fairly. Now what good does all this lying and abuse about the Mormon prophet do? A joke at his expense, or any one else's, can be appreciated and passed over. But, at the present time, the matter is carried too far and, so far as our foreign press (he might also have added with propriety some of the press of this State) is concerned, the Mormons are a belied and persecuted sect. Joseph Smith has as good a right to keep a creed as Mahommed, Luther, Calvin, King Henry the VIII., Wesley, Campbell, or Parson Miller. His doctrines will go for what they are worth and no more. Above never injured a cause nor did slander ever make a man's friends the less in the end. Give Joe Smith his due. Tell the truth about him and taste stop. He asks no more, nor should any one else."

It is however stated by a Honorable member (Mr. Johnson) that Jo. (Joseph) Smith, the Mormon prophet, has used this charter to arrest himself from the civil authorities of the State, by causing himself to be brought before the Municipal Court of Nauvoo; and upon a trial of some sort discharged; and thus wantonly set at defiance, the civil authorities of this State. And that he has openly trampled, and violated the Governor of Missouri, and Ex-Governor Carlin, and set at defiance our institutions there can be as little doubt. In regard to the latter statement, we should have been pleased if the honorable member had referred us to the time, circumstance, or documents, concerning Joseph Smith's setting at defiance our institutions, and violating the Governor; as we have no knowledge of the thing ourselves, and should very much "doubt it." But supposing it was true; what has that to do with our charter; if he has defied the institutions of the State, or violated the Governor; let him be dealt with according to law; let him suffer for his own crimes;—he is not the inhabitants of the city of Nauvoo; he is but one individual in it; thus we are told that one individual, out of about ten thousand, has done some thing wrong; and forsooth the whole community must be destroyed, body and bones. Oh shame where is thy blush! If we were to judge as a judiciary, any corporation, body politic, or legislative assembly by this rule, we should not find one but that would be destroyed throughout the length, and breadth of this vast republic.

In regard to the charge of Mr. Smith's being brought before the Municipal Court, and of his being tried, and dismissed by them; the statement is incorrect. Mr. Smith was not brought before that tribunal at all. It is true that the Municipal Court issued a writ of Habeas Corpus (according to the salutory, and wise provisions made in the charter) but the sheriff was unwilling to give the process up, until he had first obtained legal advice; while he was absent Mr. Smith disappeared. Because he was not in court, are the citizens of Nauvoo to be blamed? did they resist the civil authorities, or retard, or hinder their search for that gentleman? They did not. They considered the writ to be illegal; and knew that the whole was a religious persecution; but despite of all this, they did not resist the civil authorities. Mr. William Law, who is City Councilor, and General in the Nauvoo Legion, told the sheriff in the presence of a promiscuous company that he might have free access to search anywhere that he thought proper, that he might take with him a sufficient number to facilitate the search. He would pledge his honor, that he would not, and should not be injured. Was he injured, we again ask? no. What then have the citizens of Nauvoo done in this particular? Echo answers what!

In regard to the policy of his taking the steps he did, to another question, and not connected with our citizens generally; but we should think, that at that time of feverish excitement, when illegal claims had been made by the State of Missouri, and the Governor of this State had endorsed those claims; when rumor, with her ten thousand tongues, was busy circulating detraction, and falsehood; the press teeming with vituperative abuse and falsehood, and the public mind excited to the highest pitch; we think that perhaps he took the wisest course; and our opinion is sustained by that of many intelligent men. That these claims were illegal, and the course pursued by Governor Carlin wrong, is very fully shown in an able, learned, and lucid article, written by Justin Butterfield, the U. S. Attorney for the district of Illinois, and may be found in the last number of the Wasp published Dec. 17th.

He states that Governor Reynolds of Missouri had no right to make such a requisition, upon the mere oath of Ex-Governor Boggs, and that the Governor of this State had no right to give him any; we quote the following.

Dear Sir: In answer to your favour of the 17th inst. Mr. Warren was correct in the information he gave you of my opinion of the illegality of the requisition made by the Governor of Missouri upon the Governor of this State, for the surrender of Joseph Smith, and that the Governor of this State should cause him to be arrested, for the purpose of being surrendered I had no doubt but the Supreme Court of this State would discharge him upon Habeas Corpus.—subsequent examination has confirmed me in that opinion. I understand from your letter, and from the statement of facts made to me by Mr. Warren, that the requisition of the Governor of Missouri, is accompanied by an affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs, stating in substance, that on the 6th day of May last he was shot while sitting in his house, with intent to kill, and as he verily believes, the act was committed by O. P. Rockwell, and that Joseph Smith was accessory to the crime before its commission, and that he has fled from justice; that it can be proved that Joseph Smith was not in the State of Missouri at the time the crime was committed; but was in this State; that it is untrue that he was in the State of Missouri at the time of the commission of the said crime, or has been there at any time since; he could not, therefore, have fled from that State since the commission of the said crime. &c. &c.

It is not to be presumed that the Executive of this State would, knowingly, lend his aid in dragging one of our citizens, who is not a fugitive from justice, into a foreign State, for trial. The Governor has, undoubtedly, been misled by the evasive affidavit which accompanied the requisition. I would advise that Mr. Smith procure respectable and sufficient affidavits to prove, beyond all question that he was in this State, and not in Missouri, at the time the crime, with which he is charged, was committed; and, upon those affidavits, apply to the Governor to countermand the warrant he has issued for his arrest. If he should refuse so to do, I am clearly of the opinion that upon the above state of facts, the Supreme Court will discharge him upon Habeas Corpus."

Respectfully your obedient servant,

JUSTIN BUTTERFIELD.

At that time when the Executive of two States, had either knowingly, and wantonly, or ignorantly, (we leave this for the public to judge) abused the power vested in their hands; and contrary to law, contrary to justice, and contrary to constitutional rights, were using the influence that their position gave them, to injure a free born American citizen; at a time when public excitement was wound to the highest pitch; and mobs were threatening on every hand; if the Executive of these States had manifested such egregious ignorance in regard to that affair, he knew not but that their precedent, and influence, and the influence of religious prejudice might bias the minds of others, who might act in his case; but independent of this, ten chances to one but that he had been kidnapped by Missouri; and whether he had been given up by the judiciary of this State, or been kidnapped (both would have been illegal) it would have made no difference; he would have been in the hands of a people who could not administer justice to him; who have heretofore acted as a legalized mob; and who would no doubt have murdered him. Under these circumstances we think that he took the wisest course.

But independent of what is before mentioned, relative to our charters; we very much doubt the legality, constitutionality, and sound policy of taking them away. We have always been in the habit of looking upon charters as instruments of a most sacred, and binding nature, in which the maintenance, and adherence to; or departure from; the honor and dignity of a state, or nation was concerned; and that when once granted constitutionally, and without a repealing clause, or a reference to the time of their expiration, they could not be repealed, or annulled, without the consent of the state, or nation; without the consent of both parties viz. the petitioners and the state, or nation.

We are led to these conclusions, both from the nature of the compact, and from the precedent and usages of legislative bodies; if we trace the formation of governments to the first organization of society, we shall realize the importance of one grand truth, which is found in the Declaration of Independence, and ought to be written in letters of gold; "that all mankind are born free and equal." In this situation nature placed mankind, and every man ruled his own house, made and administered his own laws, defended his own rights, and protected his own property; when governments were formed, conventions were held, and each man gave up his own individual rights to govern, for the general good of the whole community;—such a community was formed in America at the time of the Declaration of Independence. Having resisted the tyrannical, and thrown off the yoke of the mother country; being no longer subject to their laws; they became individually responsible for their own acts; these individuals selected persons from among themselves, in their several districts, to represent their interests; and thus the law-making department, or government, was empowered by the people to legislate for them, and the people promised to be governed by their enactments, subject however to the constitution, which had been sanctioned by the people; and which was their magna charta, their protection, and safeguard. Without entering into the particulars of the formation and organization of the United States, the history of which is familiar to all, we would remark, that by this constitution the representatives were bound;—beyond it they could not go;—and any acts that they might pass, contrary to this would be illegal, and the people were not bound to receive them. This Constitution thus formed and sanctioned, making general provisions for the uttermost good of the whole community, among other things provided, for the admission of new States into the Union, from the territories; or in other words, ceded up the right to govern, which had been vested in their hands, and allowed them to make their own laws, become free and independent, and to govern themselves; subject however to certain restrictions as expressed in the Constitution of the United States, for the general good. Thus the people of that State became as free and independent, in regard to their local affairs, as though the United States had not been formed; they are however bound by certain principles (which are acknowledged by all the States) of a general nature, to the confederation, for the mutual good of all the States of the Union. Just such a State is Illinois; she petitioned for the right to govern herself, which position was granted, and she became an independent State. It has been customary for these independent States, thus formed, as population has increased, and towns become populous, and the task become onerous for the Legislature to manage all their local affairs, to grant charters to different cities, and thus give up to those specific places, (what was ceded to them by the General Government.) The right to govern themselves in all local affairs; subject however to the restrictions of their charter, which is to them what the Constitution is to the State.

Now the United States never thought of taking from any of the separate States their Constitution, they were bound by every sense of justice, honor and integrity, to maintain the independence of the several States inviolate, and having ceded up the power to govern, could not take it back. The same principle will apply unto chartered rights, granted unto cities, and we have yet to learn that any of the United States, or the mother country, having granted a city charter ever took it back. If will, we presume be left for the State of Illinois to launch forth into this new field of legislation, and accomplish this feat; which would stamp an eternal stain upon her escutcheon, and be an anomaly in the history of all free nations, and we presume in the world.

When the 'Magna Charter' was signed by King John of England, although much against his will, was that instrument ever rescinded, either by him or any succeeding monarch? It was not;—the subject never entered their councils.

There have many charters and grants been made by that country, to cities, boroughs, certain districts of country, and to individuals, many of which are foolish and obnoxious, but their rights have been held sacred and inviolate.

In New York the 'Manhattan company' petitioned the Legislature for a charter, granting them the privilege of watering the city, and in that charter there was an ambiguous clause pertaining to their surplus funds, which was unobserved by the legislators; but which, however, gave them a perpetual charter for a bank; their petition was heard; they commenced their banking operations, to the surprise of the legislators, who soon saw how they had been duped;—the subject of repeal was brought up before the house; but it could not be carried. The people were enraged, and the Legislature were called on a special session to investigate the subject of repeal; but they found that they could not honorably accomplish it, and all that they could do was to pass an act that no charter of a similar kind should again be granted.

Here then was a charter obtained through duplicity and guile, which the Legislative Assembly of New York found themselves bound to maintain inviolate; whilst our charter was obtained openly, honorably, and above board, and because there is a bare supposition without proof, that one individual has done something wrong, our charter must be taken away, the whole of the citizens injured, and our city laws and polity destroyed.

and its injury to the Government; the loss that would be sustained by companies, and individuals; the want of confidence that such a step would produce &c; but as our sheet is not large, we shall desist; and shall content ourselves, for the present, by saying that as such a step would be unprecedented in the annals of Legislative bodies; that as it would be contrary to sound policy; that as it would be dishonorable and unconstitutional, and would be a great injury to private individuals, that as the State is at the present time, through absolute necessity, on the verge of repudiation; that they will not recklessly commit themselves by depriving a number of their fellow citizens of their chartered rights, and bring dishonor on the State, that might be avoided. We believe they will not.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of George D. Grant, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that George D. Grant, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 22nd day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 22d day of December A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk: 431-42.

ceedings even the monarchs of Europe would be ashamed.

Concerning our charters for a University, and an Agricultural and Manufacturing Society, we presume that there are not any of the intelligent inhabitants of the State of Illinois who would, upon mature deliberation, wish for such a thing as the repeal. The first has a tendency to refine the mind, enlarge the intellect, and promote learning, literature and science; while the second has a tendency to increase our resources, improve our agriculture, encourage home manufacture, and be a source of wealth, not only to Nauvoo, but to the surrounding country, and to the State. Is there any thing objectionable in this? or would it be consonant with the high-minded, the energetic, and the intelligent citizens of Illinois to proscribe learning, science, trade and agriculture?

But we are very gravely told that the people of the State have become aroused, and anxiously desire that those charters should be repealed, or modified; and one of the Honorable members, Mr. Hicks, is so zealous to fulfil the wishes of his constituents, that he wishes them annulled, root and branch, immediately; without reference, without testimony, without examination, without evidence, and in the absence of any positive knowledge of whether they were right or wrong: as if we were on the eve of some fearful event, thought that the House could not be too employed now than in voting these charters a-1 down. And what is the reason assigned by Honorable members for this unprecedented course of conduct? That the interests of the community require it, and that it is the wish of their constituents to have this business despatched immediately; that they may have ample evidence that they are doing their duty.

With all deference, however, to the opinions of his Excellency, and that of Honorable members, who have spoken on this subject; we would beg leave to differ with them in relation to the views that are entertained by the citizens of this State generally, and particularly by the intelligent portion of them.

That a prejudice exists in certain sections of the country, where they have no means of attaining information concerning us and our proceedings; but through the false statements, the vile abuse, and the published detraction and slander (principally of a religious nature), that is found in the columns of the Wangano Journal, the Quincy Whig, and other publications, of a similar kind, we are free to admit; but that this feeling is general; that it arises from any extraordinary powers that we possess, or from an abuse of our chartered privileges, we think cannot be sustained; and we trust that there will be found a respectable majority of Honorable members, within the walls of the Legislative Hall, that will sustain the liberal and enlightened views of the Hon. Mr. McClelland, that he was in favor of giving the Mormons equal rights. He was satisfied that they had been persecuted; that great efforts had been made to get up an excitement against them; and that they had as much right to protect on as any other sect. He did not believe that the charter of Nauvoo contained any greater powers than had been granted to other cities.

"The people of Illinois," feel highly exasperated at us, and desire a repeal of our charter!!! It cannot be possible; what have we done to them that they should desire it? At a time when the interests of the State have been declining;—when in consequence of foolish, and overwhelmed in debt, so that there seems to be no alternative left, but that of a dishonorable repudiation;—at a time when many of the citizens have left the State in consequence of a burdensome taxation;—at a time when our banks have become insolvent, and our credit destroyed, when our wisest men have stood confounded, and have not known what method to adopt to save the State from ruin. While all hearts have fainted the Mormons have been pouring in a flood of emigration, which is unprecedented in the history of this State; and with that emigration a proportionate increase of wealth;—they have built up a city which bids fair soon, to be the largest city in the west. They have converted a desolate waste into fields and gardens; they have enhanced the value of property, for many miles around Nauvoo, tenfold; they have created a market that takes in a great portion of the surplus produce, that is raised within thirty and forty miles of Nauvoo; and in the city of Nauvoo alone (which three years ago was a barren waste) their city and county tax amounts to upwards of four thousand dollars, (as per last assessment); they have commenced some splendid buildings, that in point of magnitude, architectural design, elegant workmanship, and splendid appearance, will rival or outvie any buildings in the west, and will be an ornament to the State of Illinois; and they have also raised a large independent military body which does honor to the State, and is one of its strongest defenses; they are making arrangements to manufacture pottery that will equal the finest porcelain ware; that now have to be imported from England, at an enormous expense; and have it in contemplation to manufacture iron, and also cotton, silk, and woolen goods; and is this an injury to the citizens of Illinois? The Mormons have also maintained as good morals, and there have been as few delinquencies among them, as among the same number of people in this, or any other State in the Union. Can it be possible then that "the people of Illinois" should desire to proscribe our privileges? We believe not. The Mormons as Mr. McClelland states "have been persecuted," and political demagogues, religious bigots, and partisan papers, have fanned the flame, and made dishonorable use of religious prejudice for political effect; but do these men call themselves, "the people of Illinois." Will that honorable body of men comprising the Legislative Assemble be governed by such liberal views; or will the respectable and enlightened portion of the inhabitants of this State subscribe to such narrow, contracted, bigoted, and anti-republican views? God forbid! we believe they will not.

The following from the Chicago Democrat sustains us in our remarks, pertaining to slander and persecution.

JOSEPH SMITH.

"We do not pick up a single newspaper but has something to say about this distinguished sectarian. One locates him here and another there. One says he is doing this evil thing and another that. When, in fact, they know nothing about him. We are in the regular receipt of the Nauvoo papers, one of which, religious, the Times & Seasons, is edited by him; and, all through the excitement, he has been at Nauvoo diligently attending to his own business. Ours is a political paper and it shall favor no religious sect at all, but shall deal with all fairly. Now what good does all this lying and abuse about the Mormon prophet do? A joke at his expense or any one else's can be appreciated and passed over. But at the present time, the matter is carried too far and, to far as our foreign press (he might also have added with propriety some of the presses of this State) is concerned, the Mormons are a betted and persecuted sect. Joseph Smith has as good a right to set up a creed as Mohammed, Luther, Calvin, King Henry the VIII, Wesley, Campbell, or Parson Millet. His doctrines will go for what they are worth and no more. Abuse never injured a cause nor did slander ever make a man's friends the less in the end. Give Joseph Smith his due. Tell the truth about him and these stop. He asks no more, nor should any one else."

It is however stated by a honorable member (Mr. Johnson) that Jo. (Joseph) Smith, the Mormon prophet, has used this charter to arrest himself from the civil authorities of the State, by causing himself to be brought before the Municipal Court of Nauvoo; and upon a trial of some sort discharged; and thus vauntingly set at defiance, the civil authorities of this State. And that he has openly traduced, and vilified the Governor of Missouri, and Ex-Governor Carlin, and set at defiance our institutions there can be as little doubt. In regard to the latter statement, we should have been pleased if the honorable member had referred us to the time, circumstances, or documents, concerning Joseph Smith's setting at defiance our institutions, and vilifying the Governor; as we have no knowledge of the thing ourselves, and should very much "doubt it." But supposing it was true; what has that to do with our charter; if he has defied the institutions of the State, or vilified the Governor; let him be dealt with according to law; let him suffer for his own crimes;—he is not the inhabitants of the city of Nauvoo; he is but one individual in it; thus we are told that one individual, out of about ten thousand, has done some thing wrong; and forsooth the whole community must be destroyed, body and bones. Oh shame where is thy blush! If we were to judge any judiciary, any corporation, body politic, or legislative assembly by this rule, we should not find one but that would be destroyed throughout the length, and breadth of this vast republic.

In regard to the charge of Mr. Smith's being brought before the Municipal Court, and of his being tried, and dismissed by them; the statement is incorrect. Mr. Smith was not brought before that tribunal at all. It is true that the Municipal Court issued a writ of Habeas Corpus (according to the salutory, and wise provisions of the charter) but the sheriff was unwilling to give the prisoners up, until he had first obtained legal advice; while he was absent Mr. Smith disappeared. Because he was not forthcoming, are the citizens of Nauvoo to be blamed? did they resist the civil authorities, or retard, or hinder their search for that gentleman? They did not. They considered the writ to be illegal; and knew that the whole was a religious persecution; but despite of all this, they did not resist the civil authorities. Mr. William Law who is City Councilor, and General in the Nauvoo Legion, told the sheriff in the presence of a promiscuous company that he might have free access to search anywhere that he thought proper, that he might take with him a sufficient number to facilitate the search, and that he would pledge his honor, that he would not, and should not be injured. Was he injured, we again ask? no. What then have the citizens of Nauvoo done in this particular? Echo answers what!

In regard to the policy of his taking the steps he did, is another question, and not connected with our citizens generally; but we should think, that at that time of feverish excitement, when illegal claims had been made by the State of Missouri, and the Governor of this State had endorsed those claims; when rumor, with her ten thousand tongues, was busy circulating detraction, and falsehood; the press teeming with vituperative abuse and falsehood, and the public mind excited to the highest pitch; we think that perhaps he took the wisest course; and our opinion is sustained by that of many intelligent men. That those claims were illegal, and the course pursued by Governor Carlin wrong, is very fully shown in an able, learned, and lucid article, written by Justin Butterfield, the U. S. Attorney for the district of Illinois, and may be found in the last number of the Wasp published Dec. 17th.

He states that Governor Reynolds of Missouri had no right to make such a requisition, upon the mere oath of Ex-Governor Boggs, and that the Governor of this State had no right to give him up; we quote the following.

Dear Sir: In answer to your favors of the 17th inst. Mr. Warren was correct in the information he gave you of my opinion of the illegality of the requisition made by the Governor of Missouri, upon the Governor of this State, for the surrender of Joseph Smith, and that the Governor of this State should cause him to be arrested, for the purpose of being surrendered I had no doubt but the Supreme Court of this State would discharge him upon Habeas Corpus, subsequent examination has confirmed me in that opinion. I understand from your letter, and from the statement of facts made to me by Mr. Warren; that the requisition of the Governor of Missouri, is accompanied by an affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs, stating in substance, that on the 6th day of May last he was shot while sitting in his house, with intent to kill, and as he verily believes, the act was committed by O. P. Rockwell, and that Joseph Smith was accessory to the crime, before its commission, and that he has fled from justice; that it can be proved that Joseph Smith was not in the State of Missouri at the time the crime was committed; but was in this State; that it is untrue that he was in the State of Missouri at the time of the commission of the said crime, or has been there at any time since; he could not, therefore, have fled from that State since the commission of the said crime. * * * *

It is not to be presumed that the Executive of this State would, knowingly, lend his aid in dragging one of our citizens, who is not a fugitive from justice, into a foreign State, for trial. The Governor has, undoubtedly, been misled by the evasive affidavit which accompanied the requisition. I would advise that Mr. Smith procure respectable and sufficient affidavits to prove, beyond all question that he was in this State, and not in Missouri, at the time the crime, with which he is charged, was committed; and, upon those affidavits, apply to the Governor to countermand the warrant he has issued for his arrest. If he should refuse so to do, I am clearly of the opinion that upon the above state of facts, the Supreme Court will discharge him upon Habeas Corpus.

Respectfully your obedient servant.

JUSTIN BUTTERFIELD.

At that time when the Executive of two States, had either knowingly, and wantonly, or ignorantly, (we leave this for the public to judge) abused the power vested in their hands; and contrary to law, contrary to justice, and contrary to constitutional rights, were using the influence that their position gave them, to injure a free born American citizen; at a time when public excitement was wound to the highest pitch; and mobs were threatening on every hand; if the Executive of these States had manifested such egregious ignorance in regard to that affair, he knew not but that their precedent, and influence, and the influence of religious prejudice might bias the minds of others, who might act in his case; but independent of this, ten chances to one but that he had been kidnapped by Missouri; and whether he had been given up by the judiciary of this State, or been kidnapped (both would have been illegal) it would have made no difference; he would have been in the hands of a people who could not administer justice to him; who have heretofore acted as a legalized mob; and who would no doubt have murdered him. Under these circumstances we think that he took the wisest course.

But independent of what is before mentioned, relative to our charters; we very much doubt the legality, constitutionality, and sound policy of taking them away. We have always been in the habit of looking upon charters as instruments of a most sacred, and binding nature, in which the maintenance, and adherence to; or departure from; the honor and dignity of a state, or nation was concerned; and that when once granted constitutionally, and without a reserving clause, as a reference to the time of their expiration, they could not be repealed, or altered, without tarnishing the escutcheon of the state, or nation; without the consent of both parties viz. the petitioners and the state, or nation.

We are led to these conclusions, both from the nature of the compact, and from the precedent and usages of legislative bodies; if we trace the formation of governments to the first organization of society, we shall realize the importance of one grand truth, which is found in the Declaration of Independence, and ought to be written in letters of gold; "that all mankind are born free and equal." In this situation nature placed mankind, and every man ruled his own house, made and administered his own laws, defended his own rights, and protected his own property; when governments were formed, conventions were held, and each man gave up his own individual rights to govern, for the general good of the whole community;—such a community was formed in America at the time of the Declaration of Independence. Having resisted the tyranny, and thrown off the yoke of the mother country; being no longer subject to their laws; they became individually responsible for their own acts; these individuals selected persons from among themselves, in their several districts, to represent their interests; and thus the law-making department, or government, was empowered by the people to legislate for them, and the people promised to be governed by their enactments, subject however to the constitution, which had been sanctioned by the people; and which was their magna charta, their protection, and safeguard. Without entering into the particulars of the formation and organization of the United States, the history of which is familiar to all, we would remark, that by this constitution the representatives were bound;—beyond it they could not go; and any acts that they might pass contrary to this would be illegal, and the people were not bound to receive them. This Constitution thus formed and sanctioned, making general provisions for the universal good of the whole community, among other things provided for the reception of new States into the Union, from its territories; or, in other words, ceded up the right to govern, which had been vested in their hands, and allowed them to make their own laws, become free and independent, and to govern themselves; subject however to certain restrictions as expressed in the Constitution of the United States, for the general good. Thus the people of that State became as free and independent, in regard to their local affairs, as though the United States had not been formed; they are however bound by certain principles (which are acknowledged by all the States) of a general nature, to the confederation, for the mutual good of all the States of the Union.

Just such a State is Illinois; she petitioned for the right to govern herself, which petition was granted, and she became an independent State. It has been customary for these independent States, thus formed, as population has increased, and towns become populous, and the task become onerous for the Legislature to manage all their local affairs, to grant charters to different cities, and thus give up to those specific places, (what was ceded to them by the General Government.) The right to govern themselves in all local affairs; subject however to the restrictions of their charter, which is to them what the Constitution is to the State.

Now the United States never thought of taking from any of the separate States their Constitution; they were bound by every sense of justice, honor and integrity, to maintain the independence of the several States inviolate, and having ceded up the power to govern, could not take it back. The same principle will apply unto chartered rights, granted unto cities, and we have yet to learn that any of the United States, or the mother country, having granted a city charter ever took it back. It will, we presume be left for the State of Illinois to launch forth into this new field of legislation, and accomplish this feat; which would be as disreputable as it is strange; which would stamp an eternal stain upon her escutcheon, and be an anomaly in the history of all free nations, and we presume in the world.

When the Magna Charter was signed by King John of England, although much against his will, was that instrument ever rescinded, either by him or any succeeding monarch? It was not;—the subject never entered their councils.

There have many charters and grants been made by that country, to cities, boroughs, certain districts of country, and to individuals, many of which are foolish and obnoxious, but their rights have been held sacred and inviolate.

In New York the "Manhattan company" petitioned the Legislature for a charter, granting them the privilege of watering the city, and in that charter there was an ambiguous clause pertaining to their surplus funds, which was unobserved by the legislators; but which, however, gave them a perpetual charter for a bank; their petition was heard; they commenced their banking operations, to the surprise of the legislators, who soon saw how they had been duped;—the subject of repeal was brought up before the house; but it could not be carried. The people were enraged, and the Legislature were called on a special session to investigate the subject of repeal; but they found that they could not honorably accomplish it, and although they could do was to pass an act that no charter of a similar kind should again be granted.

Here then was a charter obtained through duplicity and guile, which the Legislative Assembly of New York found themselves bound to maintain inviolate; whilst our charter was obtained openly, honorably, and above board, and because there is a bare supposition without proof, that one individual has done something wrong, our charter must be taken away, the whole community injured, and our city laws and polity destroyed.

We might refer to the bad policy of such a step and its injury to the Government; the loss that would be sustained by companies, and individuals; the want of confidence that such a step would produce &c; but as our sheet is not large, we shall desist; and shall content ourselves, for the present, by saying that as such a step would be unprecedented in the annals of Legislative bodies; that as it would be contrary to sound policy; that as it would be dishonorable and unconstitutional, and would be a great injury to private individuals, that as the State is at the present time, through absolute necessity, on the verge of repudiation; that they will not recklessly commit themselves by depriving a number of their fellow citizens of their chartered rights, and bring dishonor on the State, that might be avoided. We believe they will not.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of George D. Grant, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that George D. Grant, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 22nd day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 22d day of December A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Cwings Clerk: 31-42.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Friday, Dec. 9.

Mr. DAVIS of Bond, introduced a resolution concerning the charter of Nauvoo city, and urged its repeal.

Mr. HICKS moved to amend by including also the city charter of Springfield. He was in favor of curtailing the powers granted to the city of Nauvoo; the interest of the people required it, if not a repeal of the charter. The same objection existed in relation to the charter of Springfield, and all other cities in the State, and the same measure applied to one should be meted to the other. As to the Mormons he was willing to secure to them the worship of God or Joe Smith, as they might choose; but he was in favor of taking the State arms from them.

Mr. OWEN was sorry the matter had been brought up. The Governor had alluded to the same matter in his message, and he intended to have it referred to a committee. He was pleased to see so many members who perhaps had voted to grant these charters. He had examined the different charters and found the same objection to exist against others as he did against Nauvoo, and if it was changed he would go for changing the whole. As for the State arms, he believed they had only their quota.

Mr. SMITH of Hancock, thought the matter brought forward prematurely, and by persons too not well acquainted with the chartered privileges of Nauvoo. He was willing that Nauvoo should be weighed in the balance on the principle of justice; he only wanted Nauvoo to enjoy the same privilege as other incorporated cities in the State. He did not come here to discuss religion; but he objected to a repeal of the charter on the ground that large sums of money had been expended in certain buildings which would be in a measure lost, and depreciation of private property. As to the removing of the State arms, he could see no advantage in depriving them of their use—they were organized in accordance with the militia laws of the State; and so far as any danger was to be apprehended from them, he thought the State had as much reason to fear a handful of old women and children. They intended no disturbance, but would in all things conform to the laws and constitution of the country.

Mr. McCLERNAND was in favor of giving the Mormons equal rights. He was satisfied that they had been persecuted; that great efforts had been made to get up an excitement against them, that they had as much right to protection as any other sect. He did not believe that the charter of Nauvoo contained any greater powers than had been granted to other cities. If they held more than their quota of State arms, he was for distributing them among those who did not.

Mr. JONAS moved an amendment, to strike out after resolved, and insert that the whole matter be referred to the committee on the judiciary to report such amendments as they think necessary.

Mr. JONAS supported his amendment by a few remarks. He was not unfriendly to Nauvoo, and had never been so, and appealed to the gentleman from Hancock. He would give to Nauvoo the same privileges as he would to Springfield. He was unwilling to trust the matter to a select committee. He wanted the judiciary committee to take up the whole matter, and report amendments when amendments were necessary to the charter of Nauvoo or any other city.

Mr. DAVIS of Bond, said he did not believe as some people did; nor did he think that crowd as innocent as some had represented them to be. Nor did he believe they were so willing to comply with the laws, as they so innocently profess, and referred to the requisition of the Governor of Missouri. House adjourned.

IN SENATE.

Saturday, Dec. 10.

Mr. JOHNSON moved the adoption of the following:

Whereas the people of the State of Illinois have become highly exasperated at the unusual and impolitic powers granted by the last Legislature in incorporating the city of Nauvoo, entitled an act to incorporate the city of Nauvoo, also an act entitled an act to incorporate the Nauvoo Agricultural, and Manufacturing Association, in the county of Hancock, under and by virtue of which Mormons have openly set at defiance the laws of the State of Illinois, by refusing to surrender Jo Smith, the Mormon prophet, upon the requisition of the Governor of the State, by arresting said Smith from the hands of the officers of the State authorized to take him by legal process, and discharging him by a pretended trial before the Municipal Court of the City of Nauvoo, authorized by the provisions of the charter of said City. And whereas said Smith has openly traduced and vilified both the Governor of Missouri, and Ex-Governor Carlin of Illinois, for their efforts to arrest and bring him to trial, upon a charge of a heinous and aggravated nature, setting at defiance the authorities, and proclaiming through the Wasp, and Times and Seasons, two Mormon newspapers printed in said city, that said Smith never should be given up, in obedience to the mandates of the law; and whereas such conduct is not only highly reprehensible, but a reproach upon the free institutions of the State, Therefore,

Resolved, That it is the duty of the Legislature of the State, in obedience to the wish of the people, to repeal both the Charters incorporating the City of Nauvoo, and one incorporating the Nauvoo Agricultural and Manufacturing Association in the county of Hancock.

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be instructed to report a bill as soon as practicable, repealing both the above named Charters.

This preamble and resolution lays over one day.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Saturday, Dec. 10.

Mr. JONAS withdrew his amendment and offered a substitute embracing nearly the same proposition, and making it the duty of the judiciary committee to report a bill to repeal or amend, as they should think proper.

Mr. OWINGS was in favor of referring the subject to some other committee.

Mr. HICKS opposed any reference. The House could not be better employed than now voting these charters all down.

Mr. MURPHY opposed the reference to the judiciary committee, and moved to refer it to be committee on corporations; agreed to.

IN SENATE—Monday, Dec. 12.

Resolution concerning the charter of the city of Nauvoo was taken up.

Mr. CAVERLY and Mr. DAVIS moved that the resolution be laid on the table; Mr. Davis until the fourth of July next.

Mr. BAKER moved to strike out all after the word Resolved, and insert a bill the city Charters of the State.

Mr. HENRY wished the mover would withdraw the amendment.

Mr. JOHNSON spoke at some length against the Charters; we have not room to insert his speech.

Senate adjourned till 2 o'clock.

The Press.—Gen. Cass has written, as is supposed, a defence of the American press, in reply to the attacks of the English Quarterly and Dickens.

GRANT & WATT,

TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused. Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842.

no27-1f.

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multifarious diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix naturae.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay.

Nov. 30, 1842.

no31-6w.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House.

no29-1f.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care. In the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.

Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842.

no31-1f.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State.

Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842.

18-3m.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price.

No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842.

no20 3m.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Simeon Cooley, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Simeon Cooley, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 29th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this district as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 29th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-w2.

BRADFORD & BROWN, Commission and Forwarding Merchants, Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds of produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,

Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis,

A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,

Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.

December 10, 1842. no32-

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Isaac C. Howd, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Isaac C. Howd, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 29th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-2w.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Stanton, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Stanton, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 29th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-w2

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of

Medicines,	Paints and Oils,
Pure,	Wines,
Glass,	Putty,
School,	Books,
Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-1f.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND,

A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. 1f.

Nauvoo Nov 3, 1842. no29-

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-1f.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Friday, Dec. 9.

Mr. DAVIS of Bond, introduced a resolution concerning the charter of Nauvoo city, and urged its repeal.

Mr. HICKS moved to amend by including also the city charter of Springfield. He was in favor of curtailing the powers granted to the city of Nauvoo; the interest of the people required it, if not a repeal of the charter. The same objection existed in relation to the charter of Springfield, and all other cities in the State, and the same measure applied to one should be meted to the other. As to the Mormons he was willing to secure to them the worship of God or Joe Smith, as they might choose; but he was in favor of taking the State arms from them.

Mr. OWEN was sorry the matter had been brought up. The Governor had alluded to the same matter in his message, and he intended to have it referred to a committee. He was pleased to see so many members who perhaps had voted to grant these charters. He had examined the different charters and found the same objection to exist against others as he did against Nauvoo, and if it was changed he would go for changing the whole. As for the State arms, he believed they had only their quota.

Mr. SMITH of Hancock, thought the matter brought forward prematurely, and by persons too not well acquainted with the chartered privileges of Nauvoo. He was willing that Nauvoo should be weighed in the balance on the principle of justice; he only wanted Nauvoo to enjoy the same privilege as other incorporated cities in the State. He did not come here to discuss religion; but he objected to a repeal of the charter on the ground that large sums of money had been expended in certain buildings which would be in a measure lost, and depreciation of private property. As to the removing of the State arms, he could see no advantage in depriving them of their use—they were organized in accordance with the militia laws of the State; and so far as any danger was to be apprehended from them, he thought the State had as much reason to fear a handful of old women and children. They intended no disturbance, but would in all things conform to the laws and constitution of the country.

Mr. McCLELLAND was in favor of giving the Mormons equal rights. He was satisfied that they had been persecuted; that great efforts had been made to they had as much right to protection as any other sect. He did not believe that the charter of Nauvoo contained any greater powers than had been granted to other cities. If they held more than their quota of State arms, he was for distributing them among those who did not.

Mr. JONAS moved an amendment, to strike out after resolved, and insert that the whole matter be referred to the committee on the judiciary to report such amendments as they think necessary.

Mr. JONAS supported his amendment by a few remarks. He was not unfriendly to Nauvoo, and had never been so, and appealed to the gentleman from Hancock. He would give to Nauvoo the same privileges as he would to Springfield. He was unwilling to trust the matter to a select committee. He wanted the judiciary committee to take up the whole matter, and report amendments when amendments were necessary to the charter of Nauvoo or any other city.

Mr. DAVIS of Bond, said he did not believe as some people did; nor did he think that crowd as innocent as some had represented them to be. Nor did he believe they were so willing to comply with the laws, as they so innocently profess, and referred to the requisition of the Governor of Missouri. House adjourned.

IN SENATE.

Saturday, Dec. 10.

Mr. JOHNSON moved the adoption of the following:

Whereas the people of the State of Illinois have become highly exasperated at the unusual and impolitic powers granted by the last Legislature in incorporating the city of Nauvoo, entitled an act to incorporate the city of Nauvoo, also an act entitled an act to incorporate the Nauvoo Agricultural and Manufacturing Association, in the county of Hancock, under and by virtue of which Mormons have openly set at defiance the laws of the State of Illinois, by refusing to surrender Jo Smith, the Mormon prophet, upon the requisition of the Governor of the State, by arresting said Smith from the hands of the officers of the State authorized to take him by legal process, and discharging him by a pretended trial before the Municipal Court of the City of Nauvoo, authorized by the provisions of the charter of said City. And whereas said Smith has openly traduced and vilified both the Governor of Missouri, and Ex-Governor Carlin of Illinois, for their efforts to arrest and bring him to trial, upon a charge of a heinous and aggravated nature, setting at defiance the authorities, and proclaiming through the Wasp, and Times and Seasons, two Mormon newspapers printed in said city, that said Smith never should be given up, in obedience to the mandates of the law; and whereas such conduct is not only highly reprehensible, but a reproach upon the free institutions of the State, Therefore,

Resolved, That it is the duty of the Legislature of the State, in obedience to the wish of the people, to repeal both the Charters incorporating the City of Nauvoo, and one incorporating the Nauvoo Agricultural and Manufacturing Association in the county of Hancock.

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be instructed to report a bill as soon as practicable, repealing both the above named Charters.

This preamble and resolution lays over one day.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Saturday, Dec. 10.

Mr. JONAS withdrew his amendment and offered a substitute embracing nearly the same proposition, and making it the duty of the judiciary committee to report a bill to repeal or amend, as they should think proper.

Mr. OWINGS was in favor of referring the subject to some other committee.

Mr. HICKS opposed any reference. The House could not be better employed than now voting these charters all down.

Mr. MURPHY opposed the reference to the judiciary committee, and moved to refer it to the committee on corporations; agreed to.

IN SENATE—Monday, Dec. 12.

Resolution concerning the charter of the city of Nauvoo was taken up.

Mr. CAVERLY and Mr. DAVIS moved that the resolution be laid on the table; Mr. Davis until the fourth of July next.

Mr. BAKER moved to strike out all after the word Resolved, and insert all the city Charters of the State.

Mr. HENRY wished the mover would withdraw the original preamble and resolution.

Mr. JOHNSON spoke at some length against the Charters; we have not room to insert his speech.

Senate adjourned till 2 o'clock.

The Press.—Gen. Cass has written, as is supposed, a defence of the American press, in reply to the attacks of the English Quarterly and Dickens.

GRANT & WATT,

TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused. Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN. no27-1f. Oct. 15, 1842.

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multiform diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix naturae.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Herpia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay. Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuance of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-1f.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care. In the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842. no31-1f.

W. H. RALSTON,

ATTORNEY & COUNSELLOR AT LAW, Carthage, Hancock county, Ill., will practice in the Hancock Circuit court, and also in the Supreme Circuit and District Courts of this State. Carthage, Aug. 18, 1842. 18-3m.

GROCERIES.

STARNES & SPRINGER inform the customers and the merchants generally of Nauvoo, that they have a large assortment of Groceries on hand which they offer very cheap. Any orders sent to them will be punctually attended to, and goods put at the lowest price. No. 4 Water St., St. Louis, Sept 3, 1842. no20 3m.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Simeon Cooley, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Simeon Cooley, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 29th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this district as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 29th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON, Solicitor for petitioner. Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-w2.

BRADFORD & BROWN, Commission and Forwarding Merchants, Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans, Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis. A. H. Mathews, Warsaw, Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati. December 10, 1842. no32-

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Isaac C. Howd, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Isaac C. Howd, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 29th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON, Solicitor for petitioner. Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-2w.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Joseph Stanton, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Joseph Stanton, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 20th day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of December A. D. 1842.

GUY C. SAMPSON, Solicitor for petitioner. Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-w2.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street.—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN. Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-1f.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND, A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. 1f. Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-1f.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 35.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, December 31, 1842.

Whole Number 35

THE WASP.

IS EDITED BY

JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

From the Legislative State Register, Extra.

REPORT

From the Executive Officers of Illinois, on the Subject of the prohibition of
State Bank and Bank of Illinois paper,
in payment of the public revenue.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, ILLINOIS,

Springfield, December 8, 1842.

To the Hon. the General Assembly:

We would respectfully represent to your honorable body, that on the 15th day of August last, we issued a proclamation, prohibiting the reception of State Bank paper in payment of school, college, and seminary debts and interest, and in payment of the public revenue. This proclamation was issued in conformity with the provisions of an act, entitled "An act concerning the payment of revenue, and for other purposes," approved January 16, 1836. This act, while it made the bills of the State Bank and branches receivable for all public dues, expressly enjoined the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer, whenever they should apprehend any danger, of loss to the State, to prohibit their reception for such purpose. An act, entitled "An act concerning the public revenue, approved February 26, 1839," remodelled the revenue system, and in addition to the bills of the State Bank, made the bills of the Bank of Illinois at Shawneetown, also receivable for revenue. This latter act repealed all previous laws coming in conflict with its provisions; but the law of 1836 not coming in conflict, but being in harmony with its provisions, continued unrepealed and still in force; besides, "if a particular duty is enjoined upon an officer, he can only be released from the performance of that duty by express provision of law. By virtue, therefore, of the law of 1836, we were not only invested with power, but required, in case of apparent loss, to prohibit the reception of State Bank paper for public dues, and this duty we performed to the best of our abilities. All the beneficial effects of this proclamation being likely to be defeated by the reception of the bills of the Bank of Illinois in payment of revenue, we issued another proclamation on the 12th day of September last, warning collectors against receiving depreciated paper in payment of taxes for any more than its current value.

The 12th section of the revenue law of 1839, directs that "the collectors of the several counties shall receive in payment for taxes the bills or notes of the State Bank of Illinois or branches, notes of the Bank of Illinois, gold and silver coin, and Auditor's warrants."

By this section bills of the Bank of Illinois were made receivable in payment for taxes. As the law of 1836 had no reference to these bills, we did not think ourselves authorized to prohibit their reception. But in the payment of taxes, which is a debt due to the State, as in the payment of any other debt, although the notes of a particular institution may be made receivable, it does not follow that they are to be received for more than their real value. If the law, for instance, had made any other commodity receivable in payment for taxes, it would hardly be contended that such commodity, should be received for more than its specie value; and we can see no sanctity in bank paper, to exempt it from the operation of a principle, which is applicable in all other cases. The crisis, to which the prostration of the Bank reduced the State, made it extremely difficult to decide upon a course of policy that would preserve the revenue of 1842, and render it available for public purposes, and yet lighten if possible, the burdens of a community almost destitute of a currency.

The foregoing were the measures adopted for this purpose, and it was hoped that at such a period of trial, the people would prudently suspend the payment of revenue, until the Legislature should have an opportunity of providing some remedy for the difficulties which threatened to overwhelm the State.

Early in the spring of 1842 the State Bank suffered its notes to depreciate more than one half upon their nominal value. This having occurred in the midst of a fiscal year, when the revenue of 1841 was partly collected, it was necessary to continue the reception of the residue of the tax of that year in the same currency. Hence, this paper became the only medium of payment to public creditors. Judges, and other officers of government, were obliged to take it at par for their salaries, and even the interest on the school fund could only be paid in this worthless currency. A fraud was thus unscrupulously committed, not upon the officers only, but upon all who performed services for the State, in the collection of revenue or otherwise, and even upon the very helplessness of infancy, by depriving the children of our citizens of the means of obtaining a common education. In addition to all this, the State sustained immense loss, in exchanging Auditor's warrants, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, for depreciated notes, which it was often necessary to dispose of afterwards, at a discount of sixty per cent. to defray the incidental expenses of government. The constitution expressly prohibited the Legislature from reducing the salaries of the Judges. The object of this prohibition was to preserve the independence of the Judiciary. The Bank, however, found no difficulty in reducing their salaries more than one half, and this too, when its own officers were receiving liberal salaries in gold and silver. The Legislature had directed, that all the taxes when collected, should be paid over to the State Bank, and the State relied upon its ability and good faith to defray the expenses of government. This plan of making a banking corporation, both the treasury and pay-master of the State, was borrowed from the federal government, whose revenue had been almost always controlled by banks, previous to the introduction of the independent treasury. Heretofore, the collection of revenue rarely commenced before the end of the current year, but it became manifest, that tax payers, would this season, hasten the payment of the revenue of 1842, in order to pay in depreciated paper, before the Legislature could make any change in the system. The effect of this would have been, to place the whole revenue of the present year in the vaults of the State Bank, beyond the reach, both of the Legislature and the people. A State that could give away a year's revenue, when totally destitute of credit or means to carry on the government would subject itself to the imputation of insanity. Besides it was not difficult to foresee, that questions of immense magnitude would claim the attention of the present Legislature.

The disposition to be made of the public debt, as it is calculated to have a permanent bearing on the character and destiny of our State, will call for the highest exertion of public wisdom. It may be considered expedient to withdraw the State stock from the banks to appropriate the whole of the lands and public property owned by the State to the redemption of State bonds, and to establish a sinking fund, to be applied some way, to the ultimate extinguishment of the debt.

Another question of deep interest to the State, is the disposition to be made of the Canal. That magnificent work should be prosecuted to completion if possible. But how can any of these great objects be accomplished without revenue? And how is revenue ever to be obtained if collected in depreciated paper, and paid over to the State Bank? It cannot be said with propriety, that as the State is indebted to the Bank, it is bound to collect the revenue for, and pay it over to that institution. As the largest stocks holder, the State, even according to bank practice, is entitled to a much larger standing accommodation, than the whole amount of the debt claimed to be due from it. This is upon the supposition, that the State is indebted to the Bank; but the more likely supposition is, that, upon a full and final settlement, when all dividends and arrears are fairly accounted for, the Bank will fall considerably in debt to the State. Under such circumstances, to collect a year's revenue, and pay it over to the Bank, would leave the State in absolute want of means to carry on the government. The consequences of this policy would have been to compel the present Legislature, as it is responsible for the preservation of the government, to levy a new tax to save it from instantaneous dissolution. To prevent any such necessity, and the distress that would ensue from it, we issued the proclamations before alluded to; the incidental effect of which was, as expected, to suspend the collection of the greatest part of the revenue of 1842, and its consequent payment to the State Bank. It is now subject to the control of your honorable body. You can either continue its collection in depreciated paper, at par, or at specie value, or require payment to be made in some other medium. It will be perceived by reference to the proper estimates, that the taxes of 1842, and the succeeding year, will admit of a reduction of about one half on the present rate. When thus reduced they can be easily collected in current funds and Auditor's warrants. This will create a demand for warrants, which will enhance their value and render them an available resource to carry on the government, until a sound currency obtains a general circulation. The warrants already outstanding, and unredeemed are estimated at $28,898 26. The amount necessary to defray the expenses of the Legislature will be about $50,000. The amount to be issued next January to discharge the interest of the school fund will be $23,365 00, making in all $102,263 26, an amount more than sufficient to pay the reduced revenue of 1842. This, instead of increasing the burdens of the people, will facilitate their means of paying taxes, and furnish them a temporary, and easily procurable medium for that purpose. There is no danger of warrants depreciating in value, so long as the annual issue falls short of the annual revenue. This is not an untried scheme of policy. It is similar in most respects to the plan adopted by the late Democratic administration, to save the federal government from sinking with the bankrupt banking institutions of the country. The present is a propitious time to carry those principles into practical operation, which are calculated to promote the welfare of the people: to establish an economical administration of government—an independent treasury—and to introduce a metallic currency. A specie circulation, without which the people can never hope for permanent prosperity, can be easily obtained, by compelling the banks to go into immediate liquidation. According to their own reports, they have at this time nearly a million of dollars in specie, lying idle in their vaults. Let this be paid out pro rata upon their notes, and put into general circulation, and its beneficial effects will soon be felt in the increased price of our domestic products. There is no danger of this specie being transmitted to eastern cities, in discharge of mercantile balances. Exchange is now in favor of St. Louis, and capital that has been for some time past accumulating in the east, is finding its way westward, in quest of the rich productions of the Mississippi valley. From the unrivalled fertility of the soil of Illinois, all that its citizens require, is their proportionate share of the precious metals, to enter into successful competition in foreign markets, with the most favored States of the Union. It is folly to hope for better times, while the channels of trade are clogged up with depreciated paper. So long as the banks are continued in existence, so long will the prosperity of our people be retarded. They have almost sucked the life-blood out of the State already. Instead of bringing in foreign capital, and disseminating it amongst the people, they have been effective engines in the hands of foreign speculators, to drain the State of all its substantial wealth. Since the establishment of these institutions, there has been ten millions of money borrowed and expended amongst the citizens of Illinois; wealth has also been obtained from emigration, and the exportation of domestic products, and yet all this has disappeared as if by enchantment, and the State in 1842 finds itself steeped in poverty, and depending for a currency upon depreciated paper. The time has arrived to remove these agents of our impoverishment, and we trust the measures we have taken to facilitate the accomplishment of this object, will meet with your approbation and approval.

The accompanying documents will explain the nature of the measures to which we resorted.

THOS. CARLIN, Governor.

JAS. SHIELDS, Auditor.

M. CARPENTER, Treasurer.

CURIOS.—A merchant of this city, this morning received from his correspondent in Bremen about $500 in silver coin. On counting them, he found dollars made at the Philadelphia mint as far back as 1795. Besides these pieces, there were dollars from all the Republics in South American, mixed with those of Mexico and old Spain.—New Orleans Courier.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 35.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, December 31, 1842.

Whole Number 35

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY

JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF;

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.From the Legislative State Register, Extra.
REPORTFrom the Executive Officers of Illinois,
on the Subject of the prohibition of
State Bank and Bank of Illinois paper,
in payment of the public revenue.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, ILLINOIS,

Springfield, December 8, 1842.

To the Hon. the General Assembly:

We would respectfully represent to your honorable body, that on the 15th day of August last, we issued a proclamation, prohibiting the reception of State Bank paper in payment of school, college, and seminary debts and interest, and in payment of the public revenue. This proclamation was issued in conformity with the provisions of an act, entitled "An act concerning the payment of revenue, and for other purposes," approved January 16, 1836. This act, while it made the bills of the State Bank and branches receivable for all public dues, expressly enjoined the Governor, Auditor and Treasurer, whenever they should apprehend any danger of loss to the State, to prohibit their reception for such purpose. An act, entitled "An act concerning the public revenue, approved February 26, 1839," remodelled the

and in addition to the bills of the State Bank, made the bills of the Bank of Illinois at Shawneetown, also receivable for revenue. This latter act repealed all previous laws coming in conflict with its provisions; but the law of 1836 not coming in conflict, but being in harmony with its provisions, continued unrepealed and still in force; besides, if a particular duty is enjoined upon an officer, he can only be released from the performance of that duty by express provision of law. By virtue, therefore, of the law of 1836, we were not only invested with power, but required, in case of apparent loss, to prohibit the reception of State Bank paper for public dues, and this duty we performed to the best of our abilities. All the beneficial effects of this proclamation being likely to be defeated by the reception of the bills of the Bank of Illinois in payment of revenue, we issued another proclamation on the 12th day of September last, warning collectors against receiving depreciated paper in payment of taxes for any more than its current value.

The 12th section of the revenue law of 1839, directs that "the collectors of the several counties shall receive in payment for taxes the bills or notes of the State Bank of Illinois or branches, notes of the Bank of Illinois, gold and silver coin, and Auditor's warrants."

By this section bills of the Bank of Illinois were made receivable in payment for taxes. As the law of 1836 had no reference to these bills, we did not think ourselves authorized to prohibit their reception. But in the payment of taxes, which is a debt due to the State, as in the payment of any other debt, although the notes of a particular institution may be made receivable, it does not follow that they are to be received for more than their real value. If the law, for instance, had made any other commodity receivable in payment for taxes, it would hardly be contended that such commodity, should be received for more than its specie value; and we can see no sanctity in bank paper, to exempt it from the operation of a principle, which is applicable in all other cases. The crisis, to which the prostration of the Bank reduced the State, made it extremely difficult to decide upon a course of policy that would preserve the revenue of 1842, and render it available for public purposes, and yet lighten if possible, the burdens of a community almost destitute of a currency.

The foregoing were the measures adopted for this purpose, and it was hoped that at such a period of trial, the people would prudently suspend the payment of revenue, until the Legislature should have an opportunity of providing some remedy for the difficulties which threatened to overwhelm the State.

Early in the spring of 1842 the State Bank suffered its notes to depreciate more than one half upon their nominal value. This having occurred in the midst of a fiscal year, when the revenue of 1841 was partly collected, it was necessary to continue the reception of the residue of the tax of that year in the same currency. Hence, this paper became the only medium of payment to public creditors. Judges, and other officers of government, were obliged to take it at par for their salaries, and even the interest on the school fund could only be paid in this worthless currency. A fraud was thus unscrupulously committed, not upon the officers only, but upon all who performed services for the State, in the collection of revenue or otherwise, and even upon the very helplessness of infancy, by depriving the children of our citizens of the means of obtaining a common education. In addition to all this, the State sustained immense loss, in exchanging Auditor's warrants, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum, for depreciated notes, which it was often necessary to dispose of afterwards, at a discount of sixty per cent. to defray the incidental expenses of government. The constitution expressly prohibited the Legislature from reducing the salaries of the Judges. The object of this prohibition was to preserve the independence of the Judiciary. The Bank, however, found no difficulty in reducing their salaries more than one half, and this too, when its own officers were receiving liberal salaries in gold and silver. The Legislature had directed, that all the taxes when collected, should be paid over to the State Bank, and the State relied upon its ability and good faith to defray the expenses of government. This plan of making a banking corporation, both the treasury and pay-master of the State, was borrowed from the federal government, whose revenue had been almost always controlled by banks, previous to the introduction of the independent treasury. Heretofore, the collection of revenue rarely commenced before the end of the current year, but it became manifest, that tax payers, would this season, hasten the payment of the revenue of 1842, in order to pay in depreciated paper, before the Legislature could make any change in the system. The effect of this would have been, to place the whole revenue of the present year in the vaults of the State Bank, beyond the reach, both of the Legislature and the people. A State that could give away a year's revenue, when totally destitute of credit or means to carry on the government would subject itself to the imputation of insanity. Besides it was not difficult to foresee, that questions of immense magnitude would claim the attention of the present Legislature.

The disposition to be made of the public debt, as it is calculated to have a permanent bearing on the character and destiny of our State, will call for the highest exertion of public wisdom. It may be considered expedient to withdraw the State stock from the banks to appropriate the whole of the lands and public property owned by the State to the redemption of State bonds, and to establish a sinking fund, to be applied some way, to the ultimate extinguishment of the debt.

Another question of deep interest to the State, is the disposition to be made of the Canal. That magnificent work should be prosecuted to completion if possible. But how can any of these great objects be accomplished without revenue? And how is revenue ever to be obtained if collected in depreciated paper, and paid over to the State Bank? It cannot be said with propriety, that as the State is indebted to the Bank, it is bound to collect the revenue for, and pay it over to that institution. As the largest stockholder, the State, even according to bank practice, is entitled to a much larger standing accommodation, than the whole amount of the debt claimed to be due from it. This is upon the supposition that the State is indebted to the Bank; but the more likely supposition is, that, upon a full and final settlement, when all dividends and arrears are fairly accounted for, the Bank will fall considerably in debt to the State. Under such circumstances, to collect a year's revenue, and pay it over to the Bank, at a time when the State was in absolute want of means to carry on the government. The consequences of this policy would have been to compel the present Legislature, as it is responsible for the preservation of the government, to levy a new tax to save it from instantaneous dissolution. To prevent any such necessity, and the distress that would ensue from it, we issued the proclamations before alluded to; the incidental effect of which was, as expected, to suspend the collection of the greatest part of the revenue of 1842, and its consequent payment to the State Bank. It is now subject to the control of your honorable body. You can either continue its collection in depreciated paper, at par, or at specie value, or require payment to be made in some other medium. It will be perceived by reference to the proper estimates, that the taxes of 1842, and the succeeding year, will admit of a reduction of about one half on the present rate. When thus reduced they can be easily collected in current funds and Auditor's warrants. This will create a demand for warrants, which will enhance their value and render them an available resource to carry on the government, until a sound currency obtains a general circulation. The warrants already outstanding, and unredeemed are estimated at $23,898 26. The amount necessary to defray the expenses of the Legislature will be about $50,000. The amount to be issued next January to discharge the interest of the school fund will be $23,365 00, making in all $107,263 26, an amount more than sufficient to pay the reduced revenue of 1842. This, instead of increasing the burdens of the people, will facilitate their means of paying taxes, and furnish them a temporary, and easily procurable medium for that purpose. There is no danger of warrants depreciating in value, so long as the annual issue falls short of the annual revenue. This is not an untried scheme of policy. It is similar in most respects to the plan adopted by the late Democratic administration, to save the federal government from sinking with the bankrupt banking institutions of the country. The present is a propitious time to carry those principles into practical operation, which are calculated to promote the welfare of the people: to establish an economical administration of government—an independent treasury—and to introduce a metallic currency. A specie circulation, without which the people can never hope for permanent prosperity, can be easily obtained, by compelling the banks to go into immediate liquidation. According to their own reports, they have at this time nearly a million of dollars in specie, lying idle in their vaults. Let this be paid out pro rata upon their notes, and put into general circulation, and its beneficial effects will soon be felt in the increased price of our domestic products. There is no danger of this specie being transmitted to eastern cities, in discharge of mercantile balances. Exchange is now in favor of St. Louis, and capital that has been for some time past accumulating in the east, is finding its way westward, in quest of the rich productions of the Mississippi valley. From the unrivalled fertility of the soil of Illinois, all that its citizens require, is their proportionate share of the precious metals, to enter into successful competition in foreign markets, with the most favored States of the Union. It is folly to hope for better times, while the channels of trade are choked up with depreciated paper. So long as the banks are continued in existence, so long will the prosperity of our people be retarded. They have almost sucked the life-blood out of the State already. Instead of bringing in foreign capital, and disseminating it amongst the people, they have been effective engines in the hands of foreign speculators, to drain the State of all its substantial wealth. Since the establishment of these institutions, there has been ten millions of money borrowed and expended amongst the citizens of Illinois; wealth has also been obtained from emigration, and the exportation of domestic products, and yet all this has disappeared as if by enchantment, and the State in 1842 finds itself steeped in poverty, and depending for a currency upon depreciated paper. The time has arrived to remove these agents of our impoverishment, and we trust the measures we have taken to facilitate the accomplishment of this object, will meet with your approbation and approval.

The accompanying documents will explain the nature of the measures to which we resorted.

THOS. CARLIN, Governor.
JAS. SHIELDS, Auditor.
M. CARPENTER, Treasurer.

CURIOS.—A merchant of this city, this morning received from his correspondent in Bremen about $1,500 in silver coin. On counting them, he found dollars made at the Philadelphia mint as far back as 1795. Besides these pieces, there were dollars from all the Republics in South American, mixed with those of Mexico and old Spain.—New Orleans Courier.

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

We are in want of wood for the use of our office, and for the use of our workmen. Many of the subscribers to the "Times and Seasons," and the "Wasp," have promised to pay in wood, and in provisions—we would remind them that it is now a pleasant time for drawing wood; and as we are in need of the article we hope they will be punctual; and if others when they are coming to town would remember the hogs and flour that they promised us, it would not come amiss. We believe that our subscribers are perfectly good, and honest in their intentions; but they forget us sometimes. And as Printers live by eating, and burn wood for fuel, we thought we would bring it to their remembrance.

Below will be found an article written by Dr. Tate, M. D., of our city. We do not profess to be acquainted with the physiology of the human system, the nature of disease, nor the nature, application, power, effects of medicine; the M. D.'s must be the judge of these matters;—but we think that a few plain and useful instructions on the above subject will be read with interest by the subscribers of the Wasp, and in this new country, where we are a little more subject to diseases than in the East, they will not be without benefit.

For the Wasp.

REMARKS ON INFLAMMATION, Mr. Editor:—

Having a little leisure, I propose presenting a few thoughts on inflammation, for your consideration, and an insertion in the Wasp, if you think they would be acceptable to your readers.

There is disease, to which man is more subject than inflammation, none less understood, or more fatal in its consequences. Hence, the necessity of developing its true character, and remedies.

The object of the writer, will be to use as much brevity as is consonant with truth, and perspicuity.

The symptoms of inflammation are, pain, increased heat, redness, swelling, and throbbing. First, Pain generally attends inflammation, and varies in acuteness, according to the looseness or compactness of the parts affected, and is sometimes entirely absent in inflammation of the lungs, and mucous membrane of the stomach. Here, permit me to correct a common error of supposing that where there is pain, there must be inflammation. Some diseases, attended with the most acute pain, as, Tic Douloureux, Cramp, and many other nervous affections, are frequently unattended with inflammation, and may be caused by a deficiency or superabundance of electricity or nervous fluid, which perhaps is nearly allied to spirit in refinement of matter and then fully understood, may explain many mysterious diseases, it being a recent discovery in physiology (the science of life.) But to return. It has been stated that pain generally accompanies inflammation, and it is well that it is so. Pain being a sentinel, to give the alarm of danger, caused by the pressed state of the nerves accompanying the distended bloodvessels.

For every part of the body being supplied with nerves and bloodvessels is liable to inflammation. The severity of the pain in Felon, or Whitlow, which is an inflammation of the periosteum, or their covering of the bone, arises from the pressed and confined state of the nerves.

Inflammation is distinguished from nervous pain by being increased on pressure, which is important to be understood in a remedial point of view.

The increased heat is modified by the distance of the affected part from the heart.

All actions, healthy, as well as morbid proceeds with more vigor in the upper, than in the lower limbs.

The actual degree of heat is never raised above 98°. And the sensation of heat, depends on the altered state of the sensibility of the inflamed part.

Redness is caused by the small serous vessels which contain a yellowish fluid in health, becoming enlarged, so as to admit the red globules of blood, but redness is not a sure symptom of inflammation, as in blushing.

Swelling is produced by the small vessels becoming distended and enlarged with an effusion of lymph, serum, or blood.

The firmer the structure, the less the swelling and more intense the pain.

There is not only an increased action in the small vessels of the inflamed part, but also in the large ones leading to it, for when the part affected is of much importance to life, the whole circulatory system becomes disturbed, which produces sympathetic fever.

Then, on bleeding, we have the yellowish coat, with a concave surface. The pulse is increased in frequency and strength, the skin becomes dry and hot, with great thirst: at this stage delirium may ensue, whereby the beneficence of our creator is again manifested, by relieving the most extreme suffering with pleasing hallucinations.

After treating of inflammation in general, particular diseases will claim our attention, such as inflammation of the lungs (improperly called lung fever.)

H. TATE.

Dec. 15, 1842.

CENTRAL AMERICA.—An eminent geologist asserts that the 'new world' is proved by the investigations of this science to be older than the 'old world,' but be this as it may, it is very certain that we can talk of our antiquities as well as the denizens of the old world, and perhaps can see in the remains of temples which bewilder civilized man in South America, the evidences of an antiquity compared with which Egypt, 'the mother of the world,' is even from the dim antiquity of her supposed origin, a nation of merely modern date. Many of our readers, who have read Stephens's travels in Central America, will be pleased to learn that another traveller, Mr. Norman, has given to the world the results of further observations of the antiquities of that section. He visited a new field for investigations, which is termed Chi-Chen, the remains of which give evidence that it must once have been a city of great power and magnificence, and in remarking upon them, observes—'For five days did I wander up and down among these crumbling monuments of a city which, I hazard little in saying, must have been one of the largest the world ever seen. I beheld before me, for a circuit of many miles in diameter, the walls of palaces and temples, and pyramids, more or less dilapidated.'

The earth was strewed, as far as the eye could distinguish, with columns, some broken and some nearly perfect, which seemed to have been planted there by the genius of desolation, which presided over this awful solitude. Among these remains are the ruins of a temple, which must have been originally 450 feet long. There is yet remaining a room within it 14 feet long and 6 feet wide, finished with sculptured blocks of stone, representing Indian figures, with feather head-dresses, armed with bows and arrows, their noses ornamented with rings; carrying in one hand bows and arrows, and in the other a musical instrument, similar to those that are now used by the Indians of the country.

The most extraordinary ruin yet discovered in Central America, is the 'House of the Caciques,' which from the author's description of it would seem fully to deserve to be called 'the most strange and incomprehensible pile of architecture that his eyes ever beheld—elaborate, elegant, stupendous, yet belonging to no order now known to us.' The front of this wonderful edifice measures 32 feet, and its height 20, extending to the main building 50 feet, the whole front beautifully and elaborately ornamented with hieroglyphics, surrounding in the centre a female figure, having a head-dress of feathers. The mortar of the building appears to be as durable as the stone itself; and the working and laying of the stone are as perfect as they could have been under the direction of a modern architect. Contiguous to this front are two irregular buildings, each about 20 feet in length, thirty feet in width, and thirty six in height, on all sides, carved in figures. In the centre of the main buildings is a range of rooms, most of which were covered with fine cement, and some ornamented with fresco paintings. Other ruins were found, no less extraordinary in character, which the Indians so little regard, as to have wondered at the interest Mr. Norman took in them.

Those who read Mr. Stephens's travels will remember his account of the 'mysterious city,' which is said to be inhabited by a people unknown to the rest of the world, and who, Mr. Stephens supposes, are descendants of the very people who built these ruins, and who possess the secret of their origin, but refuse intercourse with the nations around them, for fear of a fate similar to that of their fathers. Several attempts have been made to penetrate to this city, but the individuals have been found murdered, or have never returned; and from the continual broils of the neighboring governments, they have never possessed energy to make an organized attempt. Mr. Norman fully confirms the romantic story of Mr. Stephens. This city is situated between Guatemela, Yucatan, and Chiapas. Mr. Norman states that the inhabitants are represented to speak the native language, and many of them conversing well in Spanish; they visit the nearest cities, sell their tobacco, and return to their retreats. They are about thirty thousand in number, are expert warriors, remarkably athletic, and very cruel, and are worshippers of idols. The Indians of Yucatan have been seen in conversation with persons from that district; but no more is known of their history than of our own aboriginal progenitors. As curiosity has been excited, however, undoubtedly an attempt will be made ere long to solve the mystery.

Mr. Norman claims for the ruins as great antiquity, but Mr. Stephens thinks they are the works of the people conquered by the Spaniards, and probably not much older than the conquest. We incline to Mr. Stephens's opinion, for although the ruins exhibit a degree of taste and art far above a barbarous state, yet the native Mexicans were at the conquest probably as far advanced from barbarism, possessing an organization of society which a civilized people only could possess. They may have been emerging from barbarism, or deteriorating from a state of high refinement; the ruthless rapacity of the Spaniards admitted of no curiosity upon this point, nor indeed of any thing but the gratification of their cruelty and avarice. Those who have seen the art of the savages of the Pacific in sculpture, and inferior objects of architecture, which are often of surprising skill and beauty may readily believe that the Central American temples were executed by the people conquered by the Spaniards, who were, according to the imperfect representations of their conquerors, far advanced from a barbarous state.—[Republican Journal.]

EXTRAORDINARY PHENOMENON.

In the Lynn Locomotive, we find the following extract of a letter from an eminent astronomer, connected with Yale College, at New Haven, to a scientific gentleman in Lynn. It will be found highly interesting to men of science, detailing some most astonishing changes in the great machinery of Nature. It may be that these operations will strengthen the belief of those who give credence to the doctrines of Miller, in relation to the speedy winding up of the affairs of this world. Nevertheless they are facts, and as such worthy the attention of our wise and learned men.

There is certainly some extraordinary change going on in the solar system. Whether the result will be a speedy dissolution of the present harmonious arrangement is of course known only to Him who instituted the laws which govern the stars. For some time my attention has been directed to the rapidly developing phenomena, and I have been assisted in my observations by gentlemen eminent for their scientific attainments. And within a few days I have had placed in my hands a paper from the celebrated astronomer Hauff, of

Berlin, detailing his own discoveries, and indicating that the subject is beginning to excite intense interest among the scientific of Europe.

It is evident that the inclination of the earth's axis with the ecliptic is changing. There is now a nearer approach to a coincidence of equator and ecliptic than has ever before been known. Since the autumnal equinox, the obliquity in the earth's course has sensibly diminished; and if no counteracting influence intervenes, there will soon be a perceptible change in the seasons and in the relative lengths of day and night.

The change is so great already that many intricate calculations for the present year, will be inaccurate. Some of the important calculations of the Nautical Almanac will be soon found perplexing to the mariner as he takes his observations. And some of those heretofore highly useful tables in the American Almanac, founded on the bearings of some of the fixed stars as well as planets, will prove entirely unsafe, if the progress of the change continues. An experienced and intelligent shipmaster, a day or two since, casually observed to me that on a recent voyage from the East Indies, when he had sailed about six degrees to the north of the equator—the region from which the North Star is usually first seen after crossing the line, the haze rendering it invisible while near the horizon—he was astonished and perplexed in his observations. The unusual variation of his chronometer from the time indicated by stellar observation led him to doubt the accuracy of his former faithful guide.

Should these changes continue, a variation in the altitude of the North Star will soon be apparent to the most casual observer; at those points of time, April 15, June 16, August 23, and December 24, when all true time keepers should agree with the sun, the chronometer will be found essentially varying; and many other very important results will be developed. An attentive and accurate observer in the high latitudes, even at the next solstice, cannot fail to recognise various astonishing phenomena.

But the changes going on in regard to the earth, are less remarkable perhaps than those which are affecting some of the other planets. The poles of Venus, to all appearance, are now elevated full thirty-five degrees, and she seems to be changing from her former clear radiance to a color approaching that of Mars; the change in this particular, however, is as yet slight, barely perceptible, under close observation to the naked eye. By the aid of a powerful glass there may be perceived what appear to be waves of fire rolling over her disc. This appearance I have watched with much interest; it commenced some months since, on the southern limb, and gradually advanced over the whole breadth till the planet was completely enveloped. The motion of this planet in her orbit, too, seems to be retarded, as though she were under the influence of some new power of attraction.

Herschel has the appearance of having greatly diminished in size, and has failed to reach a given point of its orbit at the usual time, and in short, seems to have broken the bonds which have connected it to the solar system, and commenced its course as a member of some remote celestial retinue.

Saturn also is assuming an unwonted aspect. To all appearance, there is a mighty conflagration going on in the hitherto dark line which divides her rings. To such an extent has it already attained, that in one or two places the whole breadth has assumed the appearance of ragged ranges, glowing as if they were red hot iron, and throwing a lurid reflection upon the adjacent portions of the ring.

The changes seem also to extend beyond our system. The beautiful star Betelgeuse, in the constellation Orion, has varied to such an extent from the vernal to the autumnal equinox of the present year, that its distance may be ascertained. It seems to be approaching the solar bounds.

WOOD! WOOD!! WOOD!!!

We are in want of wood for the use of our office, and for the use of our workmen. Many of the subscribers to the "Times and Seasons," and the "Wasp," have promised to pay in wood, and in provisions—we would remind them that it is now a pleasant time for drawing wood; and as we are in need of the article we hope they will be punctual; and if others when they are coming to town would remember the hogs and flour that they promised us, it would not come amiss. We believe that our subscribers are perfectly good, and honest in their intentions; but they forget us sometimes. And as Printers live by eating, and burn wood for fuel, we thought we would bring it to their remembrance.

Below will be found an article written by Dr. Tate, M. D., of our city. We do not profess to be acquainted with the physiology of the human system, the nature of disease, nor the nature, application, power, effects of medicine; the M. D.'s must be the judges of these matters;—but we think that a few plain and useful instructions on the above subject will be read with interest by the subscribers of the Wasp, and in this new country, where we are a little more subject to diseases than in the East, they will not be without benefit.

For the Wasp.

REMARKS ON INFLAMMATION, Mr. Editor:—

Having a little leisure, I propose presenting a few thoughts on inflammation, for your consideration, and an insertion in the Wasp, if you think they would be acceptable to your readers.

There is disease, to which man is more subject than inflammation, none less understood, or more fatal in its consequences. Hence, the necessity of developing its true character, and remedies.

The object of the writer, will be to use as much brevity as is consonant with truth, and perspicuity.

The symptoms of inflammation are, pain, increased heat, redness, swelling, and throbbing. First, Pain generally attends inflammation, and varies in acuteness, according to the looseness or compactness of the parts affected, and is sometimes entirely absent in inflammation of the lungs, and mucous membrane of the stomach. Here, permit me to correct a common error of supposing that where there is pain, there must be inflammation. Some diseases, attended with the most acute pain, as, Tic Douloureux, Cramp, and many other nervous affections, are frequently unattended with inflammation, and may be caused by a deficiency or superabundance of electricity or nervous fluid, which perhaps is nearly allied to spirit in refinement of matter and when fully understood, may explain many mysterious diseases, it being a recent discovery in physiology (the science of life.) But to return. It has been stated that pain generally accompanies inflammation, and it is well that it is so. Pain being a sentinel, to give the alarm of danger, caused by the pressed state of the nerves accompanying the distended bloodvessels.

For every part of the body being supplied with nerves and bloodvessels is liable to inflammation. The severity of the pain in Felon, or Whitlow, which is an inflammation of the periosteum, or their covering of the bone, arises from the pressed and confined state of the nerves.

Inflammation is distinguished from nervous pain by being increased on pressure, which is important to be understood in a remedial point of view.

The increased heat is modified by the distance of the affected part from the heart.

All actions, healthy, as well as morbid proceeds with more vigor in the upper, than in the lower limbs.

The actual degree of heat is never raised above 98°. And the sensation of heat, depends on the altered state of the sensibility of the inflamed part.

Redness is caused by the small serous vessels which contain a yellowish fluid in health, becoming enlarged, so as to admit the red globules of blood, but redness is not a sure symptom of inflammation, as in blushing.

Swelling is produced by the small vessels becoming distended and enlarged with an effusion of lymph, serum, or blood.

The firmer the structure, the less the swelling and more intense the pain.

There is not only an increased action in the small vessels of the inflamed part, but also in the large ones leading to it, for when the part affected is of much importance to life, the whole circulatory system becomes disturbed, which produces sympathetic fever.

Then, on bleeding, we have the yellowish coat with a concave surface. The pulse is increased in frequency and strength, the skin becomes dry and hot, with great thirst: at this stage delirium may ensue, whereby the beneficence of our creator is again manifested, by relieving the most extreme suffering with pleasing hallucinations.

After treating of inflammation in general, particular diseases will claim our attention, such as inflammation of the lungs (improperly called lung fever.)

H. TATE.

Dec. 15, 1842.

CENTRAL AMERICA.—An eminent geologist asserts that the 'new world' is proved by the investigations of this science to be older than the 'old world,' but be this as it may, it is very certain that we can talk of our antiquities as well as the denizens of the old world, and perhaps can, see in the remains of temples which bewilder civilized man in South America, the evidences of an antiquity compared with which Egypt, 'the mother of the world,' is even from the dim antiquity of her supposed origin, a nation of merely modern date. Many of our readers, who have read Stephens's travels in Central America, will be pleased to learn that another traveller, Mr. Norman, has given to the world the results of further observations of the antiquities of that section. He visited a new field for investigations, which is termed Chi-Chen, the remains of which give evidence that it must once have been a city of great power and magnificence, and in remarking upon them, observes—'For five days did I wander up and down among these crumbling monuments of a city which, I hazard little in saying, must have been one of the largest the world ever seen. I beheld before me, for a circuit of many miles in diameter, the walls of palaces and temples, and pyramids, more or less dilapidated. The earth was strewed, as far as the eye could distinguish, with columns, some broken and some nearly perfect, which seemed to have been planted there by the genius of desolation, which presided over this awful solitude.' Among these remains are the ruins of a temple, which must have been originally 450 feet long. There is yet remaining a room within it 14 feet long and 6 feet wide, finished with sculptured blocks of stone, representing Indian figures, with feather head-dresses, armed with bows and arrows, their noses ornamented with rings; carrying in one hand bows and arrows, and in the other a musical instrument, similar to those that are now used by the Indians of the country.

The most extraordinary ruin yet discovered in Central America, is the 'House of the Caciques,' which from the author's description of it would seem fully to deserve to be called 'the most strange and incomprehensible pile of architecture that his eyes ever beheld—elaborate, elegant, stupendous, yet belonging to no order now known to us.' The front of this wonderful edifice measures 32 feet, and its height 20, extending to the main building 50 feet, the whole front beautifully and elaborately ornamented with hieroglyphics, surrounding in the centre a female figure, having a head-dress of feathers. The mortar of the building appears to be as durable as the stone itself; and the working and laying of the stone are as perfect as they could have been under the direction of a modern architect. Contiguous to this front are two irregular buildings, each about 20 feet in length, thirty feet in width, and thirty six in height, on all sides carved in figures. In the centre of the main buildings is a range of rooms, most of which were covered with fine cement, and some ornamented with fresco paintings. Other ruins were found, no less extraordinary in character, which the Indians so little regard, as to have wondered at the interest Mr. Norman took in them.

Those who read Mr. Stephens's travels will remember his account of the 'mysterious city,' which is said to be inhabited by a people unknown to the rest of the world, and who, Mr. Stephens supposes, are descendants of the very people who built these ruins, and who possess the secret of their origin, but refuse intercourse with the nations around them, for fear of a fate similar to that of their fathers. Several attempts have been made to penetrate to this city, but the individuals have been found murdered, or have never returned; and from the continual broils of the neighboring governments, they have never possessed energy to make an organized attempt. Mr. Norman fully confirms the romantic story of Mr. Stephens. This city is situated between Guatamela, Yucatan, and Chiapas. Mr. Norman states that the inhabitants are represented to speak the native language, and many of them conversing well in Spanish; they visit the nearest cities, sell their tobacco, and return to their retreats. They are about thirty thousand in number, are expert warriors, remarkably athletic, and very cruel, and are worshippers of idols. The Indians of Yucatan have been seen in conversation with persons from that district; but no more is known of their history than of our own aboriginal progenitors. As curiosity has been excited, however, undoubtedly an attempt will be made ere long to solve the mystery.

Mr. Norman claims for the ruins as great antiquity, but Mr. Stephens thinks they are the works of the people conquered by the Spaniards, and probably not much older than the conquest. We incline to Mr. Stephens's opinion, for although the ruins exhibit a degree of taste and art far above a barbarous state, yet the native Mexicans were at the conquest probably as far advanced from barbarism, possessing an organization of society which a civilized people only could possess. They may have been emerging from barbarism, or deteriorating from a state of high refinement; the ruthless rapacity of the Spaniards admitted of no curiosity upon this point, nor indeed of their cruelty and cupidity. Those who have seen the skill of the savages of the Pacific in sculpture, and inferior objects of architecture, which are often of surprising skill and beauty may readily believe that the Central American temples were executed by the people conquered by the Spaniards, who were, according to the imperfect representations of their conquerors, far advanced from a barbarous state.—[Republican Journal.]

EXTRAORDINARY PHENOMENON.

In the Lynn Locomotive, we find the following extract of a letter from an eminent astronomer, connected with Yale College, at New Haven, to a scientific gentleman in Lynn. It will be found highly interesting to men of science, detailing some most astonishing changes in the great machinery of Nature. It may be that these operations will strengthen the belief of those who give credence to the doctrines of Miller, in relation to the speedy winding up of the affairs of this world. Nevertheless they are facts, and as such worthy the attention of our wise and learned men.

There is certainly some extraordinary change going on in the solar system. Whether the result will be a speedy dissolution of the present harmonious arrangement is of course known only to Him who instituted the laws which govern the stars. For some time my attention has been directed to the rapidly developing phenomena, and I have been assisted in my observations by gentlemen eminent for their scientific attainments. And within a few days I have had placed in my hands a paper from the celebrated astronomer Hauff, of

Berlin, detailing his own discoveries, and indicating that the subject is beginning to excite intense interest among the scientific of Europe.

It is evident that the inclination of the earth's axis with the ecliptic is changing. There is now a nearer approach to a coincidence of equator and ecliptic than has ever before been known. Since the autumnal equinox, the obliquity in the earth's course has sensibly diminished; and if no counteracting influence intervenes, there will soon be a perceptible change in the seasons and in the relative lengths of day and night.

The change is so great already that many intricate calculations for the present year, will be inaccurate. Some of the important calculations of the Nautical Almanac will be soon found perplexing to the mariner as he takes his observations. And some of those heretofore highly useful tables in the American Almanac, founded on the bearings of some of the fixed stars as well as planets, will prove entirely unsafe, if the progress of the change continues. An experienced and intelligent shipmaster, a day or two since, casually observed to me that on a recent voyage from the East Indies, when he had sailed about six degrees to the north of the equator—the region from which the North Star is usually first seen after crossing the line, the haze rendering it invisible while near the horizon—he was astonished and perplexed in his observations. The unusual variation of his chronometer from the time indicated by stellar observation led him to doubt the accuracy of his former faithful guide.

Should these changes continue, a variation in the altitude of the North Star will soon be apparent to the most casual observer; at those points of time, April 15, June 16, August 23; and December 24, when all true time keepers should agree with the sun, the chronometer will be found essentially varying; and many other very important results will be developed. An attentive and accurate observer in the high latitudes, even at the next solstice, cannot fail to recognise various astonishing phenomena.

But the changes going on in regard to the earth, are less remarkable perhaps than those which are affecting some of the other planets. The poles of Venus, to all appearance, are now elevated full thirty-five degrees, and she seems to be changing from her former clear radiance to a color approaching that of Mars; the change in this particular, however, is as yet slight, barely perceptible, under close observation, to the naked eye. By the aid of a powerful glass there may be perceived what appear to be waves of fire rolling over her disc. This appearance I have watched with much interest; it commenced some months since, on the southern limb, and gradually advanced over the whole breadth till the planet was completely enveloped. The motion of this planet in her orbit, too, seems to be retarded, as though she were under the influence of some new power of attraction.

Herschel has the appearance of having greatly diminished in size, and has failed to reach a given point of its orbit at the usual time, and in short, seems to have broken the bonds which have connected it to the solar system, and commenced its course as a member of some remote celestial retinue.

Saturn also is assuming an unwonted aspect. To all appearance, there is a mighty conflagration going on in the hitherto dark line which divides her rings. To such an extent has it already attained, that in one or two places the whole breadth has assumed the appearance of ragged ranges, glowing as if they were red hot iron, and throwing a lurid reflection upon the adjacent portions of the ring.

The changes seem also to extend beyond our system. The beautiful star Betelgeuse, in the constellation Orion, has varied to such an extent from the vernal to the autumnal equinox of the present year, that its distance may be ascertained. It seems to be approaching the solar bounds.

SCIENCE.

The wonders of science, great as they are, must yield precedence to its utility. The discovery of the powers of the magnet was but a prelude to the discoveries of other oceans, new continents, and far distant islands. Trade and civilization followed the track of discovery, and soon the shape of the earth was defined by those adventurous keels that ploughed their furrows to the west until they overtook the east at the point from which they departed. The form of the earth having been ascertained by science, analogy extended its observations to the wide heavens in which it swims, and found that every glorious planet, satellite, and greater central orb, presented the same globular figures. Science measured the heavens, and filled up a space that seems almost vast enough to furnish a bold image of eternity, with lines of parallax that link the zenith to the nadir, and with angels that build their hypothenses on the horns of the moon and ring of Saturn. The wild comet, too—the erratic steamer of the skies, that travels, like a celestial, from one cluster of planets to another, millions of miles beyond the ken of the far-sighted telescope of Herschel—has been taught by science where to curve his flaming chariot around the goal, and when to return and trim his night fires at the fountain of the sun.

Leaving the heavens, science has effected its most useful labors on the sea, on the earth, and within the deep bowels of the mines. In the science of navigation, it boots little whether the winds blow from one direction or another; the skill of the sailor can propel his vessel in the winds, by the very blast which is puffing in his teeth. And mightier still, wind and steam, and tide and calm, have all been overcome by the simple science that converts water into atmosphere. Forced by caloric from a grosser element into an aeriform state, the mighty power of steam thunders over the deep, and treads the mountain waves like a giant.

The rage of the storm at sea has been disarmed by science; the heaving of the hungry ocean has been subdued by the oil poured out upon the seething waters; the leaking ship has been pumped by the violence of the same hurricane that strained her timbers. The arts of life have all been promoted, perfected, and beautified by science. It guides the plough and reaps the harvest. It builds cities, and works the mines. It furnishes the rooms of state, and comforts the cottage; and it gives the power of death—whose dreadful trade it is to kill according to rule.

Loss of the Convic Ship Waterloo—Two Hundred Lives Lost, out of Three Hundred and Thirty.—By extracts of a letter which was received on Saturday by Her Majesty's ship Hyacinth, from Cape Town, via Scina's Bay, dated August 29th, 1842, we learn that it blew a heavy gale on the 27th of August in Table Bay. The next morning the inhabitants of Cape Town discovered the wreck of the Abercrombie 1415 tons, from London. About three hundred yards from her was the convic ship Waterloo, and within sight of the multitude on shore she gave a lee-lurch among the breakers. After two or three heavy rolls, her three masts went over the side with a dreadful crash. Here follows the extract:—

"The hatches were now opened, and the convicts rushed on deck. The sea was now making a clean breach over her.—Immediately on the convicts arriving on deck, about fifty jumped overboard; about fifteen or twenty gained the shore, and the remainder were drowned. The cries of the poor wretches on deck were now heart-breaking. Each sea, as it made a breach over the unfortunate vessel, carried a dozen into the water, who of course were drowned. Thousands of the people were on the beach, but could not render the least assistance. Oh! it was a dreadful sight. There, within a stone-throw lay two or three hundred human beings drowned before our eyes."

Some years ago, a chap arrived at Augusta, with one of those great curiosities, an Egyptian Mummy, which he desired to exhibit. It was required then, that before the exhibition, permission should be obtained from the Judge of some of the inferior Courts. Accordingly, the showman proceeded to the Court House, where some Court was in session, and applied to the Judge for a license, stating that at an infinite trouble and expense, to say nothing of danger, he had been fortunate enough to procure the greatest curiosity ever seen in the United States.

"What is it?" asked the Judge.

"An Egyptian Mummy, may it please the Court, more than three thousand years old," said the showman.

"Three thousand years old!" exclaimed the Judge, jumping to his feet "and is the darned critter alive?"

ANECDOTE.—A zealous parson in the State of steady habits, who noticed the remissness of one of his indigent parishioners in attending church, spoke to him on the subject, and in the common style of holy impertinence, chid him for his neglect. The pauper pleaded his want of shoes as an excuse. This, however, was far from being valid in the parson's mind, who felt a laudable pride in the number of his flock. "This will not do," said he, "I will lend you a pair, just for meeting." The indolent fellow accepted the shoes, but finding them very convenient in other instances as well as traveling to the sanctuary, soon used them so hardly that it could not escape the notice of his heavenly guide. "How is this?" said he; "I lent them to you only for the purpose of going to meeting." Lawrence scratched his head for an excuse. "Indeed, good Mr. Parson," said he, "as we are both maintained by the town, I thought it would make no odds which wore out the shoes, you or I!"

AMUSING ANECDOTE OF A VENTRILOQUIST.—We were a day or two since, very much amused in a hotel with a joke that Wyman, the ventriloquist, played on a countryman who had called for a jug of beer. He had no sooner raised the glass to his lips than he thought he heard a dog at his heels—he turned around to look, but discovered nothing—the second attempt with the glass had the same effect, except that the supposed dog growled more savagely—the countryman stared more wildly than before, exclaiming "What's that?" A voice was heard from the glass, saying, "I'm rum, and rum is the devil."—Down dropped the glass of rum, the countryman crying out, "By hoky, I'll not taste rum again." We think that Wyman deserves a premium for his aid in the temperance cause.—[Bak. Clipper.]

ST. LOUIS BANK NOTE TABLE.

Based upon Specie.

Corrected semi weekly by Smith & Carter, Exchange Brokers, 117 Main Street.

Bank of Missouri,	par
do do Branches,	par
Bank of Illinois,	60 dis
City Warrants,	29a30 dis
County Warrants,	38a40 dis
Bank of Cairo,
Miners Bank of Dubuque,	no sale
Wisconsin Marine Insurance Co,	2a3 dis
State Bank of Illinois,	52a53 dis
Ohio, county, generally,	3a5 dis
Cincinnati	1a2 dis
State Bank of Indiana,	1a2 dis
Kentucky Banks,	hfa1h dis
United States Bank Notes,	65 dis
Pennsylvania, specie paying,	para2 dis
Maryland, do do	para2 dis
Virginia Banks,	1a2 dis
New York and New England Banks,	para2 dis
Bank of Louisiana,	1 dis
Suspended New Orleans Banks,	no sale
Arkansas Bank,	no sale
Michigan Banks,	5a7
Tennessee,	5a6 dis
Treasury Notes,	par
Exchange on New York, and Phila	1a1
New Orleans,	par
Specie,	par

DREADFUL SHIPWRECK.—We learn that the new bark Isidore, Captain Foss, sailed from Kennebunk on the 30th ult., for New Orleans, and was totally lost on the same night, with all her crew, on Cape Neddock, or on Maxwell's beach, in Wells. She was mostly owned in Kennebunk, and this was her first voyage.

A man by the name of De Lisle has appeared and laid claim to the whole of the land upon which Jefferson city, Mo., has been built. He purchased it previous to the war, and in 1812 enlisted in the army. Since that time he had not been heard from until within a short time past. Acting under the belief that he was dead, his sisters had sold the property.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 13TH INST.

James Parmer, aged 47 years; ague and fever.

Anna Farnam, aged 1 year; ague and fever.

Elizabeth McEwen, aged 2 years; consumption.

Margaret Bromsley, aged 13 years; ague and fever.

Total 4.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 16TH INST.

Mary Ann Thayer, aged 25 years; fever.

Wm Welch, aged 12 years; ague and fever.

Susan Houston, aged 11 years; fever.

Total 5.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 23RD INST.

Louisa Houston, aged 13 years; fever.

Benjamin Williams, aged 36 years; inflammation of brain.

Wm. Reed, aged 57 years; consumption.

Elizabeth Baggs, aged 17 years; Winter fever.

Athelton Sessions, aged 1 year; black canker.

Total 5.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

MARRIED.—In this City on the 25th inst., by President Joseph Smith, GENERAL WILSON LAW, to Miss ELIZABETH F. SWAN, both of this City.

MARRIED.—In this city, on the 8th ultimo, by Elder James Sloan, Mr. George Wirrick, to Miss Juliet Atwood.

At Job Creek settlement, in this county, on the 13th inst., by Elder George Snyder, Elder Franklin D. Richards, of this city, to Miss Jane Snyder, of the former place.

DIED.—In this city, on the 15th inst., Louisa C. Houston, aged eleven years eight months and eleven days.

—In this city, on the 11th inst., Louisa Houston, aged thirteen years and twenty eight days; both children of Isaac and Docia Houston.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Electric Primer, Ray's Electric Arithmetic, The Electric Spelling Book, Electric 1st Reader, Electric 2nd Reader, Electric 3rd Reader, Electric 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c. All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842.

no36.

NOTICE.

The subscribers have entered into co-partnership, for the purpose of publishing the "Times and Seasons," and the "Wasp," and of carrying on the business of Printing, Stereotyping, Book-binding, Book-selling and everything connected with the above named branches of business.

N. B. All business connected with the firm will be done in the name of TAYLOR, & WOODRUFF. Nauvoo, Oct. 1st. 1842.

O. C. SKINNER, Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office at the Masonic Hall, Nauvoo.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.
G. B. Holt, Dayton,
G. P. Bell, Hamilton,
Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,
Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula, mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic. no35.

NO CURE NO PAY.

I propose to cure smoking chimneys by the use of 'Hammond's Patent No Cure No Pay.' There is no mistake in this patent; call and examine Mr. Wilford Woodruff's, under the Printing Office, who is authorised to make contracts for me. I shall return to the city about the 3rd day of next month, and will attend to all persons who may desire their chimneys to draw well.

ALEX. SYMPSON.

Dec. 28, 1842.

no35-1f.

NEW BOOT AND SHOE ESTABLISHMENT.

THE subscriber respectfully informs the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has commenced the above named business, on Mulhollon St., south east corner of the Temple square. All kinds of work done on the shortest notice and most reasonable terms. Also intends to keep constantly on hand all kinds of ready made work. Most kinds of produce taken in exchange for Boots and Shoes.

M. ADAMS.

Dec. 31, 1842.

no35-1f.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of George D. Grant, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that George D. Grant, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 22nd day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 22d day of December A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. P. Owings Clerk.

SCIENCE.

The wonders of science, great as they are, must yield precedence to its utility. The discovery of the powers of the magnet was but a prelude to the discoveries of other oceans, new continents, and far distant islands. Trade and civilization followed the track of discovery, and soon the shape of the earth was defined by those adventurous keels that ploughed their furrows to the west until they overtook the east at the point from which they departed. The form of the earth having been ascertained by science, analogy extended its observations to the wide heavens in which it swims, and found that every glorious planet, satellite, and greater central orb, presented the same globular figures. Science measured the heavens, and filled up a space that seems almost vast enough to furnish a bold image of eternity, with lines of parallax that link the zenith to the nadir, and with angels that build their hypothesis on the horns of the moon and ring of Saturn. The wild comet, too—the erratic steamer of the skies, that travels, like a celestial, from one cluster of planets to another, millions of miles beyond the ken of the far-sighted telescope of Herschel—has been taught by science where to curve his flaming chariot around the goat, and when to return and trim his night fires at the fountain of the sun.

Leaving the heavens, science has effected its most useful labors on the sea, on the earth, and within the deep bowels of the mines. In the science of navigation, it boots little whether the winds blow from one direction or another; the skill of the sailor can propel his vessel in the winds, by the very blast which is puffing in his teeth. And mightier still, wind and steam, and tide and calm, have all been overcome by the simple science that converts water into atmosphere. Forced by caloric from a grosser element into an aeriform state, the mighty power of steam thunders over the deep, and treads the mountain waves like a giant.

The rage of the storm at sea has been disarmed by science; the heaving of the hungry ocean has been subdued by the oil poured out upon the seething waters; the leaking ship has been pumped by the violence of the same hurricane that strained her timbers. The arts of life have all been promoted, perfected, and beautified by science. It guides the plough and reaps the harvest. It builds cities, and works the mines. It furnishes the rooms of the cottage and the palace, and it gives the power of death to those whose dreadful trade it is to kill according to rule.

Loss of the Convic Ship Waterloo.—Two Hundred Lives Lost, out of Three Hundred and Thirty.—By extracts of a letter which was received on Saturday by Her Majesty's ship Hyacinth, from Cape Town, via Scina's Bay, dated August 29th, 1842, we learn that it blew a heavy gale on the 27th of August in Table Mountain. The next morning the inhabitants of Cape Town discovered the wreck of the Abercrombie 1415 tons, from London. About three hundred yards from her was the convic ship Waterloo, and within sight of the multitude on shore she gave a lee-lurch among the breakers. After two or three heavy rolls, her three masts went over the side with a dreadful crash. Here follows the extract:—

"The hatches were now opened, and the convicts rushed on deck. The sea was now making a clean breach over her.—Immediately on the convicts arriving on deck, about fifty jumped overboard; about fifteen or twenty gained the shore, and the remainder were drowned. The cries of the poor wretches on deck were now heart-breaking. Each sea, as it made a breach over the unfortunate vessel, carried a dozen into the water, who of course were drowned. Thousands of the people were on the beach, but could not render the least assistance. Oh! it was a dreadful sight. There, within a stone-throw lay two or three hundred human beings drowned before our eyes."

Some years ago, a chap arrived at Augusta, with one of those great curiosities, an Egyptian Mummy, which he desired to exhibit. It was required then, that before the exhibition, permission should be obtained from the Judge of some of the inferior Courts. Accordingly, the showman proceeded to the Court House, where some Court was in session, and applied to the Judge for a license, stating that at an infinite trouble and expense, to say nothing of danger, he had been fortunate enough to procure the greatest curiosity ever seen in the United States.

"What is it?" asked the Judge.

"An Egyptian Mummy, may it please the Court, more than three thousand years old," said the showman.

"Three thousand years old!" exclaimed the Judge, jumping to his feet "and is the darned critter alive?"

ANECDOTE.—A zealous parson in the State of steady habits, who noticed the remissness of one of his indigent parishioners in attending church, spoke to him on the subject, and in the common style of holy impertinence, chid him for his neglect. The pauper pleaded his want of shoes as an excuse. This, however, was far from being valid in the parson's mind, who felt a laudable pride in the number of his flock. "This will not do," said he, "I will lend you a pair, just for meeting." The indolent fellow accepted the shoes, but finding them very convenient in other instances as well as traveling to the sanctuary, soon used them so hardly that it could not escape the notice of his heavenly guide. "How is this?" said he; "I lent them to you only for the purpose of going to meeting." Lawrence scratched his head for an excuse. "Indeed, good Mr. Parson," said he, "as we are both maintained by the town, I thought it would make no odds which wore out the shoes, you or I!"

AMUSING ANECDOTE OF A VENTRILOQUIST.—We were a day or two since, very much amused in a hotel with a joke that Wyman, the ventriloquist, played on a countryman who had called for a jug of beer. He had no sooner raised the glass to his lips than he thought he heard a dog at his heels—he turned around to look, but discovered nothing—the second attempt with the glass had the same effect, except that the supposed dog growled more savagely—the countryman stared more wildly than before, exclaiming "What's that?" A voice was heard from the glass, saying, "I'm rum, and rum is the devil."—Down dropped the glass of rum, the countryman crying out, "By hoky, I'll not taste rum again." We think that Wyman deserves a premium for his aid in the temperance cause.—[Bk. Clipper.]

ST. LOUIS BANK NOTE TABLE, Based upon Specie.

Corrected semi weekly by Smith & Carter, Exchange Brokers, 117 Main Street.
Bank of Missouri,	par
do do Branches,	par
Bank of Illinois,	60 dis
City of Warranta,	29a30 dis
County Warrants,	38a40 dis
Bank of Cairo,
Miners Bank of Dubuque,	no sale
Wisconsin Marine Insurance Co,	2a3 dis
State Bank of Illinois,	52a53 dis
Ohio, county, generally,	3a5 dis
Cincinnati	1a2 dis
State Bank of Indiana,	1a2 dis
Kentucky Banks,	hfa1hf dis
United States Bank Notes,	65 dis
Pennsylvania, specie paying,	para2 dis
Maryland, do do	para2 dis
Virginia Banks,	1a2 dis
New York and New England Banks,	para2 dis
Bank of Louisiana,	1 dia
Suspended New Orleans Banks,	no sale
Arkansas Bank,	no sale
Michigan Banks,	5a7
Tennessee,	5a6 dis
Treasury Notes,	par
Exchange on New York, and Phila	1a1
New Orleans,	par
Specie,	par

DREADFUL SHIPWRECK.—We learn that the new bark Isidore, Captain Foss, sailed from New Orleans on the 30th ult., for New Orleans, and was totally lost on the same night, with all her crew, on Capa Neddock, or on Maxwell's beach, in Wells. She was mostly owned in Kennetunk, and this was her first voyage.

A man by the name of De Lisle has appeared and laid claim to the whole of the land upon which Jefferson city, Mo., has been built. He purchased it previous to the war, and in 1812 enlisted in the army. Since that time he had not been heard from until within a short time past. Acting under the belief that he was dead, his sisters had sold the property.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 13TH INST.

James Farmer, aged 47 years; ague and fever.

Anna Farnam, aged 1 year; ague and fever.

Elizabeth McEwen, aged 2 years; consumption.

Margaret Bromsley, aged 13 years; ague and fever.

Total 4.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 16TH INST.

Mary Ann Thayer, aged 25 years; fever.

Wm Welch, aged 12 years; ague and fever.

Susan Houston, aged 11 years; fever.

Total 5.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 23RD INST.

Louisa Houston, aged 13 years; fever.

Benjamin Williams, aged 36 years; inflammation of brain.

Wm. Reed, aged 57 years; consumption.

Elizabeth Baggs, aged 17 years; Winter fever.

Athelton Sessions, aged 1 year; black canker.

Total 5.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

MARRIED.—In this City on the 25th inst., by President Joseph Smith, GENERAL WILSON LAW, to Miss ELIZABETH F. SIKES—both of this City.

MARRIED.—In this city, on the 8th ultimo, by Elder James Sloan, Mr. George Wirrick, to Miss Juliett Atwood.

At Job Creek settlement, in this county, on the 13th inst., by Elder George Snyder, Elder Franklin D. Richards, of this city, to Miss Jane Snyder, of the former place.

DIED.—In this city, on the 15th inst., Louisa C. Houston, aged eleven years eight months and eleven days.

—In this city on the 11th inst., Louisa Houston, aged thirteen years and twenty eight days; both children of Isaac and Docia Houston.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

THE subscribers have just recieved a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Electric Primer, Ray's Electric Arithmetic, The Electric Spelling Book, Electric 1st Reader, Electric 2nd Reader, Electric 3rd Reader, Electric 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing, Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

NOTICE.

The subscribers have entered into co-partnership, for the purpose of publishing the "Times And Seasons," and the "Wasp," and of carrying on the business of Printing, Stereotyping, Book-binding, Bookselling and everything connected with the above named branches of business.

N. B. All business connected with the firm will be done in the name of TAYLOR, & WOODRUFF. Nauvoo, Oct. 1st 1842.

O. C. SKINNER,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office at the Masonic Hall, Nauvoo.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.

G. B. Holt, Dayton,

G. P. Bell, Hamilton,

Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,

Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.

Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

D. R. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula, mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic. no35.

NO CURE NO PAY.

I propose to cure smoking chimneys by the use of 'Hammond's Patent No Cure No Pay.' There is no mistake in this patent; call and examine Mr. Wilford Woodruff's, under the Printing Office, who is authorised to make contracts for me. I shall return to the city about the 3rd day of next month, and will attend to all persons who may desire their chimneys to draw well.

ALEX. SYMPSON.

Dec. 31, 1842.

NEW BOOT AND SHOE ESTABLISHMENT.

THE subscriber respectfully informs the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has commenced the above named business, on Mulhollon St., south east corner of the Temple square. All kinds of work done on the shortest notice and most reasonable terms. Also intends to keep constantly on hand all kinds of ready made work. Most kinds of produce taken in exchange for goods and shoes.

M. ADAMS.

Dec. 31, 1842. no35-16.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of George D. Grant, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that George D. Grant, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided; and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 22nd day of December next, at the district court room, in the city of Springfield, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 22d day of December A. D. 1842.

J. H. SHERMAN,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest, J. F. Owings Clerk. 31-17

The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God.—Psalm, xiv. 1.
O give me back my God again!
If he is gone, what shall remain
But sin and sorrow, death, and pain,
And wretchedness;
And man would search the world in vain,
For happiness.

This world, I know, is very bright,
And those whose spirits still are light,
May, for a season, take delight,
In earthly toys;
But soon misfortune's withering blight
Will mar their joys.

Then tell me O ye worldlings, where
A heart oppressed with grief and care,
Can find a refuge in despair,
When hope has fled;
And cherished friends and prospects fair
Are with the dead.

What can dry up the numerous tear,
When robbed of every comfort here?
Or what in death's dark hour can cheer
The heart of man?
I answer promptly without fear—
Religion can.

Call this delusion if you please—
Enthusiastic fantasies,
Or by still harsher names than these,
And terms more rough;
If it can bid our sorrows cease,
It is enough.

Can your philosophy impart
A balm to soothe the aching heart,
When strongest ties are torn apart
By death's stern stroke?
Can it forbid the tears to start
When hearts are broke?

Or would it comfort us to know,
That those so fondly loved below,
Down to the silent dust must go,
And never rise,
Where tears of grief will cease to flow
From aching eyes?

O, do not let me hear you say
"There is no God"—Take not away
My dearest hope, my only stay,
That will not fail—
The only light that cheers my way
Through life's dark vale.

This world has ever been to me,
A world of grief and misery;
No pleasing prospect can I see
For a home,
Then let me hope that there will be
A happier home.

A world of perfect happiness,
Where sorrow, grief, and wretchedness
Will all be swallowed up in bliss,
Where sin is not;
And all the sorrows felt in this
Will be forgot.

This hope has kept me from despair,
And long enabled me to bear
A heavy load of grief and care,
And comfort given;
The hope that I may one day share
The joys of heaven.

Perhaps this hope is but a vain
Delusion of a heated brain;
To be deceived would still be gain,
For life is brief:
And such a hope can ease my pain
And soothe my grief.

Now let us take another view:
Suppose the Bible to be true,
What think you will become of you,
When God shall come
To give to every man his due,
And sin its doom?

You have despised our Saviour's name,
And put him to an open shame,
And dared to criticise and blame
That glorious plan,
By which life and salvation came
To sinful man.

You who have scorned the Son of God,
And trampled on his precious blood,
Will you escape his vengeance red

In that great day,
When world shall tremble at his nod,
And pass away?
I know that there will be a day
When this bright world will pass away;
And you admit perchance they may—
O then "prepare
To meet your God."—Once more I say,
Beware! Beware!

CHARITABLE.—There are many people in this strange world of ours who talk a great deal about charity, who wish to be considered charitable, and are firmly persuaded they are full of that noble attribute. They are something like the pious Mrs. Thoughtful, whose notions of charity may be gathered from the following dialogue between herself and servant:—

"Jacob, what did you give the lame boy, with a sick mother and three small sisters, when he called to-day?"

"Two cold 'taters and an onion."

"That's right, Jacob. Always assist the poor. The Lord loveth a liberal giver,"—and Mrs. Thoughtful looked blandly at the solemn domestic. "When the lame boy comes again, you may inquire how his poor mother is. You need n't give him any thing to day. It might encourage gluttony; and gluttony, Jacob, is one of the great sins spoken against in Scripture."

"Yes, ma'am, I've always hee'n it was—so I shan't give him any more cold 'taters till day after to-morrow, which will be the Sabbath. I ought to do good on the Lord's day, ought n't I?"

"Oh, certainly, Jacob! and much it delights me to have so benevolent a servant to help me carry out my charitable purposes. Ah! if the miserly and sordid only knew the holy satisfaction arising from deeds of goodness! Oh, Jacob! Jacob! you cannot be too thankful that you live in a land of Gospel light and privileges."

It is computed by Dr. Casper, that there are on earth 260,000,000 human beings, and that the average deaths are 290,000,000 annually, 80,000 daily, nearly 3,700 hourly, and fifty-five every minute.

We learn that the steam boat Louisa has been raised, and will be brought up either here or on the Ohio to be repaired.

GRANT & WATT, TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused.
Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP, ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chaffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb M. Donough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.
PENNSYLVANIA.
Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. L. Appleby, Recluse Town.
Israel Irvin, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.
OHIO.
John Johnson, Kirtland.
NEW YORK.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuance of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.
Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

Will practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co. Ill., at the Court House. no29-1f.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medicinal prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

COLIC LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispenation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12½ cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

Florida.—About half the Indians in Florida went in at Tampa Bay recently, and the balance have promised Gen. Worth to surrender shortly.

BRADFORD & BROWN, Commission and Forwarding Merchants, Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multifarious diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix naturae.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay.
Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.
Oct. 15, 1842. no27-1f.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street.—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of
Medicines, Paints and Oils,
Pure, Wines,
Glass, Putty,
School, Books,
Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.
Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-1f.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND,
A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. 1f.
Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

Will Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.

Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842.
no31-1f.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at, J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-1f.

POETRY.

The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God.—Psalm, xiv. 1.
O give me back my God again!
If he is gone, what shall remain
But sin and sorrow, death, and pain,
And wretchedness;
And man would search the world in vain,
For happiness.

This world, I know, is very bright,
And those whose spirits still are light,
May, for a season, take delight,
In earthly toys;
But soon misfortune's withering blight
Will mar their joys.

Then tell me O ye worldlings, where
A heart oppressed with grief and care,
Can find a refuge in despair,
When hope has fled;
And cherished friends and prospects fair
Are with the dead.

What can dry up the numerous tear,
When robbed of every comfort here?
Or what in death's dark hour can cheer
The heart of man?
I answer promptly without fear—
Religion can.

Call this delusion if you please—
Enthusiastic fantasies,
Or by still harsher names than these,
And terms more rough:
If it can bid our sorrows cease,
It is enough.

Can your philosophy impart
A balm to soothe the aching heart,
When strongest ties are torn apart
By death's stern stroke?
Can it forbid the tears to start
When hearts are broke?

Or would it comfort us to know,
That those so fondly loved below,
Down to the silent dust must go,
And never rise,
Where tears of grief will cease to flow
From aching eyes?

O, do not let me hear you say
"There is no God"—Take not away
My dearest hope, my only stay,
That will not fail—
The only light that cheers my way
Through life's dark vale.

This world has ever been to me,
A world of grief and misery;
No pleasing prospect can I see
For days to come,
Then let me hope that there will be
A happier home.

A world of perfect happiness,
Where sorrow, grief, and wretchedness
Will all be swallowed up in bliss,
Where sin is not;
And all the sorrows felt in this
Will be forgot.

This hope has kept me from despair,
And long enabled me to bear
A heavy load of grief and care,
And comfort given;
The hope that I may one day share
The joys of heaven.

Perhaps this hope is but a vain
Delusion of a heated brain;
To be deceived would still be gain,
For life is brief:
And such a hope can ease my pain
And soothe my grief.

Now let us take another view:
Suppose the Bible to be true,
What think you will become of you,
When God shall come
To give to every man his due,
And sin its doom?

You have despised our Saviour's name,
And put him to an open shame,
And dared to criticise and blame
That glorious plan,
By which life and salvation came
To sinful man.

You who have scorned the Son of God,
And trampled on his precious blood,
Will you escape his vengeful rod

In that great day,
When world shall tremble at his nod,
And pass away?

I know that there will be a day
When this bright world will pass away;
And you admit perchance they may—
O then "prepare
To meet your God."—Once more I say,
Beware! Beware!

LS**

CHARITABLE.—There are many people in this strange world of ours who talk a great deal about charity, who wish to be considered charitable, and are firmly persuaded they are full of that noble attribute. They are something like the pious Mrs. Thoughtful, whose notions of charity may be gathered from the following dialogue between herself and servant:—

"Jacob, what did you give the lame boy, with a sick mother and three small sisters, when he called to-day?"

"Two cold 'taters and an onion."

"That's right, Jacob. Always assist the poor. The Lord loveth a liberal giver;"—and Mrs. Thoughtful looked blandly at the solemn domestic. "When the lame boy comes again, you may inquire how his poor mother is. You need n't give him any thing to-day. It might encourage gluttony; and gluttony, Jacob, is one of the great sins spoken against in Scripture."

"Yes, ma'am, I've always hee'n it was—so I shan't give him any more cold 'taters till day, after to-morrow, which will be the Sabbath. I ought to do good on the Lord's day, ought n't I?"

"Oh, certainly, Jacob! and much it delights me to have so benevolent a servant to help me carry out my charitable purposes. Ah! if the miserly and sordid only knew the holy satisfaction arising from deeds of goodness! Oh, Jacob! Jacob! you cannot be too thankful that you live in a land of Gospel light and privileges."

It is computed by Dr. Casper, that there are on earth 960,000,000 human beings, and that the average deaths are 290,000,000 annually, 80,000 daily, nearly 3,700 hourly, and fifty-five every minute.

We learn that the steam boat Louisa has been raised, and will be brought up either here or on the Ohio to be repaired.

GRANT & WATT, TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused.
Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.
J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Cliffin, Lahar, Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb, McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.
Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.
Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.
Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. J. Appleby, Recluse Town.
Israel Evans, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.
Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.
S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.

OHIO.
John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN
MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuance of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.
Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

GEO. BACHMAN,
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-1f.

SHERMAN'S MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

Florida.—About half the Indians in Florida went in at Tampa Bay recently, and the balance have promised Gen. Worth to surrender shortly.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible. To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multifarious diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix nature.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay.
Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars, enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the

A. H. WORTHIN.
Oct. 15, 1842. no27-1f.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street.—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-1f.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSEND,
A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. W.
Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.

Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842. no31-1f.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-1f.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 36.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, January 7, 1842.

Whole Number 36

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY

JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,

At the corner of Water and Main Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor, (John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

WAR—AMBITION.

BY L. O. LITTLEFIELD.

Peer mortal man, when wilt thou learn to cease
Thy wars, thy strife, and wear the rose wreath
Which friendship gives, within the bowers of peace!

Return the crimson'd falchion to its sheath,
And wash the stain of slaughter from the heath!
Peace points the way to happiness and love,
And blunts the edge of mis'ry's sharpened
teeth;

Prepares the heart for blessedness above,
In fields of heavenly joy eternally to rove.

Ambition!—now the harbinger of crime,
The car of treason and the gate of death!—
Spreads desolation wide in every clime,
And, with the poison of its subtle breath,
Destroys the union of the sacred heart;
While, with the vigor of its restless hand,
Supremely wields the sceptre o'er the earth,
And bows the nations low at its command
And subjugates the wealth of every land.

Good ambition! (?) it lives but in the name;
And, as the airy bubbles, on the wave
Which angry winds emboss with sheets of foam,
Bursts into air, when pebbled shores they lave.
So does Ambition find a sudden grave,
When pierced by virtue's dart, or reason's cry—
'The weak to foster, the oppressed to save!—'
'Tis but a hell that in the brain doth lie,
And scorns the steadfast heart that gold would fail to buy.

It sows the seed of discord thro' the land,
Where hope's proud Eagle oft is wont to soar,
Whose spreading wings the flame of freedom
fan'd.

That bid the yoke of tyranny no more,
Oppress the sons of fair Columbia's shore.
Aspirants; halt within thy wild career!
The winds are loud; the tempest's deaf'ning
roar
Falls dismal on th' patriotic ear
And fills the heart with dread and philanthropic fear.

There was a time, in days so fleetly fled—
When other men upon life's staging moved,
And free y for our Independence bled—
When men's Ambition was their country's love,
When friendship's star shone brilliantly above
The grov'ling strife and bickering of men.
And taught mankind, in peaceful bands to
move:—

A time when love and happiness began
To tread the paths where friendship's limpid fountains ran.

WESTERN NAVIGATION.

It is but little more than 40 years since
the canoe of the savage, on the Ohio,
gave place to the flat boat of the emigrant. Then followed the open keel of the trader, and the flat roofed ark of the Mississippi. The first steamboat on the Western Waters, was the "New Orleans," built at Pittsburg in 1811. Not more than seven or eight boats were built previously to 1817. A gentleman in this City, states that in making a trip

to N. Orleans from Pittsburgh in 1815,
in a flatboat, he saw but two steamboats
on the passage, which occupied two months. For the last 10 years they have been rapidly increasing in number,
as well as in model and style of workmanship. The first steamboat that passed the mouth of the Missouri, was the
"Western Engineer," which was on the 8th of July, 1820. This boat was built for the accommodation of Col. Loxe's
Scientific Expedition to the Rocky Mountains, which passed up the Missouri in 1819. The first year that a steamboat ventured up the Illinois, was in 1828.—
It was not till 1830, that the present mode
of constructing the cabin above the boilers, was adopted. By this improvement,
the comfort of travelers has been greatly increased. Instead of the narrow limits into which passengers were formerly indiscriminately crowded, the accommodations are now comparatively commodious
and convenient. Our boats truly resemble "floating castles—half warehouse,
and half palace."

It is calculated that there are now about 400 steamboats employed on the Western rivers. The frequent repetition of accidents and the consequent loss of life and property within the last few years, shows that the navigation of our rivers is becoming extremely hazardous.
This is a subject in which the whole nation is interested. A meeting was recently held in St. Louis, for the purpose of memorializing Congress, in relation to the safe navigation of the Western rivers; and the memorial, which was reported by the meeting, shows the alarming extent of these disasters since 1833. In a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitted to Congress in December, 1838, a list of the material accidents
and loss of life and property, by snags, explosions, and other disasters, that have occurred to steamboats in the U. States, was given. From this letter the following synopsis is made of accidents that occurred on the Western waters, previous to 1839:

In 1816, there was one explosion on
the Ohio—7 killed and 9 wounded.

In 1817, there were 4 explosions on the Mississippi—27 killed.

In 1823, 3 explosions on the Mississippi—9 killed and 3 wounded. Also, 1 steamboat burnt.

In 1826, 2 explosions at New Orleans
—6 killed and 3 wounded.

In 1827, 1 explosion on the Ohio—4
killed and 7 wounded.

In 1828, 2 explosions on the Mississippi—1 killed. Also 1 explosion on the Ohio, by which $5,000 were lost.

In 1829, 1 boat snagged on the Missouri.

In 1830, 2 snagged on the Mississippi
—1 killed, and 11 wounded. The same year there were 3 explosions on the Mississippi—37 killed, 14 wounded. Also 1
explosion on the Ohio—28 killed, 29 wounded. There was also 1 explosion on the Cumberland.

In 1831, 2 explosions on the Ohio—16
killed, 12 wounded.

In 1832, one snagged on the Missouri.

In 1833, 1 burnt on Red river—10
lives lost;—and 1 snagged, full cargo of cotton lost. The same year, 1 boat collapsed a fire on the Mississippi—1 killed,
4 wounded—and 1 boat snagged.

In 1834, 1 explosion on the Mississippi
—5 killed, 13 wounded—1 snagged—14
killed. Also, 2 snagged on the Illinois;
1 snagged, and 1 collision on the Missouri; and 1 burnt at St. Louis.

In 1835, 1 collision on the Ohio—16
killed—1 do. on the Mississippi. One burnt—1 life lost. One collapse—4 killed, 9 wounded—and 1 snagged.

In 1836, 6 snagged on the Mississippi,
1 on the Illinois, and 1 on the Missouri.
Two explosions on the Ohio—4 killed, 13 wounded—and 1 on the Missouri. One collapse on the Mississippi—3 killed, 25
wounded—4 burnt on the Mississippi, 1
on the Missouri, and 1 on the Cumberland—1 life lost.

In 1837, 6 snagged, and 3 explosions
on the Mississippi—9 killed, 23 wounded.
One snagged on the Missouri, and 2 on Red river. Two explosions on the Ohio
—11 killed, 12 wounded. One burnt on the Mississippi, the Ben Sherrod—130
lives lost; 1 burnt at Vicksburg—$100,- 000 lost; 1 burnt on the Ohio—vessel and cargo lost; 1 burnt on the Mississippi, the Ion—9 lives lost and 1100 bales of cotton; 1 burnt and one collision on the Illinois—12 drowned; and one collision
on the Mississippi, the Monmouth—300
lives lost.

In 1838, 14 snagged on the Mississippi
—1 killed; 4 explosions on the Mississippi—52 killed, 33 wounded; 1 explosion on the Ohio, the Mosselle—120 killed, 16
wounded; 2 struck a rock in the Mississippi—$50,000 lost; 1 collapse on the Mississippi—13 lives lost; 1 collision on the Ohio; 1 burnt on the Mississippi—3 lives lost; 1 broke steam pipe—3 killed;
1 sunk; and 1 snagged on the Illinois.

Of the above 106 accidents, 43 appear to have been by snags and sawyers; 36
by explosions; 14 by fire; and 13 by collapses, collisions, &c. They have occasioned the loss 1,018 lives, besides wounding 236 persons, many of whom either died from the injuries received, or were crippled for life. In addition to the above, many minor accidents occurred on the Western waters, in the period named,

concerning which no accurate statements
can be obtained. Of the amount of property destroyed, it would be difficult to form any estimate that could be relied upon with accuracy.

It appears from the memorial above referred to, that steamboat accidents on the Western waters, have increased, since 1838, in a fearful ratio. We have collected the following startling array of facts, showing the number of boats that have been lost in consequence, mostly,
of the obstructions of the Western waters, since 1838, viz:

In 1839, 40 steamboat losses.

In 1840, 41 " "

In 1841, 29 " "

In 1842, estimated, 40 " "

In addition to the wretched destruction
of life by these disasters.

The value of the property lost in one year, is estimated at $927,750; and the total amount of these losses, in the last four years, will not fall short of Four Millions of Dollars. The St. Louis New Era furnishes a list of 69 boats that have been sunk by obstructions in the Western rivers, since July 1st, 1841, to December 1st 1842 a term of 17 months.

In the course of five weeks, between the 11th of September and the 15th of
October, eight boats were lost between St.
Louis and the mouth of the Ohio—aggregate loss of property, $234,000. The last of these boats was the "Eliza," on which were drowned between 40 and 50 passengers. Five of the 8 boats were all sunk within one mile of the same place.
It will be seen that the disasters in the last four years, have lamentably increased. It is estimated that in the last seventeen months, the losses sustained by obstructions, have been equal to one-fifth of the whole number of boats engaged in the trade.

All these facts show, that since the enterprising Capt. Shreve suspended operations with his Snagboats, these obstructions have been rapidly accumulating. In one year, Capt. S. removed from the channel of the Mississippi and Ohio, 2,235 snags, besides effecting other improvements in the navigation. The recent immense destruction of life and property of our rivers, calls in trumpet tones for a speedy renewal of these operations. This statement conveys but a very inadequate idea of the loss of life
and property upon the Western rivers.—
It is confidently hoped that Congress will regard the recommendation of the President in his recent Message to Congress, by making ample appropriations for the improvement of our navigation, not as a boon, but as a right, which justice to the West and the security of life and property demand.

MEXICO AND TEXAS.

From the various movements made by
Santa Anna in Mexico, it is very evident
that he intends, if possible, to re-conquer
Yucatan and Texas, abolish every species of liberal government in Mexico, return to the old central system, and have himself proclaimed Dictator.

We can hardly expect that Santa Anna will listen to the proposition of this government to mediate between Mexico and Texas. And, indeed, the ordering of a small fleet of our vessels of war to the coast of Mexico, indicates that the last despatches from our minister there,
were not amicable. The tone of the Mexican journals strengthens the belief;
and it is most likely that the proposition
for mediation has been rejected by the Mexican government.

So far, however, the Texans are triumphant. They have lost about 50 killed, and 50 prisoners in the recent fights;
but they have killed over 300 in all and have again driven the Mexican Army
beyond the Rio Grande, and all the Mexican citizens from San Antonio. Besides this, Texas has 3000 men in the field near San Antonio, and 5000 more ready to take up arms the moment they are wanted.

Santa Anna is very much crippled in his resources. The expenses of his military last year exceeded the revenue
$2,000,000, without allowing any thing
for evil expenses; and as yet no very large body of troops has marched from the interior of Mexico towards the frontiers of Texas, as was threatened, and he has en-ly about 5000 troops at Vera Cruz. In the provinces near Rio Grande he has but a small number of soldiers. And even if he could collect a large army and land it in Texas, it would be very difficult to furnish the men with supplies; and the Texans would soon use up 20,000
Mexicans.

As to an invasion by the Mexican fleet we think that will not succeed; although Capt. Charlewood is a brave officer, and has six or seven vessels under his command, the Texans have five ships
of war, under a gallant commander, and could soon have as many more; and the Texian fleet is now at sea, fully manned
and equipped.

Veracity and wit make a man shine in company; but trite jokes and loud laughter reduce him to a buffoon.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BYAST.

Volume I.—No. 36.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, January 7, 1842.

Whole Number 36

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,
At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING,
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

POETRY.

For the Wasp.

WAR—AMBITION.

BY L. O. LITTLEFIELD.

Fear mortal man, when wilt thou learn to cease
Thy wars, thy strife, and wear the rose wreath
Which friendship gives, within the bower of peace!

Return the crimson'd falchion to its sheath,
And wash the stain of slaughter from the heath!
Peace points the way to happiness and love,
And blunts the edge of misery's sharpened
teeth!

Prepares the heart for blessedness above,
In fields of heavenly joy eternally to rove.

Ambition!—now the harbinger of crime,
The car of treason and the gate of death!—
Spreads desolation wide in every clime,
And, with the poison of its subtle breath,
Destroys the union of the sacred hearth;
While, with the vigor of its restless hand,
Supremely wields the sceptre o'er the earth,
And bows the nations low at its command
And subjugates the wealth of every land.

Good ambition! (!) it lives but in the name;
And, as the airy bubbles, on the wave
Which angry winds emboss with sheets of foam,
Bursts into air, when puffed shores they leave;
So does Ambition rise a sudden glow,
When pierced by virtue's dart, or reason's cry—
The weak to foster, the oppressed to save!—
'Tis but a hell that in the brain do
And scorns the steadfast heart that gold would fail to buy.

It sows the seed of discord thro' the land,
Where hope's proud Eagle oft is wont to soar,
Whose spreading wings the flame of freedom
fan'd.

That bid the yoke of tyranny no more
Oppress the sons of fair Columby's shore.
Aspirants! halt within thy wild career!
The winds are loud; the tempest's deaf'ning
roar

Falls dismal on the patriotic ear
And fills the heart with dread and philanthropic fear.

There was a time, in days so fleetly fled—
When other men upon life's staging moved,
And free y for our Independence bled—
When men's Ambition was their country's love,
When friendship's star shone brilliantly, above
The grov'ling strife and bickering of men,
And taught mankind in peaceful bands to
move:—

A time when love and happiness began
To tread the paths where friendship's limpid
fountains ran.

WESTERN NAVIGATION.

It is but little more than 40 years since
the canoe of the savage, on the Ohio,
gave place to the flat boat of the emigrant. Then followed the open keel of
the trader, and the flat roofed ark of the Mississippi. The first steamboat on the Western Waters, was the "New Orleans," built at Pittsburg in 1811. Not more than seven or eight boats were built previously to 1817. A gentleman

in this City, states that in making a trip
to N. Orleans from Pittsburgh in 1815,
in a flatboat, he saw but two steamboats
on the passage, which occupied two months. For the last 10 years they have been rapidly increasing in number,
as well as in model and style of workmanship. The first steamboat that passed the mouth of the Missouri, was the
"Western Engineer," which was on the 8th of July, 1820. This boat was built for the accommodation of Col. Loxe's
Scientific Expedition to the Rocky Mountains, which passed up the Missouri in 1819. The first year that a steamboat
ventured up the Illinois, was in 1828.—
It was not till 1830, that the present mode
of constructing the cabin above the boilers, was adopted. By this improvement,
the comfort of travelers has been greatly increased. Instead of the narrow limits into which passengers were formerly indiscriminately crowded, the accommodations are now comparatively commodious
and convenient. Our boats truly resemble "floating castles—half warehouse,
and half palace."

It is calculated that there are now about 400 steamboats employed on the Western rivers. The frequent repetition
of accidents and the consequent loss of life and property within the last few years, shows that the navigation of our rivers is becoming extremely hazardous.
This is a subject in which the whole nation is interested. A meeting was recently held in St. Louis, for the purpose of memorializing Congress, in relation to
the safe navigation of the Western rivers; and the memorial, which was reported by the meeting, shows the alarming extent of these disasters since 1833. In a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitted to Congress in December, 1833, a list of the material accidents
and loss of life and property, by snags,
explosions, and other disasters, that have occurred to steamboats in the U. States,
was given. From this letter the following synopsis is made of accidents that occurred on the Western waters, previous to 1839:

In 1816, there was one explosion on
the Ohio—7 killed and 9 wounded.

In 1817, there were 4 explosions on
the Mississippi—27 killed.

In 1823, 3 explosions on the Mississippi—9 killed and 3 wounded. Also, 1
steamboat burnt.

In 1826, 2 explosions at New Orleans
—6 killed and 3 wounded.

In 1827, 1 explosion on the Ohio—4
killed and 7 wounded.

In 1828, 2 explosions on the Mississippi—1 killed. Also 1 explosion on the Ohio, by which $5,000 were lost.

In 1829, 1 boat snagged on the Missouri.

In 1829, 2 snagged on the Mississippi
—11 killed, and 11 wounded. The same year there were 3 explosions on the Mississippi—37 killed, 14 wounded. Also 1
explosion on the Ohio—23 killed, 29
wounded. There was also 1 explosion
on the Cumberland.

In 1831, 2 explosions on the Ohio—16
killed, 12 wounded.

In 1832, one snagged on the Missouri.

In 1833, 1 burnt on Red river—10
lives lost;—and 1 snagged, full cargo of cotton lost. The same year, 1 boat collapsed a flue on the Mississippi—1 killed,
4 wounded—and 1 boat snagged.

In 1834, 1 explosion on the Mississippi
—5 killed, 13 wounded—1 snagged—14
killed. Also, 2 snagged on the Illinois;
1 snagged, and 1 collision on the Missouri; and 1 burnt at St. Louis.

In 1835, 1 collision on the Ohio—16
killed—1 do. on the Mississippi. One burnt—1 life lost. One collapse—4 killed, 9 wounded—and 1 snagged.

In 1836, 6 snagged on the Mississippi,
1 on the Illinois, and 1 on the Missouri.
Two explosions on the Ohio—4 killed, 3
wounded—and 1 on the Missouri. One collapse on the Mississippi—3 killed, 25
wounded—4 burnt on the Mississippi, 1
on the Missouri, and 1 on the Cumberland—1 life lost.

In 1837, 6 snagged, and 3 explosions
on the Mississippi—9 killed, 23 wounded.
One snagged on the Missouri, and 2 on Red river. Two explosions on the Ohio
—11 killed, 12 wounded. One burnt on the Mississippi, the Ben Sherrod—130
lives lost; 1 burnt at Vicksburg—$100,- 000 lost; 1 burnt on the Ohio—vessel and cargo lost; 1 burnt on the Mississippi, the log—9 lives lost and 1100 bales of cotton; 1 burnt and one collision on the Illinois—12 drowned; and one collision
on the Mississippi, the Monmouth—300
lives lost.

In 1838, 14 snagged on the Mississippi
—1 killed; 4 explosions on the Mississippi—52 killed, 23 wounded; 1 explosion
on the Ohio, the Mosselle—120 killed, 16
wounded; 2 struck a rock in the Mississippi—$50,000 lost; 1 collapse on the Mississippi—13 lives lost; 1 collision on the Ohio; 1 burn: on the Mississippi—3
lives lost; 1 broke steam pipe—3 killed;
1 sunk; and 1 snagged on the Illinois.

Of the above 106 accidents, 43 appear
to have been by snags and sawyers; 36
by explosions; 14 by fire; and 13 by col-
lapses, collisions, &c. They have occasioned the loss 1,018 lives, besides wounding 236 persons, many of whom either died from the injuries received, or were crippled for life. In addition to the above, many minor accidents occurred on
the Western waters, in the period named,

concerning which no accurate statements
can be obtained. Of the amount of property destroyed, it would be difficult to form any estimate that could be relied upon with accuracy.

It appears from the memorial above
referred to, that steamboat accidents on
the Western waters, have increased,
since 1833, in a fearful ratio. We have collected the following startling array of facts, showing the number of boats that have been lost in consequence, mostly,
of the obstructions of the Western waters, since 1833, viz:

In 1839, 49 steamboat losses.

In 1840, 41 " "

In 1841, 29 " "

In 1842, estimated, 40 " "

In addition to the wretched destruction
of life by these disasters.

The value of the property lost in one
year, is estimated at $927,750; and the total amount of these losses, in the last four years, will not fall short of Four Millions of Dollars. The St. Louis New
Era furnishes a list of 63 boats that have been sunk by obstructions in the Western rivers, since July 1st, 1841, to December 1st 1842 a term of 17 months.

In the course of five weeks, between the 11th of September and the 15th of
October, eight boats were lost between St.
Louis and the mouth of the Ohio—aggregate loss of property, $234,000. The last of these boats was the "Eliza," on
which were drowned between 40 and 50
passengers. Five of the 8 boats were all sunk within one mile of the same place.
It will be seen that the disasters in the
last four years, have lamentably increased. It is estimated that in the last seventeen months, the losses sustained by

obstructions, have been equal to one-fifth of the whole number of boats engaged in
the trade.

All these facts show, that since the enterprising Capt. Shreve suspended operations with his Snagboats, these obstructions have been rapidly accumulating. In one year, Capt. S. removed from the channel of the Mississippi and Ohio, 2,235 snags, besides effecting other improvements in the navigation. The recent immense destruction of life and property of our rivers, calls in trumpet
tones for a speedy renewal of these operations. This statement conveys but a very inadequate idea of the loss of life
and property upon the Western rivers.—
It is confidently hoped that Congress will regard the recommendation of the President in his recent Message to Congress,
by making ample appropriations for the improvement of our navigation, not as a boon, but as a right, which justice to the West and the security of life and property demand.

MEXICO AND TEXAS.

From the various movements made by
Santa Anna in Mexico, it is very evident
that he intends, if possible, to re-conquer
Yucatan and Texas, abolish every species of liberal government in Mexico, return to the old central system, and have himself proclaimed Dictator.

We can hardly expect that Santa Anna will listen to the proposition of this government to mediate between Mexico
and Texas. And, indeed, the ordering of a small fleet of our vessels of war to the coast of Mexico, indicates that the
last despatches from our minister there,
were not amicable. The tone of the Mexican journals strengthens the belief;
and it is most likely that the proposition
for mediation has been rejected by the Mexican government.

So far, however, the Texans are triumphant. They have lost about 50 killed, and 50 prisoners in the recent fights;
but they have killed over 300 in all and
have again driven the Mexican Army
beyond the Rio Grande, and all the Mexican citizens from San Antonio. Besides
this, Texas has 3000 men in the field near San Antonio, and 5000 more ready to take up arms the moment they are wanted.

Santa Anna is very much crippled in his resources. The expenses of his military last year exceeded the revenue
$2,000,000, without allowing any thing
for evil expenses; and as yet no very large body of troops has marched from the interior of Mexico towards the frontiers of Texas, as was threatened, and he has only about 5000 troops at Vera Cruz. In the provinces near Rio Grande, he has
but a small number of soldiers. And even if he could collect a large army and
land it in Texas, it would be very dif-cult to furnish the men with supplies; and the Texans would soon use up 20,000
Mexicans.

As to an invasion by the Mexican fleet we think that will not succeed; although Capt. Charlewood is a brave officer, and has six or seven vessels under his command, the Texans have five ships
of war, under a gallant commander, and
could soon have as many more; and the Texian fleet is now at sea, fully manned
and equipped.

Veracity and wit make a man shine in company; but trite jokes and loud laughter reduce him to a buffoon.

To commence: we wish our patrons a happy new year, sincerely hoping it may be so, and continue. Affairs in this section certainly appear prosperous. We have had two months of as good winter weather for business, as could be asked. Our citizens have improved in wood, timber, brick, sand, provisions, and, in fact, every thing which required a change of location, for service or consumption, have been on the move, and our city has presented an appearance of life and business, amusing, citizen like, manlike, and worthy of applause. At such a rate Nauvoo must go ahead.

COLD WEATHER.

The thermometer has been several times below zero, which has been the means of affording the citizens of this city, and elsewhere, an excellent bridge over the Mississippi river. The old adage was: make hay while the sun shines;—but the new proverb should be: Haul wood while the ice lasts.

Our coldest day was the 3rd inst., when the mercury fell 12 degrees below zero. Rather a cold snap.

A PROPHECY.

We predict that neither Miller's nor any other Millenium, will commence in 1843. The world has only to wait the year out, according to Moses' rule, to prove the truth of this prophecy.

LEGISLATURES.

The Legislatures of seven States, commenced their sessions during the present week; these, with those already in session, give us a balance of all the States in deliberation for public benefit. If wise men fill all these places of righting wrong, then shall wisdom be justified of her children;—but if the fathers have eaten sour grapes and set the children's teeth on edge, we shall hear of more speeches than the spirit of seventy-six.

Nothing important from Springfield has as yet reached us; and from the pacific appearance of all we can discover,—all things will work right. This certainly is flattering according to our Savior's golden rule.

MASONIC.

We are informed that the fraternity at Carthage, and Warsaw have obtained Dispensations for Lodges in those places:—that the Lodge at Warsaw will commence their labors and be installed on Monday the 9th inst., at 6 o'clock P. M.—and at Carthage on Thursday the 12th inst., at 2 o'clock P. M.; by the M. W. Jonathan Nye. We also understand that a dispensation has been granted to the fraternity at Keokuk, Iowa, the officers which will soon be installed.

SIN NOT.—James Watson Webb, of the New York Courier and Enquirer, and a violent stigmatizer of the Latter Day Saints, was recently sent to the penitentiary for duelling, but pardoned out by Gov. Seward. If we mistake not, conviction to the N. Y. State prison, disfranchises a person from being a witness, from being a juror, or from being a voter;—So, so, Mr. Webb,

There is a place of justice for all,
Though a wounded calf may ball.

Com.

CALIFORNIA.—The following communication is from a gentleman who spent last winter in upper California, and affords some valuable information in relation to that country.—St. Louis Rep. Fourche A'Renault, (Mo.) Nov. 12 1842.

GENTLEMEN: In answer to the many inquiries for information respecting the route to, and country of, Upper California, I take the privilege of sending you this imperfect sketch, which, if you think it will interest any of your numerous readers you will please insert in your valuable paper.

Upper California lies between the 31st and 42d degrees of N. L. embracing an extent of coast of about 700 miles, and extending back to the foot of the great mountains, (which run parallel with the coast,) a distance of from 50 to 150 miles. This great valley is crossed by low hills, from three to ten miles wide, with valleys of from 10 to 100 miles wide. Through these valleys flow larger streams, having their rise in the main mountains, with many smaller streams emptying into them from those ridges, affording many beautiful sites for miles and other machinery. The principal rivers are the Joacum and Sacramento; the latter is navigable a considerable distance for vessels of a large size. They both enter into the bay of La Francisco. The land of these valleys is equal to any in Missouri or Illinois, the productions are the same as are found in the latitudes of the U. States. Corn yields well here; wheat seems to be perfectly at home, producing from 85 to 100 (and even more) bushels to the acre. Grain of every description succeeds well.

Silver and lead are the only minerals yet discovered.

Apples, peaches, pears, oranges, figs, cherries, &c. &c., come to fine perfection. Oats and clover spontaneously, and of superior qualities to any grown in the Western country.

With the exception of narrow skirts of oak along the streams, the valleys are entirely destitute of timber; they are covered with oats, clover, and grass, the most luxuriant the eye ever beheld. The ridges or hills, are covered with timber of the finest quality, for ship building and other purposes, and growing to the enormous height of 200 feet, and twenty feet in diameter. The streams abound in fish, and the plains are covered with thousands of wild horses, elk, deer, antelope, bear, wild ducks, geese and brants. The climate is mild and remarkably healthy, there being no disease, either endemic or epidemic. He saw green pumpkins, lettuce, goards, &c., growing finely during all the months of last winter.

The number of inhabitants does not exceed 3,000. They are an ignorant, indolent people, spending the most of their time on horseback, in pursuit of wild horses and cattle, in which amusement they take great delight. They own immense quantities of cattle, the hides and tallow of which they barter to vessels for clothing and other necessities. It is not uncommon for one man to own from nine to ten, and even forty thousand head, which cost them nothing but the clothing and feeding of two or three Indians to herd them; the range being so rich that they keep perfectly fat during all seasons.

Situated, as that country is, on the coast of the Pacific—possessed of many of the best harbors in the known world—a soil inferior to none—a climate far superior to any—such a country in the hands of an industrious and enterprising people, would at no distant day, compare with the most flourishing countries of the globe. The government will give liberal grants of land to persons that will take the oath of allegiance and conform to the doctrines of the Catholic faith.

Titles can be bought of citizens of the country for a mere trifle, upon which a foreigner can live in the enjoyment of his own religious views, and have the right to dispose of his land in any manner he may deem proper.

The best and only route that wagons can be taken into the country, is to cross the Rocky Mountains near the head waters of the Platte River; thence to the Soda Springs on Bear River, above the Salt Lake; thence to Fort Hall, on Lewis or Snake river; then due west to the North Fork of Mary's or Ogden's River, down this river to where it forms the lake at the foot of the California Mountains; thence due south along the eastern base of these Mountains a distance of between three and four hundred miles to the gap, through this gap in one day, on the plains of the two Lamica. There are no hills or Mountains inconvenient for a wagon to pass, and the only difficulty in the way is the great quantities of sand and a very stubborn shrub called wild sage, which will render it almost impossible for a single team to haul like else than an empty wagon. The distance through this sand and sage is about ten or twelve hundred miles.

A company in this country is now making arrangements for emigrating to this country the ensuing spring; they are composed of families and young men.—Each person and family is required to equip themselves with plenty of males, wagons, provisions, &c., sufficient for the trip. Any person desirous of going, can obtain information respecting the doings of the Company, by addressing a few lines to the Washington County California Emigration Company, at the Fourch A'Renault, Missouri.

ORIGINAL LETTER FROM DR.

FRANKLIN.

The Southern Literary Messenger contains the following copy of an original letter from the venerable Franklin to a minister of the Gospel in the southern part of New Jersey, which has been recently discovered there, among some old family papers. As the editor remarks, "it is a composition perfectly in the manner and spirit of that great and worthy man."

"Philadelphia, June the 6th, 1765.

"DEAR SIR: I received your kind letter of the 2d instant, and am glad to hear that you increase in strength. I hope you will continue mending until you recover your former health, and firmness. Let me know if you continue the cold bath, and what effect it has. As to the kindness you spoke of, I wish it could have been of more real service to you: that you would always be ready to serve any other person that may need your assistance, and so let good offices go round—for mankind are all of a family. For my own part, when I am employed in serving others, I do not look upon myself as conferring favors, but as paying debts. In my travels, and since my settlement, I have received much kindness from men, to whom I shall never have an opportunity of making the least direct return, and numberless mercies from God, who infinitely above being benefitted by our services. For these kindness from men, I can, therefore, only show my gratitude to God, by a readiness to help his other children and my brethren; for I do not think that thanks and compliments, though repeated weekly, can discharge our real obligations to each other, much less to our Creator.

"You will see in this my notion of good works; that I do not expect to merit heaven by them. By heaven, we understand a state of happiness, infinite in degree, and eternal in duration; we can do nothing to deserve such a reward.—He that, for giving a draught of water to a thirsty person, should expect to be paid with a great plantation, would be modest, in his demands, compared with those who think they deserve Heaven for the little good they do on earth. Even the mixed imperfect pleasures we enjoy in this world, are rather from God's goodness than our merit. How much more so the happiness of Heaven!—For my part, I have not the vanity to think I deserve it, the folly to expect it, or the ambition to desire it, but content myself in submitting to the disposal of that God who made me, who has hitherto preserved and blessed me, and in whose fatherly goodness I may well confide, that he never will make me miserable, and that the affliction I may at any time suffer may tend to my benefit.

"The faith you mention doubtless has its use in the world. I do not desire to see it diminished, nor would I desire to see it lessened in any man. But I wish it were more productive of good works than I have seen; I mean real good works—works of kindness, charity, mercy, and public spirit; no holiday-keeping, sermon-hearing, or reading, performing church ceremonies, or making long prayers, filled with flatteries and complaints, despised even by wise men, and much less capable of pleasing the Deity.

"The worship of God is a duty, the learning and reading may be useful; but if man rest in hearing and praying, (as too many do,) it is as if the tree value itself on being watered, and putting forth leaves, though it never produce any fruit.

"Our Good Master thought less of these outward appearances than many of his modern disciples. He preferred the doers of his word to the hearers; the son that seemingly refused to obey his father, and yet obeyed his commandments, to him that professed his readiness, but neglected his word. The heretical charitable, but orthodox priest and sanctified Levite, and those who gave food to the hungry, drink to the thirsty, and raiment to the naked, entertainment to the stranger, who never heard of his name, declares shall, in the last day, be accepted when those who cry Lord! Lord! who value themselves on their faith, though great enough to perform miracles, but have neglected good works, shall be neglected. He professed that he came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance; which implied his modest opinion, that there was some, in his time, so good that they needed not to hear, even for improvement; but now-a-days we have scarcely a little parson who does not think it the duty of every man within his reach to sit under his petty ministration, and that, whoever omits his, offends God. I wish to such more humility, and to you health and firmness. Being your friend and servant,

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

MORMONISM EXPOSED.

By JOHN C. BENNETT—they call him Gen., we believe. If they had said he had more gin than was good for an author, when he wrote his book, they would have said what any man would be apt to suspect. Sometime since we had occasion to notice this expose, as the Gen. was lecturing on the subject; and warned people of the imposition liable to be practised upon them. By an examination of his book our opinion, that his statements were of the most corrupting character, low and vulgar, and not to be relied upon, is fully confirmed.

He begins his book with attempting to show that falsehood and hypocrisy are not only justifiable but commendable; for after confessing that he played the part of a knave and hypocrite throughout, and with all his professions, was never a Mormon or thought of being, he would have us think it right; Because Bonaparte once deceived the Mohammedans in the same way; and then gives the evidence of his own good character!!! &c.

A considerable part of the volume is made up of extracts from other works which is the only part fit to be read. In the course of his work he gives the phrenological, character, which, to any believer in bumpology, would show that he is a man—afterwards a description of the pate of the Holy seer—Joe, which, if there be any thing in the science, proves him to be nature a great man. But we have not much knowledge of and still less faith in these matters. Next in order comes the private history of the new Jerusalem, and here the book beggars all description. We have met with other books in our day, but none so low as this. It is a wonder that the authorities of Boston should allow the sale of it—but 'tis fashionable, and fashion governs the world, together with the love of money. We will venture to say that any person would shut it up and blush, if one of a different sex should see him or her reading it—any decent man who cares for the morals of his children, would refuse to have it in his house; and there are places not so respectable, where it would be thrown out of doors. Yet it is recommended to the Christian public! As bad as Mormonism may be—and we don't question but it is bad enough—it cannot be worse than the influence generated by such trash. He closes the work by taking the side of Missourians in the contest had between them and the Mormons some few years ago, in which every body knows the fault was entirely on the part of the State authorities, who wrested from the Mormons their rights, murdered their men, plundered them of property, and deprived them of their civil privileges as American citizens; and who, long before this, would have been held to answer for 1843.

To commence: we wish our patrons a happy new year, sincerely hoping it may be so, and continue. Affairs in this section certainly appear prosperous. We have had two months of as good winter weather for business, as could be asked. Our citizens have improved in: wood, timber, brick, sand, provisions, and, in fact, every thing which required a change of location, for service or consumption, have been on the move, and our city has presented an appearance of life and business, amusing, citizen like, manlike, and worthy of applause. At such a rate Nauvoo must go ahead.

COLD WEATHER.

The thermometer has been several times below zero, which has been the means of affording the citizens of this city, and elsewhere, an excellent bridge over the Mississippi river. The old adage was: make hay while the sun shines;—but the new proverb should be: Haul wood while the ice lasts.

Our coldest day was the 3rd inst., when the mercury fell 12 degrees below zero. Rather a cold snap.

A PROPHECY.

We predict that neither Miller's nor any other Millennium, will commence in 1843. The world has only to wait the year out, according to Moses' rule, to prove the truth of this prophecy.

LEGISLATURES.

The Legislatures of seven States, commenced their sessions during the present week; these, with those already in session, give us a balance of all the States in deliberation for public benefit. If wise men fill all these places of righting wrong, then shall wisdom be justified of her children;—but if the fathers have eaten sour grapes and set the children's teeth on edge, we shall hear of more speeches than the spirit of seventy-six.

Nothing important from Springfield has as yet reached us; and from the pacific appearance of all we can discover,—all things will work right. This certainly is flattering according to our Savior's golden rule.

MASONIC.

We are informed that the Fraternity at Carthage, and Warsaw have obtained Dispensations for Lodges in those places:—that the Lodge at Warsaw will commence their labors and be installed on Monday the 9th inst., at 6 o'clock P. M.—and at Carthage on Thursday the 12th inst., at 2 o'clock P. M.; by the M. W. Jonathan Nye. We also understand that a dispensation has been granted to the fraternity at Keokuk, Iowa, the officers which will soon be installed.

Six Nor.—James Watson Webb, of the New York Courier and Enquirer, and a violent stigmatizer of the Latter Day Saints, was recently sent to the penitentiary for duelling, but pardoned out by Gov. Seward. If we mistake not, conviction to the N. Y. State prison, disfranchises a person from being a witness, from being a juror, or from being a voter;—So, so, Mr. Webb,

There is a place of justice for all,
Though a wounded Calf may ball.

Com.

CALIFORNIA.—The following communication is from a gentleman who spent last winter in upper California, and affords some valuable information in relation to that country.—St. Louis Rep.

Fourch A' Renalt, (Mo.) Nov. 12 1842.
GENTLEMEN: In answer to the many inquiries for information respecting the route to, and country of, Upper California, I take the privilege of sending you this imperfect sketch, which, if you think it will interest any of your numerous readers you will please insert in your valuable paper.

Upper California lies between the 31st and 42d degrees of N. L. embracing an extent of coast of about 700 miles, and extending back to the foot of the great mountains, (which run parallel with the coast,) a distance of from 50 to 150 miles. This great valley is crossed by low hills, from three to ten miles wide, with valleys of from 10 to 100 miles wide. Through these valleys flow larger streams, having their rise in the main mountains, with many smaller streams emptying into them from those ridges, affording many beautiful sites for miles and other machinery. The principal rivers are the Joacum and Sacramento; the latter is navigable a considerable distance for vessels of a large size. They both enter into the bay of La Francisco. The land of these valleys is equal to any in Missouri or Illinois, the productions are the same as are found in the latitudes of the U. States. Corn yields well here: wheat seems to be perfectly at home, producing from 85 to 100 (and even more) bushels to the acre. Grain of every description succeeds well.

Silver and lead are the only minerals yet discovered.

Apples, peaches, pears, oranges, figs, cherries, &c. &c., come to fine perfection. Oats and clover spontaneously, and of superior qualities to any grown in the Western country.

With the exception of narrow skirts of oak along the streams, the valleys are entirely destitute of timber; they are covered with oats, clover, and grass, the most luxuriant the eye ever beheld. The ridges or hills, are covered with timber of the finest quality, for ship building and other purposes, and growing to the enormous height of 200 feet, and twenty feet in diameter. The streams abound in fish, and the plains are covered with thousands of wild horses, elk, deer, antelope, bear, wild ducks, geese and brants. The climate is mild and remarkably healthy, there being no disease, either endemic or epidemic. He saw green pumpkins, lettuce, goads, &c., growing finely during all the months of last winter.

The number of inhabitants does not exceed 3,000. They are an ignorant, indolent people, spending the most of their time on horseback, in pursuit of wild horses and cattle, in which amusement they take great delight. They own immense quantities of cattle, the hides and tallow of which they barter to vessels for clothing and other necessities. It is not uncommon for one man to own from nine to ten, and even forty thousand head, which cost them nothing but the clothing and feeding of two or three Indians to herd them; the range being so rich that they keep perfectly fat during all seasons.

Situated, as that country is, on the coast of the Pacific—possessed of many of the best harbors in the known world—a soil inferior to none—a climate far superior to any—such a country in the lands of an industrious and enterprising people, would at no distant day, compare with the most flourishing countries of the globe. The government will give liberal grants of land to persons that will take the oath of allegiance and to conform to the doctrines of the Catholic faith.

Titles can be bought of citizens of the country for a mere trifle, upon which a foreigner can live in the enjoyment of his own religious views, and have the right to dispose of his land in any manner he may deem proper.

The best and only route that wagons can be taken into the country, is to cross the Rocky Mountains near the head waters of the Platte River; thence to the Soda Springs on Bear River, above the Salt Lake; thence to Fort Hall, on Lewis or Snake river; then due west to the North Fork of Mary's or Ogden's River, down this river to where it forms the lake at the foot of the California Mountains; thence due south along the eastern base of these Mountains a distance of between three and four hundred miles to the gap, through this gap in one day, on the plains of the two Lameca. There are no hills or Mountains inconvenient for a wagon to pass, and the only difficulty in the way is the great quantities of sand and a very stubborn shrub called wild sage, which will render it almost impossible for a single team to haul fire else than an empty wagon. The distance through this sand and sage is about ten or twelve hundred miles.

A company in this country is now making arrangements for emigrating to this country the ensuing spring; they are composed of families and young men.—Each person and family is required to equip themselves with plenty of mules, wagons, provisions, &c., sufficient for the trip. Any person desirous of going, can obtain information respecting the doings of the Company, by addressing a few lines to the Washington County California Emigration Company, at the Fourch A' Renalt, Missouri.

ORIGINAL LETTER FROM DR. FRANKLIN.

The Southern Literary Messenger contains the following copy of an original letter from the venerable Franklin to a minister of the Gospel in the southern part of New Jersey, which has been recently discovered there, among some old family papers. As the editor remarks, "it is a composition perfectly in the manner and spirit of that great and worthy man."

"Philadelphia, June the 6th, 1765.

"DEAR SIR: I received your kind letter of the 2d instant, and am glad to hear that you increase in strength. I hope you will continue mending until you recover your former health, and firmness. Let me know if you continue the cold bath, and what effect it has. As to the kindness you spoke of, I wish it could have been of more real service to you: that you would always be ready to serve any other person that may need your assistance, and so let good offices go round—for mankind are all of a family. For my own part, when I am employed in serving others, I do not look upon myself as conferring favors, but as paying debts. In my travels, and since my settlement, I have received much kindness from men, to whom I shall never have an opportunity of making the least direct return, and numberless mercies from God, who infinitely above being benefited by our services. For these kindnesses from men, I can, therefore, only show my gratitude to God, by a readiness to help his other children and my brethren; for I do not think, that thanks and compliments, though repeated weekly, can discharge our real obligations to each other, much less to our Creator.

"You will see in this my notion of good works; that I do not expect to merit by them. By heaven, we understand a state of happiness, infinite in degree, and eternal in duration; we can do nothing to deserve such a reward.—He that, for giving a draught of water to a thirsty person, should expect to be paid with a great plantation, would be modest, in his demands, compared with those who think they deserve Heaven for the little good they do on earth. Even the mixed imperfect pleasures we enjoy in this world, are rather from God's goodness than our merit. How much more so the happiness of Heaven!—For my part, I have got the vanity to think I deserve it, the folly to expect it, or the ambition to desire it, but content myself in submitting to the disposal of that God who made me, who has hitherto preserved and blessed me, and in whose fatherly goodness I may well confide, that he never will make me miserable, and that the affliction I may, at any time suffer may tend to my benefit.

"The faith you mention doubtless has its use in the world. I do not desire to see it diminished, nor would I desire to see it lessened in any man. But I wish it were more productive of good works than I have seen; I mean real good works—works of kindness, charity, mercy, and public spirit; no holiday-keeping, sermon-hearing, or reading, performing church ceremonies, or making long prayers, filled with flatteries and complaints, despised even by wise men, and much less capable of pleasing the Deity.

"The worship of God is a duty, the learning and reading may be useful; but if man rest in hearing and praying, (as too many do,) it is as if the tree value itself on being watered, and putting forth leaves, though it never produce any fruit.

"Our Good Master thought less of these outward appearances than many of his modern disciples. He preferred the doers of his word to the hearers; the son that seemingly refused to obey his father, and yet obeyed his commandments, to him that professed his readiness, but neglected his word. The heretical charitable, but orthodox priest and sanctified Levine, and those who gave food to the hungry, drink to the thirsty, and raiment to the naked, entertainment to the stranger, who never heard of his name, declares shall, in the last day, be accepted when those who cry Lord! Lord! who value themselves on their faith, though great enough to perform miracles, but have neglected good works, shall be neglected. He professed that he came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance; which implied his modest opinion, that there was some, in his time, so good that they needed not to hear, even for improvement; but now-a-days we have scarcely a little person who does not think it the duty of every man within his reach to sit under his petty ministration, and that, whoever omits his, offends God. I wish to such more humility, and to you health and firmness. Being your friend and servant,

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN

MORMONISM EXPOSED.

By JOHN C. BENNETT—they call him Gen., we believe. If they had said he had more gin than was good for an author, when he wrote his book, they would have said what any man would be apt to suspect. Sometime since we had occasion to notice this expose, as the Gen. was lecturing on the subject; and warned people of the imposition liable to be practised upon them. By an examination of his book our opinion, that his statements were of the most corrupting character, low and vulgar, and not to be relied upon, is fully confirmed.

He begins his book with attempting to show that falsehood and hy poecry are not only justifiable but commendable; for after confessing that he played the part of a knave and hypocrite throughout, and with all his professions, was never a Mormon or thought of being, he would have us think it right; Because Bonaparte once deceived the Mohammedans in the same way; and then gives the evidence of his own good character!!! &c.

A considerable part of the volume is made up of extracts from other works which is the only part fit to be read. In the course of his work he gives the phrenological, character, which, to any believer in bumpology, would show that he is a man—afterwards a description of the pate of the Holy seer—Joe, which, if there be any thing in the science, proves him to be nature a great man. But we have not much knowledge of and still less faith in these matters. Next in order comes the private history of the new Jerusalem, and here the book beggars all description. We have met with other books in our day, but none so low as this. It is a wonder that the authorities of Boston should allow the sale of it—but 'tis fashionable, and fashion governs the world, together with the love of money. We will venture to say that any person would shut it up and blush, if one of a different sex should see him or her reading it—any decent man who cares for the morals of his children, would refuse to have it in his house; and there are places not so respectable, where it would be thrown out of doors. Yet it is recommended to the Christian public! As bad as Mormonism may be—and we don't question but it is bad enough—it cannot be worse than the influence generated by such trash. He closes the work by taking the side of Missourians in the contest had between them and the Mormons some few years ago, in which every body knows the fault was entirely on the part of the State authorities, who wrested from the Mormons their rights, murdered their men, plundered them of property, and deprived them of their civil privileges as American citizens; and who, long before this, would have been held to answer for these outrages, if there had been justice in the national government.

We perhaps are taking more notice of this book than it deserves; but we could not forbear expressing an honest opinion in the matter; and for fear that others may feel implicated, we will relieve them by a signature.—GEORGE JOSEPH LENT COLBY.

A British Fleet Ordered to the Pacific. We are informed by a private letter from Washington, says the Boston Post of Thursday Week last, that an express had arrived there from the Pacific, bringing intelligence that the British Government has sent a large fleet into the Pacific. The object has not as yet transpired, whether the destination be California, the Oregon, or the Society Islands.

It is supposed that a British station is to be placed, in accordance with a secret convention, between Great Britain and Mexico. It is stated that our ships, the Cyane and Dale, now in the Pacific, are to rendezvous as soon as practicable, at Monterey, to keep a watch upon John Bull's movements. A letter in the Washington Globe, written on board of the Dale in the Bay of Panama, gives the particulars of the sailing of this fleet to the Pacific, and concludes thus:—

"The establishment of a British post at that point would be so hazardous to the peace and security of our frontier, and so manifestly detrimental to the interests of the whole Union, that Com. Jones doubtless conceives he would be derelict in the discharge of the responsible powers vested in him by the government, were he not to use every means within the scope of his command to frustrate, if possible, a project fraught with so much danger to the western border of our territories. It is certain we are to make a very brief stay here, and that we are to sail hence for Monterey, where we expect to meet the frigate and the Cyane."

METALIC MUMMIES.

At a late sitting of the French Academy of Sciences, Mr. Cornay exhibited a new operation of galvanism (Galvano-plastic) which was very curious if not useful in the way he proposed. Mr. Cornay formed the idea, certainly an original one, of subjecting a dead body, which had previously been embalmed in the old method, to this galvanic process, and to cover it in this way with a coat of copper which preserves the form of the body in

thus be formed of an envelope containing within it a human body with an exact resemblance of the features and expression. The body of a young child prepared in this manner, was shown, from which it was apparent that indelible and indestructible museum of human statues might be formed thus. It has been the idea of Mr. Cornay to preserve in this way the bodies of princes and illustrious persons, as well as those of valued friends whom their families wish to preserve from decay. The name and history of the deceased might be traced in the copper much more ineffaceable than on tombstones.

Here is then a certain method of transmitting to the latest posterity the fragile remains of our poor humanity. What are the mummies of Egypt, the monuments of Peru, LaChaise and St. Dennis, in comparison with such metallic mummies.

SHAFT FOR THE STEAMSHIP.

The Pittsburgh American says the shaft is fifteen inches in diameter, and is seventeen feet six inches long, and will weigh over four tons. The whole is made from wrought iron scraps, such as is used for making the better kind of gun barrels. These were wrought into bars 2 inches square; four pieces were then made containing each twenty of these bars of a bout 9 feet, in length. The four pieces, containing in all eighty bars of 2 inches square, were then banded and welded together, under a powerful hammer drove by steam power; the process of forging and welding having drawn it out to the desired length. The cost of this one piece will be about $1,000.

THE WESTERN BOUNDARY.

The fatal omission of Mr. Webster, in not settling the Oregon boundary at the time he was settling the northeastern boundary, is becoming more manifest every day. It would not surprise us if Great Britain were to take forcible possession of that valuable territory. The Boston Post says:

"We are informed by a private letter from Washington, that an express has arrived there from the Pacific, bringing intelligence that the British Government has sent a large fleet into the Pacific.—The object has not as yet transpired, whether the destination be California, the Oregon, or the Society Islands. It will be recollected that we published a letter about a year ago, (written to us from London, by General Duff Green,) in which it was predicted that Lord Ashburton would refuse to settle the Western boundary. We shall refer to this letter again—perhaps republish it."

A Mother's Love.—We know not how to describe the omnipotence which this passion acquires in some natures; nor the unlimited, and oft times irrational dominion it exerts, and the blind obedience it obtains. But we appeal to the heart of a fond mother for sympathy in a feeling which is unknown even to the great majority of our own sex; and to which no equivalent or resonant sensation enters into the composition of man. Strange and mysterious feature in the human capacity! The sources of all other affections are more or less dependent upon a congeniality of dispositions, a similarity of objects, or a reciprocity of service; but, by this inscrutable impulse of nature alone, the principle of self is wholly suspended, and all the reasoning faculties of the mind become submissive to an instinct. [London Athenaeum.]

Important from Havana.—The New Orleans Picayune of the 1st inst. says, a letter from Havana was received last evening. It seems that an expedition has been fitted out at Havana to act against St. Domingo. The cause is as follows: Some time since the Haytiens, contrary to the provisions in the recognition of their independence by the several European powers, fitted out a small armed vessel, which, cruising in these seas, put into Porto Rico. The authorities immediately took possession of her, and the Haytiens, to retaliate, have fitted out a corvette and taken several Spanish merchantmen. On learning these facts, the all the Spanish men of war in the West Indies to rendezvous at Porto Rico, and then to act according to orders and as circumstances may require.

Hurricane in Madeira, with great loss of life.—On the 24th of October, Madeira was visited by a terrible hurricane and a perfect deluge of rain, sweeping before it vineyard houses and people. In the town of Funchal, the river overflowed its banks, and breaking through the principle streets, carried away houses, wine stores, and many human beings. A letter which is published in the Journal of Commerce, estimates the loss of life at 50. The village of Magdalena, at the south west end of the island, was completely washed away, leaving but the Church and the house of a rich landed proprietor. The roads and bridges are all more or less ruined, and the loss is estimated at a million and a half of dollars.

GOD.

The Universe is full of God. His name is inscribed, in burning characters, on that azure page which is unrolled before all mortal eyes. The loud-sounding thunder, and the deep voice of Ocean pronounce the name of God, the Omnipotent; whilst every wind, from the sweeping tornado to the gentle zephyr, take up and repeat the name to all Earth's nooks and corners. There is no forest but utters that sacred name in ten thousand murmured whispers, no streamlet, or broad river, but tells of God by the glad resounding of its waters, and the green and flowery beauty that border its shores. The splendors of the rising moon, the brightness of noon, and the solemn shades of day's decline, all proclaim the varied God. Our own frame, so wonderfully wrought, is resonant of God. More plainly still does the Soul speak of its Maker. The far shining intelligence, how radiant an image of the King Supreme! The unsounded ocean of the affections, the aspirations, the hopes of man's heart, how do they heave and swell with the all-pervading Divine! And then the conscience, how with its awful deep, yet clear and distinct utterances, does it perpetually speak of the being, the will, and the inspiration of the Eternal!

SINGULAR DISCOVERY.—Recently as a couple of Irish boys were tending cows at East Cambridge, on the road lined with woods leading to the Colleges, the dog with them, in pawing the ground, dug up what turned out to be a Silver Dollar. The curiosity of the boys having been excited by this they went to work and digging in the ground, came to a box containing one hundred and sixty one Spanish mill'd dollars, with a parcel of bills which were so crumbled and moulded, that they could hardly be handled. It appeared from inspection, that they were issued over twenty years ago. At a short distance from the spot where the dog pawed up this treasure stands a tree, upon which is carved the name of Michael Martin—who was hung some twenty years since at Lechmere Point, now East Cambridge, for highway robbery. We merely state the facts, leaving the reader to make his own comments.—[Boston American.]

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 6TH INST.

Jobe Ashley, 16 years; ague and fever.
Ann Winkless, 9 years; ague and fever.
Harriet F. Montague, 4 years; black canker.
Total 3.
W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

A LIST OF LETTERS

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock county Ill., January 1st 1843, which, if not taken out before the first of April next, will be sent to the general Post Office as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following letters will please say they are advertised or they may not get them.

Saml Alexander	2	D P Curtis
Geo Anderson	2	O Cook or Ira Rice
Jacob Abbott		Charlotte Clayword
A L Atwood		J S Curtis
Richard Ashley		Isaac Chase
J C Annis	3	E W Cunningham
Chas Butler		Philo Bible
Mr Baum		Isaac Decker
C Baldwin		Rachael Danfield
M E Bliss		Hiram Dayton
Sarah Buckwater	3	Isaac Davis
R Beacher		Freeborn Daniel
L Brown		Abram Delony
Geo Broffitt	2	David Diller
Jno Bottle		Rachael Drollinger
J M Broad		Lewis Eager
Jno Bils		David Elliot
Edmond Posley	3	Albert Fellowe
J G Bgler		E ther Ann Green
Ar h Bates		Saml G Flagg
Lewis Brooks		Cyrus B Fisher
Isaac Butlerfield		Horrace Fink
J H Burt's		Geo Foster
Dorcas Brown		Jno Fox
Ormand Butler		Jas Fisher
J Barlow		James Flanigin
Pa atiah Brown		Jacob Fauny
P R Bird		Peter Palmer
P D Bailly		Levi Gray
Eli Blackhurst		Truman Gilbert
Eli Brotherton		Patrick Gilmore
E L Brown		Ezra Grant
Jno Clemison	2	Ezra F Grant
Dorr Cur is		Jane Ann Green
Bohan Clark	2	Jno P Green
Israel Calkins		David Gorlick
A Culer		Jno Glines
Gardner Clark		Jno F Gleason
Stephen Chase		Joshua Giant
Eunice Cone		Susannah Godard
J W Cummins		Amanda Higbee
John Cox		Isaac Houston
Jared Curtis		Elliot Hartwell
P Clayton	2	Deborah Haughton
Jacob Cleward		Ed Hunter
Greenup Carretters		Jno Huntsman
Wm Cross	2	Jno Hulme
Dani Carter		Benj Hoyt
Robt Culbertson		James Hurst
J R Clark		Saml Henderson
Spencer Covert		H J Hunt
Sarah Clift		Se omer Hancock

Chas Hopkins	2	M Rank
Wm Hale		Celestiana Rowley
J H Holmes		Wm Kidd
Jno Hatfield		G H Rolph
Alex Hay		E Robinson
Peter Hopkins		Thos Richmond
Joseph Hadlock		Jefferson Ring
H Herinshaw		David Rogers
Dani Hendrix		Wm Robinson
Benj Hill		Willard Richards
Saml W Henderson		Dani Russell
Mr Hartley		Andrew Rose
Elisha Hooper		D H Redfield
James Harper		Mrs Roe
John Hartman		Ezra Strong
Nathan Hastings		Henry Standage
Peter Haws		Ro A Shacklin
J M Hemmick		Hiram Smith
Laura Hendricks		Moses Smith
Jno Harrington		D H Stow
Thos Horstet		Jane Sharnuck
J S Johnson		James Sherwell
Wm Jones		J S Scotfield
L Johnson		Wm Smith
J H Johnson		Joseph or Hiram Smith
Homer Jackson		Jacob Strong
Jacob Johnson		Publisher of Times and Seasons
Elizabeth Johnson
P T Keley
G McKenzie
E King
E Kellogg
David Lemaux
Gilbert Loynd
Abel Lomax	2	A W Sherman
Peter Lemon		Geo Snow
James Long		D T Smith
Hannah Loveland		D S Study
Benj Leland Jr		H W Stay
Sarah Lancaster		H H or D Stow
Jorvis Minor		C E Spencer
Ira Miles or Wm Bent		Joshua Smith
Jesse McCarroll		Allen Stephens
Isaac Morton		Levi Skinner
Joseph Mount		Joseph Smith
Dani Miller		Ben Tomlinson
Saml Merrill		Jno Tull
L J Murdoch		Jno S Twist
James Morgan		A Thompson
Delilah Mikesell		Allen Taylor
Younger McCourlin		E P Towill
Geo Montague		Nelson Turner
Geo Morcy	2	D S Thomas
Davis McOlney		Chas Thomas
James G Miller		John Tyson
Saml Merrick		Jno Taylor
Jno Morris		Briton Willis
E P Merriam		S F Wilber
M or E Mechim		Stephen Wilkerson
Elijah Martin		H D H Webster
Thos J Morgan		Robt Williams
R Mayle		Benj B Wilber or Lady?
Wm Miller		Price Waggoner
Saml McLenathan		Rebecca White
J B Noble	2	D B Walters
P ter Nelson		Robt Wright
Edmund Nelson	2	Jno Worthing
M C Nckerson		Adam Wighton
Jno Newman		Alex Wright
Rodger Norton		Philip Wort
Luertes Newel		James Wilson
Wm Niswanger		Jno Wilkes
Patrick Norris		Cynthia Weston
J C Owen		Warren Wallace
Rufus Patrick		James Whittaker
S Pratt		M B Welton
P P Pratt		Robt Willets
Wm C Patten		W J Wilson

Chas Hopkins	2	M Rank
Wm Hale		Celestiana Rowley
J H Holmes		Wm Kidd
Jno Hatfield		G H Rolph
Alex Hay		E Robinson
Peter Hopkins		Thos Richmond
Joseph Hadlock		Jefferson Ring
H Herinshaw		David Rogers
Dani Hendrix		Wm Robinson
Benj Hill		Willard Richards
Saml W Henderson		Dani Russell
Mr Hartley		Andrew Rose
Elisha Hooper		D H Redfield
James Harper		Mrs Roe
John Hartman		Ezra Strong
Nathan Hastings		Henry Standage
Peter Haws		Ro A Shacklin
J M Hemmick		Hiram Smith
Laura Hendricks		Moses Smith
Jno Harrington		D H Stow
Thos Horstet		Jane Sharnuck
J S Johnson		James Sherwell
Wm Jones		J S Scotfield
L Johnson		Wm Smith
J H Johnson		Joseph or Hiram Smith
Homer Jackson		Jacob Strong
Jacob Johnson		Publisher of Times and Seasons
Elizabeth Johnson
P T Keley
G McKenzie
E King
E Kellogg
David Lemaux
Gilbert Loynd
Abel Lomax	2	A W Sherman
Peter Lemon		Geo Snow
James Long		D T Smith
Hannah Loveland		D S Study
Benj Leland Jr		H W Stay
Sarah Lancaster		H H or D Stow
Jorvis Minor		C E Spencer
Ira Miles or Wm Bent		Joshua Smith
Jesse McCarroll		Allen Stephens
Isaac Morton		Levi Skinner
Joseph Mount		Joseph Smith
Dani Miller		Ben Tomlinson
Saml Merrill		Jno Tull
L J Murdoch		Jno S Twist
James Morgan		A Thompson
Delilah Mikesell		Allen Taylor
Younger McCourlin		E P Towill
Geo Montague		Nelson Turner
Geo Morcy	2	D S Thomas
Davis McOlney		Chas Thomas
James G Miller		John Tyson
Saml Merrick		Jno Taylor
Jno Morris		Briton Willis
E P Merriam		S F Wilber
M or E Mechim		Stephen Wilkerson
Elijah Martin		H D H Webster
Thos J Morgan		Robt Williams
R Mayle		Benj B Wilber or Lady?
Wm Miller		Price Waggoner
Saml McLenathan		Rebecca White
J B Noble	2	D B Walters
P ter Nelson		Robt Wright
Edmund Nelson	2	Jno Worthing
M C Nckerson		Adam Wighton
Jno Newman		Alex Wright
Rodger Norton		Philip Wort
Luertes Newel		James Wilson
Wm Niswanger		Jno Wilkes
Patrick Norris		Cynthia Weston
J C Owen		Warren Wallace
Rufus Patrick		James Whittaker
S Pratt		M B Welton
P P Pratt		Robt Willets
Wm C Patten		W J Wilson

Chas Hopkins	2	M Rank
Wm Hale		Celestiana Rowley
J H Holmes		Wm Kidd
Jno Hatfield		G H Rolph
Alex Hay		E Robinson
Peter Hopkins		Thos Richmond
Joseph Hadlock		Jefferson Ring
H Herinshaw		David Rogers
Dani Hendrix		Wm Robinson
Benj Hill		Willard Richards
Saml W Henderson		Dani Russell
Mr Hartley		Andrew Rose
Elisha Hooper		D H Redfield
James Harper		Mrs Roe
John Hartman		Ezra Strong
Nathan Hastings		Henry Standage
Peter Haws		Ro A Shacklin
J M Hemmick		Hiram Smith
Laura Hendricks		Moses Smith
Jno Harrington		D H Stow
Thos Horstet		Jane Sharnuck
J S Johnson		James Sherwell
Wm Jones		J S Scotfield
L Johnson		Wm Smith
J H Johnson		Joseph or Hiram Smith
Homer Jackson		Jacob Strong
Jacob Johnson		Publisher of Times and Seasons
Elizabeth Johnson
P T Keley
G McKenzie
E King
E Kellogg
David Lemaux
Gilbert Loynd
Abel Lomax	2	A W Sherman
Peter Lemon		Geo Snow
James Long		D T Smith
Hannah Loveland		D S Study
Benj Leland Jr		H W Stay
Sarah Lancaster		H H or D Stow
Jorvis Minor		C E Spencer
Ira Miles or Wm Bent		Joshua Smith
Jesse McCarroll		Allen Stephens
Isaac Morton		Levi Skinner
Joseph Mount		Joseph Smith
Dani Miller		Ben Tomlinson
Saml Merrill		Jno Tull
L J Murdoch		Jno S Twist
James Morgan		A Thompson
Delilah Mikesell		Allen Taylor
Younger McCourlin		E P Towill
Geo Montague		Nelson Turner
Geo Morcy	2	D S Thomas
Davis McOlney		Chas Thomas
James G Miller		John Tyson
Saml Merrick		Jno Taylor
Jno Morris		Briton Willis
E P Merriam		S F Wilber
M or E Mechim		Stephen Wilkerson
Elijah Martin		H D H Webster
Thos J Morgan		Robt Williams
R Mayle		Benj B Wilber or Lady?
Wm Miller		Price Waggoner
Saml McLenathan		Rebecca White
J B Noble	2	D B Walters
P ter Nelson		Robt Wright
Edmund Nelson	2	Jno Worthing
M C Nckerson		Adam Wighton
Jno Newman		Alex Wright
Rodger Norton		Philip Wort
Luertes Newel		James Wilson
Wm Niswanger		Jno Wilkes
Patrick Norris		Cynthia Weston
J C Owen		Warren Wallace
Rufus Patrick		James Whittaker
S Pratt		M B Welton
P P Pratt		Robt Willets
Wm C Patten		W J Wilson

SIDNEY RIDGON, P. M.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Lyman Prentiss, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Lyman Prentiss, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 1st day of February next, at the district court room, in the town of Kaskaski in this district as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 3rd day of January A. D. 1843.

J. W. MARSH,
Solicitor for petitioner.
Attest: J. P. Owings Clerk.

these outrages, if there had been justice in the national government.

We perhaps are taking more notice of this book than it deserves; but we could not forbear expressing an honest opinion in the matter; and for fear that others may feel implicated, we will relieve them by a signature.—GEORGE JOSEPH LUNT COLBY.

A British Fleet Ordered to the Pacific. We are informed by a private letter from Washington, says the Boston Post of Thursday Week last, that an express had arrived there from the Pacific, bringing intelligence that the British Government has sent a large fleet into the Pacific. The object has not as yet transpired, whether the destination be California, the Oregon, or the Society Islands.

It is supposed that a British station is to be placed, in accordance with a secret convention, between Great Britain and Mexico. It is stated that our ships, the Cyane and Dale, now in the Pacific, are to rendezvous as soon as practicable, at Monterey, to keep a watch upon John Bull's movements. A letter in the Washington Globe, written on board of the Dale in the Bay of Panama, gives the particulars of the sailing of this fleet to the Pacific, and concludes thus:—

"The establishment of a British post at that point would be so hazardous to the peace and security of our frontier, and so manifestly detrimental to the interests of the whole Union, that Com. Jones doubtless conceives he would be derelict in the discharge of the responsible powers vested in him by the government, were he not to use every means within the scope of his command to frustrate, if possible, a project fraught with so much danger to the western border of our territories. It is certain we are to make a very brief stay here, and that we are to sail hence for Monterey, where we expect to meet the frigate and the Cayne."

METALIC MUMMIES.

At a late sitting of the French Academy of Sciences, Mr. Cornay exhibited a new operation of galvanism (Galsanoplastic) which was very curious if not useful in the way he proposed. Mr. Cornay formed the idea, certainly an original one, of subjecting a dead body, which had previously been embalmed in the old method, to this galvanic process, and to cover it in this way with a coat of copper which preserves the form of the body in

thus be formed of an envelope containing within it a human body with an exact resemblance of the features and expression. The body of a young child prepared in this manner, was shown, from which it was apparent that indelible and indestructible museum of human statues might be formed thus. It has been the idea of Mr. Cornay to preserve in this way the bodies of princes and illustrious persons, as well as those of valued friends whom their families wish to preserve from decay. The name and history of the deceased might be traced in the copper much more ineffaceable than on tombstones.

Here is then a certain method of transmitting to the latest posterity the fragile remains of our poor humanity. What are the mummies of Egypt, the monuments of Peru, LaChaise and St. Dennis, in comparison with such metallic mummies.

SHAFT FOR THE STEAMSHIP.

The Pittsburgh American says the shaft is fifteen inches in diameter, and is seventeen feet six inches long, and will weigh over four tons. The whole is made from wrought iron scraps, such as is used for making the better kind of gun barrels. These were wrought into bars 2 inches square; four pieces were then made containing each twenty of these bars of about 9 feet in length. The four pieces, containing in all eighty bars of 2 inches square, were then banded and welded together, under a powerful hammer drove by steam power; the process of forging and welding having drawn it out to the desired length. The cost of this one piece will be about $1,000.

THE WESTERN BOUNDARY.

The fatal omission of Mr. Webster, in not settling the Oregon boundary at the time he was settling the northeastern boundary, is becoming more manifest every day. It would not surprise us if Great Britain were to take forcible possession of that valuable territory. The Boston Post says:

"We are informed by a private letter from Washington, that an express has arrived there from the Pacific, bringing intelligence that the British Government has sent a large fleet into the Pacific. The object has not as yet transpired, whether the destination be California, the Oregon, or the Society Islands. It will be recollected that we published a letter about a year ago, (written to us from London, by General Duff Green,) in which it was predicted that Lord Ashburton would refuse to settle the Western boundary. We shall refer to this letter again—perhaps republish it."

A Mother's Love.—We know not how to describe the omnipotence which this passion acquires in some natures; nor the unlimited, and oft times irrational dominion it exerts, and the blind obedience it obtains. But we appeal to the heart of a fond mother for sympathy in a feeling which is unknown even to the great majority of our own sex; and to which no equivalent or respondent sensation enters into the composition of man. Strange and mysterious feature in the human capacity! The sources of all other affections are more or less dependent upon a congeniality of dispositions, a similarity of objects, or a reciprocity of service; but, by this inscrutable impulse of nature alone, the principle of self is wholly suspended, and all the reasoning faculties of the mind become submissive to an instinct. [London Athenaeum.]

Important from Havana.—The New Orleans Picayune of the 1st inst. says, a letter from Havana was received last evening. It seems that an expedition has been fitted out at Havana to act against St. Domingo. The cause is as follows: Some time since the Haytiens, contrary to the provisions in the recognition of their independence by the several European powers, fitted out a small armed vessel, which, cruising in these seas, put into Porto Rico. The authorities immediately took possession of her, and the Haytiens, to retaliate, have fitted out a corvette and taken several Spanish merchantmen. On learning these facts, the governor of Cuba immediately ordered all the Spanish men of war in the West Indies to rendezvous at Porto Rico, and then to act according to orders and as circumstances may require.

Hurricane in Madeira, with great loss of life.—On the 24th of October, Madeira was visited by a terrible hurricane and a perfect deluge of rain, sweeping before it vineyard houses and people. In the town of Funchal, the river overflowed its banks, and breaking through the principle streets, carried away houses, wine stores, and many human beings. A letter which is published in the Journal of Commerce, estimates the loss of life at 50. The village of Magdalena, at the south west end of the island, was completely washed away, leaving but the Church and the house of a rich landed proprietor. The roads and bridges are all more or less ruined, and the loss is estimated at a million and a half of dollars.

GOD.

The Universe is full of God. His name is inscribed, in burning characters, on that azure page which is unrolled before all mortal eyes. The loud-rolling thunder, and the deep voice of Ocean pronounce the name of God, the Omnipotent, whilst every wind, from the sweeping tornado to the gentle zephyr, take up and repeat the name to all Earth's nooks and corners. There is no forest but utters that sacred name in ten thousand murmured whispers, no streamlet, or broad river, but tells of God by the glad resounding of its waters, and the green and flowery beauty that border its shores. The splendors of the rising moon, the brightness of noon, and the solemn shadows of day's decline, all proclaim the varied God. Our own frame, so wonderfully wrought, is resonant of God. More plainly still does the Soul speak of its Maker. The far shining intelligence, how radiant an image of the King Supreme! The unsounded ocean of the affections, the aspirations, the hopes of man's heart, how do they heave and swell with the all-pervading Divine! And then the conscience, how with its awful deep, yet clear and distinct utterances, does it perpetually speak of the being, the will, and the inspiration of the Eternal!

SINGULAR DISCOVERY.—Recently as a couple of Irish boys were tending cows at East Cambridge, on the road lined with woods leading to the Colleges, the dog with them, in pawing the ground, dug up what turned out to be a Silver Dollar. The curiosity of the boys having been excited by this they went to work and digging in the ground, came to a box containing one hundred and sixty one Spanish mill'd dollars, with a parcel of bills which were so crumbled and moulded, that they could hardly be handled. It appeared from inspection, that they were issued over twenty years ago. At a short distance from the spot where the dog pawed up this treasure stands a tree, upon which is carved the name of Michael Martin—who was hung some twenty years since at Lechmere Point, now East Cambridge, for highway robbery. We merely state the facts, leaving the reader to make his own comments.—[Boston American.]

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 6TH INST.

Jobe Ashley, 16 years; ague and fever.
Ann Winkless, 9 years; ague and fever.
Harriet F. Montague, 4 years; black canker.
Total 3.
W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

A LIST OF LETTERS

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock county Ill., January 1st 1843, which, if not taken out before the first of April next, will be sent to the general Post Office as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following letters will please say they are advertised or they may not get them.

Elisha Atwood	Geo Clyde
Saml Alexander	D F Curtis
Geo Anderson	2 O Cook or Ira Rice
Jacob Abbott	Charlotte Claword
A L Atwood	J S Curtis
Richard Ashley	Isaac Chase
J C Annis	3 E W Cunningham
Chas Butler	Philo Dibble
Mr Baum	Isaac Decker
C Baldwin	2 Rachael Danfield
M E Bliss	Hiram Dayton
Sarah Buckwater	3 Isaac Davis
R Beacher	Freeborn Daniel
L Brown	2 Abram Delony
Geo Broffitt	David Diller
Jno Battle	Rachael Drolinger
J M Broad	Lewis Eager
Jno Bils	David Eliot
Edmond Bosley	3 Albert Fellows
J G Bogle	E ther Ann Green
Arch Bates	Saml G Flagg
Lewis Brooks	Cyrus B F Sher
Isaac Butlerfield	Horrace Fisk
J H Bart	Geo Foster
Dorcas Brown	Jno Fox
Ormand Butler	Jas Fisher
J Barlow	James Flennigin
Patiah Brown	Jacob Fauny
P R Bird	Peter Palmer
P D Bailly	Levi Gray
Eli Blakhurst	Truman Gilbert
Eli Brotherton	Patrick Gilmore
E L Brown	Ezra Grant
Jno Clemison	2 Ezra F Grant
Dorr Cur is	Jane Ann Green
Bohan Clark	Jno P Green
Israel Calkins	2 David Gorlick
A Culer	Jno Glines
Gardner Clark	Jno F Gleason
Stephen Chase	Joshua Grant
Eunice Cone	2 Susanah Godard
J W Cummins	Amanda Higbee
John Cox	Isaac Houston
Jared Curtis	2 Elliot Hartwell
P Clayton	Deborah Haughton
Jacob Cleveland	Ed Hunter
Greenup Carretters	Jno Huntsman
Wm Cross	2 Jno Hulme
Dani Carter	Benj Hoyt
Robt Culbertson	James Hurste
J R Clark	Saml Henderson
Spencer Covert	H J Hunt
Sarah Clift	2 So omon Hancock

Chas Hopkins	2 M Rank
Wm Hale	Celestina Rowley
J H Holmes	Wm Ridd
Jno Hatfield	G H Ralph
Alex Hay	E Robinson
Peter Hopkins	Thos Richmond
Joseph Hadlock	Jefferson Ring
H Herinshaw	David Rogers
Dani Hendrix	Wm Robinson
Benj Hill	Willard Richards
Saml W Henderson	Dani Rose
Mr Hartley	Andrew Rose
Elisha Hooper	D H Redfield
James Harper	Mrs Roe
John Harlam	Ezra Strong
Nathan Hastings	Henry Standage
Peter Haws	Ro A Shackleton
J M Hemmick	Hiram Smith
Laura Hendricks	Moses Smith
Jno Harrington	D H Stow
Thos Horlet	Jane Sharnack
J S Johnson	James Showell
Wm Jones	J S Scofield
L Johnson	Wm Smith
J H Johnson	Joseph or Hiram Smith
Homer Jackson	Jacob Strong
Jacob Johnson	Publisher of Times and Seasons
Elizabeth Johnson	Mrs Emma Smith
P T Keley	Stiles Sergeant
G McKenzie	Alex Simpson
E King	Jas Smith
E Kellogg	R Shepherd
David Lemaux	2 A W Sherman
Gilbert Loyd	Geo Snow
Abel Lamar	D T Smith
Peter Lemon	DS Stady
James Long	H W Stay
Hannah Loveland	H H or D Stow
Benj Leland Jr	C E Spencer
Sarah Lancaster	Joshua Smith
Jorvis Minor	Allen Stephens
Ira Miles or Wm Bent	Levi Skinner
Jesse McCarroll	Joseph Smith
Isaac Morton	Ben Tomlinson
Joseph Mount	Jas Till
Dani Miller	Jno S Trant
Saml Merrill	A Thompson
L J Murreck	Allen Taylor
James Morgan	E P Tensil
Delilah Mikesell	Nelson Turner
Younger McCourlin	2 DS Thomas
Geo Montague	Chas Thomas
Geo Morey	John Tyson
Davis McOlney	Jno Taylor
James G Miller	Brian Willis
Saml Merrick	S F Wilber
Jno Morris	Stephen Wikerson
E P Merriam	H D H Webster
M or E Mechim	Robt Williams
Elijah Martin	Benj S Wilber or Lady
Thos J Morgan	Price Waggoner
R Mayle	Rebecca White
Wm Miller	2 D B Walters
Saml McLenathan	Robt Wright
J B Noble	2 Jno Worth
Peter Nelson	Adam Wighton
Edmund Nelson	Alex Wright
M C Nckerson	Philip Wort
Jno Newman	James Wilson
Rodger Norton	Jno Wilkie
Larles Newel	Cynthia Weston
Wm Niswanger	Warren Wallace
Patrick Norris	James W. Weller
J C Owen	M B Welton
Rufus Patrick	Robt Wilets
S Pratt	W J Wilson
P P Pratt	Allen Weeks
Wm C Potter	Jno Walker
Nathan or Jonathan	2 Richd Worthps
Packer	Jas Weston or J Tomlin
Chester Phillips	ES Wilber
Ada Pierpoint	Stephen Wikerson
E J Fearsone	Jos Wornouth
J F Palmer	David Wood
J W Phippen	P W Webb
Jno Pack	N A West
Wm Pan	Joseph Young
Horace Roberts	Alphonzo Young
Meritt Rockwell	Michael Yaman
Stephen Reach
James Rodeback
Lewis Robison

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.)

In the matter of the petition of Lyman Prentis, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Lyman Prentis, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 1st day of February next, at the district court room, in the town of Kaskaski in this district as the time and place for the bearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 3rd day of January A. D. 1843.

J. W. MARSH,

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. P. Owings Clerk. 86-v2.

GREAT AND DESTRUCTIVE FIRE!

A fire broke out at about half past four o'clock this morning in the Flouring Mill of H. Fitzhugh & Co., on East Oswego, which swept with fearful rapidity over Blocks Nos. 45 and 63, lying between First street and the river, consuming all the buildings on them and four dwellings on the adjoining block, fronting on the east side of First Street. The wind was blowing fresh from the N. West, and carried the fire at a great distance, so as to threaten the destruction of the whole village lying on the East side of the river. The weather was so intensely cold as to freeze the water in the engines.

On Block 45 were five buildings, the Flouring Mill and warehouses occupied by H. Fitzhugh & Co. and owned by Garrison Smith. They were all burned down with their contents, consisting of Wheat, Flour, and Merchandise. The books and papers of Messrs. Fitzhugh & Co. were mostly lost, and the Schooner Luther Wright, lying at their dock with a cargo of Wheat, was burnt to water's edge. The buildings were insured we understand to the amount of $15,000. The vessel and cargo were partially insured.

The buildings burnt on block 63, were the four story warehouse owned by Luther Wright, the flouring mill of Truman Wiman, a two story warehouse of Luther Wright, the flouring mill occupied by the same gentleman, and owned by the Commercial Bank, the Plaster mill, Machine Shop, and lumber yard of Choney Ames. The amount of property consumed, we are unable to make any estimate. Most of the flour in the mills of Messrs. Wiman and Wright was ruined out. Mr. Wiman was insured to the amount of $15,000 and Mr. Wright $13,000.

Of the dwellings burnt, fronting on First st., two were owned by Jesse Bonnet, one by Simon Bates and occupied by J. B. Johnson, and one by Col. T. S. Morgan, who was insured at the North Western Insurance Office. A blacksmith shop belonging to Philander Rathbun, adjoining these buildings on the corner of First and Seneca streets was burnt, with a number of small buildings in the rear.

The loss of property by this most destructive fire with which Oswego has ever been visited, must exceed $100,000. On what companies and in what proportion this loss falls, we are unable to say. The property consumed is supposed to be insured for one half its value.

GRANT & WATT,

TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused. Dec. 3, 1842. no31-3w.

NOTICE.

These subscribers have entered into co-partnership for the purpose of publishing the Times and Seasons, and the Wasp, and of carrying on the business of Printing, Stereotyping, Book binding, Book selling and every thing connected with the above named branches of business.

N. B. All business connected with the firm will be done in the name of

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Oct. 1st 1842.

O. C. SKINNER,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office at the Masonic Hall, Nauvoo.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.

G. B. Holt, Dayton,

G. P. Bell, Hamilton,

Wm. Barney, Cincinnati,

Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.

Dec. 31, 1842.

no35-3w.

BOOKS! BOOKS! BOOKS!

Our subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Elements Primer, Ray's Electric Arithmetic, The Electric Spelling Book, Electric 1st Reader, Electric 2nd Reader, Electric 3rd Reader, Electric 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Packet and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Packet Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Mail-order Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Sates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842.

no36.

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK renders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula, mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic.

no35.

NO CURE NO PAY.

I propose to cure smoking chimneys by the use of Hammond's Patent No Cure No Pay. There is no mistake in this patent; call and examine Mr. Wilford Woodruff's, under the Printing Office, who is authorized to make contracts for me. I shall return to the city about the 3rd day of next month, and will attend to all persons who may desire their chimneys to draw well.

ALEX. SYMPSON.

Dec. 28, 1842.

no30-11.

NEW BOOT AND SHOE ESTABLISHMENT.

THE subscriber respectfully informs the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has commenced the above named business, on Mulholland St., south east corner of the Temple square. All kinds of work done on the shortest notice and most reasonable terms. Also intends to keep constantly on hand all kinds of ready made work. Most kinds of produce taken in exchange for Boots and Shoes.

M. ADAMS.

Dec. 31, 1842.

no35-11.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Cahage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph John on, Ramus
J. Salisbury, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Muncie M. Donough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Vesp. Quinn.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam. Curtis, Horners Town.
W. L. Appleby, Recluse Town.
Israel Irvin, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

E. astus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. B. Foster, city of New York.

DR. J. F. VELD.

PRACTICE - SEE IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, and adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuance of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

GEO. BACHMAN.

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medicinal prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBOR LOZENGES.

Persons afflicted with palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispenation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22-y1.) J. SNIDER.

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

He who earns that which he daily consumes, is entitled to respect; but he who obtains his subsistence by trickery, chicanery, fraud and theft, should be sent to the penitentiary.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.

December 10, 1842.

no32-

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multifarious diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix nature.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay.

Nov. 30, 1842.

no31-6w.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Burnham adjoining the premises, or of the subscriber in Warsaw, Ill.

A. H. WORTHIN.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street. Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842.

31-11.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND,

A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment.

T. & W. H.

Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842.

no20.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.

Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842.

no31-11.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street.

31-11.

GREAT AND DESTRUCTIVE FIRE!!

A fire broke out at about half past four o'clock this morning in the Flouring Mill of H. Fitzhugh & Co., in East Oswego, which swept with fearful rapidity over Blocks No. 45 and 63, lying between First street and the river, consuming all the buildings on them and four dwellings on the adjoining Block, fronting on the east side of First Street. The wind was blowing fresh from the N. West, and carried the fire at a great distance, so as to threaten the destruction of the whole Village lying on the East side of the river. The weather was so intensely cold as to freeze the water in the engines.

On Block 45 were five buildings, the Flouring Mill and warehouses occupied by H. Fitzhugh & Co. and owned by Garritt Smith. They were all burned down with their contents, consisting of Wheat, Flour, and Merchandise. The books and papers of Messrs. Fitzhugh & Co. were mostly lost, and the Schooner Luther Wright, lying at their dock with a cargo of Wheat, was burnt to water's edge. The buildings were insured we understand to the amount of $15,000. The vessel and cargo were partially insured.

The buildings burnt on block 63, were the four story warehouse owned by Luther Wright, the flouring mill of Truman Wiman, a two story warehouse of Luther Wright, the flouring mill occupied by the same gentleman, and owned by the Commercial Bank, the Plaster mill, Machine Shop, and lumber yard of Choney Ames. The amount of property consumed, we are unable to make any estimate. Most of the flour in the mills of Messrs. Wiman and Wright was rolled out. Mr. Wiman was insured to the amount of $15,000 and Mr. Wright $13,000.

Of the dwellings burnt, fronting on First st., two were owned by Jesse Bonnet, one by Simeon Bates and occupied by J. B. Johnson, and one by Col. T. S. Morgan, who was insured at the North Western Insurance Office. A blacksmith shop belonging to Philander Rathbun, adjoining these buildings on the corner of First and Seneca streets was burnt, with a number of small buildings in the rear.

The loss of property by this most destructive fire with which Oswego has ever been visited, must exceed $100,000. On what companies and in what proportion this loss falls, we are unable to say. The property consumed is supposed to be insured for one half its value.

GRANT & WATT,

TAILORS.

TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be received in payment; money not refused. Dec. 3, 1842. no31-3w.

NOTICE.

The subscribers have entered into co-partnership for the purpose of publishing the "Times and Seasons," and the "Wasp," and of carrying on the business of Printing, Stereotyping, Book binding, Book selling and everything connected with the above named branches of business.

N. B. All business connected with the firm will be done in the name of TAYLOR & WOODRUFF. Nauvoo, Oct. 1st. 1842.

O. C. SKINNER,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office at the Masonic Hall, Nauvoo.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.
G. B. Holt, Dayton,
G. P. Bell, Hamilton,
Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,
Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
Dec. 31, 1842. no25-3m.

BOOKS! BOOKS! BOOKS!!!

THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Electric Primer, Ray's Electric Arithmetic, The Electric Spelling Book, Electric 1st Reader, Electric 2nd Reader, Electric 3rd Reader, Electric 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing, Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic. no35.

NO CURE NO PAY.

I propose to cure smoking chimneys by the use of 'Hammond's Patent No Cure No Pay.' There is no mistake in this patent; call and examine Mr. Wilford Woodruff's, under the Printing Office, who is authorized to make contracts for me. I shall return to the city about the 3rd day of next month, and will attend to all persons who may desire their chimneys to draw well.

ALEX. SYMPSON.

Dec. 28, 1842. no35-1f.

NEW BOOT AND SHOE ESTABLISHMENT.

THE subscriber respectfully informs the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has commenced the above named business, on Mulholland St., south east corner of the Temple square. All kinds of work done on the shortest notice and most reasonable terms. Also intends to keep constantly on hand all kinds of ready made work. Most kinds of produce taken in exchange for Boots and Shoes.

M. ADAMS.

Dec. 31, 1842. no35-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus.
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike.
L. R. Chiffin, Lahar, Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Mccomb M. Donough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Fsq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam. Curtis, Hogners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Recles Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

F. astus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiere.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirt and.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business, to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

GEO. BACHMAN.

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-1f.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medicinal prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispenation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22-y1.) J. SNIDER.

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

He who earns that which he daily consumes, is entitled to respect; but he who obtains his subsistence by trickery, chicanery, fraud and theft, should be sent to the penitentiary.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce, and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multifarious diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix naturae.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay. Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

FARM FOR SALE.

THE subscriber wishes to sell his farm situated on Bear Creek in Hancock county, ten miles from Warsaw, and eighteen from Nauvoo. Said farm contains one hundred and sixty three acres of land nearly equally divided in prairie and timber, with sixty acres under cultivation and a hewed log house on the same, and lies directly on the State Road running from Warsaw and Rushville. The above farm is well watered and will be sold on good terms, or exchanged for real estate in any of the New England States. For further particulars enquire of A. Barnham adjoining the premises, or of the

A. H. WORTHIN.

Oct. 15, 1842. no27-1f.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street. Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-1f.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSEND.

A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. th. Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no20.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842. no31-1f.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-1f.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 37.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, January 14, 1843.

Whole Number 37

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,
At the corner of Water and Main Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.
Terms.—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING,
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

NOTICE.

The subscribers have entered into co-partnership for the purpose of publishing the "Times and Seasons," and the "Wasp" and of carrying on the business of Printing, Stereotyping, Book binding, Book selling and everything connected with the above named branches of business.

N. B. All business connected with the firm will be done in the name of
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.
Nauvoo, Oct. 1st 1842.

BOOKS! BOOKS! BOOKS!!!

Our subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, and a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Millenial Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Print-

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,

in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	whole	bound	plain	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	hf	bound	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	hf	bound	plain	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Lyman Prentiss, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Lyman Prentiss, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 1st day of February next, at the district court room, in the town of Kaskaskia, in this district as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 3rd day of January A. D. 1843.

J. W. MARSH.

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. P. Owings Clerk. 36-2.

O. C. SKINNER,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office at the Masonic Hall, Nauvoo.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.

G. B. Holt, Dayton,

G. P. Bell, Hamilton,

Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,

Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.

Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

For the Wasp.

THE MORMON JUBILEE,

Written at Captain Dutch's, Lancaster Post Office, Morgan county, Ill., on the evening of the 1st of January 1843, and sung by the party who accompanied General Joseph Smith from Springfield, (where he had voluntarily been for trial on Habeas Corpus,) on his return to Nauvoo.

Dedicated to all lovers of Illinois liberties.

TUNE.—"Na, juck about the house," or, "Auld Lang Syne."

And are you sure the news is true?

And are you sure he's free?

Then let us join with one accord,

And have a jubilee.

We'll have a jubilee, my friends,

We'll have a jubilee;

With heart and voice we'll all rejoice

In that our Prophet's free.

Success unto the Fed'ral Court,

Judge Pope presiding there,

And also his associates true,

So lovely and so fair.

We'll have a jubilee, my friends,

We'll have a jubilee;

With heart and voice we'll all rejoice,

In that our Gen'ral's free.

And to our learned counsellors

We owe our gratitude,

Because that they in freedom's cause

Like valient men have stood.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

In the defence of innocence,

They made the truth to bear;

Reynold's and Carlin's baseness both

Did fearlessly declare.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

Edwards and Butterfield and Pope,

We'll mention with applause,

Because that they like champions bold

Support the Federal laws.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

Th' Attorney Gen'ral of the State,

His duty nobly did,

And ably brought those errors forth,

From which we now are freed.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

One word in praise of Thomas Ford,

Our Governor so true;

He stands the people's rights,

And will protect them, too.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

There's one more we wish enroll'd

Upon the book of fame;

That master spirit in all jokes,

And 'Prentice' but in name.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

The Sucker State we'll praise in song,

She's succour'd us indeed,

And we will succour her in turn,

In every time of need.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

Our charter'd rights she has maintain'd

Through opposition great;

Long may her charter champions live,

Sail to protect the State.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

We'll stand by her thro' sun and shade,

Through calm and tempest, too;

And when she needs our Legion's aid,

'Tis ready at Nauvoo.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

With warmest hearts we bid farewell,

To those we leave behind;

The citizens of Springfield all

So courteous and so kind.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

Each one of us we cannot pass,

But with a wish we cannot pass,

Without a word of praise;

For he's the king of comic songs

As well as comic ways.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

And the fair ladies of his house,

The flow'rs of Morgan's plains,

Who from the soft Piano bring

Such soul-enchancing strains.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

And now we're bound for home, my friends.

A band of brothers true,

To cheer the hearts of those we love,

In beautiful Nauvoo.

We'll have a jubilee, my friends,

We'll have a jubilee;

With heart and voice we'll all rejoice,

In that our Mayor's free.

*Judge Pope's daughter and distinguished ladies of Springfield, filled the bench

during the trial.

Speech of Mr. SMITH of Hancock County,

on the resolution of Mr. Davis of Board, to repeal the Nauvoo charter, delivered in the House of Representatives,

December 9, 1842.

Mr. Speaker—I beg the privilege of making a few remarks on this subject.

This, sir, seems to be a question,

which has excited to a very considerable extent, the attention of members who compose this honorable body. But, Mr.

Speaker, it does really appear to me that this is a question that has been gotten up

quite prematurely; for I doubt not, many members here, have not yet had the opportunity of learning what privileges are granted in the Nauvoo city charter.

The subject which the gentleman has raised, is, only an assumption.

I doubt not, that if the subject had been fairly investigated, and weighed equally

in the balance, by every candid individual

in the community, that prejudices of this kind would not have obtained such a hold upon the public mind. In the estimation of genuine democracy the rights of the people of Nauvoo are just as sacred

as those of any other people. The people that live there, should have just the same privilege extended to them, as are awarded to Springfield, Chicago, Quincy, or any other city in the State. It is true indeed, that they have laboured under many embarrassments. The public mind has been heated in regard to what were supposed to be their chartered privileges.

But, you, Mr. Speaker, are well aware, that all the corporate privileges that they enjoy have been granted to them by a previous legislature. Upon that occasion, all that was done was not considered by any, more than an act of justice towards them. They had no greater rights or privileges given them than were already enjoyed by the citizens of Quincy or Springfield. The people have chartered privileges in both of those cities, and we have the same in Nauvoo. Our condition, in that respect, is not at all different from Chicago, Alton, and many other chartered cities in this State.

It would hardly be worth while, Mr. Speaker, to detain either you or this honorable body by making many preliminary remarks in respect to our religion. That is a matter, that cannot at all come under the purview of this legislature.

I do not fancy myself placed here before a body of sectarians, invested in their own estimation with authority to enact rules for the government or regulation of any sect upon matters of religion. I do not suppose that I stand in the presence of persons disposed to take away one single religious right pertaining to the people among whom I dwell.

But what could legislation in regard to this matter effect? What would it prove? It would neither prove Joseph Smith to be a christian, nor that Tom Thum came from the moon. It would prove nothing in reference to the principles of any body of religionists. But I do not feel it my prerogative to enter into a discussion of religious principles here. I know very well that the people called Mormons are thought to be a very strange people. I come right from among them and you can all judge whether or not they seem to have the appearance of a strange animal of 7 heads and ten horns. You can all decide for yourselves whether from the appearance I present I should be numbered among outcasts, or be ranked among human beings.

One word farther as to the chartered privileges. They have, as this honorable body is well aware, assembled a population of from five to ten or fifteen thousand inhabitants. It is in consequence of the privileges granted in their charter that they have been induced to do this.—Nauvoo is not, as some may erroneously suppose, a city composed entirely of Mormons. I can inform gentlemen that Methodists, Presbyterians, Baptists, Universalists, in short many of different kinds of religion, and even infidels may be found there. And all these are tolerated there, just as in any other community.

A great many persons have gone to Nauvoo and there invested their property. They are now engaged in the erection of buildings, which when consummated will cost enormous sums of money. But, should the charter of that city be repealed, individuals who now consider themselves rising to wealth in consequence of what has been done by a former legislature of this State, will be reduced to wretchedness and want. In that event, property now worth from three to ten thousand dollars will not be worth five hundred—or nothing in comparison to that amount. There is another point,

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BYRANT.

Volume I.—No. 37.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, January 14, 1843.

Whole Number 37

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY

JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

Terms—$1.50 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor) POST PAID, to receive attention.

NOTICE.

The subscribers have entered into co-partnership for the purpose of publishing the "Times and Seasons," and the "Wasp" and of carrying on the business of Printing, Stereotyping, Book-binding, Book-selling and everything connected with the above named branches of business.

N. B. All business connected with the firm will be done in the name of

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Oct. 1st 1842.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

HE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, and a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Millen's Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,

in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1,50
do	do	do	neat	2,00
do	do	whole bound	plain	2,00
do	do	do	neat	2,50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1,00
do	do	do	neat	1,50
do	do	do	neat	0,75
do	do	do	extra	1,37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	62
do	do	do	neat	87
do	do	do	neat	50
do	do	do	neat	75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Lyman Prentiss, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Lyman Prentiss, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 1st day of February next, at the district court room, in the town of Nauvoo, in this district as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 3rd day of January A. D. 1843.

J. W. MARSH.

Solicitor for petitioner.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 36 w2.

O. C. SKINNER,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office at the Masonic Hall, Nauvoo.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.

G. B. Holt, Dayton,

G. P. Bell, Hamilton,

Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,

Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.

Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

For the Wasp.

THE MORMON JUBILEE.

Written at Captain Dutch's, Lancaster Post Office, Morgan county, Ill., on the evening of the 2nd of January, 1843, and sung by the party who accompanied General Joseph Smith from Springfield, (where he had voluntarily been for trial on Habeas Corpus,) on his return to Nauvoo.

Dedicated to all lovers of Illinois liberties.

TUNE.—"Na Juck about the house," or, "Auld Lang Syne."

And are you sure the news is true?

Then let us join with one accord,

And have a jubilee.

We'll have a jubilee, my friends,

We'll have a jubilee;

With heart and voice we'll all rejoice

In that our Prophet's free.

Success unto the Fed'ral Court,

Judge Pope presiding there,

And also his associates true,

So lovely and so fair.

We'll have a jubilee, my friends,

We'll have a jubilee;

With heart and voice we'll all rejoice,

In that our Gen'ral's free.

And to our learned counsellors

We owe our gratitude,

Because that they in freedom's cause

Like valiant men have stood.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

In the defence of innocence,

They made the truth to bear;

Reynold's and Carlin's baseness both

Did fearlessly declare.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

Edwards and Butterfield and Pope,

We'll mention with applause,

Because that they like champions bold

Support the Federal laws.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

Th' Attorney Gen'ral of the State,

His duty nobly did,

And ably brought those errors forth,

From which we now are freed.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

One word in praise of Thomas Ford,

Our Governor so true;
He understands the people's rights,
And will protect them, too.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

There is one more we wish enroll'd

Upon the book of fame;

That master spirit in all jokes,

And 'Prentice' but in name.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

The Sucker State we'll praise in song,

She's succor'd us indeed,

And we will succor her in turn,

In every time of need.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

Our charter'd rights she has maintain'd

Through opposition great;

Long may her charter champions live,

Still to protect the State.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

We'll stand by her thro' sun and shade,

Through calm and tempest, too;

And when she needs our Legion's aid,

Be ready at Nauvoo.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

With warmest hearts we bid farewell,

To those we leave behind;

The citizens of Springfield all

So courteous and so kind.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

Each one of us we cannot pass,

Without a word of praise;

For he's the king of comic songs

As well as comic ways.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

And the fair ladies of his house,

The flow'rs of Morgan's plains,

Who from the soft Piano bring

Such soul-enchanting strains.

We'll have a jubilee, &c.

And now we're bound for home, my

friends,

A band of brothers true,

To cheer the hearts of those we love,

In beautiful Nauvoo.

We'll have a jubilee, my friends,

We'll have a jubilee;

With heart and voice we'll all rejoice,

In that our Mayor's free.

*Judge Pope's daughter and distinguished ladies of Springfield, filled the bench

during the trial.

Speech of Mr. SMITH of Hancock County,

on the resolution of Mr. Davis of Band, to repeal the Nauvoo charter,

delivered in the House of Representatives,

December 9, 1842.

Mr. Speaker—I beg the privilege of making a few remarks on this subject.

This, sir, seems to be a question,

which has excited to a very considerable

extent, the attention of members who

compose this honorable body. But, Mr.

Speaker, it does really appear to me that

this is a question that has been gotten up

quite prematurely; for I doubt not, many members here, have not yet had the opportunity of learning what privileges are granted in the Nauvoo city charter.

The subject which the gentleman has raised, is, only an assumption.

I doubt not, that if the subject had been fairly investigated, and weighed equally

in the balance, by every candid individual

in the community, that prejudices of

this kind would not have obtained such a

hold upon the public mind. In the estimation

of genuine democracy the rights

of the people of Nauvoo are just as sacred

as those of any other people. The people that live there, should have just the same privilege extended to them, as are awarded to Springfield, Chicago, Quincy, or any other city in the State. It is true indeed, that they have labored under many embarrassments. The public mind has been heated in regard to what were supposed to be their chartered privileges.

But, you, Mr. Speaker, are well aware, that all the corporate privileges that they enjoy have been granted to them by a previous legislature. Upon that occasion, all that was done was not considered by any, more than an act of justice towards them. They had no greater rights or privileges given them than were already enjoyed by the citizens of Quincy or Springfield. The people have chartered privileges in both of those cities, and we have the same in Nauvoo. Our condition, in that respect, is not at all different from Chicago, Alton, and many other chartered cities in this State.

It would hardly be worth while, Mr. Speaker, to detain either you or this honorable body by making many preliminary remarks in respect to our religion. That is a matter, that cannot at all come under the purview of this legislation.

I do not fancy myself placed here before a body of sectarians, invested in their own estimation with authority to enact rules for the government or regulation of any sect upon matters of religion. I do not suppose that I stand in the presence of persons disposed to take away one single religious right pertaining to the people among whom I dwell.

But what could legislation in regard to this matter effect? What would it prove? It would neither prove Joseph Smith to be a christian, nor that Tom Thum came from the moon. It would prove nothing in reference to the principles of any body of religionists. But I do not feel it my prerogative to enter into a discussion of religious principles here. I know very well that the people called Mormons are thought to be a very strange people. I come right from among them and you can all judge whether or not they seem to have the appearance of a strange animal of 7 heads and ten horns. You can all decide for yourselves whether from the appearance I present I should be numbered among outcasts, or be ranked among human beings.

One word farther as to the chartered privileges. They have, as this honorable body is well aware, assembled a population of from five to ten or fifteen thousand inhabitants. It is in consequence of the privileges granted in their charter that they have been induced to do this. Nauvoo is not, as some may erroneously suppose, a city composed entirely of Mormons. I can inform gentlemen that Methodists, Presbyterians Baptists, Universalists, in short many of different kinds of religion, and even infidels may be found there. And all these are tolerated there, just as in any other community.

A great many persons have gone to Nauvoo and there invested their property. They are now engaged in the erection of buildings, which when consummated will cost enormous sums of money. But, should the charter of that city be repealed, individuals who now consider themselves rising to wealth in consequence of what has been done by a former legislature of this State, will be reduced to wretchedness and want. In that event, property now worth from three to ten thousand dollars will not be worth five hundred—or nothing in comparison to that amount. There is another point

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1844.

THE RELEASE OF GEN. JOSEPH SMITH.

We are happy to have it in our power to state, that the distinguished individual above named is once more free, and that the illegal persecution, and proscription which has been instituted against him, is at an end. Ex-Gov. Reynolds of Missouri, and ex-Gov. Carlin of this State, has terminated successfully in behalf of the innocent and unoffending; and we have had the striking instance of the dignity and purity of our laws being held inviolate, despite of executive influence and intrigue, and the influence of misrepresentation and bigotry. Mr. Smith had long been convinced of the illegality of the proceedings which were instituted against him; but he did not think that when public excitement was so great, and popular prejudice so strong, that it would be hazardous for him to place himself in the hands of any of the minions of ex-Gov. Carlin—judging (very correctly) that if that gentleman had issued a writ illegally, and unconstitutional for his apprehension, he might use an unwarrantable, executive influence in having him delivered up to the justice (i. e. injustice) of the State of Missouri.

But while on the one hand he feared, and had reason to fear, usurped executive power; he as firmly believed that if he could obtain a fair and impartial hearing before the judiciary that there was sufficient strength, and virtue in the laws, to deliver him from the unjust influence, and mal-administration of his enemies.

Feeling fully convinced of the justice of his cause, he repaired to Springfield, about two weeks ago, for the purpose of obtaining a hearing, (and as he believed) receiving an acquittal from the District Court of the United States, for the District of Illinois.

The Secretary of State had been instructed to send for the writ issued by Gov. Carlin, that Mr. Smith might have the privilege of the Habeas Corpus and of having the legality and constitutionality of the writ tested.

But as ex-Governor Carlin, ex-Governor Adams county, or both, were either afraid of having their deeds investigated, or wished to set at defiance the law; the writ was not forthcoming; and after the great hue and cry that has been made about Joseph Smith's fleeing from justice, he was absolutely under the necessity of petitioning Governor Ford to issue another writ before he could obtain a hearing before the court. For the purpose of answering the ends of justice, and that Mr. Smith might be legally and fairly dealt with, Governor Ford issued another writ, which was a copy of the one issued by Gov. Carlin. Mr. Smith then petitioned the United States district court for a writ of Habeas Corpus, which was granted and he appeared before that court on Saturday the 20th of December, 1842, and gave bail for his appearance at court on Monday. Mr. Lamborn, the Attorney General of the State of Illinois, appeared in behalf of the State, and Mr. Butterfield was counsel for Gen. Smith.

On Monday Mr. Lamborn requested of the court a little time, stating that the subject was new to him, that it was one of great importance, and that he wished to have time for investigating it, and he hoped that the court would indulge him with one or two days; the court granted him that privilege, and the trial was postponed until Wednesday, the 4th of January. Mr. Lamborn objected to the proceedings, on the ground that the United States Court had no jurisdiction in this case, and that it belonged to the courts of this State to adjudicate in this matter; he moreover contended that they could not go behind the writ, to try the guilt, or innocence of the accused party; his objections however were overruled by the court.

Mr. Edwards and Butterfield shewed in a very lucid manner that Mr. Lamborn was in the dark concerning this matter—and Mr. Butterfield contended that in this case, and under the circumstances of the issuing of this writ, the United States district court not only had jurisdiction; but that it had exclusive jurisdiction. He also shewed very clearly that although they had no right to go behind the writ when judgment was rendered, that they had a perfect right where that was not the case; he quoted several authorities in defence of the position that he took, and very clearly shewed that the course which he had taken in this affair, was entirely supported by law. That he was sustained by the constitution of the United States, and by a law of Congress passed upon the constitution, and by all former precedents. He then exposed in a very able manner the contrivance of Governor Reynolds of Missouri, and of Governor Carlin of Illinois, in relation to this matter, pointing from their own documents that the steps which they had taken were illegal, that Governor Reynolds had no jurisdiction to issue a writ, or to demand Joseph Smith from Governor Carlin on any thing that there was in the affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs of Missouri, and that he was obliged to add certain clauses in his demand which were not found in the body of the affidavit, before his claims upon this State could have the sanction of law; and that Governor Carlin with these same documents before him wished to make it a little more plain, and added further additions, by way of codicil to the charge. He clearly shewed the progress of crime among these governors—Ex-Governor Boggs' affidavit stated that "he believed, and had good reason to believe that Joseph Smith was accessory before the fact, and that he was a resident of Illinois." Governor Reynolds stated that it had been represented to him that Joseph Smith was accessory before the fact, and had fled from the justice of Missouri; and to make up the thing complete, Governor Carlin stated that he was a fugitive from justice, consequently neither Governor Reynolds nor Governor Carlin had any foundation whereon to base the issuing of a demand, proclamation, or writ.

After showing very clearly, the ignorance and injustice of these executives—proving to a demonstration that Joseph Smith had not been in Missouri for three years that he could not be a fugitive from justice, and that if he were guilty of being an accessory, the thing was not done in Missouri, and he could not be taken there to be tried; he concluded by saying, that all the difference there was between the Mormons and other professions was, that the different sects believed in the ancient prophets only, and the Mormons believed in both ancient and modern prophecy. Another distinction was, that the ancient prophets prophesied in poetry, and the modern ones in prose.

After repeating what the court would give its decision the next morning.

On Wednesday morning the Judge in his decision investigated the whole matter, and in a very able manner sustained the views of Mr. Butterfield, and adduced additional testimony and evidence, in favor of the acquittal of Mr. Smith; and after a very learned and able address he concluded by saying, that "the decision of the court is that the prisoner be discharged; and I wish it entered upon the records in such a way, that Mr. Smith be no more troubled about this matter."

We hope to be able to furnish our readers with a complete copy of the whole proceedings of this interesting trial.

We had the honor of accompanying General Smith to Springfield, together with about four hundred gentlemen from this place, and we were very much pleased with the excursion; we met with a great deal of courtesy and respect on our way to Springfield, and when we arrived there; both from the citizens generally, and also from Honorable members of the Legislature. Indeed our presence seemed to dispel those deep prejudices which many had imbibed in consequence of misrepresentation and falsehood; and in our intercourse with them they perceived that the Mormons were affable, courteous, and intelligent; and in looking at our heads and feet they discovered that we had neither horns nor hoofs.

By the politeness of the Hon. Mr. Harkness, speaker of the House of Representatives, we were favored with the privilege of speaking in the Legislative Hall; Elder Hyde preached in the morning, and myself in the afternoon; a large concourse of people attended, composed of lawyers, judges, state officers, legislators, and citizens of Springfield, and many of them concluded that Mormonism was as reasonable, as scriptural, and that there was as much sound common sense, and a little more connected with it, than with any other system that they had heard, or investigated.

Upon the whole we had a very interesting visit, and in our short stay formed associations that will not soon be forgotten.

Much praise is due to Governor Ford, Judge Pope, Mr. Butterfield, Mr. Edwards, and many other gentlemen, for the bold, independent, and patriotic course that they have pursued in relation to this matter; they have manifested a disposition to maintain inviolate the supremacy of the law; and that the Mormons shall have even-handed justice administered to them, in common with all other citizens of the state.

Our City Charters yet remain untouched, and we believe that there will be found, in the Legislature, as much patriotism, republicanism, and sound common sense, as to preserve them inviolate.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

In our thirty-ninth number we gave an account of a company which is formed in London for the purpose of constructing a machine by which the air can be navigated, and we stated, that a patent was formally sealed in September last for an Aerial Machine. We also quoted remarks from a highly popular and influential journal, the London Atlas on the subject. In looking over our English journals we find a record of the patent alluded to, and for the information of our readers, we will copy it. It is among the list of patents for the month of September and stands thus recorded: "S. Henson, of New City Chambers, Babington street, engineer, for certain improvements in locomotive apparatus and in machinery for conveying letters, goods and passengers from place to place through the air, part of which improvements are applicable to locomotive and other machinery to be used on water or on land. September, twenty-ninth—six months."—[Bos. Eve. Bulletin.]

Pretty fair. Wonder if the present generation will obtain a patent for a "Space Boat" to navigate "beyond the bounds of time and space?" It might be of great service in Miller's Millennium.

Capt. Drew, who commanded the expedition that destroyed the steamboat Caroline, at Schioster, has been appointed to the command of the English man of war Wasp, of sixteen guns.—[Bos. Bulletin.]

He'll get stung!

It will be seen that a fast is appointed to be held on Tuesday next, as a day of humiliation, thanksgiving and praise to Almighty God for the delivery of our beloved Prophet Joseph Smith, from the hands of his enemies; and for the goodness of God towards us as a people; we would recommend that part of the day (when not engaged in other services) be employed as suggested, in seeking out and relieving the poor, the widow, the fatherless, and the afflicted; then will our services be acceptable before the Lord. Isa. LVIII. says:

66. Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?

7 Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him; and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh?

8 Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy rearward.

9 Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, and speaking vanity.

10 And if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noon day.

11 And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not.

12 And they that shall be of thee shall build the old waste places: thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in."

Since the above was written, President Marks has suggested the propriety of the brethren taking something for the relief of the poor, to the Bishop, that they may supply the wants of the necessitous, as

Mr. Speaker, in which I would call your attention; and that is to the observations which have been made in regard to taking away from the citizens of Nauvoo the State arms. Well, suppose that should be done. Would that effect anything? They are now organized and have under existing laws drawn a certain portion of the public arms. In that, wherein are they acting differently from any other citizens? They have not even that equal portion of arms that they are entitled to by law. Where would be the object in taking away the public arms from the militia of this State. It surely cannot be believed that there is any danger of the Mormons breaking out and killing the people. There is no more danger of that, than there is that five, six or a dozen old women, and a few boys should do the same thing. Is this State to be carried by a hue and cry of that kind raised by politicians? I own that it is not the design of that people even so much as to molest a hair on the head of a single individual; but that, on the contrary, it is their intention in all things to conform to the constitution and laws of the land. If prejudices have been accumulating upon the public mind, calculated to produce the expression that they are villains, such prejudices are entirely unfounded. It is a great mistake to suppose the contrary. Those people consider themselves bound by the laws and endeavor to obey them. Have they not, I would ask, contributed their portion towards replenishing your county and State revenues? Have they ever refused to pay their taxes? Have they not always been both ready and willing to obey both the civil and military laws of this State? Where, then is the necessity that this honorable body should enact a law taking away from them their chartered privileges?

I will not, Mr. Speaker, detain you or this honorable body much longer. I am heartily sorry that a blow has been aimed at the chartered privileges of Nauvoo. I speak in defence of my constituents upon this occasion; feeling myself bound to do so, not by any former pledges but by principle. I believe in defending the cause of the defenceless. As has already been remarked, all that we claim is equal rights and equal privileges. I would remark for the satisfaction of my own feelings in this matter, that I was some little interested in the event of the last election, I then was engaged in the cause of democracy, enlisted in the campaign of canvassing my county, and in consequence of the many prejudices that they are called, I was placed under circumstances of most unparalleled embarrassment. But still, I thought it a favorable opportunity to unite the democracy of the county.

I know that considerable political capital has been made by the question of Mormonism and anti-Mormonism. Perhaps one thing that now contributes to that result is that there are hints in the Governor's message in regard to a repeal of the Nauvoo charter. It is a circumstance within my own knowledge, that previous to the last election in Hancock county that some few individuals there made strong efforts to get our votes for the Governor's election. By exertions made there more than a thousand votes were cast for the Governor by Mormon influence. And since I have been here, a gentleman, of the opposite politics, has said to me, "now your Governor is paying you off." I do not allude to this to wound the feelings of any person whatever. I do not consider that the recommendation of the Governor was designed to effect the repeal of our charter.

All that we have to say is that we throw ourselves upon your mercy. As democrats we ask for equal justice and equal rights. Give us those rights and we are content, without them, we are deprived of that which was purchased by the blood of our fathers.

Eighty thousand head of cattle have died in Egypt, of an epidemic that has raged among them during the past year.

Mr. Speaker, to which I would call your attention, and that is to the observations which have been made in regard to taking away from the citizens of Nauvoo the State arms. Well, suppose that should be done. Would that effect anything? They are now organized and have under existing laws drawn a certain portion of the public arms. In that, wherein are they acting differently from any other citizens? They have not even that equal portion of arms that they are entitled to by law. Where would be the object in taking away the public arms from the militia of this State? It surely cannot be believed that there is any danger of the Mormons breaking out and killing the people. There is no more danger of that, than there is that five, six or a dozen old women, and a few boys should do the same thing. Is this State to be carried by a hue and cry of that kind raised by politicians? I own that it is not the design of that people even so much as to molest a hair on the head of a single individual; but that, on the contrary, it is their intention in all things to conform to the constitution and laws of the land. If prejudices have been accumulating upon the public mind, calculated to produce the expression that they are villains, such prejudices are entirely unfounded. It is a great mistake to suppose the contrary. Those people consider themselves bound by the laws and endeavor to obey them. Have they not, I would ask, contributed their portion towards replenishing your county and State revenues? Have they ever refused to pay their taxes? Have they not always been both ready and willing to obey both the civil and military laws of this State? Where, then is the necessity that this honorable body should enact a law taking away from them their chartered privileges?

I will not, Mr. Speaker, detain you or this honorable body much longer. I am heartily sorry that a blow has been aimed at the chartered privileges of Nauvoo. I speak in defence of my constituents upon this occasion, feeling myself bound to do so, not by any former pledges but by principle. I believe in defending the cause of the defenceless. As has already been remarked, all that we claim is equal rights and equal privileges. I would remark for the satisfaction of my own feelings in this matter, that I was some little interested in the event of the last election. I then was engaged in the cause of democracy, enlisted in the campaign of canvassing my county, and in consequence of the many prejudices that were excited against the Mormons as they are called, I was placed under circumstances of most unparalleled embarrassment. But still, I thought it a favorable opportunity to unite the democracy of the county.

I know that considerable political capital has been made by the question of Mormonism and anti-Mormonism. Perhaps one thing that now contributes to that result is that there are hints in the Governor's message in regard to a repeal of the Nauvoo charter. It is a circumstance within my own knowledge, that previous to the last election in Hancock county that some few individuals there made strong efforts to get our votes for the Governor's election. By exertions made there more than a thousand votes were cast for the Governor by Mormon influence. And since I have been here, a gentleman, of the opposite politics, has said to me, "now your Governor is paying you off." I do not allude to this to wound the feelings of any person whatever. I do not consider that the recommendation of the Governor was designed to effect the repeal of our charter.

All that we have to say is that we throw ourselves upon your mercy. As democrats we ask for equal justice and equal rights. Give us those rights and we are content, without them, we are deprived of that which was purchased by the blood of our fathers.

Eighty thousand head of cattle have

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1843.

THE RELEASE OF GEN. JOSEPH SMITH.

We are happy to have it in our power to state, that the distinguished individual above named is once more free, and that the illegal prosecution, and persecution which has been instituted against him by ex-Gov. Boggs, Gov. Reynolds of Missouri, and ex-Gov. Carlin of this State, has terminated successfully in behalf of the innocent and unoffending; and we have had one striking instance of the dignity and purity of our laws being held inviolate, despite of executive influence and intrigue, and the influence of misrepresentation and bigotry.

Mr. Smith had long been convinced of the illegality of the proceedings which were instituted against him; but he at the same time thought that when public excitement was so great, and popular prejudice so strong, that it would be hazardous for him to place himself in the hands of any of the minions of ex-Gov. Carlin—judging (very correctly) that if that gentleman had issued a writ illegally, and unconstitutionally for his apprehension, he might use an unwarrantable, executive influence in having him delivered up to the justice (i. e. injustice) of the State of Missouri.

But while on the one hand he feared, and had reason to fear, usurped executive power; he as firmly believed that if he could obtain a fair and impartial hearing before the judiciary that there was sufficient strength, and virtue in the laws, to deliver him from the unjust influence, and mal-administration of his enemies.

Feeling fully convinced of the justice of his cause, he repaired to Springfield, about two weeks ago, for the purpose of obtaining a hearing, (and as he believed) receiving an acquittal from the District Court of the United States, for the district of Illinois.

The Secretary of State had been instructed to send for the writ issued by Gov. Carlin, that Mr. Smith might have the privilege of the Habeas Corpus and of having the legality and constitutionality of the writ tested.

But as ex-Governor Carlin, or the sheriff of Adams county, or both, were either afraid of having their deeds investigated, or wished to set at defiance the law; the writ was not forthcoming; and after the great hue and cry that has been made about Joseph Smith's fleeing from justice, he was absolutely under the necessity of petitioning Governor Ford to issue before the court. For the purpose of answering the ends of justice, and that Mr. Smith might be legally and fairly dealt with, Governor Ford issued another writ, which was a copy of the one issued by Gov. Carlin. Mr. Smith then petitioned the United States district court for a writ of Habeas Corpus, which was granted and he appeared before that court on Saturday the 30th of December, 1842, and gave bail for his appearance at court on Monday. Mr. Lamborn, the Attorney General of the State of Illinois, appeared in behalf of the State, and Mr. Butterfield was counsel for Gen. Smith.

On Monday Mr. Lamborn requested of the court a little time, stating that the subject was new to him, that it was one of great importance, that he had not had an opportunity of investigating it, and he hoped that the court would indulge him with one or two days; the court granted him that privilege, and the trial was postponed until Wednesday, the 4th of January. Mr. Lamborn objected to the proceedings on the ground that the United States Court had no jurisdiction in this case, and that it belonged to the courts of this State to adjudicate in this matter: he moreover contended that they could not go behind the writ, to try the guilt, or innocence of the accused party; his objections however were overruled by the court.

Mr. Edwards and Butterfield shewed in a very lucid manner that Mr. Lamborn was in the dark concerning this matter—and Mr. Butterfield contended that in this case, and under the circumstances of the issuing of this writ, the United States district court not only had jurisdiction; but that it had exclusive jurisdiction. He also shewed very clearly that although they had no right to go behind the writ when judgment was rendered, that they had a perfect right where that was not the case; he quoted several authorities in defence of the position that the court had jurisdiction, and also shewed that the strongly supported by law, that he was sustained by the constitution of the United States, and by a law of Congress based upon the constitution, and by all former precedents. He then exposed in a very able manner the corruption of Governor Reynolds of Missouri, and of Governor Carlin of Illinois, in relation to this matter, proving from their own documents that the steps which they had taken were illegal, that Governor Reynolds had no foundation to issue a writ, or to demand Joseph Smith from Governor Carlin on any thing that there was in the affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs of Missouri, and that he was obliged to add certain clauses in his demand which were not found in the body of the affidavit, before his claims upon this State could have the semblance of law; and that Governor Carlin with these lame documents before him wished to make it a little more plain, and added another addition, by way of codicil to the charge. He clearly shewed the progress of crime among those governors.—Ex-Governor Boggs' affidavit stated that "he believed, and had good reason to believe that Joseph Smith was accessory before the fact, and that he was a resident of Illinois." Governor Reynolds stated that it had been represented to him that Joseph Smith was accessory before the fact, and had fled from the justice of Missouri; and to make up the thing complete, Governor Carlin stated that he was a fugitive from justice, consequently neither Governor Reynolds nor Governor Carlin had any foundation whereon to base the issuing of a demand, proclamation, or writ.

After showing very clearly, the ignorance and injustice of those executives—proving to a demonstration that Joseph Smith had not been in Missouri for three years; that he could not be a fugitive from justice, and that if he were guilty of being an accessory, the thing was not done in Missouri, and he could not be taken there to be tried; he concluded by saying, that all the difference there was between the Mormons and other professions was, that the different sects believed in the ancient prophecies only, and the Mormons believed in both ancient and modern prophecy. Another distinction was, that the ancient prophets prophesied in poetry, and the modern ones in prose.

Judge Pope then stated that the court would give its decision the next morning.

On Wednesday morning the Judge in his decision investigated the whole matter, and in a very able manner sustained the views of Mr. Butterfield, and adduced additional testimony and evidence, in favor of the acquittal of Mr. Smith; and after a very learned and able address he concluded by saying, that "the decision of the court is that the prisoner be discharged; and I wish it entered upon the records in such a way, that Mr. Smith be no more troubled about this matter."

We hope to be able to furnish our readers with a corrected copy of the whole proceedings of this interesting trial.

We had the honor of accompanying General Smith to Springfield, together with about fourteen gentlemen from this place, and we were very much pleased with our excursion; we met with a great deal of courtesy and respect on our way to Springfield, and when we arrived there, both from the citizens generally, and also from Honorable members of the Legislature, indeed our presence seemed to dispel those deep prejudices which many had imbibed in consequence of misrepresentation and falsehood; and in our intercourse with them they perceived that the Mormons were affable, courteous, and intelligent; and in looking at our heads and feet they discovered that we had neither horns nor hoofs.

By the politeness of the Hon. Mr. Hackleton, speaker of the House of Representatives, we were favored with the privilege of speaking in the Legislative Hall; Elder Hyde preached in the morning, and myself in the afternoon; a large concourse of people attended, composed of lawyers, judges, state officers, legislators, and citizens of Springfield, and many of them concluded that Mormonism was as reasonable, as scriptural; and that there was as much sound common sense, and a little more connected with it, than with any other system that they had heard, or investigated.

Upon the whole we had a very interesting visit, and in our short stay formed associations that will not soon be forgotten.

Much praise is due to Governor Ford, Judge Pope, Mr. Butterfield, Mr. Edwards, and many other gentlemen, for the bold, independent, and patriotic course that they have manifested a disposition to maintain inviolate the supremacy of the law; and that the Mormons shall have even handed justice administered to them in common with all other citizens of the state.

Our City Charters yet remains untouched, and we believe that there will be found, in the Legislature as much patriotism, republicanism, and sound common sense, as to preserve them inviolate.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

In our thirty-ninth number we gave an account of a company which is formed in London for the purpose of constructing a machine by which the air can be navigated, and we stated, that a patent was formally sealed in September last for an Aerial Machine. We also quoted remarks from a highly popular and influential journal, the London Atlas on the subject. In looking over our English journals we find a record of the patent alluded to, and for the information of our readers we will copy it. It is among the list of patents for the month of September and stands thus recorded. "S. Henson, of New City Chambers, Bishopgate street, engineer, for certain improvements in locomotive apparatus and in machinery for conveying letters, goods and passengers from place to place through the air, part of which improvements are applicable to locomotive and other machinery to be used on water or on land. September, twenty-ninth—six months."—[Bos. Eve. Bulletin.

Pretty fair. Wonder if the present generation will obtain a patent for a "Space Boat" to navigate "beyond the bounds of time and space"? It might be of great service in Miller's Millennium.

"Capt. Drew, who commanded the expedition that destroyed the steamboat Caroline, at Schlosser, has been appointed to the command of the English man of war Wasp, of sixteen guns."—[Bos. Bulletin.

☞ He'll get stung!

It will be seen that a fast is appointed to be held on Tuesday next, as a day of humiliation, thanksgiving and praise to Almighty God for the delivery of our beloved Prophet Joseph Smith, from the hands of his enemies, and for the goodness of God towards us as a people; we would recommend that part of the day (when not engaged in other services) be employed as suggested, in seeking out and relieving the poor, the widow, the fatherless, and the afflicted; then will our services be acceptable before the Lord. Isa. LVIII. says:

"6 Is it this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?"

7 Is it to deal thy bread to the hungry and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him; and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh?

8 The shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy rearward.

9 Thou shalt call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, and speaking vanity.

10 And if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noon day:

11 And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not.

12 And they that shall be of thee shall build the old waste places: thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in."

Since the above was written, President Marks has suggested the propriety of the brethren taking something for the relief of the poor, to the Bishops, that they may

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1843.

THE RELEASE OF GEN. JOSEPH SMITH.

We are happy to have it in our power to state, that the distinguished individual above named is once more free, and that the illegal prosecution, and persecution which has been instituted against him by ex-Gov. Boggs, Gov. Reynolds of Missouri, and ex-Gov. Carlin of this State, has terminated successfully in behalf of the innocent and unoffending; and we have had one striking instance of the dignity and purity of our laws being held inviolate, despite of executive influence and intrigue, and the influence of misrepresentation and bigotry.

Mr. Smith had long been convinced of the illegality of the proceedings which were instituted against him; but he at first thought that when public excitement was so great, and popular prejudice so strong, that it would be hazardous for him to place himself in the hands of any of the minions of ex-Gov. Carlin—judging (very correctly) that if that gentleman had issued a writ illegally, and unconstitutional for his apprehension, he might use an unwarrantable, executive influence in having him delivered up to the justice (i. e. injustice) of the State of Missouri.

But while on the one hand he feared, and had reason to fear, usurped executive power; he as firmly believed that if he could obtain a fair and impartial hearing before the judiciary that there was sufficient strength, and virtue in the laws, to deliver him from the unjust influence, and mal-administration of his enemies.

Feeling fully convinced of the justice of his cause, he repaired to Springfield, about two weeks ago, for the purpose of obtaining a hearing, (and as he believed) receiving an acquittal from the District Court of the United States, for the district of Illinois.

The Secretary of State had been instructed to send for the writ issued by Gov. Carlin, that Mr. Smith might have the privilege of the Habeas Corpus and of having the legality and constitutionality of the writ tested.

But as ex-Governor Carlin, of Adams county, of both, were either unwilling their deeds investigated, or wished to set at defiance the law; the writ was not forthcoming; and after the great hue and cry that has been made about Joseph Smith's fleeing from justice, he was absolutely under the necessity of petitioning Governor Ford to issue another writ before he could obtain a hearing before the court. For the purpose of answering the ends of justice, and that Mr. Smith might be legally and fairly tried, he issued another writ, which was a copy of the one issued by Gov. Carlin. Mr. Smith then petitioned the United States district court for a writ of Habeas Corpus, which was granted and he appeared before that court on Saturday the 30th of December, 1842, and gave bail for his appearance at court on Monday. Mr. Lamborn, the Attorney General of the State of Illinois, appeared in behalf of the State, and Mr. Butterfield was counsel for Gen. Smith.

On Monday Mr. Lamborn requested of the court a little time, stating that the subject was new to him, that it was one of great importance, that he had not had an opportunity of investigating it, and he hoped that the court would indulge him with one or two days; the court granted him that privilege, and the trial was postponed until Wednesday, the 4th of January. Mr. Lamborn objected to the proceedings on the ground that the United States Court had no jurisdiction in this case, and that it belonged to the courts of this State to adjudicate in this matter: he moreover contended that they could not go behind the writ, to try the guilt, or innocence of the accused party; his objections however were overruled by the court.

Mr. Edwards and Butterfield shewed in a very lucid manner that Mr. Lamborn was in the dark concerning this matter—and Mr. Butterfield contended that in this case, and under the circumstances of the issuing of this writ, the United States district court not only had jurisdiction; but that it had exclusive jurisdiction. He also shewed very clearly that although they had no right to go behind the writ when judgment was rendered, that they had a perfect right where that was not the case; he quoted several authorities in defence of the position that he took, and very clearly shewed that the course which he had taken in this affair, was strongly supported by law, that he was sustained by the constitution of the United States, and by a law of Congress based upon the constitution, and by all former precedents. He then exposed in a very able manner the corruption of Governor Reynolds of Missouri, and of Governor Carlin of Illinois, in relation to this matter, proving from their own documents that the steps which they had taken were illegal, that Governor Reynolds had no foundation to issue a writ, or to demand Joseph Smith from Governor Carlin on any thing that there was in the affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs of Missouri, and that he was obliged to add certain clauses in his demand which were not found in the body of the affidavit, before his claims upon this State could have the semblance of law, and that Governor Carlin with these lame documents before him wished to make it a little more plain, and added another addition, by way of codicil to the charge. He clearly shewed the progress of crime among those governors.—Ex-Governor Boggs' affidavit stated that "he believed, and had good reason to believe that Joseph Smith was accessory before the fact, and that he was a resident of Illinois." Governor Reynolds stated that it had been represented to him that Joseph Smith was accessory before the fact, and had fled from the justice of Missouri; and to make up the thing complete, Governor Carlin stated that he was a fugitive from justice, consequently neither Governor Reynolds nor Governor Carlin had any foundation whereon to base the issuing of a demand, proclamation, or writ.

After showing very clearly, the ignorance and injustice of those executives—proving to a demonstration that Joseph Smith had not been in Missouri for three years; that he could not be a fugitive from justice, and that if he were guilty of being an accessory, the thing was not done in Missouri, and he could not be taken there to be tried; he concluded by saying, that all the difference there was between the Mormons and other professions was, that the different sects believed in the ancient prophets only, and the Mormons believed in both ancient and modern prophecy. Another distinction was, that the ancient prophets prophesied in poetry, and the modern ones in prose.

Judge Pope then stated that the court would give its decision the next morning.

On Wednesday morning the Judge in his decision investigated the whole matter, and in a very able manner sustained the views of Mr. Butterfield, and adduced additional testimony and evidence, in favor of the acquittal of Mr. Smith; and after a very learned and able address he concluded by saying, that "the decision of the court is that the prisoner be discharged; and I wish it entered upon the records in such a way, that Mr. Smith be no more troubled about this matter."

We hope to be able to furnish our readers with a corrected copy of the whole proceedings of this interesting trial.

We had the honor of accompanying General Smith to Springfield, together with about fourteen gentlemen from this place, and we were very much pleased with our excursion; we met with a great deal of courtesy and respect on our way to Springfield, and when we arrived there; both from the citizens generally, and also from Honorable members of the Legislature, indeed our presence seemed to dispel those deep prejudices which many had allowed in consequence of misrepresentation and falsehood; and in our intercourse with them they perceived that the Mormons were affable, courteous, and intelligent; and in looking at our heads and feet they discovered that we had neither horns nor hoofs.

By the politeness of the Hon. Mr. Hackleton, speaker of the House of Representatives, we were favored with the privilege of speaking in the Legislative Hall; Elder Hyde preached in the morning, and myself in the afternoon; a large concourse of people attended, composed of lawyers, judges, state officers, legislators, and citizens of Springfield, and many of them concluded that Mormonism was as reasonable, as scriptural; and that there was as much sound common sense, and a little more connected with it, than with any other system that they had heard, or investigated.

Upon the whole we had a very interesting visit, and in our short stay formed associations that will not soon be forgotten.

Much praise is due to Governor Ford, Judge Pope, Mr. Butterfield, Mr. Edwards, and many other gentlemen, for the bold, independent, and patriotic course that they have pursued in relation to this matter; they have manifested a disposition to maintain inviolate the supremacy of the law; and that the Mormons shall have even handed justice administered to them in common with all other citizens of the state.

Our City Charters yet remains untouched, and we believe that there will be found, in the Legislature as much patriotism, republicanism, and sound common sense, as to preserve them inviolate.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

In our thirty-ninth number we gave an account of a company which is formed in London for the purpose of constructing a machine by which the air can be navigated, and we stated, that a patent was formally sealed in September last for an Aerial Machine. We also quoted remarks from a highly popular and influential journal, the London Atlas on the subject. In looking over our English journals we find a record of the patent alluded to, and for the information of our readers we will copy it. It is among the list of patents for the month of September and stands thus recorded. "S. Henson, of New City Chambers, Bishopgate street, engineer, for certain improvements in locomotive apparatus and in machinery for conveying letters, goods and passengers from place to place through the air, part of which improvements are applicable to locomotive and other machinery to be used on water or on land. September, twenty-ninth—six months."—[Bos. Eve. Bulletin.]

Pretty fair. Wonder if the present generation will obtain a patent for a 'Space Boat' to navigate 'beyond the bounds of time and space?' It might be of great service in Miller's Millennium.

'Capt. Drew, who commanded the expedition that destroyed the steamer Caroline, at Schlosher, has been appointed to the command of the English man of war Wasp, of sixteen guns.—[Bos. Bulletin.]

He's get stung!

It will soon be seen that a fast is appointed to be held Tuesday next, as a day of humiliation, thanksgiving and praise to Almighty God for the delivery of our beloved Prophet Joseph Smith, from the hands of his enemies; and for the goodness of God towards us as a people; we would recommend that part of the day (when not engaged in other services) be employed as suggested, in seeking out and relieving the poor, the widow, the fatherless, and the afflicted; then will our services be acceptable before the Lord. ISA. LVIII. says:

"6 Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?"

7 Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him; and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh?

8 Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy rearward.

9 Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, and speaking vanity.

10 And if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noon day:

11 And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not.

12 And they that shall be of thee shall build the old waste places: thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in."

Since the above was written, President Marks has suggested the propriety of the brethren taking something for the relief of the poor, to the Bishops, that they may supply the wants of the necessitous. As

Mr. Speaker, to which I would call your attention; and that is to the observations which have been made in regard to taking away from the citizens of Nauvoo the State arms. Well, suppose that should be done. Would that effect any thing? They are now organized and have under existing laws drawn a certain portion of the public arms. In that, wherein are they acting differently from any other citizens? They have not even that equal portion of arms that they are entitled to by law. Where would be the object in taking away the public arms from the militia of this State. It surely cannot be believed that there is any danger of the Mormons breaking out and killing the people. There is no more danger of that, than there is that five, six or a dozen old women, and a few boys should do the same thing. Is this State to be carried by a hue and cry of that kind raised by politicians? I own that it is not the design of that people even so much as to molest a hair on the head of a single individual; but that, on the contrary, it is their intention in all things to conform to the constitution and laws of the land. If prejudices have been accumulating upon the public mind, calculated to produce the expression that they are villains, such prejudices are entirely unfounded. It is a great mistake to suppose the contrary. Those people consider themselves bound by the laws and endeavor to obey them. Have they not, I would ask, contributed their portion towards replenishing your county and State revenues? Have they ever refused to pay their taxes? Have they not always been both ready and willing to obey both the civil and military laws of this State? Where, then is the necessity that this honorable body should enact a law taking away from them their chartered privileges?

I will not, Mr. Speaker, detain you or this honorable body much longer. I am heartily sorry that a blow has been aimed at the chartered privileges of Nauvoo. I speak in defence of my constituents upon this occasion; feeling myself bound to do so, not by any former pledges but by principle. I believe in defending the cause of the defenceless. As has already been remarked, all that we claim is equal rights and equal privileges. I would remark for the satisfaction of my own feelings in this matter, that I was some little interested in the event of the last election, I then was engaged in the cause of democracy, enlisted in the campaign or canvassing my county, and in consequence of the many prejudices that were excited against the Mormons as they are called, I was placed under circumstances of most unparalleled embarrassment. But still, I thought it a favorable opportunity to unite the democracy of the county.

I know that considerable political capital has been made by the question of Mormonism and anti-Mormonism. Perhaps one thing that now contributes to that result is that there are hints in the Governor's message in regard to a repeal of the Nauvoo charter. It is a circumstance within my own knowledge, that previous to the last election in Hancock county that some few individuals there made strong efforts to get our votes for the Governor's election. By exertions made there more than a thousand votes were cast for the Governor by Mormon influence. And since I have been here, a gentleman, of the opposite politics, has said to me, "now your Governor is paying you off." I do not allude to this to wound the feelings of any person whatever. I do not consider that the recommendation of the Governor was designed to effect the repeal of our charter.

All that we have to say is that we throw ourselves upon your mercy. As democrats we ask for equal justice and equal rights. Give us those rights and we are content, without them, we are deprived of that which was purchased by the blood of our fathers.

Eighty thousand head of cattle have died in Egypt, of an epidemic that has raged among them during the past year.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1843.

THE RELEASE OF GEN. JOSEPH SMITH.

We are happy to have it in our power to state, that the distinguished individual above named is once more free, and that the illegal prosecution, and persecution which has been instituted against him by ex-Gov. Boggs, Gov. Reynolds of Missouri, and ex-Gov. Carlin of this State, has terminated successfully in behalf of the innocent and unoffending; and we have had one striking instance of the dignity and purity of our laws being held inviolate, despite of executive influence and intrigue, and the influence of misrepresentation and bigotry.

Mr. Smith had long been convinced of the illegality of the proceedings which were instituted against him; but he at the same time thought that when public excitement was so great, and popular prejudice so strong, that it would be hazardous for him to place himself in the hands of any of the minions of ex-Gov. Carlin—judging (very correctly) that if that gentleman had issued a writ illegally, and unconstitutionally for his apprehension, he might use an unwarrantable, executive influence in having him delivered up to the justice (i. e. injustice) of the State of Missouri.

But while on the one hand he feared, and had reason to fear, usurped executive power; he as firmly believed that if he could obtain a fair and impartial hearing before the judiciary that there was sufficient strength, and virtue in the laws, to deliver him from the unjust influence, and mal-administration of his enemies.

Feeling fully convinced of the justice of his cause, he repaired to Springfield, about two weeks ago, for the purpose of obtaining a hearing, (and as he believed) receiving an acquittal from the District Court of the United States, for the district of Illinois.

The Secretary of State had been instructed to send for the writ issued by Gov. Carlin, that Mr. Smith might have the privilege of the Habeas Corpus, and of having the legality and constitutionality of the writ tested.

But as ex-Governor Carlin, or the sheriff of Adams county, or both, were either afraid of having their deeds investigated, or wished to set at defiance the law; the writ was not forthcoming; and after the great hue and cry that has been made about Joseph Smith's fleeing from justice, he was absolutely under the necessity of petitioning Governor Ford to issue another writ before he could obtain a hearing before the court. For the purpose of answering the ends of justice, and that Mr. Smith might be legally and fairly dealt with, Governor Ford issued another writ, which was a copy of the one issued by Gov. Carlin. Mr. Smith then petitioned the United States district court for a writ of Habeas Corpus, which was granted and he appeared before that court on Saturday the 30th of December, 1842, and gave bail for his appearance at court on Monday. Mr. Lamborn, the Attorney General of the State of Illinois, appeared in behalf of the State, and Mr. Butterfield was counsel for Gen. Smith.

On Monday Mr. Lamborn requested of the court a little time, stating that the subject was new to him, that it was one of great importance, that he had not had an opportunity of investigating it, and he hoped that the court would indulge him with one or two days; the court granted him that privilege, and the trial was postponed until Wednesday, the 4th of January. Mr. Lamborn objected to the proceedings on the ground that the United States Court had no jurisdiction in this case, and that it belonged to the courts of this State to adjudicate in this matter: he moreover contended that they could not go behind the writ, to try the guilt, or innocence of the accused party; his objections however were overruled by the court.

Mr. Edwards and Butterfield shewed in a very lucid manner that Mr. Lamborn was in the dark concerning this matter—and Mr. Butterfield contended that in this case, and under the circumstances of the issuing of this writ, the United States district court not only had jurisdiction; but that it had exclusive jurisdiction. He also shewed very clearly that although they had no right to go behind the writ when judgment was rendered, that they had a perfect right where that was not the case; he quoted several authorities in defence of the position strongly supported by law, that he was sustained by the constitution of the United States, and by a law of Congress based upon the constitution, and by all former precedents. He then exposed in a very able manner the corruption of Governor Reynolds of Missouri, and of Governor Carlin of Illinois, in relation to this matter, proving from their own documents that the steps which they had taken were illegal, that Governor Reynolds had no foundation to issue a writ, or to demand Joseph Smith from Governor Carlin on any thing that there was in the affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs of Missouri, and that he was obliged to add certain clauses in his demand which were not found in the body of the affidavit, before his claims upon this State could have the semblance of law, and that Governor Carlin with these same documents before him wished to make it a little more plain, and added another addition, by way of codicil to the charge. He clearly shewed the progress of crime among those governors.—Ex-Governor Boggs' affidavit stated that "he believed, and had good reason to believe that Joseph Smith was accessory before the fact, and that he was a resident of Illinois." Governor Reynolds stated that it had been represented to him that Joseph Smith was accessory before the fact, and had fled from the justice of Missouri; and to make up the thing complete, Governor Carlin stated that he was a fugitive from justice, consequently neither Governor Reynolds nor Governor Carlin had any foundation whereon to base the issuing of a demand, proclamation, or writ.

After showing very clearly, the ignorance and injustice of those executives—proving to a demonstration that Joseph Smith had not been in Missouri for three years; that he could not be a fugitive from justice, and that if he were guilty of being an accessory, the thing was not done in Missouri, and he could not be taken there to be tried; he concluded by saying, that all the difference there was between the Mormons and other professions was, that the different sects believed in the ancient prophets only, and the Mormons believed in both ancient and modern prophecy. Another distinction was, that the ancient prophets prophesied in poetry, and the modern ones in prose.

Judge Pope then stated that the court would give its decision the next morning.

On Wednesday morning the Judge in his decision investigated the whole matter, and in a very able manner sustained the views of Mr. Butterfield, and adduced additional testimony and evidence, in favor of the acquittal of Mr. Smith; and after a very careful and able address he concluded by saying, that "the decision of the court is that the prisoner be discharged; and I wish it entered upon the records in such a way, that Mr. Smith be no more troubled about this matter."

We hope to be able to furnish our readers with a corrected copy of the whole proceedings of this interesting trial.

We had the honor of accompanying General Smith to Springfield, together with about fourteen gentlemen from this place, and we were very much pleased with our excursion; we met with a great deal of courtesy and respect on our way to Springfield, and when we arrived there; both from the citizens generally, and also from Honorable members of the Legislature, indeed our presence seemed to dispel those deep prejudices which many had imbibed in consequence of misrepresentation and falsehood; and in our intercourse with them they perceived that the Mormons were affable, courteous, and intelligent; and in looking at our heads and feet they discovered that we had neither horns nor hoofs.

By the politeness of the Hon. Mr. Hackleton, speaker of the House of Representatives, we were favored with the privilege of speaking in the Legislative Hall; Elder Hyde preached in the morning, and myself in the afternoon; a large concourse of people attended, composed of lawyers, judges, state officers, legislators, and citizens of Springfield, and many of them concluded that Mormonism was as reasonable, as scriptural; and that there was as much sound common sense, and a little more connected with it, than with any other system that they had heard, or investigated.

Upon the whole we had a very interesting visit, and in our short stay formed associations that will not soon be forgotten.

Much praise is due to Governor Ford, Judge Pope, Mr. Butterfield, Mr. Edwards, and many other gentlemen, for the bold, independent, and patriotic course that they have manifested a disposition to maintain inviolate the supremacy of the law; and that the Mormons shall have even handed justice administered to them in common with all other citizens of the state.

Our City Charters yet remains untouched, and we believe that there will be found, in the Legislature as much patriotism, republicanism, and sound common sense, as to preserve them inviolate.

AERIAL NAVIGATION.

In our thirty-ninth number we gave an account of a company which is formed in London for the purpose of constructing a machine by which the air can be navigated, and we stated, that a patent was formally sealed in September last for an Aerial Machine. We also quoted remarks from a highly popular and influential journal, the London Atlas on the subject. In looking over our English journals we find a record of the patent alluded to, and for the information of our reader we will copy it. It is among the list of patents for the month of September and stands thus recorded. 'S. Henson, of New City Chambers, Bishopsgate street, engineer, for certain improvements in locomotive apparatus and in machinery for conveying letters, goods and passengers from place to place through the air, part of which improvements are applicable to locomotive and other machinery to be used on water or on land. September, twenty-ninth—six months.'—[Eve. Bulletin.

Pretty fair. Wonder if the present generation will obtain a patent for a 'Space Boat' to navigate 'beyond the bounds of time and space?' It might be of great service in Miller's Millennium.

'Capt. Drew, who commanded the expedition that destroyed the steamboat Caroline, at Schlosher, has been appointed to the command of the English man of war Wasp, of sixteen guns.'—[Eve. Bulletin.

He'll get stung!

It will be seen that a fast is appointed to be held on Tuesday next, as a day of humiliation, thanksgiving and praise to Almighty God for the delivery of our beloved Prophet Joseph Smith, from the hands of his enemies; and for the goodness of God towards us as a people; we would recommend that part of the day (when not engaged in other services) be employed, as suggested, in seeking out and relieving the poor, the widow, the fatherless, and the afflicted; then will our services be acceptable before the Lord. Isa. LVIII. says:

"6 Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?"

7 Is not to deal thy bread to the hungry and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him; and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh

8 The shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily: and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy rearward.

9 Thou shalt call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Heral am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, and speaking vanity.

10 An if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noon day:

11 An the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones: and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not.

12 An they that shall be of thee shall build the old waste places: thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in."

Since he above was written, President Marks has suggested the propriety of the brethren taking something for the relief of the poor, to the Bishops; that they may

Mr. Speaker, to which I would call your attention, and that is to the observations which have been made in regard to taking away from the citizens of Nauvoo the State arms. Well, suppose that should be done. Would that effect any thing? They are now organized and have under existing laws drawn a certain portion of the public arms. In that, wherein are they doing differently from any other citizens? They have not even that equal portion of arms that they are entitled to by law. Where would be the object in taking away the public arms from the militia of this State. It surely cannot be believed that there is any danger of the Mormons breaking out and killing the people. There is no more danger of that, than there is that five, six or a dozen old women, and a few boys should do the same thing. Is this State to be carried by a hue and cry of that kind raised by politicians? I own that it is not the design of that people even so much as to molest a hair on the head of a single individual; but that, on the contrary, it is their intention in all things to conform to the constitution and laws of the land. If prejudices have been accumulating upon the public mind, calculated to produce the expression that they are villains, such prejudices are entirely unfounded. It is a great mistake to suppose the contrary. Those people consider themselves bound by the laws and endeavor to obey them. Have they not, I would ask, contributed their portion towards replenishing your county and State revenues? Have they ever refused to pay their taxes? Have they not always been both ready and willing to obey both the civil and military laws of this State? Where, then is the necessity that this honorable body should enact a law taking away from them their chartered privileges?

I will not Mr. Speaker, detain you or this honorable body much longer. I am heartily sorry that a blow has been aimed at the chartered privileges of Nauvoo. I speak in defence of my constituents upon this occasion, feeling myself bound to do so, not by any former pledges but by principle. I believe in defending the cause of the defenceless. As has already been remarked, all that we claim is equal rights and equal privileges. I would remark for the satisfaction of my own feelings in this matter, that I was some little interested in the event of the last election, I then was engaged in the cause of democracy, enlisted in the campaign of canvassing my county, and in consequence of the many prejudices that were excited against the Mormons as they are called, I was placed under circumstances of most unparalleled embarrassment. But still, I thought it a favorable opportunity to unite the democracy of the county.

I know that considerable political capital has been made by the question of Mormonism and anti-Mormonism. Perhaps one thing that now contributes to that result is that there are hints in the Governor's message in regard to a repeal of the Nauvoo charter. It is a circumstance within my own knowledge, that previous to the last election in Hancock county that some few individuals there made strong efforts to get our votes for the Governor's election. By exertions made there more than a thousand votes were cast for the Governor by Mormon influence. And since I have been here, a gentleman, of the opposite politics, has said to me, "now your Governor is paying you off." I do not allude to this to wound the feelings of any person whatever. I do not consider that the recommendation of the Governor was designed to effect the repeal of our charter.

All that we have to say is that we throw ourselves upon your mercy. As democrats we ask for equal justice and equal rights. Give us those rights and we are content, without them, we are deprived of that which was purchased by the blood of our fathers.

Eighty thousand head of cattle have

EIGHTEEN FORTY THREE.

BY L. C. LITTLEFIELD.

Hail another year! Farewell '42; thy months are numbered—they have flown away upon the wings of Time, never to return. Thy deeds—good or ill—have departed with thee; but are registered upon the annals of Eternity. By them mortals are to be judged! Then who does not hope that his conduct has been humane, benevolent and manly? Look back, gentle reader, upon past acts, and see if they are such as will stand the scrutiny of the Great Eternal One! Have you wrested one comfort from your fellow mortal? it weighs upon your conscience! Has the destitute been administered to?—the ragged been supplied with raiment?—the hungry with bread?—has the beggar obtained his humble pittance?—the widow and orphan been consoled in their lonely, hopeless, destitute situation, and the innocent and virtuous protected from the poisonous breath of calumny and detraction?—they are written with the finger of Peace upon the tablet of thy memory, and joy and an unbroken tranquility of soul steals over you, like the silent hovering of celestial Deities, as thy merited reward. Is the page of her history blackened by deeds of cruelty and crime—have men—blind, infatuated men—like ignorant barbarians, rushed blindly into conflicts of blood—has ignorance and superstition been suffered to establish their dominion over the empire of the human mind—has the peace of communities been disturbed, at intervals, with the jostlings of bad men and bad measures?—have the institutions of benevolence become warped and distorted from their original sphere, by the toleration of vice and degradation in the moral world—has avarice and chicanery turned aside the feet of men from the path of virtue and truth, and taken from them the honor and dignity infallibly awarded to a life of uprightness and fair dealing—has aristocracy raised its hydra-head of self-conceited superiority over the more humble, yet honest, classes of citizens—has the spirit of patriotism been dimmed in its lustre by the damning ear of political ambition,—if these evils have existed in '42, let '43 place upon them the seal of disapprobation; let her open her books anew, that its pages may not be sullied by bearing record of such baneful

O, mysterious and incomprehensible future!—who can draw aside the purple folds of thy aerial curtain, and comprehend the future condition of man—the ultimate destiny of the illimitable Universe! Who can look forward to the unborn days and months of '43, and foretell the various revolutions, events and changes in the affairs of men, as they will therein transpire! This is an indefinite enigma which Time—ceaseless, constant, and untiring—in its unnumbered rounds of LIGHT and DARKNESS, alone can solve. Spotless and unsurveyed blank of futurity!—thou can alone be compared to the yet unblemished page in the great book of human Destiny, which is to help make up the history of man!

Nauvoo, January 1, 1843.

HORRIBLE MUTINY!!

Horrible Attempt at Mutiny on board the U. States Brig Somers—Midshipman Spencer, Hung at the yard arm.

The U. S. brig Somers, Commander Alexander Siddell Mackenzie, our readers will remember arrived off this port on Wednesday night, and was reported in the express on Thursday morning. Little did we think that to this report we should have to add one of the most horrible attempts at mutiny ever known in the Navy.

The Somers sailed from Monrovia (Liberia) on the night of the 11th of November, and from St. Thomas on the night of the 5th of December. It seems that a horrible scheme was concocted before her sailing, to murder the commander and chief officers, and turn the vessel into a Pirate ship. At the head of this detestable plot was Midshipman Spencer, one of the sons of the present Secretary of War. He had enlisted some fifteen or twenty of the apprentices, and some of such inhuman conspiracies, the hearts of some one or more of the conspirators failed, before the night of the intended massacre arrived—or at all events it was discovered.

The story we learn is that young Spencer offered his paper or roll of the conspirators to the master-at-arms to sign, who signed it to quiet their suspicion, and then immediately revealed the fact to the commander. The moment the conspirators found out they were discovered, they met in a body and went to the commander, demanding possession of the ship, and young Spencer presented a pistol to his heart. All this was at night, and the chief part of the crew were below, when the officers on deck not knowing the extent of the conspiracy, immediately closed the hatchways and kept all confined who were below. The officers, after something of a struggle, as we understand, overpowered the conspirators, and regaining a complete possession of the ship, instantly caused the ringleaders to be tried by court martial, and young Spencer, within ten minutes of the finding of the court, was hung at yard arm, along with two of the men. The others were put in irons, and some fourteen or fifteen were sent on board the North Carolina the moment the ship came from sea. A messenger, we also learn, was landed below, and despatches announcing these facts were sent to Washington.—[N. Y. Express.

FROM CAMPEACHY.—Highly Important
—Battle between the Mexicans and Yucatanans—Loss of two hundred Mexicans—Capture of two American vessels by the Mexicans.—By an arrival on the 2d inst., at New Orleans, of the schooner Freeland, Capt. Smith, from Campeachy, the Crescent City has news up to the 22d ult.

A general engagement had taken place outside the walls of the city, which lasted for several hours. The loss in killed and wounded, on the part of the Mexicans, amounted to over 200. The loss of the Yucatanans was estimated at 150. Both parties, thinking they had punished each other sufficiently for the time being, retired from the field, in order to recruit for another engagement.

The Mexican army was decreasing rapidly. Their loss from death and desertions amounted to over 500, before their landing at Champotan.

The schooner Anna Maria, Capt. Peters, from New Orleans for Campeachy, laden with flour, owned in New Orleans and sailing under the American flag, was captured, as she was entering the port, by the Mexican fleet. The steamer Champion, Capt. Hutton, hence for Tampasco, was also captured by the Mexicans.

The army of Yucatan was over 6000 strong, and was receiving daily reinforcements from the interior. The enemy asked a capitulation, which was pre-emptorily denied. The natives hoisted a red flag, and expressed a determination to repel the invading force, or perish in the attempt.

MORMONISM.

The celebrated Gen. Bennett has been lecturing it our city against the Mormons. He gave his first lecture on Friday eve; and, on Sunday, he commenced a public discussion with the Rev. Mr. Anderson, Mormon preacher in our city. We were present, on Sunday evening; and there was a very large assemblage of gentlemen and ladies. There was great interest excited and the Mormon preacher surprised every one by his tact and talent. Gen'l Bennett is a man of distinguished talents and a good scholar; and, though Mr. Anderson has not the advantage of an education, he sustained his part admirably well and proved himself a great proficient in scriptural knowledge. On Monday morning at 9 o'clock, the discussion was to have been continued; and, on Monday evening, the General was to have lectured on "the female fixings." at Nauvoo, Mormon Seraglio, Secret wife system, &c. &c. all of which the Mormons in our city pronounce false as hell and demand proof. If Mr. Anderson would speak alternately with the General throughout our State, we think the Mormons would lose nothing by all he could

CHEAP BEDS IN SPAIN.—In Spain and Portugal beds are made of the husks of corn which are very durable, convenient and healthy. These beds are made in the following manner. The husks are gathered as soon as they are ripe, and in a clear dry day. The outer husks are rejected, and the softer inner ones are collected and dried in the shade, and when dry, the hard ends that are attached to the cob are cut off. They are then drawn through a hatel or comb, so as to cut them into narrow strips. These enclosed in a sack, or formed into a mattress like prepared hair, will be found almost equal to the best moss or hair mattresses; and are so durable, that with any ordinary care they will last from five to ten years. These beds could be easily made in this country, and would be found far more pleasant, comfortable and healthy, than beds made with moss, hair or feathers. We have seen husk beds in this country, but they were so uncomfortable that we should suppose the makers had stuffed into them not only the hardest outer husks, but cobs and stalks likewise: of course they were unfit for use; but if they had been prepared according to the above directions, they would have been found pleasant and comfortable.—Cincinnati Sun.

New Orleans, Dec. 20.

The Tropic says, that for years, the Levee has not been so crowded with produce. The steamboats from the West arrive so fast that they can scarcely get berths, and it is almost impossible to walk along the wharf. The Inspectors are kept busy from sunrise till sunset, and for weeks to come, they will know very little rest. Merchants, clerks, and draymen are in high glee, and New Orleans has once again assumed the prospect of better days.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 13TH INST.

Age 10 years; 8 months; in-fantary fever.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

The following deaths were inserted in our last week's number; but, owing to a typographical error, at the request of the parties, we insert them again.

Sisson C. Houston, aged 11 years 8 months and 11 days.

—In this city, on the 16 ult., Louisa Houston, aged 13 years and 28 days; both children of Isaac and Dacia Houston.

TO RENT FOR ONE YEAR OR MORE.

A SMALL tan yard and dwelling house with both tanner's tools and currying tools, and a good patent bark mill and good pumps, all in good order. There is 13 vats, 10 of which is in doors. The house has 4 rooms in it and a good bark shed. The lot contains 1 acre and is in the best part of the town. There is a plenty of water; for further information call on Wm. Field, on the premises. I will let a few cords of bark go.

Nauvoo, Jan. 14, 1843. no37-tf.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo January 13 1843.

TO BRICKMAKERS AND LABORERS.

THE undersigned wishes to contract for the making of one million of bricks.

Also for the making of 1200 rods of ditch and turf fence.

HIRAM KIMBALL

January 13 1843.

they are better acquainted with the wants of individuals than other persons: that they stand in their mites on or before Tuesday morning, that their wants may be supplied and all hearts rejoice in the evening—let each Ward carry something to their several Bishops for this purpose.

Meetings will be held at the following places at 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning:—Joseph Smith's, William Mitchell's, Brother Geen's, Orson Spencer's, Winslow Farr's, James Sloan's, David Wood's, Sister Snider's, Chandler Roger's, and Brother Corkin's.

For the Wasp.

PROCLAMATION TO THE SAINTS IN NAUVOO.

Feeling a deep sense of gratitude to our Heavenly Father, for the great blessings which he has conferred on us, in the deliverance of our beloved President Joseph Smith, from the oppression with which he has so long been bound, the Travelling High Council invite the brethren in Nauvoo, to unite with them in dedicating Tuesday, the 17th day of January inst., as a day of humiliation fasting, praise, prayer and thanksgiving, before the great Eloheim, that he will continue the outpouring of his holy spirit upon this people—that they may ever walk humbly before him—seek out and follow the councils given through his servant, and ever be united, heart and hand, in building up this stake of Zion and the Temple, where God will reveal himself to his people; that no strife or confusion may ever be found in our midst, but peace and righteousness may be our companions,—and as he has hitherto sustained his Prophet in all the difficulties he has had to encounter, so he will continue to do, until he has finished the great work committed to his charge, and that all those who have been called to his assistance in the holy ministry may be diligent and faithful in all things, that his hands may be strengthened, like unto Moses—that our enemies, if such we have, may repent, and turning away from their enmity, get forgiveness and salvation—and that they may have no dominion over the servants of God or his saints; but that Zion may flourish upon the mountains and be exalted on the hills, and that all nations shall flow unto it and be saved, we will humble ourselves with fasting and supplication, and sing praises

and thanksgiving, for the deliverance he has wrought out for his servant Joseph, through the legally constituted authorities of our Government.

The Bishops of the several Wards are requested to see that meetings are appointed sufficient for the accommodation of the brethren and make a report to us immediately of the same,—and it may be expected that some one of the brethren who visited Springfield, will be present at the different meetings, and give a history of their proceedings.

In our fastings, humiliations, and thanksgivings, let us not forget the poor and destitute, to minister to their necessities, and respectfully would we suggest to the consideration of the brethren the situation of our President, who has long had all his business deranged, and has been recently obliged to expend large sums of money in procuring his release from unjust persecution, leaving him destitute of necessities for his family, and of means for prosecuting the History of the Church and the translations which he is anxious should be in the hands of the brethren as speedily as possible. We therefore recommend that collections be taken at the different meetings, for his benefit, and such as have not cash will recollect that provisions will be an excellent substitute whenever it is convenient to bring them in; and we hope our brethren who are farmers in LaHarpe, Ramus, Zarahemly &c. and the region around, will have the opportunity of reading these few hints. A word to the wise is sufficient. The Lord loveth a cheerful and bountiful giver, and will restore an hundred fold—for the laborer is worthy of his hire.

BRIGHAM YOUNG, President.
W. RICHARDS, Clerk.
Nauvoo, January 11, 1843.

violate Mor-minis-citizens

ed, and he Leanism,
them

ve an met in ructing
e nation was for at-ed reinfluenthe sub-for al-of our long the tember enson,
street,
nts in hinery passen-
the air, pplicanery to septem-[Boe.

present for a nd the ight be um.

the exambat ppoint-man of
s. Bul-

ointed
y of to ur bein the adness would.
en not proved ieving
s, and
es. be-
LVIII.

hosen?
o undo-press-every

to the or that in thou-
r him;
n thine

orth as spring business of the

he Lord
he shall ay from putting vanity.
soul toed soul;
rity, and hee con-drought, ou shalt d, like a fail not.

hee shall ou shalt y gener-
ed. The restorer

President
ty of the the relief they may

they are better acquainted with the wants of individuals than other persons: that they stand in their midst on or before Tuesday morning, that their wants may be supplied and all hearts rejoice in the evening—let each Ward carry something to their several Bishops for this purpose.

Meetings will be held at the following places at 11 o'clock on Tuesday morning:—Joseph Smith's, William Mitchell's, Brother Geen's, Orson Spencer's, Winslow Farr's, James Sloan's, David Wood's, Sister Snider's, Chandler Roger's, and Brother Corkin's.

For the Wasp.

PROCLAMATION TO THE SAINTS IN NAUVOO.

Feeling a deep sense of gratitude to our Heavenly Father, for the great blessings which he has conferred on us, in the deliverance of our beloved President Joseph Smith, from the oppression with which he has so long been bound, the Travelling High Council invite the brethren in Nauvoo, to unite with them in dedicating Tuesday, the 17th day of January inst., as a day of humiliation fasting, praise, prayer and thanksgiving, before the great Eloheim, that he will continue the outpouring of his holy spirit on this people—that they may ever wait humbly before him—seek out and follow the councils given through his servant, and ever be united, heart and hand, in building up this stake of Zion and the Temple, where God will reveal himself to his people; that no strife or confusion may ever be found in our midst, but peace and righteousness may be our companions,—and as he has hitherto sustained his Prophet in all the difficulties he has had to encounter, so he will continue to do, until he has finished the great work committed to his charge, and that all those who have been called to his assistance in the holy ministry may be diligent and faithful in all things, that his hands may be strong on high, like unto Moses—that our enemies, if such we have, may repent, and turning away from their enmity, get forgiveness and salvation—and that they may have no dominion over the servants of God or his saints; but that Zion may flourish upon the mountains and be exalted on the hills, and that all nations shall flow unto it and be saved, we will humble ourselves with fasting and supplication, and pray, and thanksgiving, for the deliverance he has wrought out for his servant Joseph, through the legally constituted authorities of our Government.

The Bishops of the several Wards are requested to see that meetings are appointed sufficient for the accommodation of the brethren and make a report to us immediately of the same,*—and it may be expected that some one of the brethren who visited Springfield, will be present at the different meetings, and give a history of their proceedings.

In our fastings, humiliations, and thanksgivings, let us not forget the poor and destitute, to minister to their necessities, and respectfully would we suggest to the consideration of the brethren the situation of our President, who has long had all his business deranged, and has been recently obliged to expend large sums of money in procuring his release from unjust persecution, leaving him destitute of necessities for his family, and of means for prosecuting the History of the Church and the translations which he is anxious should be in the hands of the brethren as speedily as possible. We therefore recommend that collections be taken at the different meetings, for his benefit, and such as have not cash will recollect that provisions will be an excellent substitute whenever it is convenient to bring them in; and we hope our brethren who are farmers in Laharpe, Ramus, Zarahemly &c. and the region around, will have the opportunity of reading these few hints. A word to the wise is sufficient. The Lord loveth a cheerful and bountiful giver, and will restore an hundred fold—for the laborer is worthy of his hire.

BRIGHAM YOUNG, President.

W. RICHARDS, Clerk.

Nauvoo, January 11, 1843.

For the Wasp.

EIGHTEEN FORTY THREE.

BY L. C. LITTLEFIELD.

Hail another year! Farewell '42; thy months are numbered—they have flown away upon the wings of Time, never to return. Thy deeds—good or ill—have departed with thee; but are registered upon the annals of Eternity. By them mortals are to be judged! Then who does not hope that his conduct has been humane, benevolent and manly? Look back, gentle reader, upon past acts, and see if they are such as will stand the scrutiny of the Great Eternal One! Have you wrested one comfort from your fellow mortal? it weighs upon your conscience! Has the destitute been administered to?—the ragged been supplied with raiment?—the hungry with bread?—has the beggar obtained his humble pittance?—the widow and orphan been consoled in their lonely, hopeless, destitute situation, and the innocent and virtuous protected from the poisonous breath of calumny and detraction?—they are written with the finger of Peace upon the tablet of thy memory, and joy and an unbroken tranquility of soul steals over you, as the silent hovering of celestial Deities as thy merited reward. Is the page of her history blackened by deeds of cruelty and crime—have men—blind, infatuated men—like ignorant barbarians, rushed blindly into conflicts of blood—has ignorance and superstition been suffered to establish their dominion over the empire of the human mind—has the peace of communities been disturbed, at intervals, with the jostlings of bad men and bad measures?—have the institutions of benevolence become warped and distorted from their original sphere, by the toleration of vice and degradation in the moral world—has avarice and chicanery turned aside the feet of men from the path of virtue and truth, and taken from them the honor and dignity infallibly awarded to a life of uprightness and fair dealing—has aristocracy raised its hydra-head of self concealed superiority over the more humble, yet honest, classes of citizens—has the spirit of patriotism been dimmed in its lustre by the damning car of political ambition,—if these evils have existed in '42, let '43 place upon them the seal of disapprobation; let her open her books anew, that its pages may not be sullied by bearing record of such baneful evils.

O, mysterious and incomprehensible future!—who can draw aside the ample folds of thy aerial curtain, and comprehend the future condition of man—the ultimate destiny of the illimitable Universe! Who can look forward to the unborn days and months of '43, and foretell the various revolutions, events and changes in the affairs of men, as they will therein transpire! This is an indefinable enigma which Time—ceaseless, constant, and untiring—in its unnumbered rounds of LIGHT and DARKNESS, alone can solve. Spotless and unsurveyed blank of futurity!—thou can alone be compared to the yet unblemished page in the great book of human Destiny, which is to help make up the history of man!

Nauvoo, January 1, 1843.

HORRIBLE MUTINY!!

Horrible Attempt at Mutiny on board the U. States Brig Somers—Midshipman Spencer, Hung at the yard arm.

The U. S. brig Somers, Commander Alexander Siddell Mackenzie, our readers will remember arrived off this port on Wednesday night, and was reported in the express on Thursday morning. Little did we think that to this report we should have to add one of the most horrible attempts at mutiny ever known in the Navy.

The Somers sailed from Monrovia (Liberia,) on the night of the 11th of November, and from St. Thomas on the night of the 5th of December. It seems that a horrible scheme was concocted before her sailing, to murder the commander and chief officers, and turn the vessel into a Pirate ship. At the head of this detestable plot was Midshipman Spencer, one of the sons of the present Secretary of War. He had enlisted some fifteen or twenty of the apprentices, and some of such inhuman conspiracies, the hearts of some one or more of the conspirators failed, before the night of the intended massacre arrived—or at all events it was discovered.

The story we learn is that young Spencer offered his paper or roll of the conspirators to the master-at-arms to sign, who signed it to quiet their suspicion, and then immediately revealed the fact to the commander. The moment the conspirators found out they were discovered, they met in a body and went to the commander, demanding possession of the ship, and young Spencer presented a pistol to his heart. All this was at night, and the chief part of the crew were below, when the officers on deck not knowing the extent of the conspiracy, immediately closed the hatches and kept all confined who were below. The officers, after something of a struggle, as we understand, overpowered the conspirators and regaining a complete possession of the ship, instantly caused the ringleaders to be tried by court martial, and young Spencer, within ten minutes of the finding of the court, was hung at yard arm, along with two of the men. The others were put in irons, and some fourteen or fifteen were sent on board the North Carolina the moment the ship came from sea. A messenger, we also learn, was landed below, and despatches announcing these facts were sent to Washington.—[N. Y. Express.

FROM CAMPEACHY.—Highly Important—Battle between the Mexicans and Yucatanans—Loss of two hundred Mexicans—Capture of two American vessels by the Mexicans.—By an arrival on the 2d inst., at New Orleans, of the schooner Freeland, Capt. Smith, from Campeachy, the Crescent City has news up to the 22d ult.

A general engagement had taken place outside the walls of the city, which lasted for several hours. The loss in killed and wounded, on the part of the Mexicans, amounted to over 200. The loss of the Yucatanans was estimated at 150. Both parties, thinking they had punished each other sufficiently for the time being, retired from the field, in order to recruit for another engagement.

The Mexican army was decreasing rapidly. Their loss from death and desertions amounted to over 500, before their landing at Champotan.

The schooner Anna Maria, Capt. Peters, from New Orleans for Campeachy, laden with flour, owned in New Orleans and sailing under the American flag, was captured, as she was entering the port, by the Mexican fleet. The steamer Champion, Capt. Hutton, hence for Tobasco, was also captured by the Mexicans.

The army of Yucatan was over 6000 strong, and was receiving daily reinforcements from the interior. The enemy asked a capitulation, which was pre-emptorily denied. The natives hoisted a red flag, and expressed a determination to repel the invading force, or perish in the attempt.

MORMONISM.

The celebrated Gen. Bennett has been lecturing in our city against the Mormons. He gave his first lecture on Friday eve; and on Sunday, he commenced a public discussion with the Rev. Mr. Anderson, Mormon preacher in our city. We were present, on Sunday evening; and there was a very large assemblage of gentlemen and ladies. There was great interest excited and the Mormon preacher surprised every one by his tact and talent. Gen. Bennett is a man of distinguished talents and a good scholar; and, though Mr. Anderson has not the advantage of an education, he sustained his part admirably well and proved himself a great proficient in scriptural knowledge. On Monday morning at 9 o'clock, the discussion was to have been continued; and, on Monday evening, the General was to have lectured on "the female fixings." at Nauvoo, Mormon Seraglio, Secret wife system, &c. &c. all of which the Mormons in our city pronounce false as hell and demand proof. If Mr. Anderson would speak alternately with the General throughout our State, we think the Mormons would lose nothing by all he could

CHEAP BEDS IN SPAIN.—In Spain and Portugal beds are made of the husks of corn which are very durable, convenient and healthy. These beds are made in the following manner. The husks are gathered as soon as they are ripe, and in a clear dry day. The outer husks are rejected, and the softer inner ones are collected and dried in the shade, and when dry, the hard ends that are attached to the cob are cut off. They are then drawn through a hatel or comb, so as to cut them into narrow strips. These enclosed in a sack, or formed into a mattress like prepared hair, will be found almost equal to the best moss or hair mattresses; and are so durable, that with any ordinary care they will last from five to ten years. These beds could be easily made in this country, and would be found far more pleasant, comfortable and healthy, than beds made with moss, hair or feathers. We have seen husk beds in this country, but they were so uncomfortable that we should suppose the makers had stuffed into them not only the hardest outer husks, but cobs and stalks likewise: of course they were unfit for use; but if they had been prepared according to the above directions, they would have been found pleasant and comfortable.—Cincinnati Sun.

New Orleans, Dec. 20.

The Tropic says, that for years, the Levee has not been so crowded with produce. The steamboats from the West arrive so fast that they can scarcely get berths, and it is almost impossible to walk along the wharf. The inspectors are kept busy from sunrise till sunset, and for weeks to come, they will know very little rest. Merchants, clerks, and draymen are in high glee, and New Orleans has once again assumed the prospect of better days.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 13TH INST.

Age Philip 10 years; 8 months; inflammatory fever.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

The following deaths were inserted in our last week's number; but, owing to a typographical error, at the request of the parties, we insert them again.

DIED.—In this city on the 10th ult., Sisson C. Houston, aged 11 years 8 months and 11 days.

—In this city, on the 16 ult., Louisa Houston, aged 13 years and 28 days; both children of Isaac and Dacia Houston.

TO RENT FOR ONE YEAR OR MORE.

A SMALL tan yard and dwelling house with both tanner's tools and currying tools, and a good patent bark mill and good pumps, all in good order. There is 13 vats, 10 of which is in doors. The house has 4 rooms in it and a good bark shed. The lot contains 1 acre and is in the best part of the town. There is a plenty of water; for further information call on Wm. Field, on the premises. I will let a few cords of bark go.

Nauvoo, Jan. 14, 1843. no37-1f.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo January 13 1843.

TO BRICKMAKERS AND LABORERS.

THE undersigned wishes to contract for the making of one million of bricks. Also for the making of 1200 rods of ditch and turf fence.

HIRAM KIMBALL

January 13 1843.

THE

TRUTH CRUSHED

Volume I.—No. 38

THE WASP.

1843

the deliverance of our beloved President Joseph Smith, from the oppression with which he has so long been bound, the Travelling High Council invite the brethren in Nauvoo, to unite with them in dedicating Tuesday, the 17th day of January inst., as a day of humiliation fasting, praise, prayer and thanksgiving, before the great Eloheim, that he will continue the outpouring of his holy spirit upon this people—that they may ever walk humbly before him—seek out and follow the councils given through his servant, and ever be united, heart and hand, in building up this stake of Zion and the Temple, where God will reveal himself to his people; that no strife or contention may ever be found in our midst, but peace and righteousness may be our companions,—and as he has hitherto sustained his Prophet in all the difficulties he has had to encounter, so he will continue to do, until he has finished the great work committed to his charge, and that all those who have been called to his assistance in the holy ministry may be diligent and faithful in all things, that his hands may be strengthened on high, like unto Moses—that our enemies, if such we have, may repent, and turning away from their enmity, get forgiveness and salvation—and that they may have no domination over the servants of God or his saints; but that Zion may flourish upon the mountains and be exalted on the hills, and that all nations shall flow unto it and be saved, we will humble ourselves with fasting and supplication, and sing praises unto our God, with the voice of melody and thanksgiving, for the deliverance he has wrought out for his servant Joseph, through the legally constituted authorities of our Government.

The Bishops of the several Wards are requested to be present at the meeting, and to be pointed sufficient for the accommodation of the brethren and make a report to us immediately of the same.—and it may be expected that some one of the brethren who visited Springfield, will be present at the different meetings, and give a history of their proceedings.

In our fastings, humiliations, and thanksgivings, let us not forget the poor and destitute, to minister to their necessities, and respectfully would we suggest consideration of the brethren the situation of our President, who has long had all his business interrupted, and has been recently obliged to expend large sums of money in preparing his release from unjust persecutions, leaving him destitute of necessities for himself, and of means for prosecuting the History of the Church and the transactions which he is anxious should be in the hands of the brethren as speedily as possible. We therefore recommend that collections be taken at the different meetings, for his benefit, and such as have not cash will recollect that provisions will be an excellent substitute whenever it is convenient to bring them in; and we hope our brethren who are farmers in LaHarpe, Ramas, Zarahemla &c. and the region around, will have the opportunity of reading these few hints. A word to the wise is sufficient. The Lord loveth a cheerful and bountiful giver, and will restore an hundred fold—for the laborer is worthy of his hire.

BRIGHAM YOUNG, President.

W. RICHARDS, Clerk.

Nauvoo, January 11, 1843.

*The above appointments are made.

Nauvoo, Hancock County

PSSET.

the wisdom and wisdom been exhibited in their lonely, hopeless, desolate situation, and the innocent and virtuous protected from the poisonous breath of calumny and detraction—they are written with the finger of Peace upon the tablet of thy memory, and joy and an unbroken tranquility of soul shall ever be, like the silent hovering of celestial Deities, as thy merited reward. Is the page of her history blackened by deeds of cruelty and crime—have men—blind, infatuated men—like ignorant barbarians, rushed blindly into conflicts of blood—has ignorance and superstition been suffered to establish their dominion over the empire of the human mind—has the power of communication been disturbed, at intervals, with the "jarrings of bad men and bad measures"—have the institutions of benevolence become warped and distorted from their original sphere, by the pervasion of vice and degradation in the moral world—has science and civility turned aside the feet of men from the path of virtue and truth, and taken from them the honor and dignity infinitely awarded to a life of uprightness and far dealing—has aristocracy moved its lofty head of self-conceited superiority over the more humble, yet honest, classes of citizens—has the spirit of patriotism been dimmed in its lustre by the dimming cur of political ambition,—if these evils have existed in '42, let '43 place upon them the seal of disapprobation; let her open her books anew, that its pages may not be sullied by bearing record of such baneful evils.

O, mysterious and incomprehensible future—who can draw aside the unperfected folds of thy aerial curtain, and comprehend the future condition of man—the ultimate destiny of the miserable Universal. Who can look forward to the unborn days and months of '43, and forecast the various revolutions, events and changes in the affairs of men, as they will therein transpire! This is an infernal engine which Time—careless, constant, and unerring—in its unnumbered rounds of Lament and Disaster, alone can solve. Spacious and unsurveyed blank of futurity!—thou can alone be compared to the yet unadorned page in the great book of human Destiny, which is to help make up the history of man!

Nauvoo, January 1, 1843.

HON. BLE WUTINS

Harriet's attempt at hanging on board the U. S. Steamer Erie—Matchless Spenser, Hang at the yard arm.

The U. S. brig Somers, Commander Alexander S. Hall Mackenzie, was reported to have been arrived off this port on Wednesday night, and was reported in the express on Thursday morning. Little did we think that to this report we should have to add one of the most horrible attempts at mutiny ever known in the Navy.

The Somers sailed from Newbern (Liberty) on the night of the 11th of November, and from S. Thomas on the night of the 5th of December. It seems that a horrible scheme was concerted before her sailing, to murder the commander and chief officers, and turn the vessel into a Pirate ship. At the head of this detestable plot was Matchless Spenser, one of the sons of the present Secretary of War. He had enlisted some fifteen or twenty of the apprentices, and some of the men, but, as is generally the case in the story we learn is that young Spenser offered his paper or roll of the conspiracy to the master-at-arms to sign, who signed it to quiet their suspicion, and then immediately revealed the fact to the commander. The moment the conspirators found out they were discovered, they met in a body and went to the commander, demanding possession of the ship, and young Spenser presented a pistol to his breast.

All this was at night, and the chief part of the crew were below, when the officers on deck not knowing the extent of the conspiracy, immediately closed the hatches and kept all confined who were below. The officers, after a struggle of a struggle, to be understood, procured the conspirators, and regarding a complete possession of the ship, instantly caused the sailmakers to be tried by court martial, and young Spenser, within ten minutes of the finding of the court, was hanging at yard arm, along with two of the men. The others were put in irons, and some fourteen or fifteen were sent on board the North Carolina the moment the ship came from sea. A messenger, we also learn, was landed below, and despatches announcing these facts were sent to Washington.—[N. Y. Express.

FAIR CANTONMENT.—Highly Important.—Battle between the Mexicans and Yucatan.—Loss of two hundred Mexicans.—Capture of two American vessels by the Mexicans.—By an arrival on the 2d inst., at New Orleans, of the schooner Freedom, Capt. Smith, from Campechy, the Crescent City has news up to the 23d ult.

A general engagement had taken place outside the walls of the city, which lasted for several hours. The loss in killed and wounded, on the part of the Mexicans, amounted to over 200. The loss of the Yucatanes was estimated at 150. Both parties, thinking they had punished each other sufficiently for the time being, retired from the field, in order to recruit for another engagement.

The Mexican army was decreasing rapidly. Their loss from death and desertions amounted to over 500, before their landing at Campechy.

The schooner Anna Maria, Capt. Peters, from New Orleans for Campechy, laden with flour, arrived in New Orleans and sailing under the American flag, was captured, as she was entering the port, by the Mexican fleet. The steamer Champion, Capt. Hutton, hence for Tehuacan was also captured by the Mexicans.

The army of Yucatan was over 6000 strong, and was receiving daily reinforcements from the interior. The enemy asked a capitulation, which was promptly denied. The natives hoisted a red flag, and expressed a determination to repel the invading force, or perish in the attempt.

NORMONISM

The celebrated Gen. Bennett has been lecturing in our city against the Mormons. He gave his first lecture on Friday evening, on Sunday, he commenced a public discussion with the Rev. Mr. Anderson, Mormon preacher in our city. We were present, on Sunday evening; and there was a very large assemblage of gentlemen and ladies. There was great interest excited and the Mormon preacher surprised every one by his tact and talent. Gen. Bennett is a man of distinguished talents and a good scholar, and, though Mr. Anderson has not the advantage of an education, he sustained his part admirably well and proved himself a great possessor in scriptural knowledge. On Monday morning at 9 o'clock, the discussion was to have been continued; and, on Monday evening, the General was to have lectured on "the female fringe." At Nauvoo, Mormon Scaplan, Secret wife system, &c. all of which the Mormons in our city pronounce false as hell and demand proof. If Mr. Anderson would speak alternately with the General throughout our State, we think the Mormons would lose nothing by all he could say or do.—Chicago Democrat

Casa Bede in Spain.—In Spain and Portugal beds are made of the husks of corn which are very durable, convenient and healthy. These beds are made in the following manner. The husks are gathered as soon as they are ripe, and in a clear dry day. The outer husks are rejected, and the softer inner ones are collected and dried in the shade, and when dry, the hard ends that are attached to the cut are cut off. They are then drawn through a basket or comb, so as to cut them into narrow strips. These enclosed in a sack, or formed into a mattress like prepared hair, will be found almost equal to the best moss or hair mattresses; and are so durable, that with any ordinary care they will last from five to ten years. These beds could be easily made in this country, and would be found far more pleasant, comfortable and healthy than beds made with moss, hair or feathers. We have seen husk beds in this country, but they were so uncomfortable that we should suppose the makers had stuffed into them not only the hardest outer husks, but cobs and stalks likewise: of course they were unfit for use; but if they had been prepared according to the above directions, they would have been found pleasant and comfortable.—Cincinnati Sun.

New Orleans, Dec. 20.

The Tropic mays, that for years, the Levant has not been so crowded with produce. The steamboats from the West arrive so fast that they can scarcely get berth, and it is almost impossible to walk along the wharf. The inspectors are kept busy from sunrise till sunset, and for weeks to come, they will know very little rest. Merchants, clerks, and draymen are in high glee, and New Orleans has once again assumed the prospect of better days.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 13TH INST.

Ann Phaffen 10 years; 8 months, inflammatory fever.

W. D. HUNTINGTON. City Sexton.

The following deaths were inserted in our last week's number; but, owing to a typographical error, at the request of the parties, we insert them again.

DIED.—In this city on the 15th ult., Simon C. Houston, aged 11 years 8 months and 11 days.

—In this city, on the 16 ult., Louise Houston, aged 13 years and 28 days; both children of Isaac and Dacia Houston.

TO RENT FOR ONE YEAR OR MORE.

A SMALL tan yard and dwelling house with both tanner's tools and every thing tools, and a good patent bark mill and good pumps, all in good order. There is 13 rats, 10 of which is in doors. The house has 4 rooms in it and a good bark shed. The lot contains 1 acre and is in the best part of the town. There is a plenty of water; for further information call on Wm. Field, on the premises. I will let a few cords of bark go.

Nauvoo, Jan. 14, 1843. no37-4f.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethin Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the foreclosed lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo January 13 1843.

TO BRICKMAKERS AND LABORERS.

THE undersigned wishes to contract for the making of one million of bricks.

Also for the making of 1200 rods of ditch and turf fence.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

January 13 1843.

THE

TRUTH CRUSHED

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Mo.

POETRY.

Volume I.—No. 38

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY

the deliverance of our beloved President Joseph Smith, from the oppression with which he has so long been bound, the Travelling High Council invite the brethren in Nauvoo, to unite with them in dedicating Tuesday, the 17th day of January inst., as a day of humiliation fasting, praise, prayer and thanksgiving, before the great Eloheim, that he will continue the outpouring of his holy spirit upon this people—that they may ever walk humbly before him—seek out and follow the councils given through his servant, and ever be united, heart and hand, in building up this stake of Zion and the Temple, where God will reveal himself to his people; that no strife or confusion may ever be found in our midst, but peace and righteousness may be our companions,—and as he has hitherto sustained his Prophet in all the difficulties he has had to encounter, so he will continue to do, until he has finished the great work committed to his charge, and that all those who have been called to his assistance in the holy ministry may be diligent and faithful in all things, that his hands may be staid on high, like unto Moses—that our enemies, if such we have, may repent, and turning away from their enmity, get forgiveness and salvation—and that they may have no dominion over the servants of God or his saints; but that Zion may flourish upon the mountains and be exalted on the hills, and that all nations shall flow unto it and be saved, we will humble ourselves with fasting and supplication, and sing praises unto our God, with the voice of melody and thanksgiving, for the deliverance he has wrought out for his servant Joseph, through the legally constituted authorities of our Government.

The Bishops of the several Wards are requested to see that meetings are appointed sufficient for the accommodation of the brethren and make a report to us immediately of the same,—and it may be expected that some one of the brethren who visited Springfield, will be present at the different meetings, and give a history of their proceedings.

In our fastings, humiliations, and thanksgivings, let us not forget the poor and destitute, to minister to their necessities, and respectfully would we suggest to the consideration of the brethren the situation of our President, who has long had all his business deranged, and has been recently obliged to expend large sums of money in procuring his release from unjust persecution, leaving him destitute of necessities for his family, and of means for prosecuting the History of the Church and the translations which he is anxious should be in the hands of the brethren as speedily as possible. We therefore recommend that collections be taken at the different meetings, for his benefit, and such as have not cash will recollect that provisions will be an excellent substitute whenever it is convenient to bring them in; and we hope our brethren who are farmers in LaHarpe, Ramus, Zarahemly &c. and the region around, will have the opportunity of reading these few hints. A word to the wise is sufficient. The Lord loveth a cheerful and bountiful giver, and will restore an hundred fold—for the laborer is worthy of his hire.

BRIGHAM YOUNG, President.

W. RICHARDS, Clerk.

Nauvoo, January 11, 1843.

*The above appointments are made.

For the Times—noble pittance!—the widow and orphan been consigned in their lonely, hopeless, destitute situation, and the innocent and virtuous protected from the poisonous breath of calumny and detraction!—they are written with the finger of Peace upon the tablet of thy memory, and joy and an unbroken tranquility of soul steals over you, like the silent hovering of celestial Deities, as thy merited reward. Is the page of her history blackened by deeds of cruelty and crime—have men—blind, insatiate men—like ignorant barbarians, rushed blindly into conflicts of blood—has ignorance and superstition been suffered to establish their dominion over the empire of the human mind—has the peace of communities been disturbed, at intervals, with the jostlings of bad men and bad measures?—have the institutions of benevolence become warped and distorted from their original sphere, by the toleration of vice and degradation in the moral world—has avarice and chicanery turned aside the feet of men from the path of virtue and truth, and taken from them the honor and dignity infallibly awarded to a life of uprightness and fair dealing—has aristocracy raised its hydra-head of self conceited superiority over the more humble, yet honest, classes of citizens—has the spirit of patriotism been dimmed in its lustre by the damning car of political ambition,—if these evils have existed in '42, let '43 place upon them the seal of disapprobation; let her open her books anew, that its pages may not be sullied by bearing record of such baneful evils.

O, mysterious and incomprehensible future!—who can—law aside the ample folds of thy aerial curtain, and comprehend the future condition of man—the ultimate destiny of the illimitable Universe! Who can look forward to the unborn days and months of '43, and foretell the various revolutions, events and changes in the affairs of men, as they will therein transpire! This is an indefinite enigma which Time—ceaseless, constant, and untiring—in its unnumbered rounds of LIGHT and DARKNESS, alone can solve. Spotless and unsurveyed blank of futurity!—thou can alone be compared to the yet unblemished page in the great book of human Destiny, which is to help make up the history of man!

Nauvoo, January 1, 1843.

HORRIBLE MUTINY!!

Horrible Attempt at Mutiny on board the U. States Brig Somers—Midshipman Spencer, Hung at the yard arm.

The U. S. brig Somers, Commander Alexander Slides Mackenzie, our readers will remember arrived off this port on Wednesday night, and was reported in the express on Thursday morning. Little did we think that to this report we should have to add one of the most horrible attempts at mutiny ever known in the Navy.

The Somers sailed from Monrovia (Liberia,) on the night of the 11th of November, and from St. Thomas on the night of the 5th of December. It seems that a horrible scheme was concocted before her sailing, to murder the commander and chief officers, and turn the vessel into a Pirate ship. At the head of this detestable plot was Midshipman Spencer, one of the sons of the present Secretary of War. He had enlisted some fifteen or twenty of the apprentices, and some of the men, but, as is generally the case in a conspiracy, the hearts of more of the conspirators failed the night of the intended massacre arrived—or at all events it was delayed.

The story we learn is that young Spencer offered his paper or roll of the conspirators to the master-at-arms to sign, who signed it to quiet their suspicion, and then immediately revealed the fact to the commander. The moment the conspirators found out they were discovered, they met in a body and went to the commander, demanding possession of the ship, and young Spencer presented a pistol to his heart.—All this was at night, and the chief part of the crew were below, when the officers on deck not knowing the extent of the conspiracy, immediately closed the hatches and kept all confined who were below. The officers, after something of a struggle, as we understand, overpowered the conspirators, and regaining a complete possession of the ship, instantly caused the ringleaders to be tried by court martial, and young Spencer, within ten minutes of the finding of the court, was hung at yard arm, along with two of the men.—The others were put in irons, and some fourteen or fifteen were sent on board the North Carolina the moment the ship came from sea. A messenger, we also learn, was landed below, and despatches announcing these facts were sent to Washington.—[N. Y. Express.

FROM CAMPEACHY.—Highly Important—Battle between the Mexicans and Yucatan—Loss of two hundred Mexicans—Capture of two American vessels by the Mexicans.—By an arrival on the 2d inst., at New Orleans, of the schooner Freeland, Capt. Smith, from Campeachy, the Crescent City has news up to the 22d ult.

A general engagement had taken place outside the walls of the city, which lasted for several hours. The loss in killed and wounded, on the part of the Mexicans, amounted to over 200. The loss of the Yucatanes was estimated at 150. Both parties, thinking they had punished each other sufficiently for the time being, retired from the field, in order to recruit for another engagement.

The Mexican army was decreasing rapidly. Their loss from death and desertions amounted to over 500, before their landing at Champoton.

The schooner Anna Maria, Capt. Peters, from New Orleans for Campeachy, laden with flour, owned in New Orleans and sailing under the American flag, was captured, as she was entering the port, by the Mexican fleet. The schooner Champion, Capt. Hutton, hence for Tampico, was also captured by the Mexicans.

The army of Yucatan was over 6000 strong, and was receiving daily reinforcements from the interior. The enemy asked a capitulation, which was promptly denied. The natives hoisted a red flag, and expressed a determination to repel the invading force, or perish in the attempt.

MORMONISM.

The celebrated Gen. Bennett has been lecturing in our city against the Mormons. He gave his first lecture on Friday eve; and, on Sunday, he commenced a public discussion with the Rev. Mr. Anderson, Mormon preacher in our city. We were present, on Sunday evening; and there was a very large assemblage of gentlemen and ladies. There was great interest excited and the Mormon preacher surprised every one by his tact and talent. Gen'l Bennett is a man of distinguished talents and a good scholar; and, though Mr. Anderson has not the advantage of an education, he sustained his part admirably well and proved himself a great proficient in scriptural knowledge. On Monday morning, at 9 o'clock, the discussion was to have been continued; and, on Monday evening, the General was to have lectured on "the female fixings." at Nauvoo, Mormon Seraglio, Secret wife system, &c. &c. all of which the Mormons in our city pronounce false as hell and demand proof. If Mr. Anderson would speak alternately with the General throughout our State, we think the Mormons would lose nothing by all he could say or do.—Chicago Democrat.

CHEAP BEDS IN SPAIN.—In Spain and Portugal beds are made of the husks of corn which are very durable, convenient and healthy. These beds are made in the following manner. The husks are gathered as soon as they are ripe, and in a clear dry day. The outer husks are rejected, and the softer inner ones are collected and dried in the shade, and when dry, the hard ends that are attached to the cob are cut off. They are then drawn through a hatel or comb, so as to cut them into narrow strips. These enclosed in a sack, or formed into a mattress like prepared hair, will be found almost equal to the best moss or hair mattresses; and are so durable, that with any ordinary care they will last from five to ten years. These beds could be easily made in this country, and would be found far more pleasant, comfortable and healthy than beds made with moss, hair or feathers. We have seen husk beds in this country, but they were so uncomfortable that we should suppose the makers had stuffed into them not only the hardest outer husks, but cobs and stalks likewise; of course they were unfit for use; but if they had been prepared according to the above directions, they would have been found pleasant and comfortable.—Cincinnati Sun.

New Orleans, Dec. 20.

The Tropic says, that for years, the Levee has not been so crowded with produce. The steamboats from the West arrive so fast that they can scarcely get berths, and it is almost impossible to walk along the wharf. The inspectors are kept busy from sunrise till sunset, and for weeks to come, they will know very little rest. Merchants, clerks, and draymen are in high glee, and New Orleans has once again assumed the prospect of better days.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 13TH INST.

Asa Phippen 10 years; 8 months, inflammatory fever.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

The following deaths were inserted in our last week's number; but, owing to a typographical error, at the request of the parties, we insert them again.

DIED—In this city on the 15th ult., Sisson C. Houston, aged 11 years 8 months and 11 days.

—In this city, on the 16 ult., Louise Houston, aged 13 years and 25 days; both children of Isaac and Dacia Houston.

TO RENT FOR ONE YEAR OR MORE.

A SMALL tan yard and dwelling house with both tanner's tools and currying tools, and a good patent bark mill and good pumps, all in good order. There is 13 vats, 10 of which is in doors. The house has 4 rooms in it and a good bark shed. The lot contains 1 acre and is in the best part of the town. There is a plenty of water; for further information call on Wm. Field, on the premises. I will let a few cords of bark go.

Nauvoo, Jan. 14, 1843. no37-1f.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
HIRAM KIMBALL.
Nauvoo January 13 1843.

TO BRICKMAKERS AND LABORERS.

THE undersigned wishes to contract for the making of one million of bricks.

Also for the making of 1200 rods of ditch and turf fence.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

January 13 1843.

A LIST OF LETTERS
REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock county Ill., January 1st 1843, which, if not taken out before the first of April next, will be sent to the general Post Office as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following letters will please say they are advertised or they may not get them.

Elisha Averett	H Chamberlin
Jno Altemon	Jonathan Crosby
Elisha Atwood	Emeline Cooper
Sam Alexander	Geo Clyde
Geo Anderson	D P Curtis
Jacob Abbott	2 O Cook or Ira Rice
A L Atwood	Charlotte Claword
Richard Ashley	J S Curtis
J C Annis	Isaac Chase
Chas Butler	3 E W Cunningham
Mr Baum	Philo Dibble
C Baldwin	Isaac Decker
M E Bliss	2 Rachael Danfield
Narah Buckwater	Hiram Dayton
R Boacher	3 Isaac Davis
L Brown	Freemorn Daniel
Geo Broditt	2 Abram Delony
Jno Battle	David Diller
J M Brand	Rachael Drollinger
Jno Bills	Lewis Eager
Edmond Bosley	David Elliot
J G Bigler	3 Albert Fellows
Arch Bates	Esther Ann Green
Lewis Brooks	Saml G Flagg
Isaac Butterfield	Cyrus B Fisher
J H Burtis	Horrace Fisk
Dorcas Brown	Geo Foster
Ormond Butler	Jno Fox
J Barlow	Jas Fisher
Palatiah Brown	James Flanigan
P R Bird	Jacob Fauny
P D Bailly	Peter Pulmer
Eli Blackhurst	Levi Gray
Eli Brotherton	Truman Gilbert
E L Brown	Patrick Gilmore
Jno Clemison	Ezra Grant
Dorr Curtis	2 Ezra F Grant
Bohan Clark	Jane Ann Green
Isaac Calhoun	Jno P Green
A Cutler	2 David Gorlick
Gardner Clark	Jno Glines
Stephen Chase	Jno F Gleason
Eunice Cone	Joshua Grant
J W Cammina	Susanah Godard
John Cox	Amanda Higbee
Jared Curtis	Isaac Houston
P Clayton	Elliot Hartwell
Jacob Cleveland	2 Deborah Haughton
Greenup Carretters	Ed Hunter
Wm Cross	Jno Huntman
Dani Carter	2 Jno Hulme
Robt Culbertson	Benj Hoyt
J R Clark	James Hurst
Samuel Covert	Saml Henderson
Sarah Giff	H J Hunt
Chas Hopkins	Soomon Hancock
Wm Hale	Adeline Roundy
J H Holmes	2 M Rank
Jno Halford	Celestina Rowley
Alex Hay	Wm Ridd
Peter Hopkins	G H Rolph
Joseph Hadlock	E Robinson
H Herinshaw	Thos Richmond
	Jefferson Ring
	2 Wm Robinson
Benj Hill	Willard Richards
Saml W Henderson	Dani Russel
Mr Hartley	Andrew Rose
Elisha Hooper	D H Redfield
James Harper	Mrs Roe
John Harlem	Ezra Strong
Nathan Haskins	Henry Standage
Peter Haws	Robt Shacklton
J M Hemmick	Hiram Smith
Laura Hendricks	Moses Smith
Jno Harrington	D H Stow
Thos Hertel	Jane Sharnuck
J S Johnson	James Showell
Wm Jones	J S Scofield
L Johnson
3 M Johnson	Joseph or Hiram Smith
Homar Jackson	Jacob Strong
Jacob Johnson	Publisher of Times and Seasons
Elizabeth Johnson
P T Kelley	Mrs Emma Smith
G McKenzie	Stiler Sergeant
E King	Alex Simpson
E Kellogg	Jno Smith
David Lemeraux	R Shepherd
Gilbert Loynd	2 A W Sherman
Abel Lamar	Geo Snow
Peter Lemon	DT Smith
James Long	DS Study
Hannah Loveland	H W Stay
Benj Leland Jr	H H or D Stow
Sarah Lancaster	C E Spencer
Joris Minor	Joshua Smith
Ira Miles or Wm Bent	Allen Stephens
Jesse McCarroll	Levi Skinner
Isaac Morton	Joseph Smith
Joseph Mount	Bun Tomlinson
Dani Miller	Jno Till
Saml Merrill	Jno S Twist
L J Murdock	A Thompson
James Morgan	Allen Taylor
Delilah Mikesell	E P Terrill
Younger McCourlin	Nelson Turner
Geo Montague	2 DS Thomas
Geo Morey	Chas Thomas
Davis McOlney	John Tyson
James G Miller	Jno Taylor
Saml Marick	Briton Willis
Jno Morris	S F Wilber
E P Merriam	Stephen Wilkerson
M or E Mechim	HD H Webster
Elijah Martin	Robt Williams
Thos J Morgan	Benj S Wilber or Lady
E Mayle	Price Waggoner
Wm Miller	Rebecca White
Saml McLenathan	2 DB Walters
J Noble	Rake Wright
Peter Nelson

M C Nickerson
 Jno Newman
 Rodger Norton
 Laertes Newel
 Wm Niswanger
 Patrick Norris
 J C Owen
 Rufus Patrick
 S Pratt
 P P Pratt
 Wm C Patten
 Nathan or Jonathan Packer
 Chester Philips
 Ada Pierpoint
 E J Pearsons
 J F Palmer
 J W Phippen
 Jno Pack
 Wm Pan
 Horace Roberts
 Meritt Rockwell
 Stephen Reach
 James Rodeback
 Lewis Robison

Adam Wighton
 Alex Wright
 Philip Wort
 James Wilson
 Jno Wilkes
 Cynthia Weston
 Warren Wallace
 James Whitteker
 M B Welton
 Robt Wilets
 W J Wilson
 Allen Weeks
 Jno Walker
 2 Richd Worthen
 Jno Weston or B Tomlin

B S Wilber
 Stephen Wilkerson
 Jos Wymouth
 David Wood
 P W Webb
 N A West
 Joseph Young
 Alphonzo Young
 Michael Yaman

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.
DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic.

no35.

NO CURE NO PAY.
 I propose to cure smoking chimneys by the use of "Hammond's Patent No Cure No Pay." There is no mistake in this patent; call and examine Mr. Wilford Woodruff's, under the Printing Office, who is authorized to make contracts for me. I shall return to the city about the 3rd day of next month, and will attend to all persons who may desire their chimneys to draw well.

ALEX. SYMPSON.
 Dec. 28, 1842. no35-tf.

NEW BOOT AND SHOE ESTABLISHMENT.
 THE subscriber respectfully informs the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has commenced the above named business, on Mulhollon St., south east corner of the Temple square. All kinds of work done on the shortest notice and most reasonable terms. Also intends to keep constantly on hand all kinds of ready made work. Most kinds of produce taken in exchange for Boots and Shoes.

M. ADAMS.
 Dec. 31, 1842. no35-tf.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at,
J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street.
 31-tf.

AGENTS FOR THE WEST.
ILLINOIS.
 J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
 Joseph Johnson, Ramus
 J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
 Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
 L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
 Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
 Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.
IOWA TERRITORY.
 Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
 Levi Moffet, Augusta.
 Elias Smith, Nashville.
PENNSYLVANIA.
 Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
 John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
 B. Winchester, Philadelphia.
NEW JERSEY.
 Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
 James Curtis, Horners Town.
 W. I. Appleby, Reccles Towh.
 Israel Ivins, Toms River.
MASSACHUSETTS.
 Erastus Snow, Salem.
 Freeman Nickerson, Boston.
MICHIGAN.
 S. S. Holmes, Lapior.
OHIO.
 John Johnson, Kirtland.
NEW YORK.
 Charles Thompson, Batavia.

DR. J. F. WELD.
PRACTITIONER IN
MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
 Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuance of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

GEO. P. STILES,
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.

Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842.
 no31-tf.

SHERMAN'S
MEDICATED LOZENGES.
THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.
 Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Cough, Croup, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.
 The only infallible Worm medicine ever known. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPOR LOZENGES.
 For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.
 The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.
 These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER,
 This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
 (22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
 Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

GRANT & WATT,
TAILORS.
TENDER their thanks to their old customers, for past patronage, and solicit a continuance of the same. Their shop is situated near the Masonic Hall on Main Street, in a new building erected for the purpose of carrying on the various branches of fashionable tailoring. Having made arrangements to receive the fashions, quarterly, from D. & S. G. Williams, of the city of New York, they hope to be enabled to render general satisfaction to their customers.

Trade, of every description, will be recieved in payment; money not refused.
 Dec. 3, 1842. no31-6w.

GEO. BACHMAN,
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House.

no29-tf.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St., New Orleans.
LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO
 H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
 Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
 A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
 Whitman & Springer, Cincinnati.
 December 11, 1842. no32.

H. TATE, M. D.
NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. His success in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. For, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multiform diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case.

Vis medicatrix naturae.
 N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay.
 Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

DRUG STORE.
THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of

Medicines,	Paints and Oils,
Pure,	Wines,
Glass,	Putty,
School,	Books,
Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.
 Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-tf.

WANTED.
HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSEND.
A. WASHBURN.
 Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. H.
 Nauvoo, Nov. 2, 1842. no29.

A LIST OF LETTERS

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock county Ill., January 1st 1843, which, if not taken out before the first of April next, will be sent to the general Post Office as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following letters will please say they are advertised or they may not get them.

Elisha Averett	H. Chamberlin
Jno Allemon	Jonathan Crosby
Elisha Atwood	Emeline Cooper
Saml Alexander	Geo Clyde
Geo Anderson	D P Curtis
Jacob Abbott	2 O Cook or Ira Rice
A L Atwood	Charlotte Claword
Richard Ashley	J S Curtis
J C Annis	Isaac Chase
Chas Butler	3 E W Cunningham
Mr Baum	Philo Dbble
C Baldwin	Isaac Decker
M E Bliss	Rachael Danfield
Sarah Buckwater	Hiram Dayton
R Beacher	3 Isaac Davis
Brown	Freeborn Daniel
Geo Brumitt	Abram Delony
Jno Battle	David Diller
J M Broad	Rachael Drollinger
Jno Bails	Lewis Eager
Edmond Bosley	David Elliot
J G Bigler	3 Albert Fellows
Arch Bates	Esther Ann Green
Lewis Brooks	Saml G Flagg
Isaac Butterfield	Cyrus B Fisher
J H Burtis	Horrace Fisk
Borcas Brown	Geo Foster
Ormand Butler	Jno Fox
J Barlow	Jas Fisher
Palstiah Brown	James Flennigan
P R Bird	Jacob Fauny
P D Bailey	Peter Palmer
Eli Blackhurst	Levi Gray
Eli Brotherton	Truman Gilbert
E L Brown	Patrick Gilmere
Jno Clemison	Ezra Grant
Dorr Curtis	Jane Ann Green
Boban Clark	Jno P Green
Israel Calkins	2 David Gorlick
A Cutler	Jno Glines
Gardner Clark	Jno F Gleason
Stephen Chase	Joshua Grant
Emine Cone	Susanah Godard
J W Cummins	Amanda Higbee
John Cox	Isaac Houston
Jared Curtis	2 Elliot Hartwell
P Clayton	Deborah Haughton
Jacob Cleward	Ed Hunter
Greenup Carretters	Jno Huntsman
Wm Cross	2 Jno Hulme
Dani Carter	Benj Hoyt
Robt Culbertson	James Hurste
J R Clark	Saml Henderson
Spencer Covert	H J Hunt
Sarah Clift	Seomon Hancock
Chas Hopkins	Adeline Roundy
Wm Hale	2 M Rank
J H Holmes	Celestiana Rowley
Jno Hatfield	Wm Ridd
Alex Hay	G H Rolph
Peter Hopkins	E Robinson
Joseph Hadlock	Thos Richmond
H Herinshaw	Jefferson Ring
Dani Hendrix	David Rogers
Benj Hill	Wm Robinson
Saml W Henderson	Willard Richards
Mr Hartley	Dani Russell
Elisha Hooper	Andrew Rose
James Harper	D H Redfield
John Harlem	Mrs Roe
Nathan Haskins	Ezra Strong
Peter Haws	Henry Standage
J M Hemmick	Robt Shackleton
Laura Hendricks	Hiram Smith
Jno Harrington	Moses Smith
Thos Hortel	D H Stow
J S Johnson	Jane Sharnuck
Wm Jones	James Shotwell
L Johnson	J S Scofield
J H Johnson	Wm Smith
Homer Jackson	Joseph or Hiram Smith
Jacob Johnson	Jacob Strong
Elizabeth Johnson	Publisher of Times and Seasons
P T Kelley	Mrs Emma Smith
G McKenzey	Stiler Sergeant
E King	Alex Simpson
E Kellogg	Jno Smith
David Lemeraux	R Shepherd
Gilbert Loynd	2 A W Sherman
Abel Lamax	Geo Snow
Peter Lemon	D T Smith
James Long	D S Study
Hannah Loveland	H W Stay
Benj Leland Jr	H H or D Stow
Sarah Lancaster	C E Spencer
Joris Minor	Joshua Smith
Ira Miles or Wm Bent	Allen Stephens
Jesse McCarroll	Levi Skinner
Isaac Morton	Joseph Smith
Joseph Mount	Bun Tomlinson
Dani Miller	Jno Till
Saml Merrill	Jno S Twist
L J Murdock	A Thompson
James Morgan	Allen Taylor
Delilah Mikesell	E P Terrill
Younger McCourling	Nelson Turner
Geo Montague	2 D S Thomas
Geo Morcy	Chas Thomas
Davis McOlney	John Tyson
James G Miller	Jno Taylor
Saml Merrick	Briton Willis
Jno Morris	S F Wilber
E P Merriam	Stephen Wilkerson
M or E Mechim	H D H Webster
Elisha Martin	Robt Williams
Thos J Morgan	Benj S Wilber or Lady
R Mayle	Price Waggoner
Wm Miller	Rebecca White
Saml McLanathan	2 D B Walters
J B Noble	Robt Wright
Peter Nelson	2 Jno Worthing
Edmund Nelson

M C Nickerson
Jno Newman
Rodger Norton
Laertes Newel
Wm Niswanger
Patrick Norris
J C Owen
Rufus Patrick
S Pratt
P P Pratt
Wm C Patten
Nathan or Jonathan Packer
Chester Phillips
Ada Pierpoint
E J Pearsons
J F Palmer
J W Phippen
Jno Pack
Wm Pan
Horace Roberts
Meritt Rockwell
Stephen Reach
James Rodeback
Lewis Robison

Alex Wright
Philip Wort
James Wilson
Jno Wilkie
Cynthia Weston
Warren Wallace
James Whitteker
M B Welton
Robt Wilets
W J Wilson
Allen Weeks
Jno Walker
2 Richd Worthen
Jno Weston or B Tomlin
B S Wilber
Stephen Wilkerson
Jos Wormouth
David Wood
P W Webb
N A West
Joseph Young
Alphonzo Young
Michael Yaman

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the Botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic. no35.

NO CURE NO PAY.

I propose to cure smoking chimneys by the use of 'Hammond's Patent No Cure No Pay.' There is no mistake in this patent; call and examine Mr. Wilford Woodruff's, under the Printing Office, who is authorized to make contracts for me. I shall return to the city about the 3rd day of next month, and will attend to all persons who may desire their chimneys to draw well.

ALEX. SYMPSON.

Dec. 28, 1842. no35-tf.

NEW BOOT AND SHOE ESTABLISHMENT.

THE subscriber respectfully informs the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has commenced the above named business, on Mulhollon St., south east corner of the Temple square. All kinds of work done on the shortest notice and most reasonable terms. Also intends to keep constantly on hand all kinds of ready made work. Most kinds of produce taken in exchange for Boots and Shoes.

M. ADAMS.

Dec. 31, 1842. no35-tf.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at, J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-tf.

AGENTS FOR THE WASH.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.

Levi Moffet, Augusta.

Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.

John E. Page, Pittsburgh.

B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.

James Curtis, Horners Town.

W. I. Appleby, Reckless Town.

Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.

Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

with assidu satisfaction a call. I affections Nauvoo.

ATTORNEY WILL P. Courts of business entrusted of his profession, strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co., Ill., 1842. no31-tf.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER,

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y1.) J. SNIDER, Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-tf.

BRADFORD & BROWN,

Commission and Forwarding Merchants, Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Moson, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-

H. TATE, M. D.

NOW occupies a part of James Sloan's Tavern Stand, and respectfully tenders his services to the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity in the practice of the various branches of medicine and surgery. He hopes, from ten year's experience in western diseases, and by punctuality and success, to merit a share of public patronage. As with the imperfect systems of religion, so with the multiplied theories of medicine; each may contain more or less truth, and it requires the truth, to be severed from error, and united, to make one consistent system. Fer, to rigidly apply any one, of the dogmas of the day, to all the multifarious diseases, constitutions, ages, temperaments, habits, &c., will kill as many as it will cure, and the secret laws of nature are to be cooperated with in every case. Vis medicatrix naturae.

N. B. Prolapsus Uteri and Hernia or Rupture treated, no cure no pay. Nov. 30, 1842. no31-6w.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles; on Mulholland Street—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-tf.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSEND,

A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. if. Nauvoo, Nov. 8, 1842. no20-

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 38

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, January 21, 1843.

Whole Number 38

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY

JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,

At the corner of Water and Main Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

O. C. SKINNER,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor
in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office at the Masonic Hall, Nauvoo.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.

G. B. Holt, Dayton.

G. P. Bell, Hamilton.

Wm. Burney, Cincinnati.

Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.

Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-1f.

TO RENT FOR ONE YEAR OR MORE.

A SMALL tan yard and dwelling house
with both tanner's tools and currying tools, and a good patent bark mill and good pumps, all in good order. There is 13 vats, 10 of which is in doors. The house has 4 rooms in it and a good bark shed. The lot contains 1 acre and is in the best part of the town. There is a plenty of water; for further information
call on Wm. Field, on the premises. I

Nauvoo, Jan. 14, 1843. no27-1f.

TO BRICKMAKERS AND LABOR-ERS.

THE undersigned wishes to contract for the making of one million of bricks.

Also for the making of 1200 rods of ditch and turf fence.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

January 13 1843.

WANTED

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's
store.

B. W. TOWNSEND,

A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at
the above establishment. T. & W.

Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29-1f.

MISSOURI MARBLE.—The Hannibal Journal of the 23rd inst. says:—Mr. Atkinson has presented us with some specimens of stone found in this vicinity, which bears
a great resemblance to marble. One specimen is of a grey color, the others of a brownish yellow beautifully veined with dark brown, mingled with angular white spots. Both are susceptible of a fine finish. Mr. A assures us that the quarries from which he procured them are of considerable extent, and that the strata are sufficiently large to yield blocks
for steps, lintels, pilasters, monuments,
&c.

POETRY.

For the Times and Seasons.

APOSTROPHE TO DEATH.

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

What art thou, Death!—I've seen thy visage
and
Have heard thy sound—the deep, low, morning sound
That rises on thy tread!

Thy land is called
A land of shadows; and thy path, a path
Of blind contingency gloominess and fear—
Thy form, comprising all that's terrible;
For all the terrors that have cross'd the earth,
Or crept into its lowest depths, have been Associated with the thoughts of Death!
The tales of old bear record of thy deeds,
For thou hast been in every rank and grade—
In every circumstance—in every place
A visitor. Unceremoniously

Thou'st strode into the mansions of the great,
And rous'd a strain of agonizing grief
Above the rich, embroidered carpetings
That decorate the splendid citadels
Where pomp and fashion reign: where bolts
and bars

To each intruding form; all but thyself,
Preclude admittance: Thou hast added oft
To the abode of wretched poverty
A larger, deeper draught of wretchedness!

The rich and poor, the little and the great
Have shar'd thy bitterness—have seen thy hand!
But thou art chang'd—the terror of thy looks—
The darkness that encompass'd thee, is gone;

There is no frightfulness about thee now.
Intelligence, the ever-living lamp
Of truth, of truth eternal, lighted from—
The world on high, has pour'd its brilliant flame
Abroad, to scatter darkness and to chase
The horrors that attended thy approach!
And thou art chang'd—for since the glorious light

Of revelation shone upon thy path
Thou seem'st no more a hideous monster,
arm'd

With jav'lines, arrows, shafts, and iron bars,
To fix in everlasting hopelessness
The noblest prospect and the purest hope.

Beyond thy presence and beyond thy reach—
Beyond the precincts of thy dread domain—
Beyond the mansions where in silence lie
The scattered relics of thy ghastly power—
High on eternity's projecting coast;
A glorious beacon rears its lofty disk,
And the bright beams of immortality

Have fall'n upon thee and roll'd back the shades
Which superstition, ignorance and doubt
Had heap'd like ocean's mountain-waves upon
Thy lone, unsocial, hourly-trodden path.

Hope, the bright luminary of the heart,
Is coursing round thee, and her orbit's breadth
Extends beyond the utmost of thy shades
And points her radius to celestial spheres.

The mask that hung in troubled folds around
Thy pulchrous bosom, has been torn aside—
Seen as thou art, by inspiration's light,
Thou hast no look the right we need to fear,
With all thy ghastliness—amid the grief
Thy presence brings, I hear a thrilling tone
Of music, sweet as seraph notes that ride
Upon the balmy breath of summer eve.

Art thou a tyrant, holding the black reins
Of destiny that binds the future course
Of man's existence? No: thou art, O Death!
A haggard porter, charg'd to wait before
The Grave, life's portal to the worlds on high.

AN ACT, ENTITLED "AN ACT, REGULATING THE SALE OF PRO-PERTY ON JUDGMENTS AND EX-ECUTIONS."

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That when any execution, fee bill, or attachment shall be issued out of the courts of this State, whether of record or not, and shall be levied on any real or personal property,
or both, it shall be the duty of the officer levying such execution, to summon three disinterested house-holders of the vicinity
where such property is levied on, one of whom may be chosen by the defendant in execution, and one by the plaintiff, the other by the officer; Provided, in all cases, where either or both parties shall fail, refuse or neglect, to make such choice, or in case of a choice, if such appraisers shall fail, refuse or neglect, to make such appraisal, then it shall be the duty of such officer to choose or summon such house-holders for them, when the said officer shall administer an oath

to them, well and truly to value all such property as may be by him pointed out
to them, at its fair and reasonable value,
in ordinary times, and they, or a majority of them, shall make out a list of said property so valued by them, annexing
the valuation of each article, or species
of property thereto, and sign the same;
which list shall be annexed to the execution, and when such property shall be offered for sale, it shall not be struck off,
unless two thirds of the valuation thereof
shall be bid for the same; Provided, always, the plaintiff in execution may elect on what property he will have the same levied, except the homestead on which the defendant resides, which shall be last taken in execution, and in all other executions issued from any courts not of record, the plaintiff may elect on what personal property he will have the same levied, excepting and reserving, however,
to the defendant in execution, in all cases, such an amount and quantity of property as is now exempt from execution by the laws of this State; And provided, further, that all sales of mortgaged property,
shall be made according to the provisions of this act, whether the foreclosure be by judgment, decree in chancery, or otherwise; also all sales by commissioners,
masters in chancery, or other persons acting by authority of any of the courts
of this State, shall be made in strict conformity to this act; furthermore, the provisions of this act, shall extend to all contracts, judgments, deeds of trust, and mortgages, wherein the mortgage has reserved the right to sell the mortgaged promises, executions and debts of every kind and character which now exist, or may hereafter be made, excepting, however, those which are made in default, as a public officer, executor, administrator, or guardian, or while acting in any other fiduciary capacity; Provided, furthermore, in all cases, where any person or persons, may now be, or hereafter become indebted to any school commissioner or trustee, or treasurer of any school funds, and such persons shall fail to pay

the interest thereon, or after having been notified, shall neglect, fail or refuse to renew his or her note, with additional security, as is now provided by law, then in such case the property shall be subject to sale without the benefit of the provisions of this act; but in all cases the debtor shall be allowed to stay the collection of the principal, of any sum of money, in any way due to the school fund,
by giving good and sufficient security
and by paying the interest and cost thereon punctually, as it becomes due, whether judgment has been obtained thereon or not; Provided, that in all cases, in which the property offered, or to be offered for sale, has been decided by the proper court to have been fraudulently conveyed by the execution debtor, to avoid paying his debts, the same shall be sold without valuation.

SEC. 2. When any real personal property shall be levied on and appraised in the manner prescribed by this act, and the same shall be susceptible of division, no greater quantity thereof shall be sold than is sufficient to pay the debt and proper costs thereon in accordance with the valuation; and when any execution shall be levied on any house, houses, lot or lots,
or other real estate, situated in any city,
town or village or elsewhere, not susceptible of division, the officer, at the request

or direction of the plaintiff, shall proceed
to offer for sale such an interest in said property as will satisfy the debt and costs, and in case of sale the purchaser shall become tenant in common in said property; Provided, that in case of the sale of any real estate, the same rights of redemption, shall ensure to the defendant and judgment creditors, as is now provided by law, any thing in this act to the contrary, notwithstanding.

SEC. 3. Whenever a levy execution is issued by any of the courts of this State,
whether of record or not, and the same
shall have been levied, and the property,
whether real or personal, fails to sell,
there shall no other execution issue or costs accrue thereon (for the same debt)
for twelve months, except at the expense
of the plaintiff.

SEC. 4. Whenever any officer, or other person, offers for sale any real or personal property, and the same fails to sell according to the provisions of this act, for the want of bidders, it is hereby made the duty of such officer to re-deliver said property to the defendant.

SEC. 5. All sales of personal property, made by virtue of any execution, order or decree of any of the courts of this State, whether of record or not, shall be made at the residence of the defendant;
Provided, he or she has a place of residence in the county where such process, execution or decree exists; except the defendant otherwise requests; Provided in all cases, where the defendant fails to give the officer a delivery bond in the manner now prescribed by the laws of this State, said officer in such cases may remove and sell said property where he may choose, subject to valuation.

SEC. 6. Any person, or persons,
summoned to appraise any property under the provisions of this act, shall be entitled to twenty-five cents for each sums where the judgment is one hundred dollars and under, and where said judgment exceeds one hundred dollars, they shall be entitled to fifty cents each, to be added to the costs of suit, and to be paid
as other costs; and for failing to attend
when summoned so to do, shall thereby forfeit and pay a fine, not undred one dollar nor exceeding three dollars, to be collected before any justice of the peace, as other fines, and paid over to the county in the same manner; Provided, in all cases where an appraiser fails to attend, and has a legal excuse, he shall not be fined.

SEC. 7. All acts, and parts of an act, entitled "An act passed in the General Assembly of this State, regulating the sale of property," approved February the twenty-seventh, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and forty-one, are hereby repealed. This act to take effect from and after its passage.—
Provided, furthermore, it is made the special duty of the Secretary of State to transmit immediately to the clerks of the courts of the several counties in this State, twenty-copies of this act, for the use of each of said counties. This act shall extend only to contracts made before the first day of January, in the year
of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-three, and to all bonds, notes
and other securities which may hereafter
be given to renew or secure the payment
of debts existing before that time.

SEC. 8. Whenever a judgment shall hereafter be rendered on any contract
bearing date after the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and forty-three, it shall be competent for the de-

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 38

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, January 21, 1843.

Whole Number 38

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY

JOHN TAYLOR,

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,

At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

Terms—$1.50 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

O. C. SKINNER,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor
in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office at the Masonic Hall, Nauvoo.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.

G. B. Holt, Dayton,

G. P. Bell, Hamilton,

Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,

Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
Dec. 31. 1842. no35-3m.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29 if.

TO RENT FOR ONE YEAR OR MORE.

A SMALL tan yard and dwelling house
with both tanner's tools and currying
tools, and a good patent bark mill and good pumps, all in good order. There is 13 vats, 10 of which is in doors. The house has 4 rooms in it and a good bark shed. The lot contains 1 acre and is in the best part of the town. There is a plenty of water; for further information
call on Wm. Field, on the premises. I will let a few cords of bark go.
Nauvoo, Jan. 14, 1843. no37-if.

TO BRICKMAKERS AND LAFOR- ERS.

THE undersigned wishes to contract
for the making of one million of bricks.

Also for the making of 1200 rods of
ditch and turf fence.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

January 13 1843.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's
store.

B. W. TOWNSEND,
A. WASHBURN

Three or four shoe makers wanted at
the above establishment. T. & W.
Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29. if.

MISSOURI MARBLE.—The Hannibal Journal of the 23rd inst. says:—Mr. Atkinson has presented us with some specimens of
stone found in this vicinity, which bears
a great resemblance to marble. One specimen is of a grey color, the others of
a brownish yellow beautifully veined
with dark brown, mingled with angular white spots. Both are susceptible of a fine finish. Mr. A. assures us that the quarries from which he procured them
are of considerable extent, and that the strata are sufficiently large to yield blocks
for steps, lintels, pilasters, monuments,
&c.

POETRY.

For the Times and Seasons.

APOSTROPHE TO DEATH.

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

What art thou, Death!—I've seen thy visage
and
Have heard thy sound—the deep, low, murmring sound
That rises on thy tread!

Thy land is called
A land of shadows; and thy path, a path
Of blind contingency gloominess and fear—
Thy form, comprising all that's terrible;
For all the terrors that have cross'd the earth,
Or crept into its lowest depths, have been Associated with the thoughts of Death!
The tales of old bear record of thy deeds,
For thou hast been in every rank and grade—
In every circumstance—in every place
A visitor. Unceremoniously
Thou'st strode into the mansions of the great,
And rous'd a strain of agonizing grief
Above the rich, embroidered carpetings
That decorate the splendid citadels
Where pomp and fashion reign: where bolts
and bars

To each intruding form; all but thyself,
Preclude admittance: Thou hast added oft
To the abode of wretched poverty
A larger, deeper draught of wretchedness!
The rich and poor, the little and the great
Have shar'd thy bitterness—have seen thy hand!
But thou art chang'd—the terror of thy looks—
The darkness that encompass'd thee, is gone;
There is no frightfulness about thee now.
Intelligence, the everglowing lamp
Of truth, of truth eternal, lighted from
The world on high, has pour'd its brilliant flame
Abroad, to scatter darkness and to chase
The horrors that attended thy approach!
And thou art chang'd—for since the glorious
light

Of revelation shone upon thy path
Thou seem'st no more a hideous monster,
arm'd

With jav'lines, arrows, shafts, and iron barbs,
To fix in everlasting hopelessness
The noblest prospect and the purest hope.
Beyond thy presence and beyond thy reach—
Beyond the precincts of thy dread domain—
Beyond the mansions where in silence lie
The scattered relics of thy ghastly power—
Thou art eternally reflecting coast.

A glorious beacon rears its lofty disk,
And the bright beams of immortality
By revelation's bold reflection giv'n,
Have fall'n upon thee and roll'd back the shades
Which superstition, ignorance and doubt
Had heap'd like ocean's mountain-waves upon
Thy lone, unsocial, hourly-trodden path.
Hope, the bright luminary of the heart,
Is coursing round thee, and her orbit's breadth
Extends beyond the utmost of thy shades
And points her radius to celestial spheres.
The mask that hung in troubled folds around
Thy pulseless bosom, has been torn aside—
Seen as thou art, by inspiration's light,
Thou hast no look the right was need to fear,
With all thy ghastliness—amid the grief
Thy presence brings. I hear a thrilling tone
Of music, sweet as seraph notes that ride
Upon the balmy breath of summer eve.
Art thou a tyrant, holding the black reins
Of destiny that binds the future course
Of man's existence? No; thou art, O Death!
A hallowed porter, charg'd to wait before
The Grave, life's portal to the world on high.

AN ACT, ENTITLED "AN ACT, REGULATING THE SALE OF IM- PROPERTY ON JUDGMENTS AND EX- ECUTIONS."

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That when any execution, fee bill, or attachment shall be issued out of the courts of this State,
whether of record or not, and shall be
levied on any real or personal property,
or both, it shall be the duty of the officer
levying such execution, to summon three disinterested house-holders of the vicinity
where such property is levied on, one of whom may be chosen by the defendant in execution, and one by the plaintiff, the other by the officer; Provided, in all cases, where either or both parties shall fail, refuse or neglect, to make such choice, or in case of a choice if such appraisers shall fail, refuse or neglect, to
make such appraisal, then it shall be the duty of such officer to choose or summon such house-holders for them, when

the said officer shall administer an oath
to them, well and truly to value all such property as may be by him pointed out
to them at its fair and reasonable value,
in ordinary times, and they, or a majority of them, shall make out a list of said
property so valued by them, annexing
the valuation of each article, or species
of property thereto, and sign the same;
which list shall be annexed to the execution, and when such property shall be offered for sale, it shall not be struck off,
unless two-thirds of the valuation thereof
shall be bid for the same; Provided, always, the plaintiff in execution may elect
on what property he will have the same
levied, except the homestead on which the defendant resides, which shall be last taken in execution, and in all other executions issued from any courts not of record, the plaintiff may elect on what personal property he will have the same levied, excepting and reserving, however,
to the defendant in execution, in all cases, such an amount and quantity of property as is now exempt from execution by the laws of this State; And provided, further, that all sales of mortgaged property,
shall be made according to the provisions
of this act, whether the foreclosure be by judgment, decree in chancery, or otherwise: also all sales by commissioners,
masters in chancery, or other persons
acting by authority of any of the courts
of this State, shall be made in strict conformity to this act: furthermore, the provisions of this act, shall extend to all contracts, judgments, deeds of trust, and mortgages, wherein the mortgage has reserved the right to sell the mortgaged premises, executions and debts of every kind and character which now exist, or may hereafter be made, excepting, however, those which are made in default, as
a public officer, executor, administrator,
or guardian, or while acting in any other
fiduciary capacity; Provided, furthermore, in all cases, where any person or persons, may now be, or hereafter become indebted to any school commissioner or trustee, or treasurer of any school
funds, and such persons shall fail to pay
the interest thereon, or after having been notified, shall neglect, fail or refuse to renew his or her note, with additional security, as is now provided by law, then
in such case the property shall be subject to sale without the benefit of the provisions of this act: but in all cases the debtor shall be allowed to stay the collection of the principal, of any sum of money, in any way due to the school fund,
by giving good and sufficient security
and by paying the interest and cost there-
on punctually, as it becomes due, whether judgement has been obtained thereon
or not; Provided, that in all cases, in which the property offered, or to be offered for sale, has been decided by the proper court to have been fraudulently conveyed by the execution debtor, to avoid paying his debts, the same shall be sold
without valuation.

SEC. 2. When any real personal property shall be levied on and appraised in
the manner prescribed by this act, and the
same shall be susceptible of division, no
greater quantity thereof shall be sold than
is sufficient to pay the debt and proper
costs thereon, in accordance with the valuation; and when any execution shall be levied on any house, houses, lot or lots,
or other real estate, situated in any city,
town or village or elsewhere, not susceptible of division, the officer, at the request

or direction of the plaintiff, shall proceed
to offer for sale such an interest in said
property as will satisfy the debt and
costs, and in case of sale the purchaser
shall become tenant in common in said
property; Provided, that in case of the sale of any real estate, the same rights of redemption, shall ensure to the defendant and judgment creditors, as is now
provided by law, any thing in this act to
the contrary, notwithstanding.

SEC. 3. Whenever a ly execution is issued by any of the courts of this State,
whether of record or not, and the same
shall have been levied, and the property,
whether real or personal, fails to sell,
there shall no other execution issue or
costs accrue thereon (for the same debt)
for twelve months, except at the expense
of the plaintiff.

SEC. 4. Whenever any officer, or other person, offers for sale any real or personal property, and the same fails to sell according to the provisions of this act, for the want of bidders, it is hereby made the duty of such officer to re-deliver said property to the defendant.

SEC. 5. All sales of personal property, made by virtue of any execution, or order or decree of any of the courts of this State, whether of record or not, shall be made at the residence of the defendant;
Provided, he or she has a place of residence in the county where such process,
execution or decree exists; except the
defendant otherwise requests; Provided
in all cases, where the defendant fails to give the officer a delivery bond in the manner now prescribed by the laws of this State, said officer in such cases may remove and sell said property where he
may choose, subject to valuation.

SEC. 6. Any person, or persons,
summoned to appraise any property under the provisions of this act, shall be entitled to twenty-five cents each, for all sums where the judgment is one hundred dollars and under; and where said judgment exceeds one hundred dollars, they shall be entitled to fifty cents each, to be added to the costs of suit, and to be paid
as other costs; and for failing to attend
when summoned so to do, shall thereby
forfeit and pay a fine, not undred one dollar nor exceeding three dollars, to be collected before any justice of the peace, as other fines, and paid over to the county
in the same manner; Provided, in all cases where any appraiser fails to attend, and has a legal excuse, he shall not be
fined.

SEC. 7. All acts, and parts of an act,
entitled "An act passed in the General Assembly of this State, regulating the sale of property," approved February the
twenty-seventh, in the year of our Lord,
one thousand eight hundred and forty-
one, are hereby repealed. This act to take effect from and after its passage.—
Provided, furthermore, it is made the special duty of the Secretary of State to transmit immediately to the clerks of the courts of the several counties in this State, twenty copies of this act, for the use of each of said counties. This act shall extend only to contracts made before the first day of January, in the year
of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty-three, and to all bonds, notes
and other securities which may hereafter
be given to renew or secure the payment
of debts existing before that time.

SEC. 8. Whenever a judgment shall hereafter be rendered on any contract
bearing date after the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and forty-
three, it shall be competent for the de-

defendant to file his affidavit, stating that such contract was made in renewal of a previously existing debt, which fact may be denied by any party to the contract by his affidavit, if he alleges the same to be untrue, and either party may produce such other affidavits, as he may think necessary in relation to the facts, and if on hearing the motion, the court shall decide that the contract sued on was made to renew a previously existing debt, as aforesaid, the court shall direct that an endorsement to that effect shall be made on the execution, and such execution shall be subject to the provisions of this law.

This act shall continue in force three years from and after its passage.

SAML. HACKELTON.

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

JOHN MOORE,

Speaker of the Senate.

Approved by the Council January 6th 1843.

THOMAS FORD.

STATE OF ILLINOIS.

Office of Secretary of State.

I, Lyman Trumbull, Secretary of State of the State of Illinois, do hereby certify the foregoing to be a true and perfect copy of the enrolled law deposited in this office.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my name, at Springfield, this 7th day of January, 1843.

LYMAN TRUMBULL.

Secretary of State.

SINAI.

Among all the stupendous works of nature, not a place can be more fitted for the exhibition of Almighty power. I have stood upon the summit of the giant Etna, and looking over the clouds floating beneath it, upon the bold scenery of Sicily and the distant mountains of Calabria; upon the top of the Vesuvius, and looked down upon the waves of the lava, and the ruined and half recovered cities at its foot; and they are nothing compared with the terrific solitude and bleak majesty of Sinai. An observing traveller has well called it 'a perfection of desolation.' Not a tree or shrub, or blade of grass is to be seen upon the bare and rugged sides of innumerable mountains, having their naked summits to the skies, while the crumbling masses of granite all around, and the distant view of the Syria desert, with its boundless waste of land, form the wildest and most dreary, the most terrific and desolate picture that the imagination can conceive. The level surface of the

At one end is a single rock about twenty feet high, on which side the mount the Spirit of God descended, while in the crevice of the rock beneath, his favored servants received the tables of the law. The ruins of the church and convent are still to be seen upon the mountain, to which, long before the convent below was built, monks and hermits used to retire and secluded from the world, sing the praises of God upon the chosen hill. Near this, also in ruins, stands a Mahomedan mosque. The followers of Christ and Mahomed have united in worshipping the true and living God. Under the chapel is a hermit's cell, where, in the iron age of fanaticism the anchorite lived out his days in meditation and prayer.

MORE MORMONS.—The N. O. Picayune of the 28th says: The ship Emerald, from Liverpool last night, brought 248 Mormons, bound for Illinois, and all consigned to Joe Smith. Another ship, with about as many more of the same kidney, is coming up the river.

Emigrants and Mormons.—The Steamer Goddess of Liberty brought up yesterday from New Orleans, 240 English Mormons, whose ultimate destination is Nauvoo, and 124 German emigrants.

A Pickled Orange.—A London paper states that on opening a vase, lately discovered in the ruins of Hierulaneum, the learned Abbe Faciolati found an orange in vinegar. The Romans pickled oranges as we do gherkins. This pickle has been preserved for 1,770 years.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 21, 1843.

The very polite Editor of the Alton Telegraph seems to be no little troubled about the release of (what he is pleased to call) the 'Mormon Impostor.' We quote the following:

'On Saturday quite a sensation was created in this city by the appearance of Jo Smith, the Mormon Prophet, in our midst.

J. Lamborn, the Attorney General, will appear in support to the legality of the warrant issued by the Governor of this State; but from a candid examination of the law, I am satisfied the impostor, Jo Smith, will be discharged. He is clearly not a fugitive from justice within the intent and meaning of both the act of Congress and the constitution of the United States.

'He was attended by a retinue of some fifteen or twenty of as fine looking men as my eyes ever beheld. My great astonishment is, how men possessing the intellectual faculties, refinement of education, and cultivated minds, that most of his body guard apparently do, can be so outrageously blinded, and led captive by imposition, as they are by Jo Smith. As for Joe Smith, his demeanor as far as I could observe was by no means censurable, and he apparently was as unconcerned as to what was passing around him, as though he was a perfect stranger to the whole proceedings.'

We should be pleased to know by what rule of interpretation the editor of the Telegraph finds out that Jo (Joseph) Smith is an impostor, for we can assure the gentleman that if he had taken a lesson from the Prophet, or had associated with those 'intelligent gentlemen' that accompanied him to Springfield, he would have been taught that it was a breach of the rules of polite etiquette; that it was a species of vulgarity, and low blackguardism, and that it was ruinous to the moral character of a gentleman professing to regulate the tone of the public mind, gratuitously to make use of such opprobrious epithets without evidence, testimony, or proof.

But as he has displayed his ignorance, rendered himself culpable, and at the same time acknowledged our intelligence, we may turn perceptor, and shew him by what rule we interpret such things; and if it is necessary that we should use the rod we think it might be useful at the present time, we would remind him of the saying of a wise man, that a 'whip is for the horse, a bridle for the ass, and a rod for the fool's back.'

Concerning the demeanor of Joseph Smith, he admits that he saw nothing censurable, and says that after a candid examination of the law, he is satisfied that the impostor Jo Smith will be discharged; he is clearly not a fugitive from justice within the intent and meaning of both the act of Congress, and the Constitution of the United States.

If Joseph Smith is 'clearly' not a fugitive from justice, and he could see nothing censurable in the gentleman, why is he called an impostor? He tells us that he came to this conclusion after a candid examination of the law.

Now it does appear singular, to us, that a man of his clear understanding, and comprehensive mind, having discovered that Joseph Smith's case had not come under the purview of the law; that there was iniquity somewhere else, and that his 'candor' in the investigation did not lead him to acknowledge that if Joseph Smith was 'clearly' not a fugitive from justice that Gov. Reynolds and Gov. Carlin had clearly stepped beyond the bounds of their executive authority in maliciously and illegally trying to injure an innocent man by stating that he was a fugitive from justice, and illegally prosecuting him, when he clearly was not a fugitive from justice.

We are necessarily led to the following conclusions from his remarks. That because Joseph Smith could not be proven guilty of any crime he is an impostor; but because these two men had violated the law and sought to injure an innocent man they are gentlemen.

We are in the habit of calling men and things by their proper names, and if the term impostor signifies to impose, or cheat we think that those Governors imposed upon Mr. Smith by their assumed executive authority, and that Mr. Smith and the people of this State were cheated by the mal-administration of these Governors. And we also think that when any editor professes to be candid and gives such a partial one-sided view of any case as he has done of this; that he gives his professions the lie, and the public will be very apt to suspect that he is imposing on them, whether he be an impostor or not.

One word more and we have done. The gentleman says that 'he' (Mr. Smith) was attended by some fifteen or twenty of as fine looking men as my eyes ever beheld. My great astonishment is, how men possessing the intellectual faculties, refinement of education and elevated minds that most of his body guards apparently do, can be so outrageously blinded and led captive by imposition as they are by Joe Smith.

Query. Whether are men of refined education, cultivated minds, clear intellectual faculties, and good looking withal, more competent to judge of what is imposture?—or those that are less intelligent, whose minds are not so much cultivated, and who are not so learned, nor as good looking?

MISSOURI.

We have frequently had occasion to speak of the mobocratic spirit, and the lawlessness that prevailed in that State; together with the inhumanity, and barbarity that we as a people have experienced from their hands. Some people have been rather credulous, and have thought it impossible that such cold blooded, butcheries could take place as those referred to by us. The absolute necessity for such a step as the following among their own people, and related by one of their own organs, may remove the scepticism of individuals on that point.

DREADFUL STATE OF PUBLIC FEELING.

The 'Osage Valley,' a paper published at Warsaw, Benton county, Missouri, on the 27th ultimo, contains the proceedings of a public meeting of the citizens of that county, convened for the purpose of expressing their determination and making arrangements to arrest the high handed and murderous conduct of certain persons, whom the meeting represent as having combined, formed themselves into a mob, and proceeded to act against each other, with deadly and increasing hostility. The proceedings also state, that several individuals have already been waylaid and killed, others have been tied up and whipped most horribly and but recently the sheriff and a couple of friends were shot at by several persons, who were concealed behind an ambuscade. Indictments have been found, and arrests and trials have been had, but the laws are regarded as though they were not. The members of the meeting express the belief that, unless the judicial and executive officers of the county be more vigilant and firm in ferreting out the perpetrators of these horrid crimes, and holding them to strict accountability, the worst is yet to come, which in the language of the meeting, will be exterminating collision, or, in other words, a desolating civil war, of the bloodiest character.—[Paris Sent.

We are pleased that our old friend J. B. Backenstas has received the appointment of Clerk of the Circuit Court for the county of Hancock; he is a worthy man, and every way competent for the task; he desired us to inform the public that he had returned to Carthage, and was now prepared to enter upon his official duty.

JUBILEE SONGS.

We suppose that it is generally known that Gen. Wilson Law and Elder Willard Richards composed the one published in the 'Wasp', on their way from Springfield. Since then our well known poetess Miss. Eliza Snow, has composed another, we have them printed on a separate sheet; and for sale at the printing office.

THE SABBATH.—There is something in this consecrated day of which every other is entirely divested. There is a kind of universal stillness lingering around nature's scenery, that tranquilizes every feeling and quiets every ruffled impulse of the heart. A halo of reposing gentleness hovers around every thing we behold—all nature bears the impress of a holy calm upon its face—the soul of man is etherealized and elevated, for the time, above those sordid and groveling desires embedded, by nature, in the human mind—mortals turn with loathing from the avarice of the unfeeling world—the rumbling wheels of busy life are hushed, and motionless—and when the tread of the religiousist, going to, or coming from, his devotions, is heard upon the pavement, it falls with a lightness that scarcely awakens an echo upon the ear of the contented listener. Such is the holy Sabbath—such her quietude—such are her enjoyments—and such the moralizing influence it exerts over the civilized world.—OMER.

TREMENDOUS STORM—SHIP WRECKS—LOSS OF LIFE.

[From the Boston Post, Dec. 1.]

The weather during the part of yesterday was cloudy and the wind variable. In the evening, about six o'clock, a south-east snow storm set in, which continued until about 9 o'clock, when it commenced raining, and the wind, which up to that time had blown moderately, burst forth from E. S. E. with tremendous fury. Many vessels, which were riding at anchor in the harbor, were driven from their moorings, and either dashed against the ends of the wharves or jammed alongside of each other.

At Fort Hill wharf, several small vessels were more or less damaged. A small schooner, the Jane Fish, of St. George's, Me., was driven from her anchor against the wharf, and Nathan Fuller, an elderly sailor, in attempting to leave the vessel, fell between her side and the wharf, and was drowned. The crew of this vessel state that the brig Uncle Sam had been blown adrift, and was then driving about the harbor.

The space between India and Central wharves was filling up fast with drifting wrecks, and these vessels at the ends of these wharves were careening as if their tall masts would turn them over.

The space between this wharf and Central wharf, was also the scene of the most terrible and crashing of drifting wrecks rose, at intervals, above the storm, and might have been heard even at the centre of the city.

At the northern wharves, and, in fact, at all the wharves more or less damage was sustained by a great portion of the shipping. Such was the terrific violence of the gale that it was dangerous for an individual to venture to the ends of the wharves.

We were informed that more than a dozen vessels had been sunk, and that the crews of one or two of them had perished, but the names of the vessels we could not learn. This leads us to hope that such reports are exaggerated.

Perhaps no gale that has visited this place for some time has destroyed so much property in this port in so short a time. We fear that a few days will unfold tales of shipwreck and death along our coast, that will bring pain and sorrow to many a bereaved bosom; for no vessel close in with land could carry sail or ride at anchor, in exposed situations and weather such a tempest.

We have taken no notice of the damage on the land, but, undoubtedly it is considerable—for nothing fragile, exposed to such fury, could escape unscathed.

CHARACTER OF THE PRINCIPAL NATIONS OF EUROPE.

In Religion, the German is skeptical, the Englishman devout, the Frenchman zealous, the Italian ceremonious, the Spaniard a bigot.

In Keeping his Word, the German is faithful, the Englishman safe, Frenchman giddy, the Italian shuffling, the Spaniard a cheat.

In giving advice, the German is slow, the Englishman fearless, the Frenchman precipitate, the Italian nice, the Spaniard circumspect.

In external appearance, the German is large, the Englishman well made, the Frenchman well looking, the Italian middle size, the Spaniard awkward.

In dress, the German is shabby, the Englishman costly, the Frenchman tickle, the Italian ragged, the Spaniard decent.

In manners, the German is clownish, the Englishman barbarous, the Frenchman easy, the Italian polite, and the Spaniard proud.

In keeping a secret, the German forgets what he has been told, the Englishman conceals what he should divulge, and divulges what he should conceal, the Frenchman tells every thing, the Italian is close, the Spaniard mysterious.

In vanity, the German boasts little, the Englishman despises all other nations, the Frenchman flatters every body, the Italian estimates cautiously, the Spaniard is indifferent.

In eating and drinking, the German is a drunkard, the Englishman ludicrous, the Frenchman delicate, the Italian moderate, the Spaniard penurious.

In address, the German looks like a blockhead, the Englishman resembles neither a fool or a wise man, the Frenchman is gay, the Italian is prudent, but looks like a fool, the Spaniard is quite the reverse.

Servants are companions in Germany, obedient in England, masters in France, captives in Italy, submissive in Spain.

The women are housewives in Germany, queens in England, ladies in France, captives in Italy, slaves in Spain.

In courage, the German resembles a bear, the Englishman a lion, the Frenchman an eagle, the Italian a fox, the Spaniard an elephant.

In the sciences, the German is a pendant, the Englishman a philosopher, the Frenchman a smatterer the Italian a professor, the Spaniard a grave thinker.

Magnificence; in Germany the princess, in England the ships, in France the courts, in Italy the churches, and in Spain the armies.

MR. SNYDER AND MR. GIDDINGS.

These two men have unluckily been thrown together at one of the double desks on the floor of the House of Representatives; and Mr. Snyder, (the son of an old patriot Governor Snyder, of Pennsylvania,) remembering Mr. Giddings' petition to divide the Union, has practically enforced the doctrine upon Mr. Giddings, by having a plank put between them on the desk. Mr. Snyder, in this silent way, has spoken almost as emphatic eloquence in our House of Representatives as Cicero did in the Roman Senate, when, demanding the expulsion of Cataline, he said: "Let there be a wall between us and the wicked."

Mr. Giddings, it seems, construed this bar, put between him and the honest representative of Keystone of the Union, into a practice joke, and labelled his side of the board with these two lines of Pope: "Great wit with madness sure is near allied, And thin partitions do their bounds divide."

Mr. Snyder, seeing the part of the wit assigned him by the madman who sat beside him, humored the conceit, by placarding his side of the board thus: This line's the act of mutual concession: This the white side; the other Abolition, White is the emblem of our living God; Black was Cain marked, when driven forth to Nod.

*There seems to be a double entendre in the word concession, which, from the spelling, shows that it is a derivative from the Latin con and cedo meaning sitting together. It is not, therefore, the concession which comes from mutual consent, which is here meant; but rather a sitting together, without mutual consent. At least, it seems Mr. Snyder is as much averse to it, as a majority of the House evinced itself to be, by its vote of the last session against Mr. Giddings.—Globe.

Strange Sickness.—An alarming sickness has broke out among the hemp rotters in Newport, Ky., opposite Cincinnati. Two of them the other day were suddenly taken sick, their symptoms showing great distress in the general functions of the animal economy, and in less than one hour they died, and had turned black, or nearly so. The circumstance has occasioned quite a panic among those engaged in the business.

Milk Sickness.—This fearful disease we learn, rages to some extent in the northern parts of India. People are taken with vomiting, which continues until death. It is generally supposed to be caused by water being impregnated with some mineral; but this fact has never been fully ascertained.

The bilious fever, and the "chills and fever" continue to prevail in Philadelphia, and its vicinity.

ENGLAND AND CHINA.

A treaty is concluded between these two nations, China is to pay to England, within three years, twenty-one millions of dollars. The former throws open to England by the treaty, the ports of Canton, Amoy, Foo choo-foo, Ningpoo and Shanghai. Hong-kong, an island, has been permanently ceded to Britain. The "Liverpool Mail" discourses thus:—The French journals have already raised the question, What is France to gain by the opening of certain new parts in China to the English trade? The Americans in this country are propounding the same inquiry, What are we to get by it?

England has forced upon the Emperor or Government of China certain terms favorable to her trade and commerce.—But are the French or the Americans to participate in these advantages, who have never aided in the slightest degree; but rather the reverse, in acquiring them?

It is not likely; and we do not believe that Sir Robert Peel would sell his victories, and the honors of the British forces so cheap.

In India too, the British have been successful, and the Afghans entirely defeated. Britain is now at liberty to direct her forces to some other quarter.

[Juliet Courier.]

A PROPHECY IN THE YEAR 1008.

Translated from the German Language, by Goff.

When I take a strict examination of the Heavenly bodies, I find in all regions by the movements of the stars, that the mighty empire shall under its present name, continue to exist, until the year A. D. 1796. Then will a hero through manhood and virility, reach the two-headed eagle, and conduct the Empire praiseworthy, and conquer the surrounding nations, with most desperate sway, and continue to conquer all after the 17th century; then he will fall, and a general peace will be established till the year 1827. Then will confusion and rebellion begin in all quarters; then will the Red Lion rise against the two-headed eagle. Then will the White Swan and a powerful Eagle from a dark valley in the West, unite and rise fiercely against him, and rule the Empire many years, till the Almighty God with his unchangeable wisdom will make an end thereof. Then will the prophecy of Daniel go no further; and then will you see the end of Nebuchadnezzar's dream that the end of the world is near at hand.

Signed, F. SEABOLD.
Mezzig, in Germany, Nov. 25, A. D. 1008
[Exchange paper.]

During the current year, up to the 15th of the present month, says the Philadelphia Spirit of the Times, 51,800 emigrants have arrived at New York from Europe, and 9,521 returned. Over 150,000 altogether have landed within the past twelve months in this country.—Plenty of room here—plenty to drink—blue skies—handsome women—noble streams—great mountains—capital storms—nice lightning—and rogues in and out of prison of every description. Great nation ours!

FROM YUCATAN.

There has been a bloody engagement between the Yucatecos and the Mexicans outside the walls of Campeachy. The former lost 150 and the latter 200 men. Both retired from the field to recruit for another engagement.

The Mexican army was decreasing rapidly, their loss from death and desertion, amounting to over 500 since their landing at Champotan.

The schr. Anna Maria, Captain Peters, laden with flour and corn, owned in New Orleans, and sailing under the U. S. flag, was captured by the Mexican fleet as she was entering the port. The steamer Champion, Capt. Hutton, was also captured by the Mexican fleet.

The army of Yucatan was over six thousand strong, and was receiving daily reinforcements from the interior. The enemy asked a capitulation, which was peremptorily denied, the "natives" hoisted a red flag, and expressed their determination to resist the invading force or perish in the attempt.

FIRST LOVE.

How deep—how fervent—and how binding are the emotions of FIRST LOVE! Attachments formed in children, when the feelings are pure, and uncorrupted; when our affections and desires are untrampled and free from the desultory cares and perplexities of life—it is then that the heart is in a condition to realize and return that mutual reciprocity of feelings, which neither time nor circumstances can ever extinguish. They go through life, and as we advance in age, they become stronger, and stronger, and finally become irresistible.

Although we may be separated from the object of our first love, and be debarred the privilege of mingling together in the dry and happy scenes of youth; yet the feelings that were then kindled are too deep ever to be eradicated.

Many hundred miles may separate, and seem to present a formidable barrier between us, yet our thoughts will peregrinate to and dwell upon that delightful spot where the object of our affection resides. Under all circumstances—in prosperity or adversity—in the gay circle or the solitary chamber—in the hum of business or the retirements of solitude, our thoughts are still riveted to the object that called forth the first impressions of love in our bosom. How truly sensitive then must be the remorse—how keen the chagrin of disappointed hopes—when thwarted in our earliest and fond anticipations! The heretofore happy hours which were spent in the full assurance of future felicity, are instantaneously annihilated.—and sadness and grief supply the vacuum. Time, perhaps may to some extent eradicate, but never can obliterate from our memory the delightful emotions of first love

[Greenville Messenger.]

For the Wasp.

A Sting for the Wasp,
Wound off on Tom Sharp's Quill-Wheel Rhapsody Machine.

BY BUZ AWAY-BILLY.

Now sing it, as bell ringers ring it;
For praise is comely
When mobbers are paid off, as robbers,
In coin that's homely.

There's Francis, where the Sangamo dances,
'S a spit-bob of evil;
And Davis, of the Alton 'hot laves,'
'S a mean-pet-devil.

There's Bennett, like a worm eaten rennet,
Has lost his virtue;
And Carlin, like the song of John Darling,
I'm sure won't hurt you.

Though Reynolds, like dogs in their kennels,
May growl vexation.—
Yet Boggs, (oh!) like the Egyptian frogs, (oh!)
'S a sign of damnation.

So sing it, as wood-choppers ping it,
In full animation;
Through Joseph the inhabitants knows of
The end of creation.

*Alton Telegraph and Democratic Review, whose Editor wishes an ex post facto law passed to send Joseph Smith to the Penitentiary as an accessory for shooting Boggs, who might have been shot by his own negro, or shot himself.—He ought to read the Constitution. I own Rooters have been whipped for crowing on Sunday.

Meet! O, meet me, I implore you,
Meet, where most I may adore you;
'Neath the shadow of the bower,
Meet me there at any hour;
Meet me there or where you will—
Meet, and—JAY THAT LITTLE BILL!

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 20TH INST.

Dorson Dunlap 39 years; consumption.

Orin W. Davis 3 years; 2 months, dropsy, in the head.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

DR. CHARLES TIGBEE.

FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.

Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.

Jan. 21, 1843.—3m*

TEETH! TEETH!!

PRESERVE YOUR TEETH!

DR. J. B. BRANCH Surgeon Dentist, (formerly of St. Louis, late of Fort Madison) tenders his professional services to the citizens of Nauvoo, for a few days only.

Prices in conformity with the times in all cases. Perfect satisfaction given or no charge. Examination and advice given gratis.

Room at the Masonic Hall Main St
Jan. 21. no38—1w*

LOST.

IN or about Nauvoo, a leather colored pocket book, containing about three hundred dollars in papers; one note against Lysander M. Davis, and one against Berton Phelps, and one breast pin. The finder will confer a favor on the owner by giving notice at this office, or at Thomas Butterfield's, and he shall be amply rewarded.

SAMUEL PARKER.

January 16, 1843.

no38—

WEAVING.

THE inhabitants of Nauvoo and its vicinity are respectively informed that I have established the weaving business in the north part of the city near Col. Rockwoods; Durphy street, block 6 where all kinds of weaving will be done on the most reasonable terms, and at the shortest notice.

Having lately emigrated from England, and been brought up in that line of business; I flatter myself that I shall be able to give general satisfaction. Call and see.

GEORGE THORP.

Nauvoo January 21.*

NOTICE.

THOSE that have orders that I have given on accounts for labor, or materials for the last year, will bring them in immediately, so that I can settle up my business. J. W. COOLIDGE.
Jan. 16, 1843. no38—

LEATHER LEATHER.

THE subscriber has just received from Cincinnati a large assortment of leather of all kinds, and of the best quality, which will be sold low for cash or hides.

J. BROTHERTON.

Main Street near the Masonic Hall.
Nauvoo January 20 1843. 38-1w*

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of C. B. Street, and M. B. Street of Hancock county, to be declared bankrupts and to be discharged from their debts.

Notice is hereby given, that C. B. Street, and M. B. Street, of Hancock county, have filed their petition in this court to be declared bankrupts, and to be discharged from their debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 6th day of February next, at the district court room, in the town of Kaskaskia in this district as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of January A. D. 1843.

J. C. DOREMUS,

Solicitor for petitioners.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 38-w2.

A LIST OF LETTERS

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock county Ill., January 1st 1843, which if not taken out before the first of April next, will be sent to the general Post Office as dead letters.

N. B. Persons wishing any of the following letters will please say they are advertised or they may not get them.

- | | |
|----------------------|--------------------------------|
| Eliza Averett | Jonathan Crosby |
| Jno Allenon | Emeline Cooper |
| Eliza Atwood | Geo Clyde |
| Saml Alexander | D P Curtis |
| Geo Anderson | 2 O Cook or Ira Rice |
| Jacob Abbott | Charlotte Claword |
| A L Atwood | J S Curtis |
| Richard Ashley | Isaac Chase |
| J C Annis | 3 E W Cunningham |
| Chas Butler | Philo Doble |
| Mr Baun | Isaac Decker |
| C Baldwin | Rachael Danfield |
| M E Bliss | Hiram Dayton |
| Sarah Buckwater | 3 Isaac Davis |
| R Beacher | Freeborn Daniel |
| L Brown | 2 Abram Delony |
| Geo Broffitt | David Diller |
| Jno Battle | Rachael Drollinger |
| J M Broad | Lewis Eager |
| Jno Bills | David Elliot |
| Edmond Bosley | 3 Albert Fellows |
| J G Bgler | Ether Ann Green |
| Arch Bates | Saml G Flagg |
| Lewis Brooks | Cyrus B Fsher |
| Isaac Butterfield | Horace Fisk |
| J H Burt | Geo Foster |
| Dorcas Brown | Jno Fox |
| Ormand Butler | Jas Fisher |
| J Larlow | James Flenigin |
| Patiah Brown | Jacob Fauny |
| P R Bird | Peter Pulmer |
| P D Baily | Levi Gray |
| Eli Blackhurst | Truman Gilbert |
| Eli Brotherton | Patrick Gilmora |
| E L Brown | Ezra Grant |
| Jno Cleminson | 2 Ezra F Grant |
| Dorr Cur is | Jane Ann Green |
| Bahan Clark | Jno P Green |
| Israel Calkins | 2 David Gorlick |
| A Culler | Jno Gines |
| Gardner Clark | Jno F Gleason |
| Stephen Chase | Joshua Grant |
| Eunice Cone | Susanah Godard |
| J W Cummins | Amanda H. bee |
| John Cox | Isaac Houston |
| Jacob Curtis | Elliot Harwell |
| P Clayt n | 2 Deborah Haughton |
| Jacob C evard | Ed Hunter |
| Gre nup Carretters | Jno Huntsman |
| Wm Cross | 2 Jno Hu me |
| Dani C rter | Benj Hoyt |
| Robt Culbertson | James Hurst |
| J R Clark | Saml Henderson |
| Spencer Covert | H J Hunt |
| Sarah Cuff | So omon Hancock |
| Chas Hopains | Adeline Roundy |
| Wm Hale | 2 M Rank |
| J H Holmes | Celestiana Rowley |
| Jno Hatfield | Wm Ridd |
| Alex Hay | G H Rolph |
| Peter Hopkins | E Robinson |
| Joseph Hadlock | Thos Richmond |
| H Herinshaw | Jefferson Ring |
| Dani Hendrix | David Rogers |
| Benj Hill | Wm Robinson |
| Saml W Henderson | Willard Richards |
| Mr Hartley | Dani Russel |
| Eliza Hooper | Andrew Rose |
| James Harper | D H Redfield |
| Joun Harter | Miss Rose |
| Nathan Haskins | Ezra Strong |
| Peter Haws | Henry Standage |
| J M Hemmick | Ro t Shackl on |
| Laura Hendricks | Hiram Smith |
| Jno Harr nton | Moses Smith |
| Thos Hortel | D H Stow |
| J S Johnson | Jane Sharnuck |
| Wm Jones | James Sho well |
| L Johnson | J S Scofield |
| J H Johnson | Wm Smith |
| Homer Jackson | Joseph or Hiram Smith |
| Jacob Johnson | Jacob Strong |
| Elizabeth Johnson | Publisher of Times and Seasons |
| P T Ke ley | Ms Emma Smith |
| G McKenziey | Stiler Serjeant |
| E King | Alex Simpson |
| E Ke logg | Jno Smith |
| David Leimeraux | R Shepherd |
| Gibert Loynd | 2 A W Sherman |
| Abel Lama | Geo S ow |
| Peter Lemon | DT Smith |
| James Long | DS Study |
| H nnah Loveland | 11 W Stay |
| Benj Leland Jr | H H or D Stow |
| Sarah Lancaster | C E Sp neer |
| Jorvis Minor | Joshua Smith |
| Ira Miles or Wm Bent | Jesse McCarroll |
| Jesse McCarroll | Allen Stephens |
| Isaac Morton | Levi Skinner |
| Joseph Mount | Joseph Smith |
| Dani Miller | Bun Tomlinson |
| Saml Merrill | Jno Till |
| L J Murdock | Jno S Twist |
| James Morgan | A Thompson |
| De ilah M. esell | Allen Taylor |
| Younger McCourlin | E P Te rid |
| Geo Montague | Nelson Tu ner |
| Geo Morey | 2 D S Thomas |
| Davis McOlney | Chas Thomas |
| James G Miller | John Tyson |
| Saml Merrick | Jno Taylor |
| Jno Morris | Brown Willie |
| E P Merriam | S F W ller |
| M or E Mechim | Stephen Wilkerson |
| Eliah Martin | H D H We ster |
| Thos J Morgan | Robt Williams |
| R Mayle | Benj S Wilber or Lady |
| Wm Miller | Peace Waggoner |
| Saml McLenathan | Rebecca White |
| J B Noble | 2 D B Walters |
| Peter Nelson | Robt Wright |
| Blinded Nelson | 2 Jno Werthing |

- | | |
|--------------------|------------------------|
| M C Nickerson | Adam Wighton |
| Jno Newman | Alex W ight |
| Rodger Norton | Philip Wo t |
| Laertes Newel | James Wilson |
| Wm Niswanger | Jno Wilkes |
| Patrick Norris | Cynthia Weston |
| J C Owen | Warren Wa lace |
| Rufus Patrick | James Whitaker |
| S Pratt | M B Welton |
| F P Pratt | Ro t Willets |
| Wm C Patten | W J Wilson |
| Nathan or Jonathan | A len Weeks |
| Pac er | Jno Wai er |
| Chester Phillips | 2 R chd Wo then |
| Ada Pierpoint | Jno Weston or B Tomlin |
| E J Pearsons | |
| J F Palmer | B S Wilber |
| J W Phippen | Stephen Wilkerson |
| Jno P ex | Jon Wo mouth |
| Wm Pan | David Wood |
| Horace Roberts | P W Webb |
| Mer tt Rockwell | N A West |
| Stephen Reach | Joseph Young |
| James Rodeback | Alphonzo Young |
| Lewis Robison | Michael Yaman |

SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic. no35.

NO CURE NO PAY.

I propose to cure smoking chimneys by the use of 'Hammond's Patent No Cure No Pay.' There is no mistake in this patent; call and examine Mr. Wilford Woodruff's, under the Printing Office, who is authorized to make contracts for me. I shall return to the city about the 3rd day of next month, and will attend to all persons who may desire their chimneys to draw well.

ALEX. SYMPSON. no35-1f.

NEW BOOT AND SHOE ESTABLISHMENT.

THE subscriber respectfully informs the citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has commenced the above named business, on Mulholland St., south east corner of the Temple square. All kinds of work done on the shortest notice and most reasonable terms. Also intends to keep constantly on hand all kinds of ready made work. Most kinds of produce taken in exchange for Boots and Shoes.

M. ADAMS. no35-1f.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at, J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-1f.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

- | | |
|---|--|
| J. B. Backenstos, Cathage, Hancock co. Ill. | |
| Joseph John-on, Ramus | |
| J. Salsbery, Plymouth. | |
| Har ow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike | |
| L. R. Cliffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill. | |
| Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill. | |
| Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy. | |
| IOWA TERRITORY. | |
| Daniel S. Davis, Montrose. | |
| Levi Moffet, Augusta. | |
| Elias Smith, Nashville. | |
| PENNSYLVANIA. | |
| Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg. | |
| John E. Pag e, Pittsburgh. | |
| B. Winchester, Philadelphia. | |
| NEW JERSEY. | |
| Abraham Burtis, New Egypt. | |
| Jam a Curtis, Horners Town. | |
| W. I. Appleby, Rectess Town. | |
| Israel Ivins, Toms River. | |
| MASSACHUSETTS. | |
| Erastus Snow, Salem. | |
| Freeman Nickerson, Boston. | |
| MICHIGAN. | |
| S. S. Holmes, Lapiet. | |
| OHIO. | |
| John Johnson, Kirt and. | |
| Charles Thompson, Batavia. | |
| L. E. Foster, city of New York. | |

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by an assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street. Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Glass, Putty, School, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28; 1842. 31-1f.

SHERMAN'S

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.
These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.
This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents.) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y1.) J. SNIDER, Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

NOTICE.

The subscribers have entered into co-partnership, for the purpose of publishing the "Times and Seasons," and the "Wasp;" and of carrying on the business of Printing, Stereotyping, Book binding, Book selling and everything connected with the above named branches of business.

N. B. All business connected with the firm will be done in the name of TAYLOR, & WOODRUFF. Nauvoo, Oct. 1st. 1842.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing, Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,

in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	whole	bound	plain	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	hf	bound	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	hf	bound	plain	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

BRADFORD & BROWN, Commission and Forwarding Merchants, Poylras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans, Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis. A. H. Mathews, Warsaw. Whitman & Springer, Cincinnati.

December 10, 1842. no32-

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent HIRAM KIMBALL. Nauvoo January 13 1843.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 39

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Saturday, January 29, 1843.

Whole Number 39

THE WASP.

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY SATURDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,
At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING.
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

G. C. SKINNER,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor
in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office with G. Hills, Esq., a few rods south east of the Temple.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.
G. B. Holt, Dayton.
G. P. Bell, Hamilton.
Wm. Burney, Cincinnati.
Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29 tf.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE.

FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.

Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.

Jan. 21, 1843.—3m*

TO RENT FOR ONE YEAR OR MORE.

A SMALL tan yard and dwelling house
with both tanner's tools and currying
tools, and a good patent bark mill and good pumps, all in good order. There is 13 vats, 10 of which is in doors. The house has 4 rooms in it and a good bark shed. The lot contains 1 acre and is in the best part of the town. There is a plenty of water; for further information
call on Wm. Field, on the premises. I will let a few cords of bark go.

Nauvoo, Jan. 14, 1843. no37-tf.

TO BRICKMAKERS AND LABORERS.

THE undersigned wishes to contract
for the making of one million of bricks.

Also for the making of 1200 rods of
ditch and turf fence.

HIRAM-KIMBALL.

January 13 1843.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's
store.

B. W. TOWNSEND,

A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at
the above establishment. T. & W.
Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29 tf.

NOTICE.

THOSE that have orders, or have given on accounts for labor, or materials for the last year, will bring them
in immediately, so that I can settle up my business. J. W. COOLIDGE.

Jan. 16, 1843.

no38-

Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Illinois.

December term A. D. 1842.

Before the Honorable NATHANIEL POPE, Presiding Judge.EX-PARTE JOSEPH SMITH,
ON HABEAS CORPUS.J. BUTTERFIELD AND B.
S. EDWARDS, COUNSELLORS
FOR SMITH.
J. LAMBORN, ATTORNEY
GENERAL FOR THE STATE OF ILLINOIS.

This case came before the Court upon a return to a writ of Habeas Corpus, which was issued by this court on the 31st of December, 1842, upon a petition for a habeas corpus on the relation of Joseph Smith, setting forth that he was arrested and in custody of William F. Elkin, Sheriff of Sangamon county, upon a warrant issued by the Governor of the State of Illinois, upon the requisition of the Governor of the State of Missouri, demanding him to be delivered up to the Governor of Missouri, as a fugitive from justice; that his arrest as aforesaid was under color of a law of the United States, and was without the authority of law in this, that he was not a fugitive from justice, nor had he fled from the State of Missouri.

Afterwards on the same day, the Sheriff of Sangamon county returned upon the said Habeas corpus, that he detained the said Joseph Smith in custody by virtue of a warrant issued by the Governor of the State of Illinois upon the requisition of the Governor of the State of Missouri, made on the affidavit of L. W. Boggs, —copies of the said affidavit, requisition and warrant were annexed to the said return in the words and figures following:—

"State of Missouri,) County of Jackson.) This day personally appeared before me, Samuel Weston, a Justice of the Peace within and for the County of Jackson, the subscriber, Lithburn W. Boggs, who being duly sworn, both depose and say, that on the night of the 6th day of May 1842, while sitting in his dwelling in the town of Independence, in the County of Jackson, he was shot with intent to kill, and that his life was desperately endangered for several days; and that he believes, and has good reason to believe from evidence and information now in his possession, that Joseph Smith, commonly called the Mormon Prophet, was accessory before the fact of the intended murder; and that the said Joseph Smith is a citizen or resident of the State of Illinois; and that the said document hereto annexed to the Governor of the State of Missouri to make a demand on the Governor of the State of Illinois, to deliver the said Joseph Smith, commonly called the Mormon Prophet, to some person authorized to receive and convey him to the State and county aforesaid, there to be dealt with according to law.

LILURN W. BOGGS.

Sworn to and subscribed before me, this 20th day of July, 1842.

SAMUEL WESTON, J. P.

"The Governor of the State of Missouri,
To the Governor of the State of Illinois,
GREETING.

Whereas it appears by the annexed document which is hereby certified to be authentic, that one Joseph Smith is a fugitive from justice, charged with being accessory before the fact to an assault with intent to kill, made by one O.
P. Rockwell, on Lithburn W. Boggs, in this State, and it is presented to the Executive authority of this State, his fled to the State of Illinois;

Now, therefore, I, Thomas Ford, Governor of the said State of Missouri, by virtue of the authority in me vested by the Constitution and laws of the United States, do hereby present and demand the surrender and delivery of the said Joseph Smith to Edward R. Ford, who is hereby appointed as the agent to receive the said
Joseph Smith on the part of this State.

In testimony whereof, &c.

"The People of the State of Illinois, to the Sheriff of Sangamon county, GREETING:

"Whereas, it has been made known to me by the Executive authority of the State of Missouri, that one Joseph Smith, stands charged by the affidavit of one Lithburn W. BOGGS, made on the 10th day of July, 1842, at the county of Jackson, in the State of Missouri, before Samuel Weston, a Justice of the Peace, within and for the county of Jackson aforesaid, with being accessory before the fact to an assault with an intent to kill, made by one O. P. Rockwell, on Lithburn W. Boggs, on the night of the 6th day of May, 1842, at the county of Jackson, in said State of Missouri, and that the said Joseph Smith had fled from the justice of said State, and taken refuge in the State of Illinois;

Now, therefore, I, Thomas Ford, Governor of the State of Illinois, pursuant to the Constitution and laws of the United States, and of this State, do hereby command you to arrest and apprehend the said Joseph Smith, if he be found within the limits of the State aforesaid, and cause him to be safely kept and delivered to the custody of Edward R. Ford, who has been duly constituted the agent of the said State of Missouri, to receive said fugitive from the justice of said State, he paying all fees and charges for the arrest and apprehension of said Joseph Smith, and made due return to the Executive Department of this State, the manner in which this writ may be executed.

"In testimony whereof," &c.

The case was set for hearing on the 4th day of January, 1843, on which day Josiah Lamborn, Attorney General of the State of Illinois, appeared, and moved to dismiss the proceedings, and filed the following objection to the jurisdiction of the Court, viz:

"1st. The arrest and detention of Smith was not under or by color of authority of the United States, or of any officers of the United States, but under and by color of authority of the State of Illinois, by the officers of Illinois.

"2d. When a fugitive from justice is arrested by authority of the Governor of any State, upon the requisition of the Governor of another State, the courts of justice, neither State or Federal, have any authority or jurisdiction to enquire into any facts behind the writ."

The counsel of the said Joseph Smith then offered to read in evidence affidavits of several persons, showing conclusively that the said Joseph Smith was at Nauvoo, in the County of Hancock and State of Illinois, on the whole of the 6th and 7th days of May, in the year 1842, and on the evenings of those days, more than three hundred miles distant from Jackson County, in the State of Missouri, where it is alleged that the said Boggs was shot, and that he had not been in the State of Missouri at any time between the 10th day of February and the 1st day of July, 1842, the said persons having been with him during the whole of that period.—
That on the 6th day of May aforesaid, he attended an officer's drill at Nauvoo aforesaid, in the presence of a large number of people, and on the 7th day of May aforesaid he reviewed the Nauvoo Legion in presence of many thousand people.

The reading of these affidavits was objected to by the Attorney General of the State of Illinois, on the ground that it was not competent for Smith to impeach or contradict the return to the Habeas Corpus. It was contended by the counsel of the said Smith, 1st, That he had a right to prove that the return was untrue.

2d, That the said affidavits did not contradict the said return, as there was no averment under oath in said return that the said Smith was in Missouri at the time of the commission of the alleged crime or had fled from the justice of that State. The Court decided that the said affidavits should be read in evidence, subject to all objections; and they were read accordingly.

The cause was argued by J. Butterfield and B. S. Edwards, for Smith, and by Josiah Lam-born, Attorney General of the State of Illinois, contra.

J. Butterfield, counsel for Smith, made the following points:—

1. This court has jurisdiction.

The requisition purports on its face to be made, and the warrant to be issued, under the Constitution and laws of the United States, regulating the surrender of fugitives from justice.—2d sec. 4th article Const. U. S.—1st sec.
of the act of Congress of 12th Feb. 1793.

When a person's rights are invaded under a law of the United States he has no remedy except in the courts of the United States.—2d sec.
3rd article Const. U. S.—12th Wend. 325.—16
Pet. 542.

The whole power in relation to the delivering up of fugitives from justice and labor, has been delegated to the United States, and Congress have regulated the manner and form in which it shall be exercised. The power is exclusive. The State Legislatures have no right to interfere, and if they do, their acts are void.
—2d and 3d clause of 2d sec. 4th article Const.
U. S.—2d vol. laws U. S. 331.—16 Pet. 617—
15, 623.—4th Wheaton's Rep. 122, 193—12, Wend. 212.

All courts of the United States are authorized to issue writs of Habeas Corpus when the prisoner is confined under or by color of authority of the United States.—Act of Congress of Sept.
24th, 1789, Sec. 14. 2d condensed 33.—3d
Cranch 447. 3d Pet. 123.

2. The return to the Habeas Corpus is not certain and sufficient to warrant the arrest and transportation of Smith.

In all cases on Habeas Corpus previous to indictment, the court will look into the depositions before the Magistrate, and though the commitment be full and in form, yet if the testimony prove no crime, the court will discharge
Ex-parte.—Taylor 5th, Cowen 50.

The affidavit of Boggs does not show that Smith was charged with any crime committed by him in Missouri, nor that he was a fugitive from justice.

If the commitment be for a matter for which by law the prisoner is not liable to be punished, the court must discharge him.—3. Bac. 434.

The Executive of this State has no jurisdiction over the person of Smith to transport him to Missouri, unless he has fled from that State.

3. The prisoner has a right to prove facts not repugnant to the return, and even to go behind the return and contradict it, unless committed under a judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction.—3d Bacon 435, 438.—3d Peters 202.—Gale's Rev. Laws of Ill. 323.

The testimony introduced by Smith at the hearing, showing conclusively that he was not a fugitive from justice, is not repugnant to the return.

J. Lamborn, Attorney General of the State of Illinois, in support of the points made by him, cited 2d Condensed Rep. 37; Gordon's Digest, 73; Gale's Statutes of Illinois 315;
Conkling 85; 9th Wendell 212.

And afterwards, on the 5th day of January
1843, Judge POPE delivered the following

OPINION:

The importance of this case, and the consequences which may flow from an erroneous precedent, affecting the lives and liberties of our citizens, have impelled the court to bestow upon it the most anxious consideration. The able arguments of the Counsel for the respective parties have been of great assistance in the examination of the important question arising in this cause.

When the patriots and wise men who framed our Constitution were in anxious deliberation to form a perfect union among the states of the confederacy, two great sources of discord presented themselves to their consideration: the commerce between the States, and fugitives from justice and labor. The border collisions in other countries had been seen to be a fruitful source of war and bloodshed, and most wisely did the constitution confer upon the National Government the regulation of those matters, because of its exemption from the excited passions awakened by conflicts between neighboring States, and its ability alone to adopt a uniform rule, and establish uniform laws among all the States in those cases.

This case presents the important question arising under the constitution and laws of the United States, whether a person charged with a crime, which if he ever committed, was committed in the State of Illinois; whether he can be transported to Missouri, as a fugitive from justice, when he has never fled from that State.

Joseph Smith is before the court on habeas corpus, directed to the Sheriff of Sangamon County State of Illinois. The return shows that he is in custody under a warrant from the Executive of Illinois, professedly issued in pursuance of the constitution and laws of the United States, and of the State of Illinois, ordering said Smith to be delivered to the agent of the Executive of Missouri, who had demanded him as a fugitive from justice, under the 2d section, 4th article of the Constitution of the United States, and the act of Congress passed to carry into effect that article. The article is in these words, viz: "A person charged in any State with Treason, Felony, or other crime, who shall flee from justice and be found in another State, shall on demand of the Executive authority of the State from which he fled, be delivered up to be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime." The act of Congress made to carry into effect this article, directs that the demand be made on the Executive of the State where the offender is found, and prescribes the proof to support the demand, viz:
Indictment or affidavit.

The Court deemed it respectful to inform the Governor and Attorney General of the State of Illinois, of the action upon the habeas corpus;
on the day appointed for the hearing, the Attorney General for the State of Illinois, appeared, and denied the jurisdiction of the Court to grant the Habeas Corpus.

1st. Because the warrant was not issued under colour or by authority of the United States, but by the State of Illinois.

2d. Because no habeas corpus can issue in this case from either the Federal or State courts to enquire into facts behind the writ. In support of the first point, a law of Illinois was read, declaring that whenever the Executive of any other State shall demand of the Executive of this State, any person, as a fugitive from justice, and shall have complied with the requisition of the act of Congress in that case made and provided, it shall be the duty of the Executive of this State to issue his warrant to apprehend the said fugitive, &c. It would seem that this act does not purport to confer any additional power upon the Executive of this State independent of the power conferred by the Constitution and laws of the United States, but to make it the duty of the Executive to obey and carry into effect the act of Congress. The warrant on its face purports to be issued in pursuance of the Constitution and laws of the United States, as well as of the State of Illinois. To maintain the position that this warrant was not issued under color or by authority of the laws of the United States, it must be proved, that the United States could not confer the power on the executive of Illinois. Because if Congress could and did confer it, no act of Illinois could take it away, for the reason that the Constitution and laws of the United States passed in pursuance of it, and treaties, are the supreme law of the land; and the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any thing in the Constitution or Laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding. This is enough to dispose of that point. If the Legislature of Illinois, as is probable, intended to make it the duty of the Governor to exercise the power granted by Congress, and no more, the Executive would be acting by authority of the United States. It may be that the Legislature of Illinois, appreciating the importance of the proper execution of those laws, and doubting whether the Governor could be punished for refusing to carry them into effect, deemed it prudent to impose it as a duty, the neglect of which would expose him to impeachment. If it intended more, the law is unconstitutional and void.—16 Peters 617 Prigg vs. Pennsylvania.

In supporting the second point the Attorney General seemed to urge that there was greater sanctity in a warrant issued by the Governor, than by an inferior officer. The Court cannot assent to this distinction. This is a Government of laws, which prescribes a rule of action, as obligatory upon the Governor as upon the most obscure officer. The character and purposes of the habeas corpus are greatly misunderstood by those who suppose that it does not review the acts of an Executive Functionary; all who are familiar with English history must know that it was extorted from an arbitrary monarch and that it was hailed as a second Magna Charta, and that it was to protect the subject from arbitrary imprisonment by the King and his minions, which brought into existence that great Palladium of liberty in the latter part of the reign of Charles the Second. It was indeed a magnificent achievement over arbitrary power. Magna Charta established the principles of liberty; the Habeas Corpus protected them. It matters not how great or obscure the prisoner, how great or obscure the prison-keeper, this munificent writ, wielded by an independent Judge, reaches all. It penetrates, alike the Royal Towers and the local prisons, from the garret to the secret recesses of the dungeon. All doors fly open at its command, and the shackles fall from the limbs of prisoners of State as readily as from those committed by subordinate officers. The warrant of the King and his Secretary of State could claim no more exemption from that searching enquiry. "The cause of his caption and detention," than a warrant granted by a justice of the peace. It is contended that the United States, is a government of granted powers, and that no Department of it can exercise powers not granted. This is true. But the grant is to be found in the 2d section of the 3d article of the Constitution of the United States.—"The Judicial power shall extend to all cases in law or equity, arising under this Constitution, the laws of the United States, and treaties made and which shall be made under their authority."

The matter under consideration presents a case arising under the 2d section, 4th article of the Constitution of the United States, and the act of Congress of February 12th, 1793, to carry it into effect. The Judiciary act of 1789 confers on this Court (indeed on all the Courts of the United States,) power to issue the writ of Habeas Corpus, when a person is confined "under color of or by the authority of the United States." Smith is in custody under color of, and by authority of the 2d sec. 4th art. of the Constitution of the United States. As to the instrument employed or authorized to carry into effect the Constitution (as he derives from it the authority to issue the warrant,) he must be regarded as acting by the authority of the United States. The power is not official in the Governor, but personal. It might have been granted to any one else by name, but considerations of convenience and policy recommended the selection of the Executive, who never dies. The citizens of the States are citizens of the U. States; hence the U. States are as much bound to afford them protection in their sphere, as the States are in theirs.

This Court has jurisdiction. Whether the State Courts have jurisdiction or not, this Court is not called upon to decide.

The return of the Sheriff shows that he has arrested and now holds in custody Joseph Smith, in virtue of a warrant issued by the Governor of Illinois, under the 2d section of the 4th article of the Constitution of the United States, relative to fugitives from justice, and the act of Congress passed to carry it into effect. The article of the Constitution does not designate the person upon whom the demand for the fugitive shall be made; nor does it prescribe the proof upon which he shall act. But Congress has done so. The proof is "an indictment or affidavit," to be certified by the Governor demanding. The return brings before the Court the warrant, the demand and the affidavit. The material part of the latter is in these words, viz:—"Lilburn W. Boggs, who being duly sworn, doth depose and say, that on the night of the sixth day of May, 1842, while sitting in his dwelling in the town of Independence, in the county of Jackson, he was shot with intent to kill, and that his life was destroyed by the said Joseph Smith, who believes and has good reason to believe from evidence and information now in his possession, that Joseph Smith, commonly called the Mormon Prophet, was accessory before the fact of the intended murder, and that the said Joseph Smith is a citizen or resident of the State of Illinois." This affidavit is certified by the Governor of Missouri to be authentic. The affidavit being thus verified, furnished the only evidence upon which the Governor of Illinois could act. Smith presented affidavits proving that he was not in Missouri at the date of the shooting of Boggs. This testimony was objected to by the Attorney General of Illinois, on the ground that the Court could not look behind the return. The Court deems it unnecessary to decide that point, inasmuch as it thinks Smith entitled to his discharge for defect in the affidavit. To authorize the arrest in this case the affidavit should have stated distinctly, 1st That Smith had committed a crime. 2d, That he committed it in Missouri.

It must appear that he fled from Missouri to authorize the Governor of Missouri to demand him, as none other than the Governor of the State from which he fled can make the demand. He could not have fled from justice, unless he committed a crime, which does not appear. It must appear that the crime was committed in Missouri to warrant the Governor of Illinois in ordering him to be sent to Missouri for trial. The 2d section, 4th article, declares he shall be removed to the State having jurisdiction of the crime.

As it is not charged that the crime was committed by Smith in Missouri, the Governor of Illinois could not cause him to be removed to that State, unless it can be maintained that the State of Missouri can entertain jurisdiction of crimes committed in other States. The affirmative of this proposition was taken in the argument with a zeal indicating sincerity. But no adjudged case or dictum was adduced in support of it. The Court conceives that none can be. Let it be tested by principle.

Man in a state of nature is a sovereign, with all the prerogatives of King, Lords and Commons. He may declare war and make peace, and as nations often do who "feel power and forget right," may oppress, rob and subjugate his weaker and unoffending neighbors. He unites in his person the legislative, judicial and executive power—"can do no wrong," because there is none to hold him to account. But when he unites himself with a community, he lays down all the prerogatives of sovereign (except self-defence,) and becomes a subject. He owes obedience to its laws and the judgments of its tribunals, which he is supposed to have participated in establishing, either directly or indirectly. He surrenders also, the right of self-redress. In consideration of all which, he is entitled to the aid of that community to defend him from wrongs. He takes upon himself no allegiance to any other community, so owes it no obedience, and therefore cannot disobey it. None other than his own sovereign can prescribe a rule of action to him. Each sovereign regulates the conduct of its subjects, and they may be punished upon the assumption that they know the rule and have consented to be governed by it. It would be a gross violation of the social compact, if the State were to deliver up one of its citizens to be tried and punished by a foreign State, to which he owes no allegiance, and whose laws were never binding on him. No State can or will do it.

In the absence of the constitutional provision, the same of Missouri would hold of this subject in the same relation to the State of Illinois, that Spain does to England. In this particular the States are independent of each other. A criminal, fugitive from the one State to the other, could not be claimed as of right to be given up. It is most true as mentioned by writers on the laws of nations that every State is responsible to its neighbors for the conduct of its citizens so far as their conduct violates the principles of good neighborhood. So it is among private individuals. But for this, the inviolability of territory, or private dwelling, could not be maintained. This obligation creates the right, and makes it the duty of the State to impose such restraints upon the citizen as they

It was in the performance of this duty, that the United States passed laws to restrain citizens of the United States from setting on foot and fitting out military expeditions against their neighbors. While the violators of this law kept themselves within the United States, their conduct was cognizable in the courts of the United States, and not of the offended State, even if the means provided had assisted in the invasion of the foreign State. A demand by the injured State upon the United States for the offenders, whose operations were in their own country, would be answered, that the United States' laws alone could act upon them, and that as a good neighbor it would punish them.

It is the duty of the State of Illinois, to make it criminal in one of its citizens to aid, abet, counsel, or advise, any person to commit a crime in her sister State,—any one violating the law would be amenable to the laws of Illinois, executed by its own tribunals. Those of Missouri, could have no agency in his conviction and punishment. But if he shall go into Missouri, he owes obedience to her laws, and is liable before her courts, to be tried and punished for any crime he may commit there, and a plea that he was a citizen of another State, would not avail him. If he escape, he may be surrendered to Missouri for trial. But when the offence is perpetrated in Illinois, the only right of Missouri, is, to insist that Illinois, compel her citizens to forbear to annoy her. This she has a right to expect—for the neglect of it nations go to war and violate territory.

The Court must hold that where a necessary fact is not stated in the affidavit, it does not exist. It is not averred that Smith was accessory before the fact, in the State of Missouri, nor that he committed a crime in Missouri; therefore he did not commit the crime in Missouri,—did not flee from Missouri to avoid punishment.

Again, the affidavit charges the shooting on the 6th of May in the County of Jackson and State of Missouri, "that he believes and has good reason to believe, from evidence and information now (then) in his possession, that Joseph Smith was accessory before the fact, and is a resident or citizen of Illinois." There are several objections to this. Mr. Boggs having the "evidence and information in his possession," should have incorporated it in the affidavit to enable the Court to judge of the sufficiency to support his belief. Again, he swears to a legal conclusion when he says that Smith was accessory before the fact. What acts constitute a man an accessory in a question of law are not always of easy solution. Mr. Boggs' opinion then, is not authority. He should have given the facts. He should have shown that they were committed in Missouri, to enable the Court to test them by the laws of Missouri, to see if they amounted to a crime. Again, the affidavit is fatally defective in this, that Boggs swears to his belief.

The language in the Constitution is "charged with felony, or other crime." Is the Constitution satisfied with a charge upon suspicion? It is to be regretted that no American adjudged case has been cited to guide the Court in expounding this article. Language is ever interpreted by the subject matter. If the object were to arrest a man near home, and there were fears of escape, if the movement to detain him for examination were known, the word charged might warrant the issuing of a capias on suspicion. Ruyard (reported in Skiff 676) was committed to Newgate for refusing to give bail for his good behavior, and was brought before Common Pleas on Habeas Corpus. The return was that he had been complained of for exciting the subjects to disobedience of the laws against seditious convalescents, and upon examination they found cause to suspect him. Vaughan, Chief Justice Tyrrel and Archer against Wild held "the return insufficient, 1st, because it did not appear but that he might abet frequenters of 'conventicles in the way the law allows. 2d, 'To say that he was complained of or was examined, is no proof of his guilt. And then to say that he had cause to suspect him is too cautious; for who can tell what they count a cause of suspicion, and how can that ever be tried? At this rate they would have arbitrary power upon their own allegation, to commit whom they pleased."

From this case it appears that suspicion does not warrant a commitment, and that all legal intendments are to avail the prisoner. That the return is to be most strictly construed in favor of liberty. If suspicion in the foregoing case did not warrant a commitment in London by its officers, of a citizen of London, might not the objection be urged with greater force against a commitment of a citizen of our State to be transported to another on suspicion? No case can arise demanding a more searching scrutiny into the evidence, than in cases arising under this part of the constitution of the U. States. It is proposed to deprive a freeman of his liberty; to deliver him into the custody of strangers, to be transported to a foreign State, to be arraigned for trial before a foreign tribunal, governed by laws unknown to him; separated from his friends, his family and his witnesses, unknown and unknowing. Had he an imman-

Such a spectacle is appalling enough to challenge the strictest analysis. The framers of the Constitution were not insensible of the importance of courts possessing the confidence of the parties. They therefore provided that citizens of different States, might resort to the federal courts in civil causes. How much more important that the criminal have confidence in his Judge and Jury? Therefore, before the capias is issued, the officers should see that the case is made out to warrant it.

Again, Boggs was shot on the 6th of May. The affidavit was made on the 20th of July following. Here was time for enquiry, which would confirm into certainty or dissipate his suspicions. He had time to collect facts to be had before a grand jury or be incorporated in his affidavit. The Court is bound to assume that this would have been the course of Mr. Boggs, but that his suspicions were light and unsatisfactory.

The affidavit is insufficient, 1st, Because it is not positive. 2, Because it charges no crime. 3, It charges no crime committed in the State of Missouri. Therefore he did not flee from the justice of the State of Missouri, nor has he taken refuge in the State of Illinois.

The proceedings in this affair from the affidavit to the arrest affords a lesson to Governors and judges whose action may hereafter be invoked in cases of this character.

The affidavit simply says that the affiant was shot with intent to kill, and he believes that Smith was accessory before the fact to the intended murder, and is a citizen or resident of the State of Illinois. It is not said who shot him, or that the person was unknown.

The Governor of Missouri in his demand calls Smith a fugitive from justice, charged with being accessory before the fact to an assault with intent to kill, made by one O. P. Rockwell, on Lilburn W. Boggs, in this State [Missouri]—This Governor expressly refers to the affidavit as his authority for that statement. Boggs in his affidavit does not call Smith a fugitive from justice, nor does he state a fact from which the Governor had a right to infer it. Neither does the name of O. P. Rockwell appear in the affidavit, nor does Boggs say Smith fled. Yet the Governor says he has fled to the State of Illinois. But Boggs only says he is a citizen or resident of the State of Illinois.

The Governor of Illinois responding to the demand of the Executive of Missouri, for the arrest of Smith, issues his warrant for the arrest of Smith, reciting that "whereas Joseph Smith stands charged by the affidavit of Lilburn W. Boggs with being accessory before the fact to an assault with intent to kill, made by one O. P. Rockwell on Lilburn W. Boggs, on the night of the 6th day of May, 1842, at the county of Jackson, in said State of Missouri, and that the said Joseph Smith has fled from the justice of said State, and taken refuge in the State of Illinois."

Those facts do not appear by the affidavit of Boggs. On the contrary, it does not assert that Smith was accessory to O. P. Rockwell, nor that he had fled from the justice of the State of Missouri, and taken refuge in the State of Illinois.

The Court can alone regard the facts set forth in the affidavit of Boggs, as having any legal existence. The mis-recitals and over statements in the requisition and warrant, are not supported by oath, and cannot be received as evidence to deprive a citizen of his liberty, and transport him to a foreign State for trial. For these reasons Smith must be discharged.

At the request of J. Butterfield, counsel for Smith, it is proper to state in justice to the present Executive of the State of Illinois, Governor Ford, that it was admitted on the argument, that the warrant which originally issued upon the said requisition, was issued by his predecessor; that when Smith came to Springfield to surrender himself up upon that warrant, it was in the hands of the person to whom it had been issued at Quincy in this State; and that the present warrant, which is a copy of the former one, was issued at the request of Smith, to enable him to test its legality by writ of Habeas Corpus.

Let an order be entered that Smith be discharged from his arrest.

THE WASP.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 28, 1843.

MORMONISM AND THE EDITOR OF THE ALTON TELEGRAPH.

"Answer a fool according to his folly, lest he be wise in his own conceit."—[Solomon.]

"It will be recollected, that the question of Joe Smith's having procured Rockwell to commit the dastardly and cold-blooded act, of attempting, under the cover of night, to assassinate Gov. Boggs, did not at all come up in this investigation; but he was discharged upon the broad principle that he was not a fugitive from justice, within the meaning and contemplation of the act of Congress, and the Constitution of the United States. There is, therefore, but one course to be pursued, and that is for the Legislature of this State, by legal enactment, to provide a punishment, commensurate with the crime committed, and that should be imprisonment for life, in solitary confinement in the Penitentiary of the State. Joe Smith, for the time being, has escaped that punishment he so richly merits, but a righteous retribution will yet be visited upon him. No man, whose hands are stained with the blood of a fellow mortal, can successfully elude punishment. The day of his visitation upon him may be far distant, but arrive it certainly will."—[Alton Telegraph.]

The editor of the Telegraph seems to be quite in a quandary about Joseph Smith; poor fellow, we are sorry for him; we are very much afraid that he is tainted with lunacy; he would have Joe Smith either shot, or hung, or drowned, or beheaded, or imprisoned, he don't know what; but at once turns dictator and would have the Legislature make an ex post facto law; to meet his particular case and that should be in the Penitentiary for life; but for what reason? what has Joseph Smith done? Nothing that he or any other man can prove against him. What then is the difficulty? It would seem there was a league made between his Highness, Mr. Editor, and his Ex-Excellency Joseph Duncan, in a political campaign against Mormonism; it appears that the agreement was mutual. Ex-Gov. Duncan was to slander the Mormons with his tongue, and our worthy editor with his pen, they were to make political capital out of the Mormons, and cry arson! murder! treason! bloodshed! desolation! Joe Smith and the Mormons! and then they would have a great majority; Duncan was to be Governor, and his royal highness to have that place. But lo! and behold! when they put their finger upon it, it was like Paddy's flea, it was not there. But having been dealing so long in blood, murder, &c., he is a little

Hypo'd, and actually thinks that to be true, which he formally knew to be a lie, and having in his frantic imagination, raised a retinue of hobgoblins, and ghosts; he is terrified at the apparitions created by his own bewildered brain, and because he cannot get any help goes at it alone, and hollows murder, danger, &c., like the school boy passing through the church yard alone, with his satchel in his hand, whistling aloud to keep his courage up."

But we had almost forgot ourselves; our worthy editor it would seem is at Springfield regulating the affairs of the nation; however it appears that he has some difficulty in keeping things right from the following:—

"Mr. Vinyard of Pope, has introduced a bill repealing the Mormon charters. Whether his laudable effort will be sustained by the House is doubtful. Joe Smith has too great a capital to throw into the political market for investment, to be easily frustrated in any of his nefarious designs. The politicians on both sides will fight shy in committing themselves against him, thus virtually by their refusing to take the unconstitutional powers he possesses from him, legalizing debauchery, fraud, imposition, and crime of the blackest grade. For a season they may profit by such legislation; but ere they little expect it, the indignation of an incensed and insulted community will be so great as to entirely overwhelm every public man, who dares to truckle to Mormonism, for the sake of their support. Every man that does so, secures a few short days of empty political fame at the sacrifice of every thing like virtue and correct morals."

We formerly thought that nobody but the Mormons were to blame; but it seems that the Legislature won't do as he wants them now. They are awfully corrupt or ignorant; he has been trying to teach them a lesson for some time and they are no wiser yet. Why will they not listen to the wisdom that flows from his lips, and emanates from his pen?

We would respectfully submit to the inhabitants of this State a plan that will save them from ruin; and that is that they dispense, with the services of the Governor, and all the Hon. Members of both houses;—The Secretary of State; the Judges, and all the county clerks; and that they appoint the editor of the Telegraph to govern and legislate for them;—to keep all the State and county records, and then there would be no difficulty, as he could make a law at any time to punish Joe Smith, besides it would be a great saving to the State, as he would make and revise all the State laws, keep all records, and accounts, both of the State and counties; and pass no laws but what would be opposed to Mormonism and Joe Smith, (and we presume his services might be obtained for about one hundred dollars per year, which would be a great saving to the State.) And if they wont forsake the error of their ways, since Joseph Smith possesses such unbounded political influence—we would advise our worthy editor to apply to him, to send him off as Plenipotentiary to China, praying his Celestial Majesty to issue a proclamation commanding the barbarians of Illinois to be subject to the dictum of one of his chief mandarins; the Editor of the 'Alton Telegraph.'

The very able opinion of His Honor Judge Pope in relation to the trial of Joseph Smith on Habeas Corpus, will be read with interest by our subscribers; we did expect to have had Mr. Butterfield's speech (which was very able) in full, and to have published it in connection with Judge Pope's decision; but as we have not received it yet, we shall be obliged to defer it till a future period, we have published the minutes of it merely, as taken from the Sangamo Journal, and which we think is tolerably correct.

At the solicitation of our friends, we have struck off a number of extra copies for the purpose of supplying those who may wish to send to their friends an account of this interesting trial.

The last spell of fine weather has liberated the ice bound shores of the Mississippi—a large cake of ice that would cover a space of twenty acres, started on a journey down stream on Tuesday last; the river is rising and we expect, in a few days, if the weather continues open, to have steamboats puffing up and down the father of Waters.

To the Editor of The Wasp:—

DEAR SIR: I have, of late, had repeated solicitations to have something to do in relation to the political farce about dividing the county; but as my feelings revolt at the idea of having any thing to do with politics, I have declined in every instance in having any thing to do on the subject. I think it would be well for politicians to regulate their own affairs. I wish to be let alone, that I may attend strictly to the spiritual welfare of the church.

Please insert the above and oblige

JOSEPH SMITH.

Nauvoo, Jan. 23, 1843.

For the Wasp,
JOSEPH SMITH, &c.

MR. EDITOR:—

It is, by this time, generally known that the distinguished individual, whose name heads this article, is released from the warrant issued for his arrest, upon the isolated affidavit of Ex-Governor Boggs of Missouri. This is as it should be; and while it restores to him those liberties of American citizenship, of which that writ was designed to deprive him, it shows up, in an interesting and lucid manner, the corruption and hollow-heartedness of Boggs and his petty coadjutors. It is enough to make the angels of heaven weep and the devils of hell shudder, to contemplate the wickedness, and laborious assiduity of those individuals, in trying to wrest from him his rights, as guaranteed to him, not only by the established laws of his country, but by the great and fundamental rules of justice and human liberty. He has not been in Missouri for three years past; yet Boggs had the assurance to step so far from the pale of truth and moral honesty, as to publish to the world, in a solemn affidavit, that Joseph Smith was accessory to the outrage committed upon his person, on the night of the 6th of May 1842, the night previous to the great military parade, upon which occasion General Joseph Smith was at his post as Chief-commandant of the Nauvoo Legion. How came this sudden transportation of Mr. Smith from Independence Mo., to Nauvoo Ill., a distance of at least three hundred miles, during the lapse of only six or eight hours? Can Mr. Boggs or his co-worker in evil, Dr. J. C. Bennett, solve this mystery for us? Surely, he must have passed the prairies and quagmires of Missouri with the rapidity of a Telegraph. Probably he employed some supernatural agency to translate himself, which, in this age of improvement and invention, is a more facilitated mode of traveling, than by steam, rail-road, or air-balloons! According to your affidavit, Mr. Boggs, the validity of which we presume you will not attempt to invalidate, you must certainly now be convinced of the prophetic inspiration of the great Mormon Prophet, at whose beck and royal dictum, agreeably with your own showing, the invisible wheels of some supernatural machine is set in motion, to convey his highness, in safety, from the scene of blood, and, in the short time above mentioned, place him at the head of a military corps, organized to support the supremacy of law and defend our beloved State from the innovation of hostile encroachments. Poor foolish man! how irrevocably will hundreds and thousands of the free citizens of Illinois, revile upon you the odium of this consummate falsehood! They tell the world, in the embodied sentiment of freemen, that Lilburn W. Boggs, notwithstanding all his once bright, but now waning official dignities, has sworn falsely! Contemtable, perjured being! you cannot long stagger under the weight of popular indignation, heaped upon you for deeds of your own commission!

The only reason assigned by Gov. Reynolds for making a demand on Gov. Carlin for his arrest was that he 'believed' him to be a fugitive from justice, as had been 'represented' to him. This was another unprecedented move to be made by an individual holding the dignified office of Governor of a sovereign State.—How reckless of human liberty—of the solemn oath that confided to him the fortunes of freemen—how utterly regardless must he have been of those high duties incumbent upon him, as the Executive of a State, to perform—and blind to the principles of justice, humanity and right, when he issued his demand upon the mere, unsupported 'representation' of men, notorious for deeds of mobocracy, pillage and 'extermination.' Have men, filling high places in the departments of Government, so far lost sight of the fundamental laws of American Liberty—of those principles that inspired the hearts of our forefathers, while struggling through the battles and hardships of the Revolution—as, upon such flimsy pretences, to jeopardize the peace and happiness of a worthy citizen, and take from him the enjoyment of those civil liberties, which are the boast of Americans; and which support the very pillars of our great Republic? We regret to say that this has been the anti-republican course of Gov. Reynolds.

Gov. Carlin, too, has been a conspicuous actor in this farce. Instead of treating the demand from Missouri with the indignity and contempt which its illegality and vindictiveness so richly merited, he issued his official warrant, and took measures to have Joseph Smith delivered up as a 'FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE,' when, in fact, he must have known that the individual charged had not been within the limits of the State of Missouri for three or four years past. Then what legal or just reason can Gov. Carlin urge for his earnest endeavors to have Mr. Smith sent to Missouri to be tried for a crime which common sense tells the world he never committed. O, tempora! O, mores!

'Men clothed with a little brief authority
Play such fantastic tricks, before high heaven,
As make even the angels weep.'

He was impelled forward in this course, not by motives of patriotism and philanthropy, as should have been the case;—his mind was soured by the canker of bigotry and prejudice, which turned him from the legitimate course, marked out by the Constitution of our common country, and to gratify some narrow feeling of malevolence, he broke over the barriers of justice and law. These are our feelings—these are beginning to be the feelings throughout the country.

Every device has been formed, and every subterfuge seized upon, to thwart the hopes, dim the prospects, and blast the moral character of Joseph Smith. The fierce tide of persecution, which rolled its angry surges over him, for a time, and seemed, to the unprophetic mind, to portend his ultimate overthrow, has settled away into a silent calm; the sky of promise has resumed its empire over him—and the bow of Peace smiles once more upon his path of honor and greatness. The missiles of the storm were hurled threateningly around him; but undismayed, with his energies all concentrated, his faculties collected and unagitated, he remained—like the Ocean's rock that defies the peltings of the storm awakened wave—firm, unterrified, intrepid and dauntless. He is now safe—he has passed the dark Rubicon of danger—he is released from the allegations of injustice—and from the daily accessions which are made to his cause, and his growing popularity, we hope he will soon effect the moralization of the world.

Respectfully,
L. O. L**

From the Chicago Democrat.

Col. Wentworth:—I noticed an article in the Express of Jan. 5th, criticising the remarks you made, in your last paper, in regard to the Mormon discussion, on Sunday evening. Now, I am inclined to think that every individual, who attended the discussion, on Sunday eve, left the house convinced that Mr. Anderson did, that night, get the better of Gen. Bennett, both in wit and argument. And all will acknowledge that Mr. Anderson was, by far, the most proficient in the Scriptures. I am sorry that your neighbor of the Express should be found the first man to endorse Gen. Bennett's character for truth and veracity. This has done, in an article in the Express Jan. 3d. All classes of people must acknowledge, if Gen. Bennett is now to be believed, that he has been a very big man indeed. But your neighbor is to be pardoned, in some respects, as I conclude it would not be a hard matter, to convince him, that the moon is actually made of a small portion of green cheese, not wholly. For, in the Express of Jan. 6th, I find an editorial article headed "Bibles burnt." In this article, it is stated, that, in a certain town, in New York a large quantity of bibles were burnt by the Catholics, at the command of the clergy. For this assertion your neighbor says he has good authority. However, the authority, as he gives it afterwards, runs something in this manner.—A very credible member of the Catholic church, who saw the conflagration, so there can be no possible mistake, told it to his wife; she related it to her tenth cousin, who immediately reported the horrible affair to the Post Master's wife; and on his hearing of it, he enclosed a letter to the Rochester Democrat, New York, relating the circumstances. From this paper, the Express gets to correct news, at last. Wonder if your neighbor of the Express would pollute himself by entering a Catholic church, or by even looking at a member of it? One word in your ear. Mr. Brackett, before I close. In speaking of Mr. Anderson, in your paper of Jan. 5th, you say, that "you are desirous of doing justice at all times, and to all persons." Mr. Anderson intended you should so do. And, when you was spoken of, Sunday P. M. as a suitable person for him to select as one of the judges to preside over the debates, he politely, yet firmly, declined accepting your services L. S.

BIG TOOTH.—The Ozark Standard, published at Springfield Mo., says:—We have, in our office, a jaw tooth of an animal, dug up near Warsaw, in Benton county, that weighs 14 and a half pounds. The tusks found at the same place, and supposed to belong to the same monster, are about 13 feet long. According to the best calculation that can be made, the skeleton, when completed, will be about 40 feet in length and 28 feet high. We understand that it is the intention of the proprietors to send the skeleton to New Orleans.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of James E. Dunn, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that James E. Dunn, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 10th day of February next, at the district court room, in the town of Kaskaskia, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 19th day of January A.D. 1843.

W. A. RICHARDSON,
Solicitor for petitioner.
Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 39-3w.

NO CURE NO PAY.

DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.

Nauvoo, Jan. 23, 1842.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at, J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 39-3f. 31-3m.

ordinances regulating the Fees, and compensation of the several officers, and persons therein mentioned.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that the salaries, fees, and compensation of the several officers, and persons hereinafter mentioned, are established as follows; to wit:

THE CITY COUNCIL.

The Mayor, shall be allowed a salary per annum, $500.00

The Vice Mayor, or president pro tem, residing in the absence of the Mayor, per day, 3.00

The alderman and councillor's, each for every day's attendance, 2.00

The recorder, as secretary of the council, per annum, 100.00

The recorder shall, in addition to his salary, be allowed to claim the following fees, to wit:

For copies or exemplification of records or ordinances, for every seventy-two words, 12 1-2

For recording each marriage, 50

Affixing corporation seal, and certificate therewith, 50

The treasurer shall be allowed two per cent on all monies or funds paid out by him, as full compensation for his services. The salaries and compensation aforesaid shall be due semi-annually, and, on the certificate of the recorder, (except in his own case, then on the certificate of the President of the council) shall be paid out of any monies in the treasury not otherwise appropriated.

THE MUNICIPAL COURT.

Sec. 2. The chief justice shall be allowed, per day, 3.00

The associate justice's shall each be allowed, per day, 2.50

The clerk of the Municipal court shall be entitled to the following fees, to wit:

For each warrant, summons, subpoena, and other process not herein specified, and sealing the same, 50

Filing papers on appeals from the Mayor or alderman's court, taking appeal bond and issuing spersedas, 50

Docketing each suit, 12 1-2

Entering each order or rule of court for continuance, default, discontinuance, retraxit, non suit &c. 25

For each dedimus or commission to take depositions, 50

Calling and swearing each jury, 12 1-2

Administering each oath, 6 1-4

Swearing person to affidavit 12 1-2

For each venire to summon jury 25

Receiving and entering verdict of jury 12 1-2

Entering each order or rule of court 25

Issuing writ of habeas-corpus, certiorari, or procedendo 50

Entering special bail on record 25

Issuing execution 25

Entering marshal's return of the same 12 1-2

For each certificate and seal, other than the process of court 25

Taking bond in cases of appeal to the circuit court 50

For each license under seal granted by ordinance 50

For each certificate of magistracy under seal 25

The unsuccessful party in any suit before the Municipal court shall be taxed a docket fee of three dollars, to be collected with the costs of suit, and paid over, in proportionate sums, to the justices sitting on said suit, as compensation, or part compensation for their services; and the deficit, if any, in the compensation of the justices, shall be paid semiannually, on the certificate of the clerk, out of any monies in the treasury not otherwise appropriated

MAYOR AND ALDERMAN'S FEES.

Sec. 3. For taking each complaint in writing under oath 25

For each warrant, summons, or subpoena 25

For each venire or jury warrant 25

Swearing jury in each case 25

Entering verdict of jury 12 1-2

Administering each oath 6 1-4

Issuing dedimus to take depositions 25

Taking each deposition when required for each 100 words 12 1-2

Entering security on docket 25

Seire facias to be served on secun-

ment 25

Notification to each referee 25

Entering award of referee's 25

Each order or judgment and entering the same 25

Docketing each suit 12 1-2

For each precept on forcible entry and detainer 50

Issuing process of attachment and taking bond and security 75

On trial, per day 2.00

Entering appeal to the Municipal or circuit court 25

For each transcript of judgment and proceedings 25

For each execution, or mittimus 25

Taking the acknowledgment of a deed or other indenture 25

For each marriage ceremony performed 1.00

For certificate of the same 25

For each continuance of a case 12 1-2

MARSHALL AND CONSTABLE'S FEES.

Sec. 4. For serving a warrant or summons on each person named therein 25

Serving each subpoena 12 1-2

Serving and returning each execution 50

Serving and returning jury warrant in each case 50

Serving each mittimus 25

Each day's attendance on the city council or municipal court when required 2.00

Each day's attendance on the Mayor's or alderman's court when required 1.00

Advertising property for sale 25

Commission on all sales not exceeding ten dollars, ten per centum; and on all sales exceeding that sum, six per centum.

Mileage when serving a warrant, summons, or subpoena, from the justice's or clerk's office to the residence of the defendant, juror, or witness, per mile 5

Mileage when serving a mittimus, from the office of the justice's or clerk to the jail, per mile 6 7-4

For guarding jail, or other similar services, for every twenty-four hours 1.00

JUROR'S FEES.

Sec. 5. To each juror sworn in a case before the Mayor or alderman 25

To each juror sworn in a case before the municipal court 25

To each juror attending a coroner's inquest 25

WITNESSES' FEES.

Sec. 6. Each witness attending the Mayor's alderman or municipal court, or attending for the purpose of having his deposition taken, in each case, 50

ARBITRATOR'S FEES.

Sec. 7. To each arbitrator for every day he shall be necessarily employed in performing the duties of his appointment, where the award is to be made the judgment of the municipal court 1.50

To each arbitrator or referee, for each day he shall be necessarily employed in making up his award in cases before the Mayor or alderman 1.00

CORONERS FEES.

Sec. 8. For holding an inquest over a dead body when required by law, 5.00

For summoning a jury 75

For burial expenses, &c. 10.00

All of which fees shall be certified by the coroner, and paid out of the city treasury, when the same cannot be collected out of the estate of the deceased.

And whenever the coroner shall be required by law to perform any of the duties appertaining to the office of marshal, he shall be entitled to the like fees and compensation.

REGISTER'S FEES.

Sec. 9. For recording all deeds, mortgages and other instruments of writing, for every 100 words 75

For copies of the same, when requested, for every 100 words 12 1-2

For every search of record 12 1-2

Official certificate under seal 37 1-2

NOTARY PUBLIC'S FEES.

Sec. 10. For Noting a bond, promissory note, or bill of exchange for protest 25

For protesting and recording the same 50

For noting without protest 25

For notice to endorsers &c. each 25

For affixing the seal notarial 25

For each certificate, 25

For taking acknowledgment of deed or other indenture 25

ASSESSOR AND COLLECTORS FEES.

Sec. 11. The assessors and collector's shall be allowed for every day they are necessarily employed in the business of their appointment 2.00

THE CITY WATCH.

Sec. 12. The city watch shall be allowed for services in guarding the city for every day 1.50

Sec. 13. The fees of the several officers and persons aforesaid, where not otherwise designated or provided for, shall be due, and if demanded, paid by the party claiming said services, upon the rendition of said services.

Sec. 14. The Mayor, alderman, and clerk of the municipal court shall keep an exact account of all costs that may accrue in the progress of each and every suit in their respective courts, specifying the particulars of each charge, and upon the rendition of judgment, shall charge the unsuccessful party with the costs of suit.

Sec. 15. When execution shall issue against the unsuccessful party, for the recovery of the judgment rendered, a bill of the costs as aforesaid shall be included in such execution, and if said costs are not recovered from the unsuccessful party by execution as aforesaid, it shall and may be lawful, and it is hereby made the duty of the Mayor, alderman, or clerk, as aforesaid, to issue a fee bill against the successful party for all costs that remain unsatisfied; which fee bill shall contain the particulars for which fees are charged; be directed to the marshal; and shall have all the force of an execution.

Sec. 16. There shall be clerk of the Mayor's court who shall be appointed from time to time by the Mayor, as he shall deem expedient, whose compensation of services shall be the usual perquisites of the Mayor's office as set forth in the third section of this ordinance, excepting the compensation "on trial per day $2.00" and "each marriage ceremony performed 1.00."

Sec. 17. This ordinance to take effect and be in force, from and after its passage.

Passed January 14th 1843.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of C. B. Street, and M. B. Street of Hancock county, to be declared bankrupts and to be discharged from their debts.

Notice is hereby given, that C. B. Street, and M. B. Street, of Hancock county, have filed their petition in this court to be declared bankrupts, and to be discharged from their debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 6th day of February next, a district court room, in the town of Kaskaskia in this district as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 9th day of January A. D. 1843.

J. C. DOREMUS,

Solicitor for petitioners.

Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 38-w2.

WEAVING.

THE inhabitants of Nauvoo and its vicinity are respectively informed that I have established the weaving business in the north part of the city near Col. Rockwoods; Murphy street, block 6 where all kinds of weaving will be done on the most reasonable terms, and at the shortest notice.

Having lately emigrated from England, and been brought up in that line of business; I flatter myself that I shall be able to give general satisfaction. Call and see.

GEORGE THORP.

Nauvoo January 21.*

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRIC

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo

adjoining country for the liberal patronage

heretofore extended to him and respectfully

licits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during si-

years' practice in the various diseases prevalent in this country he hopes to be enabled, by assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street—

Two squares East of the Temple, when may be found a general assortment of

Medicines, Paints and Oils,

Pure, Wines,

Glass, Putty,

School, Books,

Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-1f.

BRADFORD & BROWN,

Commission and Forwarding Merchants,

Poylraz St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,

Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.

A. H. Mathews, Warsaw.

Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.

December 10, 1842 no32-

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the foreclosed lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent

HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo January 13 1843.

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic.

no35-6m.

LOST.

IN or about Nauvoo, a leather colored pocket book, containing about three hundred dollars in papers; one note against Lysander M. Davis, and one against Berton Phelps, and one breast pin.

The finder will confer a favor on the owner by giving notice at this office, or at Thomas Butterfield's, and he shall be amply rewarded.

SAMUEL PARKER.

January 16, 1843.

no38-

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 40

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, February 1, 1843.

Whole Number 40

THE WASP.

ESTABLISHED

JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEEK-DAY, BY

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,

At the corner of Water and Main Streets,

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 in arriably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor, (John Taylor,) to be paid, to receive attention.

An Ordinance regulating Municipal elections, in the City of Nauvoo.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the city council of the city of Nauvoo, that all general elections for Mayor, Aldermen, and Councillors, in the city of Nauvoo shall be held, conducted, and returns thereof made in the manner hereinafter prescribed.

Sec. 2. The city council may divide the city into as many wards as they may think proper, not exceeding eight; and shall designate the house or place in each ward at which elections are to be held; and the wards and places of holding elections so established, shall so remain, until changed by order of the city council; and all general elections shall be held at the places so designated, until changed as aforesaid. Provided, that the city council may order that the said election of Mayor, Alderman, and Councillors, shall be held at one place, if they shall deem it expedient.

Sec. 3. On the first Monday of February next, and every two years thereafter, an election shall be held, for the election of one Mayor, four Aldermen, and nine Councillors, and the city council shall, at least twenty days previous to any election, appoint three capable and discreet persons, possessing the qualifications of elections, to act as judges of election, in each place of election; and the Recorder shall make out and deliver to the Marshal of the city, immediately after the appointment of said judges, a notice thereof in writing, directed to the judges so appointed; and it shall be the duty of the Marshal, within five days after the receipt of said notice, to serve the same on each Judge of election. The said Judges of election shall choose two persons having similar qualifications with themselves, to act as Clerks of the election.

Sec. 4. Previous to any votes being taken at any election, the Judges and Clerks thereof shall severally take an oath in the following form, to wit:—"I, A. B., do solemnly swear [or affirm, as the case may be,] that I will perform the duties of Judge, [or Clerk, as the case may be] according to law and the best of my ability; that I will studiously endeavor to prevent, fraud, deceit, and abuse in conducting the same;" which oath may be administered by any person having authority to administer the same, or by any of the Judges of the election.

Sec. 5. If any person appointed to act as Judge or Clerk of the election as aforesaid, shall neglect, or refuse to be sworn or affirmed to act in such capacity, the place of such person shall be filled by nomination of the other Judge or Judges of the election; and if there be no Judge of the election present, to fill such vacancy or vacancies by nomination, at the time of holding said election, then the three Judges shall be chosen by vote by the election present.

Sec. 6. The city council shall at least twenty days previous to any general election, determine the number of Aldermen, Councillors, and otherwise design-nate the officers to be filled at the ensuing election, and the place or places at which such election shall be held; and the Recorder shall immediately make out and deliver to the Marshal four written notices thereof, [or as many as there are city wards;] and the Marshal shall post up in some public place in each ward, the proper notice as aforesaid, at least ten days previous to any general election. The notices as aforesaid shall be, as nearly as circumstances will admit, as follows, to wit:

NOTICE.

Is hereby given, that on Monday the day of next, at the house of in the ward, in the city of Nauvoo, a general election will be held, for the election of one Mayor, four Aldermen, and nine Councillors, for said city, which election will be opened at eight o'clock in the morning and will continue open until six o'clock in the afternoon of the same day.

Dated at Nauvoo this day of A. D. 1841.

By order of the city council.

J. S. Recorder.

Sec. 7. At all elections to be held under this ordinance the polls shall be open at the hour of eight in the morning, and continue open until six o'clock in the afternoon of the same day, at which time the polls shall be closed: Provided, however, that if no Judge shall attend at the hour of eight in the morning, and it shall be necessary for the electors present to appoint Judges to conduct the election, as herein before presented, the election may in that case commence at any hour before the time for closing the polls shall arrive, as the case may require; and provided also, that the Judges of the election may, if they shall deem it necessary, for the purpose of receiving the votes of all electors, postpone the closing of the polls, until twelve o'clock at night. And upon opening of the poll, one of the clerks, under the direction of the Judges shall make proclamation of the same, and thirty minutes before the closing of the polls, proclamation shall be made in like manner that the poll will be closed in half an hour.

Sec. 8. All free white male inhabitants who are of the age of twenty one years, who shall have resided within this State, six months next preceding any election, and who shall have been actual residents of the city of Nauvoo, sixty days next preceding said election, shall be entitled to vote for city officers.

Sec. 9. The manner of voting shall be by the elector's approaching the bar, in the election room, at any time when the poll is open, and addressing the Judges of the election in his proper person, and with an audible voice, to be heard by the judges and clerks of the election, to mention by name the persons he intends to vote for to fill the different offices which are to be filled at the said election, and the clerks shall enter his name and vote accordingly, and he shall then withdraw: Provided, that a voter may vote by presenting an open ticket to the judges, containing the names of the persons for whom he votes, and the offices; and the said judges shall read the same to the voter, and the clerks, with the assent of the voter, shall set the same down in their books, as in other cases.

Sec. 10. When any person shall present himself to give his vote, and either of the judges shall suspect that such person does not possess the requisite qualifications of an elector, or if his vote shall be challenged by any elector who has previously given his vote at such election the judges of the election shall tender to such person an oath or affirmation in the following, for a to wit: I A. B., do solemnly swear, [or affirm, as the case may be,] that I am a resident of the city of Nauvoo; that I have resided in said city for the period of sixty days next preceding this election; that I have resided in the State of Illinois, for the period of six months immediately preceding this election; that I have, to the best of my knowledge and belief, attained to the age of twenty one years; and that I have not voted at this election. And if the person so offering his vote shall take such oath or affirmation, or shall consent to take the same, his vote shall be received, unless it shall be proved by evidence satisfactory to a majority of the judges, that said oath or affirmation is false; and if such person refuses to take such oath or affirmation, his vote shall be rejected. And if any person shall take the said oath or affirmation, knowing it to be false, he shall be deemed guilty of wilful and corrupt perjury, and shall on conviction be punished accordingly. And if any person shall vote at any election, knowing himself not to be a qualified voter he shall forfeit and pay any sum not exceeding fifty dollars, nor less than twenty-five dollars, to be recovered in the same manner as other penalties under this ordinance.

Sec. 11. For the preservation of order, as well as the security of the judges and clerks of the election from insult and abuse, it shall be the duty of the Marshal and the high constables, when called upon by the judges of the election, to attend at all elections within their respective wards; and should neither the Marshal nor any constable be present at such election, the judges of election are hereby authorized and empowered to appoint one or more special constables to assist in preserving order, during the election; and the judges are hereby empowered to impose a fine, not exceeding twenty dollars, on any person or persons, who shall conduct in a disorderly and riotous manner, and should he refuse to pay said fine, or persist in such conduct after having been warned of the consequences or fined as aforesaid, the judges may cause such person or persons so offending, to be arrested and committed to the common jail of the city or county, for any time not exceeding twenty days, or until the fine shall be paid, or he or they discharged by due course of law; and the Marshal or Constable to whom the order shall be directed, and the jailor of the city or county, are hereby required to execute such order, and receive such person or persons, so committed, as though it had been issued or delivered by a magistrate in due form of law.

Sec. 12. When the votes shall have been examined and counted, the clerks shall set down in their books, the name of every person voted for, written at full length, the office for which such person received such vote or votes, and the number he did receive, the number being expressed in words at full length, such entry to be made as nearly as circumstances will admit, in the following form, to wit:

"At an election held at the house of in Ward, in the City of Nauvoo in the State of Illinois, on the day of in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and forty, the following named persons received the number of votes annexed to their respective names, for the following described offices, to wit:

A. B. had sixty three votes for Mayor.
C. D. had thirty four votes for Mayor.
E. F. had sixty one votes for Alderman.
G. H. had sixty votes for Alderman.
I. R. had forty votes for Alderman.
L. W. had seventy votes for Councillor, (and in the same manner for any other names or offices voted for.)

Certified by us

A. B. } Judges
C. D. } of the
E. F. } election.

Attest, G. H. } Clerks of the election.
I. K. }

The judges of the election shall then inclose and seal one of the poll books, under cover, directed to the Recorder of the city, and the packet thus sealed shall be conveyed by one of the judges or clerks of the election, to be determined by lot if they cannot otherwise agree; and delivered to the said Recorder at his office, within two days from the close of the polls; and the other poll book shall be deposited with one of the judges of the election, to be determined as aforesaid; and the poll book shall be subject to the inspection of any elector who may wish to examine it.

Sec. 13. On the third day after the election, or sooner if all the returns be received, the Recorder, taking to his assistance two Aldermen of the city, shall proceed to open the returns and make out his abstract of the same; and shall make out a certificate of election, under the seal of the corporation, to each of the persons having the highest number of votes for Mayor, Alderman and Councillors, and shall deliver the same to the person entitled thereto, on his making application for that purpose to the Recorder at his office. And it shall be the duty of the Recorder, on the receipt of the election returns of any general election, to make out his certificate, stating therein the compensation to which the judges and clerks of each election may be entitled, for their services, and to lay the same before the next City Council; and the City Council shall order the compensation aforesaid to be paid out of the city treasury.

Sec. 14. If, by reason of any two or more persons having an equal, and the highest number of votes for one and the same office, the requisite number of officers shall not be elected, the Recorder shall give notice to the several persons so having an equal, and the highest number of votes, to attend at his office, at a time to be appointed by the said Recorder, who shall then and there proceed publicly to decide by lot which of the persons so having an equal number of votes shall be declared duly elected; and the Recorder shall make out and deliver to the person thus declared duly elected, a certificate of his election, as herein before provided.

Sec. 15. The Recorder, immediately after making out the abstracts of votes given at any general election, shall make out his certificate under seal of the Corporation, certifying the names of the persons duly elected Mayor and Aldermen, and the time and place of said election, and shall transmit the same by mail, to the Secretary of State; and upon the receipt of their respective commissions, shall require of each the oath of office, now required by law of Justices of the Peace, shall certify the same upon their respective commissions, and deliver the same to each person entitled thereto.

Sec. 16. When any candidate shall desire to contest the validity of any election, or the right of any person declared duly elected to hold and exercise the office of Alderman, or Counsellor, such candidate shall give notice of his intention, in writing, to the person whose election he intends to contest, or leave a notice thereof at his usual place of residence, within ten days after the day of election; expressing the points on which the same will be contested, the name of one Alderman of the city who will attend at the trial of said trial, the time, and the place, when and where said trial will be held, which time shall not exceed thirty days from the day of the election. And the person whose election is contested, shall within five days after receiving said notice, select another Alderman to attend said trial: Provided however, That should the party whose election is contested, refuse or neglect to select an Alderman as aforesaid, the Alderman chosen by the person contesting the election as aforesaid, shall make such selection; and the two Aldermen so selected shall make choice of a third Alderman; and if they cannot agree upon a third Alderman to act with them, they shall make such selection by lot; and the three Aldermen thus selected or either of them, shall have power, and they are hereby authorized and required to issue subpoenas and such other process as may be necessary to secure the attendance at such trial of all persons whose testimony may be required by either party, in the same manner as is provided in other cases of proceedings before justices of the Peace. The said Aldermen shall meet at the time and place appointed for the trial of said contest as aforesaid, and after hearing and examining the evidence offered by both parties, they shall decide which of the said candidates shall have been duly elected, and shall certify the same to the Recorder, who shall thereupon make out and deliver to the successful party a certificate of his election as herein before provided. The said Alderman shall enter judgment against the unsuccessful party. Either party may appeal from the decision of said Alderman to the Municipal Court as in other cases, and the decision of said Court shall be final, and the unsuccessful party shall pay all costs incurred before either or both of said Courts, as the case may be.

Sec. 17. There shall be allowed out of the City Treasury to the several judges and clerks of election, such compensation, not exceeding two dollars per day, as the City Council shall deem proper to allow; they shall also allow to the clerks of election such compensation as they may deem just, for any stationary such clerk may have furnished for the purpose of election.

Sec. 18. If any judge of the election, or clerk, or any other officer or person, in any manner concerned in conducting the election, shall wilfully neglect, improperly delay, or refuse to perform any of the duties required by this ordinance, after having undertaken to perform such duties, he shall, on conviction thereof before the Mayor or Municipal Court, be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars;—and if any such judge of the election, clerk, or other officer or person, in any wise concerned in conducting the election, shall knowingly admit any person to vote, not qualified according to law; or shall knowingly receive and count more than one vote for one person, at the same election for one office, or shall be guilty of fraud, corruption, or partiality, or manifest misbehavior in any matter or thing relating to said election; or shall refuse to receive the vote of any elector, who has a right according to law to vote at the polls; each and every person so offending, shall upon conviction thereof before the Mayor or Municipal Court, be fined in any sum not exceeding one hundred dollars for each and every offence; each of the aforesaid fines to be collected and appropriated in the name of, and for the benefit of the city, together with costs of suit.

Provided, That nothing in this ordinance shall be so construed as to prevent the judges of election from refusing to receive the vote of any person, when it shall be proved to the satisfaction of a majority of them, that in taking the same oath he shall have sworn falsely.

Sec. 19. This ordinance, to take effect and be in force from and after its passage. Passed Jan. 14th 1843.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.
JAMES ELEAN, Recorder.

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY FEBRUARY 3, 1843.

In the City of Nauvoo, published in last week's paper, under head of "The City Council," instead of reading—For each warrant, summons, subpoena, and other process, not herein specified, and sealing the same, "50" cents, it should have been 25.

Under the head of "Register's Fees," same Ordinance, instead of reading—"75" cents for recording all deeds, mortgages and other instruments of writing, for every 100 words, it should have read 15.

NAUVOO CHARTERS.

It will be seen by an article in another column giving an account of the proceedings of the Legislature that our charters have again been brought upon the carpet.

Mr. Davis of Bond, seems to be violently opposed, but as he assigns no reason for his opposition, nor shows anything objectionable or unconstitutional in them; the good sense of the house leads them to pay little attention to him, as is fully shown by the large majority that voted for the bill to be laid on the table, being 60, to 43.

"On Thursday last a discussion sprung up in the House of Representatives upon a bill to repeal the Nauvoo Charters. The bill was defeated through the exertions of Mr. Smith and Mr. Owen, the representatives from Hancock county. Mr. Smith (who we learn is a brother of the prophet) made a powerful speech in defence of his brethren, in the course of which he gave Mr. Davis of Bond county a very severe castigation. This is the second time the proposition to repeal these charters has been defeated. We are opposed to persecution, in all its forms. The Mormons are entitled to the same rights as other citizens, but no more. Any attempt to repeal their charters is wrong unless all other charters are repealed also. It may be that the Nauvoo charters require amendment. If so, let them be amended; but this idea of depriving the Mormons of rights which other citizens possess, is worse than the edicts of the Spanish inquisition, and will not be tolerated in a free country. Messrs. Davis, Smith and Owen, are a perfect team in standing by the rights of their constituents."

[State Register.]

We are pleased to find that our Representatives have so honorable a standing in the house, and that they are so bold and independent in the discharge of their duties towards their constituents; we believed they were just such men, and our expectations have been happily realized. Even the editor of the Sangamo Journal has the following:

"Mr. Smith, the Prophet's brother, fought ably and manfully against the bill, which was finally laid on the table, on motion of Mr. Logan, by a vote of 60 to 43—tantamount to its defeat. We were pleased to see that a large majority of the Whigs voted to lay the bill on the table. This is the second effort made to repeal the Nauvoo Charters, the present session, and is probably the last."

BOYS AND GIRLS.

"The times have indeed sadly changed. One entire portion of human life is struck out. It is now boyhood or manhood.—There is no conservative state—(we do not speak politically.) Once there were intermediate states of boyhood—a barefooted and bean porridge eating state—a spelling and cyphering period—when there were boys to do the chores and go on errands—when apprentice indentures were in fashion, and the line between boyhood and manhood well defined by the "freedom suit."

But there are no such things now.—The child steps out of his diaper and frock into a "long tailed coat," and calf skin boots. He exchanges the nipple for the cigar. Not one of the present generation has ever seen a real, bona fide, "nine day old" pot of bean porridge.—Noah Webster's spelling book is crowded out of school by high works on Philosophy and Metaphysics. There are no apprentices now. Young men take a few lessons in the trade they fancy and set up for themselves. John Withn was right as a general principle, though he was wrong in that particular case.

But the present generation is as destitute of girls as of boys. It is either baby or lady—clout or bustle—nursery or parlor. The mother tends her infant or waits upon her daughter. Instead of spinning flax for their father's shirts, they reel silk for the ladies' fair; and instead of knitting stockings and mending trousers for their brothers, they work lace and make stays for themselves.—The mother milks, churns, washes and irons and the young ladies read novels, dress, and make and receive calls. They make parties instead of puddings, and cook by the book rather than from knowledge.

We should be delighted to see a generation of boys and girls—in looks, actions, and dress—we should then hope for health and strength, industry and sobriety, frugality and economy, prosperity and happiness. We go for protection to this class of our community. Every father should impose a tariff, one that should amount to an entire prohibition, on the introduction of fashionable follies into the family. He should protect and enforce home industry. He and his wife and child should enter into a "Home League" on the subject. This is a tariff that will restore confidence. This is the bank that will freely discount and never suspend."

There is a great deal of sound common sense in the above remarks; society indeed, has greatly degenerated, so much so that many of our accomplished gentlemen (versus blacklegs) without the where-with, having received a partial education, without patrimony, without being taught the principles of industry, or morality; being unacquainted with digging, and ashamed of begging, crowd our travelling routes, and from the unsuspecting and honest tradesman and mechanic, with their light fingered operations, take the hard earnings of years of frugality, industry and care. The natural result is that many families are reduced to indigence and beggary, and our accomplished gentlemen, after running a short career, find an asylum in the States prison, which now groan with forgers, pickpockets, gamblers, &c.; most of whom have been of the elite, and whose ruin may be traced to an improper educational bias, in their youth, and from the misconceived opinions of true greatness, entertained by many parents and guardians of youth.

The education of young ladies is also as much neglected, instead of being taught knitting, spinning, and the art of washing, cleaning cookery, and other branches of domestic economy; they are taught things that are of no earthly use, except as an accomplishment to those other more useful duties, and which of themselves would be like a mask without a head, and if an intelligent gentleman was to come along, like the fox in the fable when he viewed the mask, he would say it is indeed beautiful; but what a pity it has not brains!

Hence if any thing should happen Papa; if he should be reduced in his circumstances, and unable to support his ladies, in fashion, they know not what to do, it is to them as awkward as it is inelegant to perform any kind of household labor, they know not what path to take; but are frequently, instead of a help, or blessing, a drag to society. In regard to their matrimonial prospects, if a gentleman, or a merchant, should be enamored with the beauty and educational accomplishments of one of their ladies, yet, knowing that she was not acquainted with domestic economy, he would very naturally suppose that she was neither fit to manage his household affairs, nor to instruct his children in correct principles, and a poor man does not engage her, because he would think that she was too much refined; too much of a lady; too accomplished; and too ignorant for him, and thus she is left, like a wandering star, without any fixed station; a burthen to herself, a burthen to her friends, and a cypher in the universe.

It was a maxim among the ancient Jews, that to bring up a child without learning him a trade, was to prepare him for the gallows.

We hope that while we, as a people, are favored with more religious light than others; that we shall not be neglected in this particular; but that our children may be taught the principles of morality, industry, and virtue, and when these are attended to as many other accomplishments as convenient; that we may become the praise of the whole earth.

The weather has undergone a very sudden change within a few days; for two days past we have experienced as severe weather as any that we have had during the winter.

Upwards of a thousand emigrants, on their way for this place, are waiting, at St. Louis and other places for the opening of the winter.

A Steamboat started down the river from Montrose, (opposite Nauvoo,) she passed over the Rapids; but we are informed was unable to proceed further than Keokuk.

For the Wasp.

Mr. Editor:—

In my last letter the symptoms of inflammation were treated of. We come next to the consideration of its causes, which are of no less importance. For we cannot rationally proceed to prevent or remove an effect without a correct understanding of the cause. Here, passing by the numerous and exploded theories of the schools, and avoiding scholastic terms as much as possible, I shall endeavor to let truth and reason dictate.—For the old adage, "ubi irritatio ibi fluxus;" means nothing more or less than where there is irritation, the fluids will flow.—This is a true principle, and brings us to the first division or exciting causes, which may be many. But as they mostly admit of being referred to external violence, or irritation from mechanical or chemical means, a full detail of them, would be superfluous. Suffice it to say then, that the lodgments of a thorn, a bit of glass, or any extraneous body in the flesh is a common exciting cause of inflammation.

It is evident; that the blood will flow to irritated parts. This leads us to an examination of the proximate cause; which implies the real state of the affected part, upon which the phenomena peculiar to inflammation primarily depend. It is the secret process, the first essential action, which constitutes the very beginning of inflammation; and is inseparably connected with its existence. But, a description of the capillary system, may be necessary, before the proximate cause can be fully explained. It is known that the arteries convey the blood from the heart to all parts of the body, for the purpose of supplying it with nourishment, where they terminate in minute ramifications, and here the veins commence in likewise as small vessels, for the purpose of taking up the blood which was not appropriated to the use of the body by assimilation.—The termination of the arteries, and commencement of the veins, or as some suppose, a separate plexus of minute vessels, constitute what is denominated the "capillary system." It is here, that secretion, as the formation of bile, &c. nutrition, which is the converting apart of the blood into actual bone, sinew, flesh, &c., and calorification, the generation of animal temperature, are actually performed by the mysterious power with which the animal economy is endowed.

And it is in these small vessels invisible to the natural eye, that the work of death by inflammation commences. Then first the nerves become excited by an irritating agent, which cause an afflux of blood to the part.

The vessels become distended, enlarged and increased in action; unless their irritating agent acts with sufficient violence to destroy the nerves, then there may be a diminished action requiring stimulus.

The foregoing is a condensed view of the theories taught in the best medical schools in our own and foreign countries. I will now mention, what has occurred to my mind while writing the above. May not the circulation of the fluids in the capillary system, be upon the principles of capillary attraction, which is affected by the cohesive attraction between the particles of the fluid and the interior of the tube: and is exemplified by dipping one end of a piece of sponge in water and letting it remain in a perpendicular position, the upper end will be found in a short time to have imbibed water.

Thus, the caliber of the vessels, are sufficiently small to act upon the principle of capillary attraction; which action in active inflammation is overcome by the blood rushing into them, and when they become distended and enlarged they partake of the nature, and action, of the larger vessels leading to them; which produces the pulsation, &c. Then to affect a cure, the accumulated blood must be removed; so that the vessels may resume their former size, and action. For after the first exciting cause shall have been removed, the surplus blood will act as in the place of the irritating agent; for it will be recollected that the blood is a powerful stimulant.

There is either an increased or diminished action in the small vessels, which require two very different modes of treatment. This can be fully illustrated by explaining the nature of burns. A slight burn, may require no treatment; amounting merely to the blush of modesty. But, if it is sufficient to produce redness, swelling and severe pain, an application of a slippery elm poultice may be proper. But if the burn is deep, so that the sensibility of the part is destroyed, a stimulating ointment with spirits of turpentine, would be appropriate. It is a fatal mistake because stimulus has proved beneficial in certain degrees of inflammation in deep burns, to apply it to the active stage of inflammation. Hence the injurious effect of injudicious treatment, in inflammation of important organs where life is always at stake. For these cases are of the same character of the most active stage or degree of burns, and they require for a cure that the accumulated blood be drawn away and the increased nervous excitation allayed.

The fluid, predominate in the animal system: A dead body weighing one hundred and twenty pounds, may be dried in a heated oven until it will weigh only twelve pounds. The Egyptian Mummies which are completely deprived of fluids become extremely light, not weighing more than seven pounds. The dead bodies found in the arid sands of Arabia as well as the dried preparations of anatomical theaters, afford additional proof of the reduction by desiccation.

In the year 1820, a living skeleton was exhibited in N. York, who was forty two years old, five feet six inches high, and weighed but sixty pounds. His weight had formerly been one hundred and sixty pounds.

The blood circulates in the cavities of the heart, arteries and veins. It is estimated to be in quantity about twenty-eight pounds to an adult. Of this, four parts are contained in the veins, and a fifth in the arteries. The blood is the most important fluid of our bodies. It has been considered by some as being alive, and many ingenious hypothesis in support of its vitality have been formed. It nourishes the whole body. Dr. Good who was an assiduous student of nature says, "We cannot but regard the blood as in many respects the most important fluid of the animal machine. From it all the solids are derived and nourished, and all the other fluids are secreted, and it is hence the basis, or common pabulum of every part. And as it is the source of general health, so it is also of general disease. In inflammation it takes a considerable part, and evinces a peculiar phenomena. By chemical analysis, we know that the blood contains the principles that are necessary for the growth of the body. It is also evident that living bodies possess a vital force. In every part of the body, in the brain, in the heart, the lungs, the muscles, the membrane, the bones &c., each part attracts only those ingredients from the blood, which enter into its own composition. Thus the crimson current, rich in all the constituent principles of the different parts, flows out to each. As the current approaches the part, the particles appropriate to it, feel its attracting force, obey it, quit the stream, mingle with the substance of the part, become identified with it, and are changed, into its own true and proper nature. The blood of man, which is the life thereof, has been subject to decomposition ever since he was prohibited, the use of the life perpetuating tree; and he will continue liable to disorganization until the blood is taken away, and spirit put in the stead thereof.

H. TATE.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR, IN RELATION TO THE MODE OF PAYING THE CONTINGENT EXPENSES OF THE STATE GOVERNMENT.

January 12, 1843.

Read, laid on the table, and ordered to be printed for the use of the Senate.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,

Springfield, January 11, 1842.

To the Senate and

House of Representatives:

I wish to call the attention of the General Assembly to the present mode of paying the contingent expenses of the State Government, and to the fact that great losses are sustained by the State Government, and to the fact that great losses are sustained by the State in consequence of the enormous prices demanded for articles indispensable for the two houses, and the public officers. It is by law made the duty of the public officers to contract for fire wood, candles and stationery for the use of the General Assembly, and to pay postage for all communications received at the post office. But for want of current funds in the Treasury, and because of the great uncertainty which exists as to whether any measures will be adopted to replenish the Treasury, it has been impossible for the public officers to procure supplies for the use of the Legislature, or to procure any thing to be done for the State without giving enormous prices. The article of wood alone, of which a great amount is necessarily consumed, could be purchased with cash at the rate of $1.75 per cord; but in the means of payment proposed by the State, it cannot be procured for less than $3.50.

Candles can be purchased with cash at thirty-seven and one half cents per pound, but with warrants or depreciated paper, they cannot be purchased less than one dollar per pound. Every thing else in like proportion. As the Government of the United States will receive nothing but current funds in payment of postage, the State is absolutely without the means of getting a letter out of the post office without taking Auditor's warrants or depreciated paper from the treasury, and exposing them in market for what they will bring, to raise the necessary funds. From the very necessity of the case, this practice has been tolerated heretofore, though unauthorized by law, but will not be continued after the General Assembly have had time to act upon the subject, unless the practice shall be continued by law. No letter, not post paid, will be taken out of the post office addressed to any department of the government, after the adjournment of the Legislature, unless some other provision shall be made for the payment of postage.

The contingent expenses of the General Assembly and the several executive departments are very considerable, even when payment is made in cash, but swell to an enormous sum when paid at the price demanded in depreciated paper or warrants. The people have fondly looked to the present session for a very considerable reduction of public expenditures, and I am satisfied that every disposition exists on the part of the General Assembly to accomplish their most sanguine expectations. But we are really in danger, from the causes above enumerated and others, of making the expenses of this session far exceed those of any former session of the General Assembly.

I, therefore, recommend that if any action is to be at this session, to put the finances of the State upon a sound footing, that it should take place immediately before further expenditures shall be made at the ruinous prices now demanded.

I desire also to call the attention of the General Assembly to the subject of reduction of taxes, and to urge by all means that no such reduction shall be made as will yield an inadequate revenue. Nothing can possibly be gained by such a reduction, but the State must necessarily be a great loser. If the revenue shall be so diminished as to be sufficient to pay the current expenses it is obvious that the State must pay an increased price for every thing of a contingent character, and that increased price will rise just in proportion as the revenue shall be deficient.

I have the honor to be &c.

THOMAS FORD.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

January 10.

A bill for an act repealing certain Nauvoo Charters!—read twice.

Mr. LOGAN would have objectionable Charters amended, not repealed, unless some substantial cause was shown.

Mr. OWENS said he did not believe that this house would consent to repeal these Charters rashly, and without sufficient pretexts. It would look extremely bad for this Legislature to do so, without finding something extraordinarily objectionable. He knew that a loud cry had been made in the last election canvass, by demagogues—but he would protest against such destructive Legislation. He asked for his constituents equal rights with other people.

Mr. SMITH, of Hancock county, asked the attention of the house for a few moments, in expressing his sentiments.—If honorable gentlemen had pledged themselves in their election campaigns, to vote against the Charters of the city of Nauvoo, they had made a bad promise. Members could not vote for a repeal of charters, to the destruction of property, and the violation of vested rights, without a violation of the Constitution. If the individuals enjoying these chartered privileges, had transgressed the Laws of the State, or had exceeded the limitations of the acts of incorporation, he would extend both hands to remedy such evils, as far as he constitutionally could. The Agricultural Society of Nauvoo, had acquired a considerable amount of property, a vast amount of land—and farms were extending in every direction over the wild and unbroken prairie. Should such extended interests be injured?

The Nauvoo House association had issued a large amount of stock which was not only owned by the people there, but by individuals in all societies throughout the State.

He would deprecate the destruction of such important interests and rights, by such rash and party Legislation. He believed that prejudice would not control the action of honorable gentlemen. He asked that it might be allowed the people, commonly called "Mormons," to exercise their own religious views. This was allowed to all men and all societies. The measure was certainly a most extraordinary one; and he asked if the name "mormon," attached to these charters was not the cause of this extraordinary opposition? Prejudice charges, misrepresentations, gross and false had been circulated through the land, till these people had been subjected to a load of oppression, from which they had hardly recovered. An honorable gentleman had prophesied that 10 years shall not roll away, before the people of this State would rise up and expel the mormons!

Here was a prophet indeed! Shall it be said that this State will re-enact the murderous outrages of the State of Missouri? He could, were it not consuming the time of the house, exhibit the crimes and violent proceedings of the Missouri mobs against the defenceless, the weak, and the innocent. He could speak of the murder of 17 persons, by a ruthless mob, on their knees, begging for life, and of the sacrifice of a boy whose brains was blown out while imploring for mercy from his savage murderers. He would not trespass upon the time of the house; he would show that the acts of the city authorities of Nauvoo were not so dangerous as demagogues had stated.

Joseph Smith had been yielded to the proper authorities, and the general laws of the State—had been honorably discharged by the proper courts, from the false claims of Missouri upon him.

His people were a law-abiding people—he did not, could not believe that honorable gentlemen would act upon any other principles, than those of honor and constitutional right.

Mr. DAVIS, of Bond, said he deemed that the remarks of the gentleman had reference to his expressions on a former day. The gentleman had most eloquently addressed the house; and he had hoped to have heard a Mormon sermon. He had said that the requisitions from Missouri were false; he would stand up, and say that no man had a right to charge the honorable authorities of Missouri with falsehood. He would stand up for the honor of that State—and would boldly proclaim his full belief that the Mormon charters were dangerous in the extreme; and, if suffered to continue, would at no distant day, cause the most serious trouble among the people of this State.

He drew his belief from what he knew of the characters of the Mormons. Not a step should be taken in the votes upon these charters, but would find him in firm opposition to them; he cared not for their religious views. They might worship a horse, or bow down to Joseph Smith, if they would; his opposition was to the dangerous powers conferred by their charters. He had proclaimed his position, and he would firmly keep his stand.

Mr LOGAN moved to lay the bill on the table—carried—ayes 60, nays 43.

[Sangamo Journal.]

Marcus Antonius, a heathen Emperor and Philosopher, is thought by some to have uttered a good many wholesome truths; and as one of them the following is sometimes cited:—

"When people treat you ill, and show their spite, and slander you, enter into their little souls, go to the bottom of them, search their understandings, and you will soon see, that nothing they may think or say of you, need give you one troublesome thought."

ALABAMA GOLD.—The East Alabama mines in the broken lands in some parts of Randolph and Tallapoosa counties are said to teem with the precious mineral. In the latter county, a considerable number of persons have recently made entries of land with a view to commence mining operations immediately. The gold is found, we are informed, in what miners term 'rock veins'; and a yield is obtained by crushing the rock in some rude wooden contrivance, of two or three dwts. per day to the hand. In a short time we have confident expectations that the pure bullion will be very plentiful in this vicinity.

FRAUD IN PIG LEAD.—The New York Express says that a large lot of pig lead from Missouri, recently landed in that city, has been found to contain large parcels of stone and dross inside the pigs. The weight is fully one third base. The pigs are all marked on the bottom, S. Davis.

Honesty makes man the best living.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 27TH ULTIMO.

Edward Jenkins, aged 32 years; cancer.

Infant of Samuel Steel.
W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 3RD INST.

Nephi Workman 19 days; fit.
Ann Worthen 2 years; 1 month, consumption.

David Frampton 49 years; by the fall of a tree.
W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton

O. C. SKINNER,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor
in Chancery.
Office in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office with G. Huls, E. q., a few rods south east of the Temple.

REFERENCES.
Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.
G. B. Holt, Dayton,
G. P. Bell, Hamilton,
Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,
Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

GEO. BACHMAN,
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.
WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29 if.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE,
FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially
in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.
Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.
Jan. 21, 1843.—3m*

TO BRICKMAKERS AND LABOR-ERS.

THE undersigned wishes to contract
for the making of one million of
bricks.
Also for the making of 1200 rods of
ditch and turf fence.
HIRAM KIMBALL.
January 13 1843.

NOTICE.
THOSE that have orders that I have given or accounts for labor, or materials for the last year, will bring them
in immediately, so that I can settle up
my business. J. W. COOLIDGE.
Jan. 16, 1843. no38-

District Court of the United States,
within and for the District of Illinois.
In the matter of the petition of James E. Dunn, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that James E. Dunn, of Hancock county, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 10th day of February next, at the district court room, in the town of Kaskaskia, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.
Dated this 19th day of January A. D.
1843.

W. A. RICHARDSON,
Solicitor for petitioner.
Attest: J. F. Owings Clerk. 33-2w.

NO CURE NO PAY.
DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.
Nauvoo, Jan. 28, 1842. 39-1f.

THE DEBT OF GREAT BRITAIN.
A correspondent in the N. Y. Tribune says, that this debt in silver, would load 296,250 wagons, allowing each to carry
2,000 pounds; and allowing each team 30 feet, would form a line over 1,700 miles in length. If reduced to cents, it would load 8,887,500 wagons, and form a line twice round the globe.

NOTICE.
THE subscribers have entered into co-partnership for the purpose of publishing the "Times and Seasons," and the "Wasp;" and of carrying on the business of Printing, Stereotyping, Book-Binding, Book-selling, and every thing connected with the above named branches of business.
N. B. All business connected with the firm will be done in the name of
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.
Nauvoo Oct. 1-1842.

BOOKS! BOOKS! BOOKS!!!
THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following.
SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book,
Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader,
Eclectic 3rd Reader, E. Little 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,
Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books,
Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket
Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P.
Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper,
Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead
Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.
All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of
BOOK BINDING,
in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our
PRICES.

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	whole	bound	plain	2.10
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	hf	bound	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	hf	bound	plain	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.
Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

WEAVING.
THE inhabitants of Nauvoo and its vicinity are respectively informed that I have established the weaving business in the north part of the city near Col. Rockwoods; Murphy street, block 6 where all kinds of weaving will be done on the most reasonable terms, and at the shortest notice.

Having lately emigrated from England, and been brought up in that line of business; I flatter myself that I shall be able to give general satisfaction. Call and see.

GEORGE THORP.
Nauvoo January 21.*

TO RENT FOR ONE YEAR OR MORE.
A SMALL tan yard and dwelling house
with both tanner's tools and currying
tools, and a good patent bark mill and good pumps, all in good order. There is 13 vats, 10 of which is in doors. The house has 4 rooms in it and a good bark shed. The lot contains 1 acre and is in the best part of the town. There is a plenty of water; for further information
call on Wm. Field, on the premises. I will let a few cords of bark go.
Nauvoo, Jan. 14, 1843. no37-1f.

WANTED.
HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's
store.
B. W. TOWNSEND,
A. WASHBURN.
Three or four shoe makers wanted at
the above establishment. T. & W.
Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29-1f.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.
Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo &
adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully accepts a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.
Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of 1-1/2 S. Miles, on Mulholland Street.—
Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils,
Pots, Wines,
Glass, Putty,
School, Books,
Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.
Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31 3m.*

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
Whitman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-6m*

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands are required to make payment in full,
on or before the first day of April next,
as deeds will not be given to delinquents
the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due Dr. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agen
HIRAM KIMBALL.
Nauvoo January 13 1843. if

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula, mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic. no35-6m.

LOST.

IN or about Nauvoo, a leather colored pocket book, containing about three hundred dollars in papers; one note against Lyander M. Davis, and one against Berton Phelps, and one breast pin.
The finder will confer a favor on the owner by giving notice at this office, or at Thomas Butterfield's, and he shall be amply rewarded.

SAMUEL PARKER.
January 16, 1843. no38-

SHERMAN'S
MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now
offered to the citizens of Nauvoo
and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr.
Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and
these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians
in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry
for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual
remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption,
Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion
long and intense suffering and even death
without their ever being suspected; grown
persons are very often afflicted with them,
and are doctored for various complaints,
without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, Languor and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find
the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispenation, they will restore the tone
of the system generally, and remove all
the unpleasant symptoms arising from too
free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittant fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will
not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000
are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain
in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents.) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
(22-y1.) J. SNIDER.
Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at
J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-3m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.
ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph John on, Ramus
J. Salisbury, Plymouth.
Harrow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb M. Donough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Lilas Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam s Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Recler's Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

F. actus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.
OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirt and.
NEW YORK.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,
At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING.
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

POETRY.

JUBILEE SONG.

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

That deed—that time we celebrate,
So ripe with liberty;
When the official pow'rs of State
Pronounced the Prophet free.

CHORUS.

When foul oppression's hand was stay'd—
A feast of Liberty,
The Prophet and his Lady made,
To crown the jubilee.

'Twas once, no subject, theme of song,
For honest men to gain,
Those rights that legally belong
To every humble swain.
When foul oppression's &c.

But now our Federal Court has done
A deed deserving praise:—
There's something 'new beneath the sun'
In these the latter days.
When foul oppression's &c.

Some patriot feeling yet remains—
Such as our fathers felt,
When on Columbia's fertile plains
Their blood, they freely spilt.
When foul oppression's &c.

Tho' Freedom weeps o'er many a blot;
Still here, she lifts her spires;
And here, has champions, who are not Unworthy of their sires.
When foul oppression's &c.

Protection's wreath again will bloom,
Which our Carlin had become Like Jonah's wither'd gourd.
When foul oppression's &c.

Like Freedom's true and genuine son,
Oppression to destroy,
His Excellency has begun
To govern Illinois.
When foul oppression's &c.

His 'Mormon' subjects fondly trust,
The citizens will share,
A legislation wise and just,
While he retains the Chair.
When foul oppression's &c.

Long, long, the people's rights weight,
And the people's rights weight,
Ere the people's rights weight,
The people's rights weight,
When foul oppression's &c.

The justice done a fight and cause
By those who stand in pow'r;
Does honor to our country's laws,
In this degenerate hour.
When foul oppression's &c.

And while we give our feelings scope
And gratitude a ward,
To Edwards, Butterfield and Pope,
We'll not forget the Lord.
When foul oppression's &c.

The Lord who guides the Prophet's cause;
Inspired our rulers' minds,
To execute those equal laws,
And break the chain that binds.
When foul oppression's &c.

Elijah's God! we'll praise his name,
And own his mighty hand,
Who brings his Prophet's foes to shame
In this republic land.
When foul oppression's &c.

Tho' wicked men should rage and scoff—
Though earth and hell oppose,—
The Lord will bear his people off
Triumphant o'er their foes.
When foul oppression's &c.

Now let the Prophet's soul rejoice—
His noble Lady's too;
While praise to God with heart and voice
Is heard throughout Nauvoo.

CHORUS.

When foul oppression's hand was stay'd,
A feast of Liberty;
The Prophet and his Lady made,
To crown the jubilee.

LAWS AND ORDINANCES OF THE
CITY OF NAUVOO.

The City Council do ordain as follows:
The several sections following are declared laws and ordinances of the said city, and any person who shall be guilty of any of the offences herein after mentioned, shall be subject to the penalty hereinafter to be prescribed, to be sued for and collected before the Mayor, the Municipal Court, or any Alderman of said city.

OF CITY OFFICERS.

There shall be appointed by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo biennially, the following officers for the City of Nauvoo, in addition to those provided for in the city charter of said city, to wit: an Engineer, Market-master, weigher and Sealer of weights and measures, a Fire Warden in each Ward of the city, a Sexton and a Police officer, to act under the direction of the Mayor, as captain of the Watch, and a supervisor of streets and alleys.

FIRST DIVISION—OF THE PRES-ERVATION OF GOOD ORDER.

Sec. 1st. No person shall keep a billiard table, pharo bank, or any other instrument of gaming, where, or on, or with which money, liquor or other articles, shall in any manner be played for, or if any person shall keep a disorderly or gaming house, such person shall for every offence forfeit and pay a penalty of twenty five dollars, and also the further penalty of twenty five dollars for every forty eight hours, during which such person shall continue to keep the same, after the first conviction for any violation of this section.

Sec. 2. Any person or persons who shall make, aid, countenance, or assist in making any improper noise, riot, disturbance, or diversion in the streets, or elsewhere; and all persons who shall collect in bodies or crowds, for unlawful purposes, to the annoyance or disturbance of citizens or travellers, shall for each offence, forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding fifty dollars, in the discretion of the Court convicting.

Sec. 3. No person shall use any abusive, indecent, or threatening words to another individual without being deemed a disturbance of the peace, and shall forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than one dollar and not exceeding twenty dollars, and shall moreover be bound to keep the peace, in the discretion of the Court.

Sec. 4. If any person shall injure another by quarrelling, fighting, assaulting, beating or otherwise, the person so offending shall on conviction, forfeit and pay a penalty not less than three dollars, and not exceeding one hundred dollars, and moreover may be imprisoned not exceeding six months, in the discretion of the Court convicting.

SECOND DIVISION—OF STREETS AND ALLEYS.

Sec. 1. No person shall place or caused to be placed, any stones, timber, lumber, plank, boards, or other materials for building, in or upon any street, lane, or other public square, without a written permission for that purpose first obtained from the Mayor or one of the Aldermen, under the penalty of two dollars for each offence, and the further penalty of two dollars for each and every forty eight hours during which the articles or materials aforesaid shall be or remain in any such street, lane, alley or public square, (without permission as aforesaid) after notice from the Mayor and Alderman, the Supervisor of streets, or any Police officer, to remove the same.

Sec. 2. The Mayor, or any of the Aldermen, are authorised to grant to any person permission in writing to place and keep any building materials in any of the public streets, for a period not exceeding four months, but such permission shall not authorise the obstructing of more than one half the side walk, and one half the street, on the side next the lot on which a building is to be or being erected, by the person to whom such permission is granted, and such permission may be revoked at any time by the City Council, in their discretion.

Sec. 3. Every person to whom permission is granted as aforesaid, shall cause all the timber, building materials, and rubbish arising therefrom, to be removed from the street by the expiration of the time limited in such permission, as aforesaid under the penalty of one dollar for every forty eight hours the timber, materials or rubbish aforesaid shall be and remain in such street after the expiration of the time limited in the permission granted, but no single recovery shall exceed the sum of twenty five dollars.

Sec. 4. All ornamental or shade trees hereafter placed or set out in any street, shall be placed within one foot of the outer line of the side-walk of such street, under the penalty of five dollars for each offence, and the further penalty of one dollar per each week any such tree shall be suffered to remain contrary to the prohibition contained in this section.

Sec. 5. All buildings in said city shall be at least eight feet in width where the streets are three rods wide, but where the streets shall exceed that width, ten feet shall be the width.

Sec. 6. Any person who shall injure or tear up any prominent side or cross walk, drain or sewer or any part thereof, or who shall dig any hole, ditch, or drain in any street, without due authority, or who shall hinder or obstruct the making or repairing any pavement, side or cross walk, which is or may be making under any law or resolution of the City Council, or who shall hinder or obstruct any person employed by the City Council, or the supervisor of streets or the person employed by them in making or repairing any public improvement or work ordered by the City Council, shall for every offence, forfeit and pay a penalty of ten dollars.

Sec. 7. No person shall cast or throw or cause to be cast or thrown into any of the drains or sewers within the city any straw, shavings, wood, stones, shells, rubbish, or any filthy or other substances, or any obstructions, nuisance or injury to the same, by diverting or stopping the course thereof, or otherwise, under a penalty not exceeding ten dollars, nor less than one dollar for every offence, in the discretion of the court convicting.

Sec. 8. No person shall without permission from the City Council, dig, remove, or carry away or cause the same to be done, any stone, earth, sand, or gravel from any public street, highway, alley, or public ground in this city, under the penalty of five dollars for each offence.

THIRD DIVISION—NUISANCE.

Sec. 1. No person shall throw, place, or deposit, or suffer any person in his or her employ to place or deposit any dead animal carion, putrid meat, or fish, or decayed vegetables, or nuisances of any kind in any street, alley, public square, in said city, any person who shall violate any of the prohibitions contained in this section, shall for each offence forfeit and pay a penalty of two dollars.

Sec. 2. No owner or occupant of any lot or tenement in said city, shall cause or permit any nuisance to be or remain in or upon the said lot or tenement or between the same and the centre of the street and joining, upon the pain of forfeiting the penalty of two dollars for each and every twenty four hours during which the same nuisance shall be or remain on the same lot or tenement or on such part of the streets adjoining as aforesaid, but no single recovery shall exceed the sum of twenty five dollars.

Sec. 3. Every butcher or other person immediately after killing any beves, calves, sheep, or other animals shall destroy the offal, garbage, and other offensive and useless parts thereof, or carrying the same into some place where the same shall not be injurious or offensive to the inhabitants under penalty of twenty dollars for every offence.

Sec. 4. Whenever any dead carcass, putrid or unsound meat of any kind, fish, hides or skins of any kind or any other putrid or unsound substance, shall be found in any part of the city, it shall be the duty of Supervisors of streets to cause the same to be destroyed or to be disposed of in such other manner as may be equally secure as regards the public health. And if any person shall resist the Supervisor of streets in the execution of the duties hereby imposed, or shall disturb, hinder, molest or resist him or any person employed by him in the execution thereof, such offender shall forfeit the penalty of twenty five dollars.

Sec. 4. It shall be the duty of the Supervisors of streets to cause any stagnant waters to be drained off or removed from any lot or out of any street or other place within said city and he is hereby authorized to call upon such persons as owe road labor to assist him therein, and also to abate or remove every nuisance whatever within the city.

Sec. 5. It shall be the duty of the supervisor of streets to refer to the City Council, with respect to any other nuisances that may exist in the city, such as may be caused from vats, pits, or pools of stationary water, whether from tanners, skimmers, dyers, or other persons, as he may deem injurious or dangerous to the public health: for their order thereon and shall carry the order of the City Council into effect in the premises.

FOURTH DIVISION—OF THE PRE-VENTION OF FIRES.

Sec. 1. No pipe of any stove or Franklin shall be put up unless it be conducted into a chimney made of brick or stone, except when the Mayor or any Alderman shall deem it equally safe if otherwise put up, to be certified under his hand.

Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of the five Wardens of each Ward to examine carefully under the direction of the City Council any cause from which immediate danger of fire may be apprehended and to remove or abate with the consent of the Mayor or any Alderman (in case of neglect or refusal of the owner or occupant) any cause from which danger apprehended and to cause all buildings, chimneys, stoves, pipes, hearth stones, boilers, ash-houses, and apparatus usual in any building, which shall be found in such condition as to be considered unsafe to be without delay, at the expense of the owner thereof, or occupant thereof, put in such condition as not to be dangerous in causing or promoting fires.

Sec. 3. If any person shall obstruct or hinder any person under the direction of the Warden aforesaid, in the performance of his duty under the preceding section, such person shall, for every such offence, forfeit the penalty of twenty five dollars.

FIFTH DIVISION—OF THE CITY WATCH.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the city of Nauvoo, that there be established in said city a night watch or patrol to be composed of the Captain of the Police and such watchmen as may, from time to time, be appointed by the City Council, and who shall be governed by such laws and regulations, and endowed with such powers and authority as may be given or imposed upon them by the City Council.

Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of the Captain of the Police to keep a general superintendence of the watch; direct the manner of keeping watch, and the times and rounds of the watchmen; and to perform such duties as are necessary and proper for the discharge of his duty and office; he shall keep a register of the watchmen and have a house or building for the use of the same, and shall appoint a Lieutenant who shall discharge his duties in his absence.

Sec. 3. To the said watch shall be entrusted the peace and safety of the city during the night, and they shall arrest all persons who may be found in said city at unusual hours and under suspicious circumstances, and bring such person or persons before the Captain of the Police, who may, in his discretion, detain such person or persons until such time as the Mayor or some Alderman can examine into the nature of the charges against him or them; they shall also stop all riotous or improper noises during the night, and may arrest offenders as aforesaid and exercise such a discretion in preserving the peace and quiet of the city as may be proper and salutary, and for such or other services there shall be allowed them such reasonable compensation as the Council may agree upon.

SIXTH DIVISION—PUBLIC MARKET.

Sec. 1. All persons keeping fresh meat or fish in this city, shall at all times keep the building in which such meat or fish is exposed for sale, clean and free from any disagreeable smell; and any person neglecting to comply with this or the next succeeding section, shall for each offence forfeit and pay the sum of five dollars.

Sec. 2. It shall be the duty of the supervisor of streets to inspect the state of all places within this city, in which fresh meat or fish is exposed for sale, once in each month, between the first of November and the first of April, and once in each week between the first of April and the first of November, and if he shall find the foregoing section to be not complied with, he shall order the said buildings to be cleared; and it shall be the duty of the person or persons in charge of said building or buildings, to facilitate such examination, and when directed as aforesaid, to cause such place or places to be cleansed and put in a healthy condition.

Passed January 30th 1843.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

Flogging in the Navy.—It has leaked out, in the testimony taken in the case of mutiny on board the Somers, that the number of floggings inflicted on board that vessel, between the 3d of June and the 10th of December 1842, was two thousand two hundred and sixty-five!—This may be one cause of the projected mutiny, for the frequent repetition of the lash is calculated to destroy all sense of honor in those who are daily subjected to it.

[N. Y. Tribune.

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 8, 1843.

CITY ELECTION.

According to previous notice, an election was held at Hyrum Smith's office, on Monday last, for the purpose of electing city officers. The following persons were nominated and received the number of votes attached to their names:

MAYOR.
Joseph Smith,	424.
ALDERMEN.
Orson Spencer,	423.
Daniel H. Wells,	420.
George A. Smith,	221.
Stephen Markham,	212.
Wm. Law,	205.
Samuel Bennet,	205.
COUNCILLORS.
Hyrum Smith,	422.
John Taylor,	422.
Orson Hyde,	421.
Orson Pratt,	421.
Sylvester Emmons,	418.
Heber C. Kimball,	216.
Benjamin Warrington,	215.
Daniel Spencer,	214.
Brigham Young,	213.
William Marks,	212.
Wilson Law,	211.
Albert P. Rockwood,	211.
Samuel Bent,	209.

ALDERMEN NOT ELECTED.

William Law, Samuel Bennet

COUNCILLORS NOT ELECTED.

William Marks, Wilson Law, Albert P. Rockwood, Samuel Bent.

The above selection was undoubtedly a good one; all of the candidates were well qualified to serve the city in the capacity of Mayor, Aldermen and councillors, and we should scarcely have known how to have made the selection, and so nearly was public opinion divided that those who have lost may feel themselves highly honored, as they have only been beat from one to about 10. It certainly was a good race, and if those that were behind had only spurred a little, they perhaps might have arrived first to the winning post.

It would seem from the record of the proceedings of the Senate that that honorable body have taken it into consideration to repeal the Nauvoo charters again. Mr. Waters moved to repeal all the charters granted the Mormons. It is indeed very singular (as the Hon. Mr. Davis states) that a gentleman living in a county two hundred miles from Nauvoo, should feel so much interested about the welfare of the inhabitants of Hancock county; surely they are capable of attending to their own business without the interposition of Mr. Waters. What would the gentleman think if we were so far to transcend the bounds of decency, as to interfere with the local affairs of the county that he represents? would he not think that we were officious? that we were meddling with other people's business, that did not concern us? that we lacked some of those noble principles that govern men of honor, intelligence and truth, and that we were destitute of the common principles of etiquette and good breeding.

Mr. Waters however states that he has nothing against either Mr. Davis (our Senator) nor his constituents, what then? It would seem that he has been playing the harlequin with Messrs. Duncan, Henderson, and others, in trying to make political capital out of Mormonism, that he had nothing against them, but out of his sheer loving kindness, and tender mercies, he only wanted to do them all the harm he could. How often is the house to be troubled with such things, that are not intended for the good of the State, the Mormons, or any body else; but merely to fulfill dishonorable electioneering promises? We know that all these things arise from narrow religious prejudice, and persecution; and not from those pure principles of philanthropy, and patriotism that ought to burn in the bosom, and actuate the conduct of every American legislator; if it were not the case where is the necessity of the frequent repetition of such remarks as the following? "Mr. Worthington said that he thought that every man, or body of men, should be left to worship that great first cause, in the way they chose, and for aught he knew the Mormons exercised that right without molesting any one."

When will narrow superstition, religious bigotry and dogged persecution cease? and the Mormons be treated upon the broad principles of republicanism, and in common with all other free American citizens, receive all the untrammelled rights of this great Republic?

We say, as we have before stated, that the Legislature have no constitutional right to repeal, or take from us our charters, it is true they can do that thing, or pass any law they please; but the question will be, will that act stand the test of a legal investigation? We think not. What is the meaning of the following clause in our charter? "We shall hereafter be called and known by the name of the City of Nauvoo," and the inhabitants thereof are hereby constituted a body corporate and politic, by the name aforesaid, and shall have PERPETUAL SUCCESSION, and may have, and use a common seal, which they may change, and alter at pleasure." Sec. 1. We have heretofore said enough on this subject; but would here ask, does the above clause 'perpetual succession,' mean that the charter is either to be taken away or altered this year, the next year, or at any other time? or do the words perpetual succession mean what they say?

A hon. member, while speaking upon a bill which contemplated giving courts power to dissolve the marriage contract, in defence of his position says, that if the house has power to break up chartered privileges, they have power to make a law of that kind. But if they have no right to disannul perpetual charters what then? We might with equal propriety say, if a man has a right to murder he has a right to steal, but his saying so would not make either murder or theft lawful.

We believe that there is sufficient intelligence and patriotism in the house to preserve our charter inviolate, and have made the above remarks merely for general information.

The following act was introduced into the Senate on Tuesday, January 31, 1843.

"Act to allow Thomas C. King for services in arresting Joe Smith. The Senate refused to order the bill to a second reading."

We are not surprised that the Senate should refuse to read such a bill as the above a second time, for the statement is altogether incorrect. It ought to have read, act to allow Thomas C. King for services in not arresting Joe Smith, for he strictly did not do it, and the Senate knew that it was an imposition upon them, for as Gov. Carlin employed him illegally and unconstitutionally to arrest Joseph Smith if he did not do it, he ought either to go without his pay or to apply to Ex-Governor Carlin for it; besides he did not follow the instructions given him, and did not go where he was, or he might have obtained him—for while he was enquiring of the old women and boys about the city for the Prophet, one of the boys who was flying his kite gave him information of him; he told him that "he was gone to heaven on Hyrum's white horse, and that he was now sending up his dinner with the kite." If the spirit had followed him he might have caught him, and then the Senate no doubt would have paid him for his services.

The subscribers having purchased the patent right of Neal's Lard Lamps, for the county of Hancock, are prepared to furnish the inhabitants of the city of Nauvoo, and of the county of Hancock with a supply of the above named lamps.

Those lamps are the most useful and economical of any that we have seen, they burn the cold lard without any inconvenience, and emit a most brilliant light, at less than half the expense of either candles or oil; while, at the same time their cleanness places it within the power of all to obtain them. We have seen in this city another kind of lard lamp, which is heated through the medium of a tube that comes in contact with the flame, and heats the lard below. There is, however, much inconvenience attending them, and we know of persons who have them who are obliged to cease using them.

Neal's Lard Lamp is not only a much superior article, in point of usefulness, but can be obtained at about one fourth of the expense. We quote the following from the State Register:—

"We have lit up the office of the State Register with the above lamps, and find them to give better light, and to save one half over candles or oil."

We hereby warn all persons against making, selling, or vending any of the above lamps, in the county of Hancock, as we have purchased the exclusive right. The lamps may be had at Mr. Law's store, or at Taylor and Woodruff's store, in the printing office.

TAYLOR and WOODRUFF.
WILSON LAW.

IN SENATE.

TWO O'CLOCK.

The bill for an Act concerning incorporations, was taken up, the question being on the amendment of Mr. Waters, to repeal all the charters granted the Mormons.

Mr. Davis said he considered all his constituents, whether Mormons or not, entitled to an equal hearing. The amendment proposed is directed exclusively to the repeal of certain city and other charters within the county of Hancock, not a word is said about any other city charter. He was opposed to the repeal of these charters. If the Nauvoo charters contain dangerous powers it is just and right that they should be amended. Mr. D. expressed his sincere thanks to the gentleman from Pope, (Mr. Waters,) for the fatherly kindness and regard he has expressed for the grievances of a county 200 miles from him. He said if the citizens of Hancock are in danger of their liberties, they could petition the Legislature for redress. If they do not petition, I shall take it for granted that they are not so much alarmed as the gentleman supposes.

Mr. Waters said he was actuated by no unkind feeling toward the gentleman from Hancock or his constituents. He felt bound by the instructions he had received to offer the amendment; it was demanded of him by those whom he represented.

Mr. Ralston said he thought it unnecessary to bring up the Mormon charter at this time, and in connection with this bill. The bill before the Senate contained some salutary provisions, and he hoped it would pass.

Mr. Worthington said that he thought that every man or body of men should be left to worship that great first cause in the way they chose, and for aught he knew the Mormons exercised that right without molesting any one; he was opposed to repealing their charters, but in favor of amending them.

Mr. Vandeverter called for the reading of the bill and the amendment.

The amendment was laid on the table by 22 to 13.—[State Register.]

TYPE-SETTING MACHINE.

It is a fact worthy of notice, that notwithstanding improvements in printing have apparently kept pace with other improvements of the age; yet these improvements have been directed mainly in respect of the press—to multiplying copies with great rapidity. In that department, vast improvements indeed have been achieved; but in the more experienced process of composition, (setting the type,) in which much the greatest number of workmen are employed, the art has remained stationary almost ever since printing was invented. Occasionally we have had startling announcements of contrivances to facilitate the tedious operation. A Yankee in England some time since announced that he had found out how to work it out by machinery—but he failed, we presume, for we heard nothing of it until within a few weeks past, the announcement is made in such a form as to leave little doubt of the fact, that machines are constructing, nay, have been in successful operation, by which types can be set vastly faster than they have heretofore been, and at less expense. When the apparatus shall have been perfected and simplified, as it no doubt upon experience will be found susceptible of, the invention will be a most important one.

The Illustrated London News contains engravings and descriptions of both the composing and distributing machine. The compositor would be mistaken for a man seated at an organised piano, each small perpendicular pipe of which contains a letter of type piled one above another in due form—his copy is before him in place of a music book. Those pipes or tubes in the distributing machine lie horizontally instead of perpendicularly before him. We extract the following from the description. It seems there are competitors for improvements already.

"In one of our early numbers was given an account of a new mode of composing types, the invention of Messrs Young and Delcambre. We have now the pleasure of presenting two views, one of a composing and the other of a distributing machine, both invented by Captain Rosenberg, and certainly superior, in every way to any previous ones.

The setting up of the types, which Messrs Young and Delcambre were able to do at the rate of 6,000 an hour, Captain Rosenberg states he can do at least 10,800; and the distribution of the types, which, under Messrs Young and Delcambre's arrangement, furnishes occupation for four hands (boys) Captain Rosenberg does by means of one, with the aid of machinery.

The mode of working with the machine is as follows:—The chief compositor, who sits at the front of the machine, having his copy before him, performs upon the keys as he reads. By the action of the keys, the corresponding letters are forced out from their respective compartments, and are laid down upon an endless belt or chain, which is constantly passing through the middle of the machine, from the right towards the left. By the motion of this chain, the types, when liberated and placed upon it, are very quickly conveyed into the receiver, where, by the action of a small eccentric, which is revolving at a considerable speed, the types are deposited horizontally one above the other, in the same order as the keys are performed upon and are thus formed into lines, the lines being supported by a T shaped slider, which is made to recede in the same proportion as the types accumulate upon it. As each line is completed, (of which the compositor is informed by a dial, and warned by the bell,) the compositor, with his left hand, by turning which, the line thus completed is lowered to the bottom of the receiver, while, by moving with his hand a lever, the line is removed into the justifying stick. The time consumed in this operation is less than a second. As soon as the line is removed into the justifying stick, the assistant compositor detaches with his left hand the upper end of that stick, the end being moveable upon a fulcrum, and having lowered it into a horizontal position, he reads the line, the types standing now in a vertical position. Having corrected such faults as may have occurred during the composition, he, by removing a slider, which constitutes the bottom of the justifying stick, causes the line of type to drop at once from the stick into the galley, where he spaces it out.

The principal feature of novelty in this machine is the endless chain on which the types are deposited, and by which they are conveyed into the receiver, and the advantages are the types are carried forward in a straight line by the endless chain, free from all chance of disturbance, and subject to little or no friction, and that as many letters may be set at once as happened to follow in uninterrupted alphabetical sequence; and, in practice there is a vast number of words and syllables which the compositor soon learns to dispose of in this way, by one stroke of the keys. For example, act, add, all, accent, adopt, carry, are words the letters in which, following in their natural order, may be set up by one pressure of the hand on the keys; the endless chain carries the types forward in the order in which they were deposited upon it and nothing can occur to disturb that order. So also with such syllables as ad, aff, dem, opp, and ly. The saving in time from the use of such accords (as they are termed) may be thus illustrated. The word accentuation contains twelve letters, and would require twenty-four movements of the arm of a compositor to set up in the ordinary way; but with Captain Rosenberg's machine it is set up with only three strokes on the keys, as thus, ac-centu-at-ion.

"Captain Rosenberg states that he has proved, by actual trials, that his machine, is capable of delivering, or clearing out types, (supposing them to be composed without regard to order of sequence,) to the amount of 400 in a minute, 25,000 in an hour. Already a young man, with only a few month's practice, and without a previous knowledge of printing, is able to set up about three lines of brevier in a minute, each line containing about 60 letters and spaces, (this we witnessed,) and assuming that he is able to do so for a continuance, that is equal to about 10,800 in an hour.

"We now present the view of the distributing machine, by which a lad can distribute, and replace in the composing machine, 6,000 letters in an hour; but this would offer no hindrance to the general operations of any printing office adopting the system of composing by machinery; for there might be as many more distributing machines, according to the relative speed of the two; for instance, three of the one for two of the other, five for three, and so on.

"The cost of Captain Rosenberg's two machines must, we think, be greater than that of Messrs Young and Delcambre's one; but Captain Rosenberg himself is of a contrary opinion. The machines lately shown at work in Howard street, Norfolk street, Strand, are the first complete ones of this sort, and what they may have cost furnishes of course no criterion by which to judge of the price at which they could be manufactured in considerable numbers for sale. They are now in trial for some further improvements, and will be again submitted to inspection in London, when the alterations, and amendments are finished.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON FINANCE.

To whom was referred the resolution of the House, relative to the available means and current expenses of the State.

January 10, 1843.

Read, laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

Mr. ARNOLD, from the committee on Finance, to whom was referred the following resolution, to wit:

Resolved, That the committee on Finance be requested to report to this House a statement of the amount of the present indebtedness of the State, together with a statement of her available means, her present and prospective resources, the probable amount per annum which the current expenses of the State will require for the next five years; also, the probable amount which can be raised under the present revenue system, per annum, for five years to come; the expediency or inexpediency of reducing the present rate of taxation, and the practicability of adopting some system of financial policy, which while it shall not impose on the people oppressive taxation, will ultimately relieve the State from debt.

Have had the same under consideration, and submit the following

REPORT:

The present indebtedness of the State exclusive of the bonds held by, and debts due to the State Bank and Bank of Illinois, is as follows:

Canal Debt.
Bonds negotiated on account of canal	$3,742,188 00
Interest due on same, Jan. 1, 1843	224,531 28
Canal scrip bearing interest	341,972 71
Interest due on same Jan. 1, 1843: 2 years 9 months	56,425 49
Certificate of indebtedness not bearing interest, about	300,000 00

Due contractors, per centage retained

1843	100,000 00
Total canal debt, Jan. 1, 1843	4,785,117 43
Bonds issued on account of internal improvement system	5,085,444 00
Scrip issued to contractors	929,305 53
Interest due on above, Jan. 1, 1843	511,327 43
Bonds issued for State House	121,000 00
Interest probably due	10,000 00
Due school, college and seminary fund	803,084 18
Interest due Jan. 1843	48,425 01
	12,328,913 69

Resources of the State.

Canal lands amounting to 230,467 acres.
Lots in Chicago, unsold	370
Lots in Lockport, unsold	679
Lots in Ottawa, unsold	914
Lots in LaSalle, unsold	1,528

These lots vary in value, from $10 each, to 5,000.

Amount due canal fund for lots sold $207,682 53.

The Illinois and Michigan canal, with its water power, stone quarries, coal beds, &c; forty thousand acres of land, purchased by the State, and selected along the lines of contemplated railroads, estimated to be worth from $5 to 10 per acre; 210,000 acres of valuable lands, selected under the late distribution bill of the United States; ninety thousand five hundred and seventy-seven and fifty-seven hundredths acres of these lands have been estimated, by the commissioners who located them, to be worth the sum of $357,199 18. This estimate is made by the separate valuation of each tract, and is, therefore, entitled to great consideration. The aggregate value cannot be greatly less than one million of dollars.

The value of the canal lands, lots and property, depends on the completion of that great work. Without going into detail in this portion of the report, we now hazard the statement, that the canal property will, on the completion of the canal, if properly husbanded and judiciously sold, extinguish the entire canal debt.

There is also fifty-five miles of railroad, from Springfield to Meredosia, which is rented for 10,000 per annum.

Railroad iron, value unknown.
Unsettled claims due internal improvement fund, amount unknown.
Three per cent. fund, from sale of lands, due 30th June last	37,206 39

Our share of proceeds of public lands to July 1842	51,909 35
Recapitulation—Amount of debt as shown above	$12,328,913 69.
Canal Resources.
Consisting of lands, lots, water power, &c. &c. on its completion, will be worth, say	6,500,000 00
Amount due for lands and lots sold	207,682 53
Forty thousand acres of land belonging to internal improvement fund, at 7 50 per acre	300,000 00
Two hundred and ten thousand acres, worth	1,000,000 00
	8,007,682 53
Add value of Meredosia railroad, &c. &c.	500,000 00
	$8,507,682 53

Also mill sites, rights of way &c. of very considerable value.

Thus it is seen that we have the means of paying more than two-thirds of our present debt, without direct taxation, within a short period, if it could be converted into money. But this property can only be made available by exchanging it for our liabilities, and the largest item; to wit, the canal resources, are of comparatively little value before its completion.

It will be observed that the amount of debt, bearing interest, does not vary far from eleven millions of dollars, the annual interest on which is $660,000. This is an amount, all will admit, beyond the ability of the people, at present to pay, by direct taxation. However painful such a conclusion may be to our State pride, it is one from which we cannot escape; our credit is gone, a debt of fearful magnitude hangs over us, and a question of most intense interest now arises—what shall be the future policy of the State with regard to this debt. Your committee feel pride in saying that the voice of the people, through their executive, through the Legislature, through every organ by which it could be heard, have pronounced the noble determination, never to repudiate. Such is the honorable attitude which this State has assumed with regard to the public debt. We have, by resolutions, unanimously adopted, reiterated the pledge, that we will devote all our available resources, beyond an economical administration of the government, to the reduction and ultimate extinction of the public debt. The question then returns for our most deliberate consideration—what shall be the future policy of the State; how can our resources be best made available to discharge our debts.

It will be observed that our debt is divided into two distinct portions, each of which was incurred for a particular object and for the payment of which, in addition to the plighted faith of the State, there are distinct securities: the canal debt, and the internal improvement debt. For the canal debt, there is pledged the canal lands, tolls, &c. The value of these securities depend on its completion. There has already been expended on the work, between four and five millions of dollars, and it will require one and a half millions more to complete it, on a plan of the high level.

It is supposed that within a short period after its completion, say one or two years, that the lands, town lots, water power, &c., &c., may be sold for an amount equal to its entire cost. This being effected, would leave its entire revenues to be devoted to the payment of the remaining indebtedness of the State, and defraying its expenses. It is supposed that the amount to be derived from its tolls would be sufficient, within two years after its completion, to pay the interest on the present State debt, after reducing that debt by sale of canal property and internal improvement property, as will be detailed hereafter. Your committee have thought it not improper to examine the truth of the above positions, and to furnish to the House their estimate of the value of canal lands, and the revenues to be derived from that source.

1st. What will the canal property be worth on its completion? It has been estimated by an able financier of New York, who has given to the subject great attention, and who is notoriously cautious, that these lands, including town sites, will be worth, on an average, $30 00 per acre. This estimate will give nearly seven millions of dollars. This estimate is not, in the opinion of your committee, extravagant. These lands, donated by the United States to Illinois for the purpose of aiding in the construction of this work, are not surpassed, in richness and fertility, by any on the globe. Situated in the immediate vicinity of this work, there would be great facilities for market. A very considerable portion of them are covered with heavy timber, which alone is worth the above estimate.

[Concluded next week.]

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

TAKE notice that at the next term of the Hancock county circuit court, to be holden at the Court House in Carthage on the third day of April, I shall apply to said court to order a sale of all the real Estate of which Henry J. Hunt died seized, for the payment of the remaining debts chargeable against the Estate of said H. J. Hunt when and where all persons interested, can appear and show cause to the contrary, if any they have.

ORSON SPENCER Administrator of the Estate of HENRY J. HUNT.
Nauvoo February 7 1843. 41-2w.

Indian paper.—The Dayton Journal says, "Don't take an Indiana bank note with ash on it—all such are counterfeit. The following from the Cashier of the bank affords other tests that it may be well to observe."

Two Dollar Counterfeit Indiana Bills.—These counterfeits are shorter and narrower than the genuine bills; the counterfeits being but six and one-fourth inches long; the genuine ones and twos are six and one-half inches in length. The counterfeit is also narrower, by the margin line, than the genuine. The public are cautioned to measure all our two dollar bills presented, as the counterfeits are well calculated to deceive.

The number, also, will furnish a means of detection. In all the twos issued by the Bank, it will be found that (except the first one thousand at the Indianapolis Branch, from one to one thousand,) the right hand, or State Bank number, always exceeds the left hand, or Branch number; and the left hand number is always in the same hundreds and termination, with the right hand number, but not in the same thousands. No two dollar bill is genuine, purporting to be on the Michigan City Branch, (with which Branch, so far as seen, the counterfeits are filled,) on which the left hand number exceeds 3000.

JAMES M. RAY, Cashier.

State Bank, Jan. 3, 1843.

NEW CEMENT.—A Mr. Selby has discovered a new cement said to be much cheaper and better than glue. It is composed of shalac and India rubber dissolved in Napthe. A number of experiments were tried with it in England. In one of them, two pieces of lead, an oily African wood, very difficult to unite by glue, were cemented with this substance, and afterwards a force of twenty one tons applied without separating the pieces. Heavy oak plank, eight inches thick, were glued together with it, and fired at repeatedly by well charged and pointed cannon. The shot tore the wood, but did not effect the cement. A six inch hole was then bored into the plank and a shell exploded within it. The wood was torn to shivers, but the cement remained unharmed. If it really possesses such adhesive power, it will prove a valuable discovery.

The Essentiality of Good Manners.—Manners are of more importance than laws. Upon them, in a great measure, the laws depend. The law touches us; but here and there, now and then, manners are what vex or soothe, corrupt or purify, exalt or debase, enslave or free us, by a constant, steady, uniform, insensible operation, like that of the air we breathe. They give their whole form and color to our lives. According to their quality, they aid mortals, they supply them, or they totally destroy them.

A wire rope 5,300 yards in length and weighing twelve tons has been manufactured at Newcastle-upon-Tyne, for the inclined plane on the Liege and Antwerp railway.

O. C. SKINNER,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office with G. Hills, Esq., a few rods south east of the Temple.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.
G. B. Holt, Dayton,
G. P. Bell, Hamilton,
Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,
Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE.

FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.

Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.

Jan. 21, 1843. — 3m*

BOOKS! BOOKS! BOOKS!!

THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,

in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1,50
do	do	do	neat	2,00
do	whole	bound	plain	2,00
do	do	do	neat	2,50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1,00
do	do	do	neat	1,50
do	hf	bound	plain	0,75
do	do	do	neat	1,00
do	do	do	extra	1,37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	62
do	do	do	neat	87
do	hf	bound	plain	50
do	do	do	neat	75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice; and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscriber, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSEND,

A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W.

Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29-1f.

NO CURE NO PAY.

DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.

Nauvoo, Jan. 28, 1842.

39-1f.

TO BRICKMAKERS AND LABORERS.

THE undersigned wishes to contract for the making of one million of bricks.

Also for the making of 1200 rods of ditch and turf fence.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

January 13 1843.

NOTICE.

THOSE that have orders that I have given or accounts for labor, or materials for the last year, will bring them in immediately, so that I can settle up my business.

J. W. COOLIDGE.

Jan. 16, 1843.

no38-

GEO. BACHMAN.

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House.

no29-1f.

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRICS.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years' practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he hopes to be enabled, by assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all affections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUG STORE.

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31-3m.*

BRADFORD & BROWN,

Commission and Forwarding Merchants, Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw.

Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842 no32-6m*

NOTICE.

HEREBY given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo January 13 1843. 1f

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic.

no35-6m.

TO RENT FOR ONE YEAR OR MORE

A SMALL tan yard and dwelling house with both tanner's tools and currying tools, and a good patent bark mill and good pumps, all in good order. There is 13 vats, 10 of which is in doors. The house has 4 rooms in it and a good bark shed. The lot contains 1 acre and is in the best part of the town. There is a plenty of water; for further information call on Wm. Field, on the premises. I will let a few cords of bark go.

Nauvoo, Jan. 14, 1843.

no37-1f.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000

are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12½ cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-3m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph John on, Ramus
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chidister, Labarg Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Mcombs McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam. S. Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reeces Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

THE WASP

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYAN.

Volume I.—No. 42

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, February 15, 1913.

Whole Number 42.

THE WASP.

THIS DAY.

JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED BY JOHN TAYLOR, N. W. CORNER OF
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.
TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING.
One square, one insertion, 3¢.
Every subsequent insertion, 2¢.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor) Post Office, to receive attention.

POETRY.

[From the French.]

THE LOVER'S ADIEU.

BY J. CLEMENS.

Then I must leave, alas! forever,
My native land and childhood home;
The ties that long have bound me, sever,
And far from her, the loved one, roam.
Then, charming vale, where we have up ken,
Our words of love so pure and sweet,
Shall now thy charm for me be broken,
I hail no more thy green retreat.

Farewell, ye fields, off-robed of flowers—
Of my Estelle to deck the hill;
And roses, called from Flora's bowers,
To grace a brow, than yet, more fit.
And, farewell, stream, whose limpid waters,
Their rapid course, ended, oft,
That she, the boast of Beauty's daughters,
Might there behold her features soft.

Farewell, ye meadows, ever verdant,
Where infancy its passions breathed;
And where in youth our love more fervent,
The flowery garland martial wreathed.
And ye, fair trees, where oft we wandered,
Our names to trace, our vows to tell,
And o'er the past with pleasure pondered,
To you I sigh a sad farewell.

TO NIAGARA.

BY DR. R. H. COLLIER.

Man offers at thy shrine his humble prayer:
Creation's wonder—"Lord, thy will be done!"
In thundering accents the wild waters raise.

Proud man—he trembles at thy sweeping flood;
In silence yields submission at thy sight;
His mortal soul admits that all is good,
And bows in awe, at thy Creator's might.

Nature, in exultation, throws her arch
Of triumph o'er the cloud by night and day.
At thus transcending Art's most onward march,
And "Victory! Victory!" ever seems to say.

Niagara!—this lesson thou hast taught
To man of every age and dialect,
That mighty, solemn as their art,—how
To the "Great Spirit"—thy dead architect.
Table Rock, Dec. 12, 1842.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON FINANCE.

To whom was referred the resolution of the House, relative to the available means and current expenses of the State.

January 10, 1913.

Read, laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

(Concluded.)

We would call the attention of the House to the effects which other canals have had on the price of real estate lying in their immediate vicinity. The western portion of the Erie canal ran through a wild, unsettled country, covered with a heavy forest; yet the lands on its border, although they required the labor of a lifetime to bring a small farm under cultivation, and were neither so rich nor so productive as those, rising in a few years from a nominal value, to be worth from twenty to thirty dollars per acre, and are now valued at from forty to one hundred dollars per acre. In the same manner, agricultural products from the line of the Illinois and Michigan canal to Buffalo, would be more than balanced by the greater productiveness and less expensive cultivation of ours; and on the completion of the canal our lands would be quite as valuable as those lying on the Erie canal.

Unexhaustible mines of coal are found upon them; flourishing villages have already sprung up on these lands and are rapidly increasing, and enhancing their value. The business of the canal would soon convert these villages into large towns. But a few years would pass before Illinois would have her Buffalo and her Rochester. Chicago, Lockport, Joliet, Ottawa and La Salle would, at no distant day, rival the flourishing towns of western New York, and the same impulse of prosperity would be given to every village, town and farm lying on the Illinois river, to its termination. Taking these things into consideration, we feel warranted in saying that the value of the canal property, on the completion of that work, will equal its entire cost.

2d. What amount of revenues will the canal yield? It requires very little consideration to perceive that there is no other work in the Union, perhaps, none in the world, which, with the same number of miles of artificial navigation, opens a trade between territories so extensive, and so rich in agricultural and mineral products. It will complete the water communication between the east and west. The whole territory lying on the great lakes, so rapidly advancing in population and wealth, within the whole Valley of the Illinois, the Mississippi and its tributaries, will be brought into commercial intercourse. In addition to the immense amount of agricultural products which it would carry to market, there would be large items of lumber, salt, coal, lead, merchandise and manufactured goods from the east, to the whole valley of the upper Mississippi, and the groceries of the south, &c.

Experience has shown that, as a general proposition, the northern market for nearly all agricultural products, is the best. In looking to the probable revenue from the Illinois and Michigan canal, we see that a belt of country, extending from Chicago to the mouth of the Illinois river, and for sixty or eighty miles north and south of this line, would do its business on this canal. This would embrace a section of the State capable of producing an agricultural surplus, as large as that produced by the whole State of New York. All this section of country would be supplied with merchandise and manufactured goods by this artery of trade. In the single articles of salt and lumber, we think it susceptible of demonstration that a majority of the counties situated would save an amount annually, more than sufficient to pay the interest on the interest on the entire public debt. Take for example the county of Sangamon. She paid to the State revenue in 1911, between $10,000 and $11,000. She consumes ten thousand barrels of salt, per annum, which at 23 per barrel, costs her $230,000. On completion of the canal she could save on it at least $1 on a barrel, and at the same time obtain a very superior article.

It is an interest in Chicago, say $1.37 per barrel. Transportation from Chicago to Memphis, $1.32. Transportation from Chicago to Springfield, $1.30. Transportation from Chicago to St. Louis, $1.20.

Saving, on ten thousand barrels, $10,000. An equal amount could be saved on lumber.

Wheat has been worth, on an average, thirty cents a bushel more in Chicago than in Springfield. The cost of transportation could not, on completion of the canal, exceed ten cents a bushel, leaving a net gain of twenty cents a bushel. This would amount in a surplus of one hundred thousand bushels, to $20,000. These estimates can be readily carried out so as to demonstrate, that every county within seventy miles of the canal or Illinois river, would make a net gain of thousands of dollars per annum, on the completion of this work. The tolls on the Erie canal, in the year 1825, the first year after its completion, amounted to $500,000; in 1826, to $762,000. In 1833, after a reduction of twenty per cent, they had increased to $1,512,600. In 1826, when the tolls on the Erie canal amounted to $762,000, there was less business done than will be done on ours the first year after it goes into operation. Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois, and their rich soil, the products of which have swelled the income of the Erie canal to millions, was useless for want of labor, and its rank vegetation rotted in the depths of the forest and on the face of the broad prairies. Even as late as 1836 when the aggregate value of the property transported on the Erie canal, was $67,000,000 $50,000,000 belonged to citizens of the State of New York. The tolls that year amounted to $1,014,342.00. Why should not the amount of property on the Illinois and Michigan canal, within a few years after its completion, equal that belonging to citizens of the State of New York at that time? Our soil is far more productive, is cultivated at much less expense, our population equally industrious and enterprising, and our climate more desirable. We are willing then to give it as our deliberate opinion, that the tolls of the canal on its completion, will within a short period, pay the interest on our entire public debt, reduced as it will be by sale of canal lands and internal improvement and other property. The House will perceive how important to the credit and ability of the State, to pay her debts, is the completion of this work.

Again, the completion of this work will, in the opinion of your committee, and of the friends of the canal, of the State and increase her ability to pay taxes, and consequently lessen the rate of taxation. The Erie canal was completed in 1825. For the ten years next preceding its completion, the real and personal property of the State had decreased from $18,225, the amount assessed in 1815, to $163,477,316 amount assessed in 1825, showing a decrease, in ten years of $17,847,771. The increase for the ten years next subsequent to its completion, was from $163,477,316, to $325,370,374, showing an increase of more than one hundred per cent. in ten years. The proportionate increase in taxes would be still more rapid in consequence of the influence this great work would have upon emigration. The aggregate wealth and taxable property would be most rapidly increased by the introduction of men and families from abroad. The facilities for market created by the canal would result in the immediate and wise settlement of the entire valley of the Illinois river, which is but a continuation of the canal, and its rich soil be brought into immediate cultivation. The value of the products of this entire section would be increased from one-third to one-half, by opening this avenue to market. Emigration would flow in, real estate would rise, and the aggregate value of the property in the State would be increased to an extent scarcely to be appreciated.

Here then is a work requiring one and a half millions of dollars to complete, and when completed, it will first add at least three millions to the value of canal property and make it marketable. Second, it will yield a revenue within a few years, equal to the annual interest of ten millions of public debt. Third, it will add from fifty to one hundred millions to the aggregate taxable property of the State.

Such is the importance, in a financial view, of the finishing of the canal, as one of the resources by which our public debt is to be paid.

In connection with this subject, we would recommend that all the property belonging to the railroad improvement system, the forty thousand acres of land, and the Mercedia railroad, and the two hundred and ten thousand acres lately received from the United States, be valued at a fair and reasonable valuation, and sold for bonds and scrip. In this way we believe the debt may be honorably and honestly very considerably reduced, and the burthens of the people relieved. Your committee believe that the legislation now in progress will relieve the State from the bank bonds and debt, diminish the bank bonds and debt, diminish the internal improvement debt by the sale of property, provide means for the completion of the canal, and thus obtain a permanent source of large revenue, we shall relieve the State from her embarrassments, and at no very distant period, be able to relieve the people from taxation to pay the expenses of government. But it is for the interest of the people to strain every nerve, to make almost any sacrifice to obtain means to put the canal in operation. A bill has been submitted to the House, by the appropriate committee, to obtain money to complete this work. The success of that project depends upon the State doing nothing to forfeit or shake confidence abroad, in her integrity and disposition faithfully to fulfill her obligations to the full extent of her ability. This confidence is to be retained as well by our actions as by declarations and resolutions. This brings us to consider the question, whether the State should reduce the present rate of taxation. This is a question of great difficulty, and to which we have given the most careful examination. We understand and appreciate the difficulty in the people's paying high taxes at the present time; we know the embarrassments under which the people are laboring, from the want of a market for their agricultural products, and from the want of a circulating medium, and while we are in favor of taxing as high as possible, we are aware that there is a point beyond which taxation cannot go. If the present rate of taxation results in the depreciation of property, for in causing citizens to remove from the State, or in deterring others from coming into it, it is unquestionably too high, and should be reduced. But the present rate of taxation has not, so far as we are advised, produced such results. The rate is not as high as in many of our sister States.

In Indiana the State tax has for several years been forty cents on the hundred dollars. In 1841, the value of the taxable property in that State was one hundred million of dollars, and the tax raised was four hundred thousand dollars, in addition to which there was a poll tax of seventy-five cents.

Ohio pays a still higher tax. The amount of taxable property in that State, in 1840 was 112,037,861. The State and canal tax, &c. was 562,993 68. This, including school, bridge, town and all other taxes, amounting in that year to the enormous sum of 1,770,161. And yet there is not and has not been a more prosperous State in the Union.

This State has adopted the peculiar provision in her revenue law, that if in any year the treasurer perceives that the amount to be raised by the tax is not sufficient to meet the accruing interest in her public debt, it is made his duty to add to the rate an amount sufficient to do so. By such vigorous efforts, this noble State has, amidst all the fluctuations and embarrassments of the times, maintained her credit, and been enabled to obtain money to complete her public works. Under all her burthens of taxation she has outstripped all her sister States in their progress in wealth and population. High taxation has not impoverished but enriched her, because it has been judiciously expended. In less than forty years her population has increased from 50,000 to 1,500,000.

The present rate of taxation in this State is thirty cents on the hundred dollars, ten cents of which is set apart for payment of interest on our debts, and cannot be used for any other purpose. The twenty cents on the hundred dollars will not, in the opinion of your committee very much more than defray the ordinary expenses of government, and pay the interest on the school, college and seminary fund. The ordinary expenses of the government, even for the last few years, have considerably exceeded the receipts.

The following is a statement, by the Auditor, of the ordinary receipts and disbursements for the last eight years:

Year.	Receipts.	Disbursements.
1835	$70,100	$66,700
1836	79,000	84,000
1837—38	117,000	235,000
1839	61,700	186,000
1840	106,220	177,114
1841	103,065	179,807
1842	202,219	87,959
	739,304	1,016,281
	Deduct	739,304

Excess of expenditure for the last eight years 276,977

This statement shows the importance of adopting some efficient and permanent system of revenue for the future. The Auditor estimates the amount of Auditor's warrants in circulation in April next, will be 128,898 26, as follows:

Warrants now outstanding	28,598 26
Amount necessary for the expenses of the Legislature	50,000 00
To pay interest on school fund, salaries &c.	50,000 00

128,898 26
These warrants could be receivable in payment of taxes and thus facilitate their collection, and relieve the people from the difficulty of procuring gold and silver.

The taxable property of the State, by the assessments of 1841, is 69,831,419. The taxes assessed that year amounted to 210,445, of which only 109,000 was collected. The balance went to defray the expenses of collection, or allowed as credits to delinquent tax-payers or was levied on real estate, sold or bid in by the State for taxes.

The revenue for 1842, is estimated at 210,000 00

Expenditures of that year estimated by the Government at 137,492 00

The average amount of annual expenditure, will not exceed (under the spirit of economy which we trust will hereafter be adopted) for five years 135,000 per annum.

The expense of collecting the revenue may be greatly diminished and the burthens of the people greatly relieved, by cutting down the fees of officers in all the departments of the Government; to effect this object the committee are preparing bills. While the committee are unwilling to do any thing calculated to injure the credit and reputation of the State, yet from reviewing the whole subject, a majority of the committee have come to the conclusion, that from causes which are temporary in their character, arising from the arrangement of the currency, the absence of a circulating medium, and the want of a market for their agricultural products, that the people cannot, without great sacrifice and inconvenience, pay the present rate of taxation. They, therefore, recommend a temporary reduction, and at the same time a reduction in the expenses of the government.

The committee hope that the causes which compel this reduction may be of short duration, and that as soon as practicable the present rate shall be adopted and continued until the people shall be relieved from the burthen by the revenues of the canal, and by the disposition of the property of the State to her creditors. By this course, and by adopting the present rate for a given number of years, we shall provide for the current expenses of the government, and have a constantly increasing surplus to be applied to the reduction and eventual extinction of the debt. The reasons why it should be permanent are these—it would create confidence in our integrity; it would encourage emigration.—The great mass of emigrants who are diverted from our State, are operated upon by two reasons; the fear of the disgrace and evil of repudiation on the one hand, and on the other hand the fear of oppressive taxation; every mechanic, every farmer, every capitalist, would then know precisely, what rate of taxation he would have to pay, and he could easily compare the rate of taxation in this and other States, and this rate would compare favorably with that of several other States.

The amount received from taxes would increase very rapidly, by the increase of taxable property. The amount of completion of the canal; the amount of taxable lands will also be greatly increased during the next five years.—The following statement shows the number of acres of land in this State, sold by the United States, compiled from the reports of commissioners of the General Land Office.

In 1836	3,199,708.64 acres
1837	1,012,489.10 "
1838	778,560.32 "
1839	752,158.99 "

These lands will become taxable five years after their days of sale, respectively. The aggregate amount to become taxable in the State, according to statement of Auditor, is as follows:

In 1843	14,271,000 acres
1844	15,000,000 "
1845	16,132,876 "

We are confident that the adoption of the system recommended, will result in the State obtaining money on the security proposed to complete the canal, maintain our honor and ultimately relieve the State from debt, it will, without oppressive taxation, extricate us from overwhelming difficulties, preserve our name untarnished, complete our canal and add millions to the taxable property of the State. Should the State, by a general and permanent reduction of taxation, induce the world to believe that she never intends to pay, our canal cannot be completed, its property will depreciate, we shall sink deeper and deeper into debt, interest will accumulate upon principal, until the load becomes beyond the ability of the State to sustain, and actual or passive repudiation is inevitable and unavoidable.

We are aware that it requires some sacrifice, much patriotism and a stern regard for duty and their obligations, to induce the people to adopt and pursue the policy recommended; but we believe they are willing to make the sacrifice, and that they have patriotism and a love of justice adequate to the occasion. A crisis has arrived in the financial history of Illinois; we have awakened from the delusions of the past; our future destiny depends upon our present determination. If the State will arouse every energy, put forth all her strength, it is not too late to rescue her from the abyss of bankruptcy and degradation into which she has been tending; but if we allow our energies to be paralyzed by despair or indifference, we are lost forever; we shall float down the current until our case is desperate, and to struggle will be in vain.

We have as a State almost inexhaustible resources, rich capabilities, and it needs only honesty, wisdom and economy to save us from the dangers which are gathering around us; but while we hesitate or do nothing, time flies and interest accumulates. Let the State make a permanent reduction of taxes and it is vain to attempt to obtain money for the completion of the canal, all confidence in your resolutions and declarations of honesty is gone forever. You will repudiate practically if not avowedly. You will be shunned by all honest men; your best citizens will seek other homes; public and private debt will accumulate, and overwhelming ruin and disgrace will come upon a State capable of being the first in the Union. Take the other course and all will be well. We can preserve our fame untarnished, regain our credit, and at no distant day exhibit the most sublime illustration the world has ever witnessed of the truth of the old maxim "that honesty is the best policy."

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 15, 1843.

NOTICE.

Lead, Tin, or Antimony will be taken at the Printing Office in payment for the "Times and Seasons," and "Wasp," if delivered within a week or two.

OUTRAGEOUS THEFT.

On Tuesday evening last Oliver Olney was brought before the Mayor's court, and charged with burglary and grand larceny. The readers of the "Times and Seasons," will recollect that in the X No., Vol. 3., there was a long article written upon the nature and effects of false spirits, which was headed 'Try the Spirits.' Among other individuals that were mentioned as having false spirits and of being cut off from the church was Oliver Olney. We quote the following.—"Mr. Olney has also been tried, by the High Council, and disfellowshipped, because he would not have his writings tested by the word of God; evidently proving that he loves darkness rather than light, because his deeds are evil."

Since his expulsion from the church he has been engaged in a campaign against Mormonism, and has been one of John C. Bennett's right hand men; he was also one of the contributors to the filthy columns of the Sangamo Journal, making, or professing to make, a great expose of the corrupt proceedings of Mormonism. Recent developments, however, prove him to be altogether incompetent to the task, and show that he is not much better than his great compatriot in crime, John C. Bennett, for it has been clearly proven that he is a most notorious scoundrel, and a thief. About a month ago a great excitement was created in this city in consequence of Mr. Smith's store having been broken into in the night, and robbed both of money and goods. About one thousand dollars worth of goods were stolen, and fifty dollars in money. The officers made diligent search for the goods; but apparently without effect, until, through a variety of small circumstances, suspicion attached itself to Mr. Olney; a search warrant was issued, and the goods were found in his house; he was immediately taken prisoner, and brought before the Mayor's court, where it was fully and satisfactorily proven that he was the thief. This he did not attempt to deny; but openly confessed the whole circumstance of the theft. A bill of Grand Larceny and Burglary was found against him, and as he did not procure bail, he was committed to the county jail, to await the decision of the Circuit Court.

Since the above was sent to the compositors we have been informed that Oliver Olney has broke loose from his keepers. This we say is very wrong, after all the trouble, anxiety, and expense of courts with their attendant witnesses, &c. and men have clearly been proven guilty, as the said Olney evidently was, that such notorious scoundrels should be suffered to run at large.

We do not wish to attach any particular blame to the officer having him in charge, as Olney was a large, powerful, athletic man, and as he had no prison to confine him in, he certainly had not a fair chance; he has since circulated a bill offering $50 for his apprehension, we are informed that the constable had a pair of hand cuffs made to take the prisoner to Carthage with; but they were too small, and while they were getting them altered the prisoner decamped. We shall be able to give particulars next week. One thing is evident that we need a prison.

From the Alton Telegraph.

THE VALUATION LAW.

Ma. Editor.—I object to the Valuation Law—

1. Because it delays the collection of debts already incurred, three years, in which time, the debtors may squander all their property, or pay favorites and leave the others no remedy. If the law required new and sufficient securities to be given, it would not be so objectionable.

2. It injures creditors in that they could not foresee such a law would be passed when they sold property: they have been deceived and imposed upon by the government. If the object be to prevent credit, then it should not be retrospective—let it look forward only, and we shall be careful to whom we sell property or loan money. If a clause was inserted requiring interest to be collected annually, as usual, it would not be so objectionable. My neighbor, who moved into the State last year, loaned out all his means, say $3,000, till he could look around and select a farm. Now he has entered land and made preparations to commence building; but he is prevented: cannot collect his money, nor even interest, to pay his taxes, which will be about $20. Is it fair for the government to require taxes annually, and yet shield the creditor from paying his debts, for three years?

3. It will injure securities. In the three years, the creditors may squander their estate, and leave those who are bound for them utterly destitute of remedy. Is it fair to injure those who have risked their property to sustain a friend, but who, because the temptation held out by the Government, turns enemy? I regard the law as a kind of bait to engender rascality.

4. It sets up the Government above the people, and gives it advantages over them. In the three years prospective, the Government may take all the debtors property to pay taxes, because it will sell for little or nothing, inasmuch as no one will loan him money since he can give no security.

5. It is contrary to the Constitution. It impairs the validity of contracts progressively, and finally destroys them. "Every person ought to find a certain remedy in the laws, for all injuries or wrongs which he may receive in his person, property, or character; he ought to obtain right and justice freely, and without being obliged to purchase it, completely and without denial, promptly and without delay, conformably to the laws." (Art. VIII. Sec. 12, Constitution of Illinois.) To pass a law to prevent the collection of debts for three years, is contrary to "without delay," and an infraction of the Constitution. If notice had been given at the last session that the Constitution would be altered in the 12th and 18th sections, persons would have been cautious of giving credit. They could not suppose that a law in violation of those sections would be passed, unless the provisions in that Constitution were observed.

I admit that relief is demanded; but is this the safest way to grant it. By compelling a creditor to take property at the valuation or lose his lien, it seems to me violates the Constitution of the United States—it makes property a lawful tender—it obliges a man to take what he does not want, and for which he made no contract, and releases the debtor from paying in what he promised, and thus "impairs," with a witness and vengeance the validity of contracts.

TAX-PAYER.

BLOODY RIOTS NEAR PHILADELPHIA.

As may be imagined, the disgraceful riots this week among the hand loom weavers, have not been confined to Moyamensing, but have been equally as bad—worse indeed—in Kensington. On Monday they destroyed the 'chains' and looms of a number of their craft, who were obnoxious to them—destroyed their household furniture, and abused and maltreated their wives and children. In Hopkins' court some most shameful outrages were perpetrated. On Tuesday they went to the house of a weaver, on Germantown road, near the intersection of St. John street, destroyed his 'chain,' (using oil of vitriol) took out a piece of half woven cloth, which they dragged clear across the street, and broke his loom, besides knocking down his wife, who was in a delicate situation, and treading upon his children—and all this in the face of the most positive assurances and offers of proofs on the part of the man, that he was not working under the regular price, which, it will be understood, is the grievance of which the rioters complain. They also cleared out several other houses, and set fire to one. It is said that the behavior of a certain alderman of the district, while all this was going on, indicated a disposition rather to wink and connive at the outrageous proceedings, than to stop them.

Yesterday the rioters assembled in parties through the day, in the vicinities of Fourth and Master, and Cadwalader streets, every now and then repeating the outrages of Monday and Tuesday, defying the police, and making show of violence, threatening and the like. Nathan Lukers, the constable of the sixth ward, in attempting to arrest one of the rioters named Thomas Lynch, was resisted, attacked, and severely beaten, and had to flee into a cellar to save his life. Lynch was, however, overpowered and taken before Alderman Potts, who committed him in default of $1000 bail.

The prisoner was taken to the magistrate's office, and subsequently to the prison, with great difficulty, his accomplices manifesting almost a determination to rescue him. The incarceration of one of their number excited their vengeance against the committing magistrate, whose house they menaced with destruction. The house of the complainant, who appeared against Lynch, the man arrested, they likewise swore they would burn down last night. Mr. Porter, the sheriff, was on the ground in the afternoon, mingled with the rioters, remonstrated with them and endeavored to disperse them. They paid but little attention to him. The sheriff, before leaving the scene, met the magistrate of the district, and made arrangements with them to have the police, with a posse of citizens, at the town hall in the evening, while he came back to the city for an additional force.

About 8 o'clock the sheriff and his deputies returned with between two and three hundred men, composed of police officers and citizens, who had been collected from the city, Southwark and Spring Garden, and elsewhere, and the united force being formed into a body in front of the Hall, moved in solid order to the market house, which the rioters, to the number of some four or five hundred had filled.

As the posse approached, two muskets were fired into the air, from the market house, and before they had gone many steps farther, they received a tremendous volley of brick-bats, and the rioters rushing out upon them with fiendish yells and shouts, attacked them with such fearful odds, as to put five sixths of the whole body to the most indiscriminate and irregular flight.

The few who stood their ground had to strike for their lives, and there was a terrible fight.

A great many were wounded, and some seriously injured. Nine of the rioters were arrested and put in the Kensington and Northern Liberties lock-ups.—The victors returned to the market house and fired two or three guns in triumph.

It is with great pain we learn that Sheriff Porter was very severely wounded in the conflict, and about half past 10 o'clock was conveyed to his lodgings at the Merchants' Hotel, where he still lies in an exceedingly precarious situation. He is wounded in the head and breast, and his limbs are also very much bruised. Medical attendance was immediately procured—he was bled profusely and remedies applied.

P. S. Midnight.—Three companies of military are just ordered out—the Lafayette Light Guards, the German Yeagers, and the Monroe Guards.—Boston Sun.

From the Baltimore American.

THE OREGON TERRITORY.—As the question of boundary relative to the Oregon country was not settled in the late treaty with Great Britain, it may be worth while to keep note of all the incidents pertaining to that subject, since it is one that may hereafter occasion some difficulty.

The bill introduced into the Senate by Mr. Linn, of Missouri, proposing to extend the authority of the United States over that territory, was under discussion in the Senate on Tuesday and Wednesday, and was finally ordered to be engrossed for a third reading.

The bill authorizes and requires the President of the United States to cause to be erected, at suitable places and distances, a line of military posts from some point on the Missouri and Arkansas rivers into the best pass for entering the valley of Oregon; and, also, at or near the mouth of the Columbia river, and enacts that provision hereafter shall be made by law to secure and grant 640 white male inhabitant of the Territory of Oregon, of the age of 18 years and upward, who shall cultivate and use the same for five consecutive years, or to his heirs at law, if such there be, in case of his decease. And to every such inhabitant or cultivator, being a married man, there shall be granted in addition, one hundred and sixty acres to the wife of said husband, and the like quantity of one hundred and sixty acres to the father of each child under the age of 18 years he may have, or which may be born within the five years aforesaid. The President is also authorized and required to appoint two Indian agents, to superintend the interests of the U. States with any or every Indian tribe west of any agency now established by law; and the sum of $100,000 is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated to carry into effect the provisions of the act.

The bill further provides that the civil and criminal jurisdiction of the Supreme Courts and District Courts of the Territory of Iowa shall be extended over that part of the Indian territory lying west of the present limits of the said territory of Iowa, and south of the 49th degree of north latitude, and east of the Rocky Mountains, and north of the boundary line between the United States and the republic of Texas, not included within the limits of any State; and, also, over the Indian territories, comprising the Rocky Mountains, and the country between them and the Pacific Ocean, south of 44 degrees 40 minutes north latitude and north of the 42nd degree of north latitude, and justices of the peace may be appointed for the said territory, in the same manner and with the same powers as now provided by law in relation to the territory of Iowa.

The bill contains a proviso to the effect that any subject of Great Britain who may be arrested under this law, west of the Rocky Mountains, while that region remains open to vessels, citizens and subjects of the U. States and Great Britain, under stipulations between the two powers, shall be delivered up to be tried by the laws of Great Britain.

The question of boundary on the North West, is now, we believe, under negotiation. What the results of examination will be, we cannot of course know. It may be that the question of original right will be started, which would supersede all discussions about boundary lines. Great Britain has held a sort of possession in some parts of the Oregon country since the last war, but it is not certain what her claim is or how far it extends. The bill now before Congress, if it passes into a law, will do something towards bringing the matter in question to a decisive issue. The right of jurisdiction, as claimed by the bill, must conflict with the pretensions of the British government, if those pretensions occupy the ground of sovereignty.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE.

We published an article a few days since on the 'Decline of Great Britain.' We have been requested to insert the following article, from the London Court Journal, which paper says, 'That broad empire upon which the sun never rises and never sets, which would have been endangered to no trifling extent by a single false conclusion, has been strengthened and even saved by a series of the most brilliant successes which human intelligence ever deserved of Fortune. A war into which rashness and injustice alone had hurried—a war reflecting deep and lasting discredit upon those who commenced it—has been terminated by their successors in office, in a manner that we may well congratulate ourselves upon. The commerce of a world has been opened up to us; indeed we may say there never has an event of equal importance befallen any nation since Columbus discovered America to Spain. In importance to civilization, it is unparalleled. The closed gates which were opposed to Christianity for centuries, have been thrown open. An empire is newly knit with the commonwealth of nations. An expatriated nation has again entered the union with its fellows. A rapid march or rather triumph, through Affghanistan, had been followed by the bloody and exterminating massacre of our troops.—Treachery and subtlety had striken a blow which called for a complete and summary vengeance. From captivity the wives of our slain officers called for release. Barbarian fraud and force had separately and singly vanquished us.—While nothing could be more unwise than conquest with the view of retaining a barren and arid country, the vindication of British honor required prompt and rigorous punishment. It has been given as promptly and as decidedly. Covered with glory, our troops have again overrun Affghanistan; The capture of Ghuznee has again shewn the Indians that we are in the long run, invincible; and with true policy and singular moderation have we withdrawn from the scene of triumph and slaughter immediately upon our conquest. They who see in the conquest of Affghanistan and the treaty with China, but temporary triumphs, are deeply mistaken. While these were continuing, the jealousy of a world was aroused against our power. The Russian bear was crouching in the north, ready for the struggle when the first blow enfeebled us. France, like a hawk, lay shrieking about our path, ready to strike when the first feather was stricken from our wing. America only watched its opportunity for humbling its parent.—But, by these simultaneous blows, dealt so unexpectedly and with such a profound judgement, the British empire again rests undisturbed upon its own strength, and that must indeed be rashness which,

at such a time, would think of troubling it.—Manx Advertiser.

Father Mathew.—We learn from the Glasgow Argus of Thursday se'nnight, that no fewer than from ten to fifteen thousand persons took the teetotal pledge from this gentleman on Monday and Tuesday previous from Glasgow, and that on Wednesday the number of applicants was so immense, that all attempts at calculation were fruitless. Although he was laboriously engaged in administering the pledge on the latter day, from ten o'clock in the morning till six in the evening, still vast numbers were obliged to return home much disappointed at not being able to enrol themselves under his banner. On Wednesday the Rev. Gentleman enrolled upwards of twenty thousand, making an aggregate number of about thirty-three or thirty-four thousand since his arrival. He left Glasgow for Belfast by the Tarter steamer at seven o'clock on Wednesday evening, accompanied by the Rev. Mr. Murphy, taking with him the blessings of upwards of thousands.

We are happy to understand that the endeavors of the delegates, who have come here from Lancashire, to persuade the mill and other operatives to join the movement, are not likely to lead to the result aimed at. We are glad of it for many reasons, and among others, for this—that compliance would be most hurtful to the working-classes themselves: but our law makers, and those who influence our law makers, should not the less reflect on the circumstances of peril in which our commercial depression has placed us. The present emute may be got over; but, while the causes of it remain, security cannot be enjoyed. It is, therefore, most desirable that they should ascertain what these causes really are, and that means should be taken for their immediate removal.—[Glasgow Chronicle.]

SCENE IN A SCHOOL ROOM.

Dick, parse John kisses the girls.

"Yeth'm. John is a singular active transitive verb, placed in a particular connection with a pretty girl, for the inference is that John would kiss no other and is governed by the opposition girls according to the established principle that the sex always governs. Kissing is a conjoining conjunction as it connects lips, both expressed and understood; understood for the one party understands what the other would be at, when about to indulge in a delicious of mouths, and expressed for the act expresses a great deal of pleasure on the part of both parties. It is also proper and still more common. Girls are angelic creatures, as proved by an unanimous consent, they are in the possessive case, as they possess a perfect right to be kissed, and sometimes in the objective, as they have been known to object to that act. But from personal experience I am inclined to believe that the girls are as seldom found in that case as snow in midsummer; and are governed by the rule, women must agree with the gender to which they belong in case of desperation, otherwise called matrimony."

"That'll do," said the teacher, "you'll do to graduate."

A Son Older than his Papa.—At Frievalde, near Berlin, an old dame of 103 has made her fourth visit to the matrimonial altar. Her husband is 70 years of age, and she has made him father-in-law of a lad of 83!

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

HOLLIS

J. P. Backenstos, Cambridge, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph John on, Ramus
J. Salisbury, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Putnam, Pike
L. R. Griffin, Lubare Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, M. Comb, M. Danrough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Jackson Co. N.Y.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Centeblow, Leasburg.
John E. Pag, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Boggs, New Egypt.
Sam's Curtis, Harkers Town.
W. L. Appleby, Roseton Town.
Israel Lucas, Long River.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Elias Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nieversen, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kert and

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYAN.

Volume I.—No. 43

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, February 22, 1843.

Whole Number 43

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY

JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,At the corner of Water and Main Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 in arrially in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) 1037 PAID, to receive attention.From Dickens' "Notes in America."
THE FALLS OF NIAGARA.

Between five and six o'clock in the morning we arrived at Buffalo, where we breakfasted, and, being too near the Great Falls to wait patiently any where else, we set off by the train the same morning at nine. Whenever the train halted I listened for the roar; and was constantly straining my eyes in the direction where I knew the Falls must be, from seeing the river rolling on towards them, every moment expecting to behold the spray. Within a few minutes of my stopping I saw two great white clouds rising up slowly and majestically from the depths of the earth. That was all. At length we alighted; and then, for the first time, I heard the mighty rush of water, and felt the ground tremble underneath my feet. The bank was very steep, and was slippery with run and half melted ice. I hardly know how I got down, but was soon at the bottom, and climbing with two English officers, who were crossing, and had joined me, over some broken rocks, deafened by the noise, half blinded by the spray, and wet to the skin, we were at the foot of the American fall. I could see an immense torrent of water tearing headlong down from some great height, but had no idea of shape, or situation, or any thing but vague immensity. When we were sent to the foot of the falls, and were crossing the swollen river, immediately before both cataracts, I began to feel what it was; but I was in a manner stunned, and unable to comprehend the vastness of the scene. It was not until I came on Table Rock, and looked—great heaven, on what a fall of bright green water!—that it came upon me in its full might and majesty. Then, when I felt how near to my Creator I was standing—the first effect, and the enduring one—instant and lasting—of the tremendous spectacle was peace—peace of mind—tranquility—calm recollection of the dead—great thoughts of eternal rest and happiness; nothing of gloom and terror.

Niagara was at once stamped upon my heart an image of beauty: to remain there changeless and indelible until its pulses cease to beat for ever. Oh, how the strife and trouble of our daily life recede from my view and lessend in the distance during the ten memorable days we passed on that enchanted ground!—What voices spoke from out the thundering water; what faces faded from the earth looked out upon me from its gleaming depths; what heavenly promise glistered in those angels' tears, the drops of many hues that showered around and twined themselves about the gorgeous arches which the changing rainbows made. I never stirred all that time from the Canadian side, whither I had gone at first; I never crossed the river again; for I knew there were people on the other shore, and in such a place it is natural to shun strange company. To wander to and fro all day, and see the cataract from all points of view; to stand upon the edge of the great Horse-shoe Fall, marking the hurried water gathering strength as it approached the verge, yet seeming too, to pause before it shot into the gulf below; to gaze upon the river's level up at the torrent, as it came streaming down to climb the neighboring heights, and watch it through the trees, and see the wreathing water to the rapids hurrying on to take its fearful plunge; to linger in the shadow of the slimy rocks three miles below; watching the river, as stirred by no visible cause, it heaved and eddied, and awoke the echoes, being troubled yet far down beneath the surface by its giant leap; to have Niagara before me, lighted by the sun and by the moon, red in the day's decline, and gray as evening slowly fell upon it; to look upon it every day, and awake up in the night and hear its ceaseless voice;—this was enough!

SOMERS MUTINY.

The following particulars concerning the mutiny on board the Somers, has necessarily been delayed for want of room, but as we considered them to be interesting, although late, we publish them.

From the New York American.
MUTINY AND EXECUTION ON BOARD THE U. S. BRIG SOMERS.

We stood on Sunday the outline of this tragedy, and showed, by enumerating the officers on board, how short she was of her complement, and that she had no man-of-war—a force that by the antagonism that exists between them and the blue jacks—are with the officers the surest safeguard of a ship against mutiny.

We have since learned authentically, as we believe, the following facts connected with the mutiny.

On the passage from Africa to St. Thomas, the first intimation of the proposed mutiny was communicated to Commander Mackenzie, by the Purser, who had been apprised of it by his steward, named Wales, concerning whose connection with the plot and the details of the plot itself, the Courier of this morning gives this account.

A day or two previous to December 1st, and when the vessel was about five or six hundred miles from St. Thomas, Midshipman Spencer hinted a part of his plans to Mr. Wales, the Purser's steward, who affected a hearty co-operation, took an oath of secrecy, &c. which Spencer administered to him, when he was made more fully acquainted with the mutineers. They had arranged to raise a scuffle on the fore-castle some night after leaving St. Thomas, while the deck was in the charge of Midshipman Rogers, a nephew of the late Com. John Rogers; and when the men engaged in it would of course be ordered all to account for the cause of the disturbance, and Mr. Rogers was thus engaged, they were to seize him and throw him overboard, with as little noise as possible. Spencer was then to enter the cabin and kill Captain Mackenzie; and others were appointed to be stationed at the main hatch, through which the crew must pass to get on deck, and at the starboard hatch, through which the officers except the Captain must pass. All the officers, except the Surgeon, were to be murdered and thrown overboard; and the crew who were below, were to be murdered on deck. The two after guns were to be pointed forward, to secure the mutineers from an attack, and such of the crew who had not yet joined, but who was then elected to be with them, were to be admitted, while the others were to be thrown overboard.

They were then to get out all the boats and lighten the vessel; after which they were to make for the Isle of Pines, where they were to meet a confederate. They were then to cruise in search of merchant vessels, trading between this part and Europe; which after being plundered, and the males on board killed, were to be indiscriminately sunk; and if there chanced to be any females they were to be taken on board the Somers, violated, and retained so long as the pirates might desire, when they also were to be committed to the deep! The arrangements for the division of the spoils, the allotment of the females, the various officers on board, &c. were completed, and drawn up in detail in Spencer's handwriting; and he assured Mr. Wales that he had twenty of the crew with him sure.

From the moment Spencer made the above circumstances known to Mr. Wales, he was watched with Argus eyes by Samuel Cromwell, boatwain's mate, and Eliam Small, seaman, who were the principal ring-leaders with Spencer, and who threatened to throw him overboard, the moment they saw the least signs of defection in him, or had the least cause to suspect that he had made or intended to make any disclosures to any person.

Mr. Wales not daring to communicate with Capt. Mackenzie, made all the circumstances as detailed by Midshipman Spencer known to the Purser, who promptly conveyed the intelligence to Capt. Mackenzie.

After an investigation of the matter, as full as under the circumstances, could be made it appeared clear to the Commander that this information was to be depended upon, and that measures must be taken to put a stop at once to a conspiracy of the extent of which he could procure no accurate, or form even a probable calculation. Upon full deliberation, therefore, when the crew was assembled as usual at evening quarters, Commander Mackenzie called Midshipman Spencer to him, and after talking over with him, and obtaining command of the vessel by mutiny and murder, ordered him in double irons. This was done at once, without the least attempt at violence or resistance; and at the same time two of the crew, Cromwell and Small, who were the chief conspirators among the men, were also seized and put in double irons. Search having been made amongst Mr. Spencer's papers, the most ample and conclusive proofs of his guilt were found, and the details of the whole plot disclosed. A list of the men engaged was found in his own handwriting, with the words certain and doubtful attached to the different names. A plan of the outbreak, in which every man had his particular duty assigned to him, was also found, with a statement that every officer was to be killed and the black flag to be raised against all the world. These men were then examined under oath by the different officers, until in the minds of all there was but one opinion and conviction how imminent and fearful was the danger which threatened, not only the lives of those on board (for that was among the least consideration of the gallant officers,) but how terrible the consequences might have been, and might still be, if the mutineers were successful in their plans.

For three days, the prisoners were kept in irons, the Commander hoping to be spared the necessity of taking life.

At last it became evident that the storm was still brewing, and that although the loss of their ringleaders had deprived the rest of those concerned of any efficient head for the time, the danger was by no means over, and hence that a severe example was absolutely necessary to avoid a rescue, and prevent the final execution and success of their plans. The crew were so disorderly and so little under control, that every officer came to the same conclusion, and urged upon their Commander the immediate execution of the prisoners. The men not engaged in the original plot testified in the strongest terms to the necessity of this course. Evidence was obtained that the matter was still in agitation, and that, prisoner as he was, Midshipman Spencer was still, by signs or otherwise, in communication with his associates. Every thing indicated that the plot was on the point of consummation, and without a dissenting voice among the officers and petty officers, it was at last determined that the three prisoners should be hung at the yard-arm of the vessel. This was communicated to Midshipman Spencer, and for a time he bore it without faltering; but at last his firmness gave way, and he made a full confession of his guilt accompanied with an acknowledgement of the justice of his doom.

From his own confession, it was ascertained that, while on board the John Adams, on the coast of Brazil, and subsequently when sent home, (having resigned rather than be tried by a Court Martial) on board the frigate Potomac, he had entertained in both vessels a determination to excite a mutiny, for the purpose of turning pirate. The plan on board the Somers was originated and had made some progress before leaving the harbor of New York. The outbreak was to take place just after leaving St. Thomas, and everything had been arranged to bring about the result successfully. With the leaders alive and subject to a rescue, and with a crew the great majority of whom were believed to be more or less implicated, how far it was impossible to tell, with proofs recurring every minute that the plot was but postponed, not destroyed, the men being disorderly, fractious and disobedient, it seemed the duty of Commander Mackenzie to hesitate no longer. With their leaders rescued, the game was their own again, and not only the lives of all on board not implicated in the plot would have paid the forfeit of further delay, but many a fearful act of piracy and murder would, in all probability, have swelled the list of crime.

It became clear that there was no alternative, and accordingly, when about three days off St. Thomas, in the presence of the assembled crew, the sentence was put in execution.

Of the execution the Courier gives these details, and of the names of those now in confinement on board the North Carolina.

"All hands were accordingly called to witness the punishment. Whips were then rove into each end of the fore yard-arm, and one on the inner part of the yard. The prisoners were then brought on deck and informed of the punishment about to be executed upon them. Small at once fully confessed his guilt, and asked most penitently the forgiveness of his commander and the officers, which was at once accorded to him. He then obtained permission to address the crew, which he did, warning them against permitting themselves ever to be seduced as he had been, into the committal of the crime for which he was about to suffer death.

Spencer asked a respite of ten minutes for himself and companions in guilt in order that they might prepare to die. This was granted, and he was asked if he wished to write to his father or mother, but he replied that he did not. He then acknowledged his guilt and the justice of his punishment, that he would rather meet such a death there (at sea) than be subjected to the infamy of exposure on shore. The ten minutes asked for by Spencer was extended to upwards of one hour, nearly the whole of which time was employed by him in endeavoring to obtain forgiveness of Small, for having seduced him into the committal of a crime which he was soon to expiate with his life. Small withheld his forgiveness for a length of time; but at last in reply to Spencer's oft-repeated request, 'Do forgive me, Small,' he said that he fully pardoned him.

Everything being in readiness, the noose was placed around the neck of each of the culprits, and the officers were stationed about the decks to see that every man had both hands on the ropes. About one o'clock, (sea time) on the first of December, the signal for execution was given by firing a gun to the leeward, and the guilty men were run up.

After hanging about an hour, the bodies were lowered down and delivered to their several messmates to be laid out and in the evening they were committed to the deep, Captain MacKenzie reading the service usual on the occasion of burials at sea. Small's last words were to invoke a blessing on the American flag, and to ask forgiveness for having so dishonored it, but the others died without any marks of penitence. Immediately after the execution, all hands were called to cheer ship; and three hearty cheers were given for the American flag, which was then waving at the gaff, after which all hands were piped down, and the usual duties of the ship were resumed.

Four of the men who appeared to be, most deeply implicated were placed in irons immediately upon the discovery of the projected mutiny; but the others suspected to be concerned were permitted to go to duty until they reached this port, when they were also ironed and sent on board the North Carolina.

The following are the names of the men and boys now confined on board the receiving ship, and waiting the action of the Navy Department:

Charles A. Wilson, sailmaker's mate.
Daniel McKinly, landsman.
Benjamin F. Green, ordinary seaman, apprentice.
Alexander McKee, 2d class apprentice.
George W. Warner, ordinary seaman apprentice.
Charles G. Golderman, landsman: apprentice.
Eugene Sullivan, 1st class apprentice.
George Kneavah, landsman, apprentice.
Richard Hamilton, 1st class apprentice.
Charles Van Velsor, ordinary seaman.
Henry Waltham, mulatto, wardroom steward.

Edward Gallia, mulatto, steerage cook."

It is said that Spencer asked to be permitted to fire the gun, which was the signal for execution—but when the trying moment came, another was obliged to fire the signal gun.

The effect of the execution was instantaneous, and proved the correctness of the Commander's decision. From a state of almost open mutiny the crew were subdued to their former discipline, and every thing went on without the least cause for alarm. The officers kept their watches completely armed, and on the arrival of the Brig here, four of the crew (who were the only ones brought here in irons) were immediately transferred to the North Carolina, and shortly after nine more, making in all thirteen—of whom eleven were apprentices—were added to the number confined.

These thirteen with the three executed, are all against whom complete and satisfactory proof could be found, but that the great majority of the crew were also implicated, there is no shadow of doubt, though it cannot be so clearly established as with the sixteen. Of this, however, we shall hear more when the details which have been sent to Washington are made public. Sufficient is known already to establish beyond a question the necessity, imperative and immediate, however dreadful, of the course pursued by Commander MacKenzie, than whom, a more humane, conscientious and gallant officer does not hold a commission in the navy of the United States. For three days it seems to have been his hope to be spared taking the lives of the three prisoners, but when it became clear as light that a rescue was in agitation, and that the mutiny was still unsubdued, it was his duty to order them to be executed, and he did it.

It is impossible not to feel deep sympathy with the friends and connections of those executed—so sudden and so dreadful, and dishonouring was their taking off; but sympathy not certainly unmingled with admiration is due to Commander MacKenzie and his officers, who were compelled to assume so fearful a responsibility, and steel their hearts against all the natural pleadings in favour of mercy, or at least delay.

It was a noble act of patriotic self-devotion.

Capt. MacKenzie, accompanied by all his officers and crew, attended divine service yesterday, at Brooklyn, to return thanks to an all-wise Providence for their escape from the dangers to which they had been exposed.

It seems not without connection with the fact that a confederate off the Isle of Pines was referred to by the mutineers, to notice that a rumour was circulated some week or two ago here, of the shipwreck of the Somers. This may have been designed to account for her non-appearance in case the mutineers had been successful.

We understand writs of Habeas Corpus have been sued out in favour of some of the men in confinement on board the North Carolina.

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1843.

There seems to be at the present time quite an excitement in regard to the possession of the Oregon Territory. The British profess to have some antiquated claims upon it; but what the nature of those claims are, it is at present difficult to determine. They have sent out an armament to reconnoitre and to defend their supposed colonies; while on the other hand the subject has been taken up by the Congress, and many spirited remarks have been made on the subject. The Congress have decided, and we think justly too, that the Oregon Territory belongs to the United States, in every sense of the word; according to the right of the various discoveries ceded to them according to negotiation, in the boundary lines, and according to the laws, and usages, of nations. What the result will be, we are at a loss to determine. Great Britain has trampled with impunity upon the rights of China, and fattened herself with her unhallowed spoils, her fleets and armies are now disengaged, and whether she wants to provoke us to war or not is at present uncertain, one thing is very evident—that the United States will not relinquish their claims to the Oregon Territory, the views of the British to the contrary notwithstanding.

THE CALUMNIATORS DETECT-ED!

Week before last, we noticed, at length, the infamous attack made not only upon Judge Pope and Justin Butterfield, Esq., but also upon a number of respectable ladies, by a letter writer, under the signature of 'ALPHA,' through the columns of the Quincy Herald. The original letter from which the libel was manufactured, was written by a certain office holder in this State, to a Mr. Bassett, of Quincy, and as the letter states, at the request of a Mr. Pitman. It was forwarded through the Post-office to a gentleman in this city, who now has the possession of it, and intends handing it over to those gentlemen, whose wives and daughters have been thus wantonly attacked by the writer and contributors of the Quincy letter. It appears most manifestly that the body of the letter was principally filled up at Quincy, as J. N. W. (the signature of the letter directed to Mr. Bassett,) only gave the distinguishing heads of the libel upon Judge Pope and Justin Butterfield.

We have heard it intimated that the letter now in this city will be laid before the next Grand Jury, and the whole of those concerned in it indicted for a libel. This is by far the best way not only to punish the calumniators, but the most effectual one to hold them up to that public execration which their low and disgraceful conduct justly merits. The original letter from which the principal part of the libellous matter in the Herald was taken, has been seen by a number of gentlemen in this city, all of whom express the utmost indignation for its author and his abettors.

COMMITMENTS.—Thomas J. Morgan and Robert Taylor, boys about 16 years of age, were arrested on Tuesday last, under the ordinance concerning vagrants and disorderly persons, to which they pleaded guilty, and were sentenced by the Mayor to imprisonment six months.

For the Wasp.

LETTER THIRD—ON INFLAMMATION.

The varieties of this disease have been considered in reference to the part affected, the violence of the exciting cause, and the vigor of the constitution. It will now be treated under the healthy and morbid varieties. First healthy and adhesive inflammation, is a term used in surgery to express that species of action which terminates in an adhesion of the inflamed surfaces. The process by which such an union is formed, is certainly one of the most interesting operations of which the animal economy is capable. For it is by this means that wounds, fractures, and other serious injuries of the body are repaired. There is an increased action in the vessels of the injured part, which causes a deposition of coagulating lymph, and serum, which is the first bond of union, and terminates in a permanent restoration of the part. It is the salutary effort, and operation of nature to restore itself, as in healing wounds by the first intention. It would therefore be highly improper, to throw into a wound salt, soot, sugar, ashes, sawdust, brickdust, or even pebble stones, as is sometimes practiced; thus separating the lips of a fresh wound. A man had better eat a thorn or splinter, than so offend his nature, or spoil for a cure; or wrap the blade with which he was wounded in linen cloths, with oils and ointments, which every child knows to be folly. Hence the foolish saying of making a salve to heal the wound. No such salve can be made!! The true surgical operation is as simple as it is successful; namely, to bring the lips of the wound without any intervening substance together; and retain them in that position, by the aid of sticking plaster, glue, shoe-makers wax or any other 'healing salve,' then bind it carefully and let it remain: nature, and nature alone will do the healing if she has but half a chance: and her cause will not be retarded by the application of No. 6, cayenne pepper, or any other irritating agent. The only danger to be apprehended in simple wounds, the constitution being good, is that the action may run too high: therefore not only should irritating agents be withheld, but the air also excluded, and rest enjoined. The treatment of wounds, and sores of long standing, with unhealthy granulations, caused by crude applications, and healing salves, does not come under this head. We shall make two decisions of the morbid variety. First acute inflammation is characterized by violent symptoms, terminates in a few days and is attended with danger. It is said to terminate in resolution, when it declines, and disappears without any abscess, perceptible discharge, or alteration in the affected part, which is done by absorption. It may also terminate in suppuration, which is the formation of matter or pus. Pus is the specific product of inflammation. It sinks to the bottom in water at the temperature of the atmosphere, and is coagulated by muriate of ammonia, which two circumstances will distinguish it from mucus thrown from the lungs, in certain lung complaints; thereby forming an important diagnosis. Pus is either derived from decomposed solids, or coagulated blood. It is formed by another effort of nature to relieve itself, by converting and depositing the superabundant blood in this form. It should be discharged from all abscesses when fully formed, by a free opening in the most depending part; and, its exit encouraged not by pressure, but by emollient poultices. It is a wise provision forming a temporary covering on raw surfaces and keeps the tender growth in a moist healing state. Hence the inutility of removing it so completely as some are wont to do.— Though it is always highly proper to keep the surrounding parts free from it. In deep wounds it is the means of dislodging extraneous bodies, such as bullets, pieces of dead bone, &c. Acute inflammation may terminate in the death of the part, which is mortification. Gangrene is the intermediate state between inflammation and mortification. It is characterized by a cessation of action in the small vessels and nerves of the parts yet the larger ones still have action and sensibility. There is a degree of vitality remaining. In this condition stimulus may be applied, such as oil of turpentine, &c., to arouse the small vessels to action, and remove if possible, the congested state which immediately precedes death. But to avoid gangrene the action should not be permitted to run so high, which will not be prevented by the use of stimulus. Though after the part is overcome with inordinate action, the only hope is to force the fluids through, notwithstanding there is but little prospect of success.— When the mortification is complete, which is known by the pulse becoming small, rapid, irregular, the patient's countenance assumes a wild cadaverous look, a loud and troublesome hicough is produced, the surface of the body is covered with cold clammy perspiration, the part becomes cold and black. Coma, convulsions, and death may then ensue and calm the restless sufferer. Much has unnecessarily been said, in reference to the treatment of a mortified part. But the separation of the dead from the living part, is a vital process. The dead portion should not be cut out, or torn away, until the line of demarkation is well defined, for many good reasons. Humid gangrene may occur without previous inflammation, the injury being so severe as at once to deprive the part of vitality. Here stimulus may be applied or if necessary amputation resorted to. After wet seasons, spontaneous or dry gangrene has prevailed where rye is a principle article of food. The rye is subject to a disease called ergot, or cockspur rye, the grains become large, black and have a horny consistence. The use of it in this diseased state, has been assigned as the cause of gangrene. This species of gangrene may take place in this country from the use of unsound wheat. It may take place in cities; and does even in this city, from other causes, which will be the theme of a future letter. One of the properties of living matter consists in the power of resisting putrefaction, which the laws of chemical affinity would otherwise produce. But as soon as a part mortifies this characteristic property is a spontaneous decomposition ensues, different kinds of gas are formed, and the exhalations become fetid, and highly offensive. In this operation the body or part, returns to its original, eternal and invisible, elementary principles. Bodies become visible on account of the chemical composition, peculiar and exact arrangement, of their particles, but when decomposed, or resolved back to their elementary state, they cannot be seen by the eye of man. 'For the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal.' Again, 'things which are seen were not made of things that do appear,' Heb. 11. 3. As by the decomposition of water, oxygen and hydrogen are obtained; both colourless and invisible gases, and by their reunion water is again formed. But to return. I may add that acute may terminate in chronic inflammation; which is characterized by slowness of action, and is not immediately dangerous of itself; but becomes so in its tertiary stage, which is commonly in effusion. From whence arises the different varieties of dropsies, produced by an increased action of the arteries, and a want of action, and absorption, in the corresponding veins, in which condition, the thin part of the blood becomes extravasated. This disease also terminates in enlargements, and stiffness of the joints, as in rheumatism. My object is not fluency of language, but to give a few useful hints in a very plain manner. There is a difficulty in fully expressing our ideas when we dare not use technical terms. But if the reader will bear with the plainness of diction, and dryness of style, and find himself in the possession of one useful idea, I shall be fully compensated.

H. TATE.

Nauvoo, Feb. 18, 1843.

From the N. O. papers of January 13. LATE AND IMPORTANT FROM MEXICO.

The Schrs. Wm. Bryan, Capt. Moss, arrived yesterday, brought Mexican papers to the 3rd inst. The W. B. brought in $32,700 in specie, to several consignees. There was little news in Vera Cruz when she left. Nothing later from Campeachy than we have heretofore received. A gentleman from Mazatlan reports that the Texian prisoners taken at St. Antonio, were confined at Perote, and were about to be ironed two and two, and turned out to clean the streets.

The Steamship Montezuma, 45 days from Spain, anchored in the harbor of Vera Cruz on the 6th ult. She is 1100 tons burthen, has two engines of 140 horse power each, and had a crew of eighty men. These men, it seems, were only shipped to navigate her from England to Mexico, and a part of them we learn left her, and arrived here yesterday in the Wm. Bryan.

The Government papers state that reports had been received from almost every department of the nation, and they were unanimous in the opinion, that the federal form of government was not suitable for the Mexican people, and declaring their adhesion to the Consolidated System of Santa Anna.

The Vera Cruz Siegle, of the 19th December says—a gentleman worthy of credence, has furnished us with the following narrative, which we transmit to our readers, though burning with indignation.

"The Texians to the number of seven hundred, with three pieces of artillery, have invaded the department of Tamaulipas, and taken possession of the town of Laredo, one of the cities in the north of that State. We are informed that the detachment under the command of Col. Calisto Bravo not being able to resist the Texian forces, was compelled to retreat, escorting a number of Mexican families who had left Laredo to repair to Guerrero. General Pedro Reyes, commander of the army of the north, has crossed the river Bravo, to give battle to the enemy."

The capture of Monterey by Com. Jones, is confirmed by the above arrival, in all the particulars recently published by us from the Madisonian.

We learn verbally that nearly all the Texian prisoners, taken at San Antonio, had arrived at Perote where they had been chained in parts, and condemned to work upon the streets.

Van Ness, Fitzgerald and another had been left behind, under sentence of death, but that the sentence had been commuted for ten years' imprisonment in the Castle of San Juan d'Uella.

Extract of a Letter to the N. O. Bee, dated Vera Cruz, Jan. 3, 1843.

"News has been received from the North of the Texians having crossed the Rio Grande, and occupied Laredo, a town in the State of Tamaulipas. Gen. Reyes was on the march to give them battle, and were momentarily expecting to hear of his defeat. We have intelligence from Campeachy via Havanna to the 19th ult. A private letter gives a most forlorn account of the situation of the Mexican troops, and it is thought quite probable that they may have to raise the siege of the above city. The Montezuma, the arrival of which vessel I announced in my last, was to have been delivered over to this Government to-day, but the Norther which is now blowing has prevented it. Report says that Santa Anna is going to take down a reinforcement of troops. I hope he may go as Com. Moore may be able to pay his respects to him in person, but I fear he dares not venture so far from home.

The English officers who brought the Montezuma, I believe return to England, and also the greater part of the crew, some of whom have left already. It is not known to whom the Mexican Government intends to give the command of this vessel, but that is of little importance, as all the Mexican officers are alike good for nothing. The Mexican brig of war Mojicano was in the Havanna on the 23d ult. It is supposed that she carried to the Havanna the English commander and officers of the Guadalupe, all of whom have left the Mexican service. The Mexican navy is now at the mercy of Commodore Moore, if he can only get to sea; for, with half the force, he can take the whole fleet now at campeachy. The fleet is badly manned, and if possible the officers are worse, and certainly now, Com. Moore has a chance of sweeping the Gulf once more if he only wishes.

Revulsion among the Presbyterians.—Sale among the Churches.—The epidemic of the age is at last beginning to attack the Presbyterian church. Accordingly, the revulsion now assumes a most singular and fearful character. According to all appearances, the Pope of Rome, and his legate, Bishop Hughes of this city, are buying up with hard cash, all the good old churches of this city, and making such long strides throughout the country, that causes terrible alarm to Parson Cheever, David Hale and the saints. The Pope, too, is a hard money man, and possessing much hard cash, he is now making investments at the cheapest rate, and of the best character in point of buildings.

In order to show the sober reality of this danger, we extract the following excellent article from the Rev. David Hale's paper of yesterday:—

[From the Journal of Commerce.

Sale of Churches.—We see that the new Reformed Dutch Church on Washington Square, is advertised for sale at auction, and the day draws near. It is one of the most elegant churches in the city, and just now filled with a good congregation, who enjoyed the labours of two pastors. If it goes to auction, and especially if at auction it should pass out of evangelical Protestant control, culpability will attach somewhere.

There is little use in preaching against the old harlot of Rome, and then sitting supinely down while the superior zeal of her followers takes possession of the strong places of moral influence. Something must be done besides talking, and if evangelical Protestant denominations, who have wealth to their damage, are not willing to use it on such an occasion, they are evidently not fit for the responsibility which they have assumed. When, in the name of all reason, do the collegiate churches expect to use their money, if not now? Do they look for more important occasions? or do they keep it just to have it, and so that they may show a good rent-roll at the final day? One Presbyterian church has recently gone into the hands of the Catholics at auction, much to the disgrace of Protestantism in New York. If the church on Washington Square goes the same way, the Protestant churches of the city more immediately associated with it, and the Dutch churches in particular, will deserve a rebuke from heaven, such as we hope will never fall upon them.—New York Herald.

A SINGULAR PHENOMENON.

On Thursday evening, 29th ult., Bunce's old paper mill in Westville took fire and was entirely consumed. The New Haven Herald of Friday says, a singular phenomenon attended this conflagration, which had a powerful effect upon the community. A driving snow storm was prevailing at the time, and the sudden illumination from the flames gave the whole atmosphere the appearance of a magnificent exhibition of the Aurora Borealis. The situation of the burning edifice is near the base of West Rock, a bold eminence of some three or four hundred feet. The snow acted as a mirror, and threw a reflected light over the whole hemisphere, the cause of which not being known, threw the meteoric metropolis of New Haven, into a great commotion.—At this particular moment a mounted horseman dashed through Chapel-street, at a furious rate, exclaiming, 'The end of the world is at hand!' and for a short time all the Millerites enjoyed the glorious anticipation of the fulfilment of their prophecies. The 'midnight cry' was raised, the bells sounded the alarm, the engines were parading the streets to find where their services were required, and 'quite athwart went all decorum.' Several religious assemblies being met, the congregations rushed into the street, when the sudden and all-pervading light struck them with instant terror, and many scenes were exhibited typical of the final conflagration. A venerable minister of the church gravely assured one of the fire companies that it was no artificial combustion, but the actual 'coming of the Lord in great glory'—and many persons remained under this remarkable but very natural delusion during the whole night. All the world was greatly rejoiced the next morning to find it was only the burning of Bunce's old paper mill!

BANK CERTIFICATES.

The following is a copy of the Bank Certificates, which will be given for balances to the holders of their paper on presentation for their share of her specie.

These certificates will be of little value but to those who are so fortunate as to owe the Bank, or who wish to purchase her lands.

"This certificate for _____ dollars, will at all times be received by the State Bank of Illinois, in payment of any debt, and for any property which the Bank may have for sale. It will also entitle the bearer to the proper proportion of all dividends which may be made by the Bank to its creditors.

Cashier."

The Bank will pay 27 per cent. in specie on her notes.—[Sangamo Journal.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Saturday January 28.

Petitions.—By Mr. FICKLIN, a remonstrance against the division of Coles county; by Mr. SMITH, a petition from Mr. M' Bove for divorce.

Motion being made for indefinite postponement—

Mr. SMITH, of Hancock, hoped the petition would not take this direction.—This legislature claimed to possess the power to repeal charters, and certainly they had equal power to dissolve marriage contracts. Mr. Smith desired to place this case in the situation of those of a similar character, which had preceded it—and that it might be so disposed of that the case may be acted on in the Circuit Court.

Mr. FOWLER was in favor of referring the petition to the committee on Banks and corporations.

Mr. SMITH did not object to its taking this direction. He was himself a member of that committee. That committee was in favor of repealing charters—and they might be induced to carry their views so far as to dissolve marriages.

Mr. SIMMS was in favor of indefinite postponement. Singular results sometimes followed an association with Mormons. Two families in his neighborhood, which had been childless, on joining the Mormons, were blessed with families.

Mr. SMITH. This is easily accounted for. These families resided in the same county with the gentleman from Edgar.

[Sangamo Journal.

The Gastric Juice.—Worms in the alimentary canal resist the agency of the gastric juice so long as they are alive; but when dead, they are then subjected to the laws which govern inanimate matter, and are, consequently, digested or expelled like the ordinary contents. This fact affords a good reason for using cold boiled water, as the high temperature to which it is raised must kill the animalcules that may be found in this fluid, and thus they are rendered easy of digestion. It is a remarkable circumstance, first observed by John Hunter, and referable to the same principle, that the gastric juice will, when the individual dies, dissolve the very stomach that had secreted this powerful solvent, and had resisted its action when living. The knowledge of this fact was the means of acquitting an individual accused of the crime of poisoning.—Hayder's Philosophy for the Public.

REMARKABLE DWARF.

There is now exhibiting at the American Museum, New York, a dwarf so small that Major Stevens who is about thirty inches high, looks like a giant beside him. It is an English boy of eleven years old, one foot and ten inches high, and weighing only fifteen pounds. This was his weight at six months old, since which time it has never varied half a pound.—The tiny thing is lively, intelligent and well proportioned, and struts about as big in his own opinion as Gen. John C. Bennett late of the Nauvoo Legion. He is clothed in a well fitting fashionable costume of lilliputian dimensions, sports a cane, and presents altogether the most curious exhibition imaginable. He is called by courtesy Gen. Tom Thumb and might claim to the living representative of Nursery Tales.

FURTHER FROM TEXAS.—New Orleans papers of the 21st ult. apparently confirm one part of the late news from Texas; that portion in reference to the capture of Col. Fisher's division of General Somerville's army. The other portion, reporting the loss of four hundred Mexicans, and only two Texans is not credited. A letter dated Galveston, says, "Distrust pervades all classes of our community. Business is suspended. We have no money in trade—none in the national Treasury. No credit abroad, and it is utterly impossible for us to obtain any relief anywhere in case we are invaded by a powerful force. The prudent and business portion of our community believe that we shall be invaded both by land and sea in a short time. The fall of Yucatan will be the signal for this event."

Cholera in Burmah.—According to the latest advices from the the East Indies, the cholera was raging in Burmah to a fearful extent. Whole villages in the interior have become desolate—the innumerable being either cut off by the frightful malady, or have fled for safety in other parts of the country.

SACRED HYMNS.

Persons having Hymns adapted to the worship of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, are requested to send them, or send them to Emma Smith, immediately.
Nauvoo, Feb. 15, 1843.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING FRIDAY THE 10TH INST.

Samuel C. Perry (of Columbus,) aged 24 years; Dropsy.

Jennett Bates, aged 20 years; Consumption.

Mary Jane Niswanger, aged 28 days; Inflammation.

Polly Curtis, aged 16 years; Winter Fever.

Eliza M. Edwards, aged 9 months; Consumption.

Dorcas Averett, aged 32 years; Child Birth.

Sarah L. Hoyt, aged 23 years; Winter Fever.

John Gabbs, aged 57 years; Consumption.

Total 8.
W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

REPORT OF DEATHS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THURSDAY THE 21ST INST.

Athana A. Holden, aged 3 years; Jaundice.

Eloniza Hunt and infant, of Keokuk, aged 30 years; Fever.

Total 2.
W. D. HUNTINGTON, City Sexton.

Letter of Col. Hepburn.—Letter has been received in New York, containing an account of the death of Col. Hepburn, an eminent citizen of Georgia, by the hands of Gen. McDougald, who is the Loco candidate for Congress in opposition to Mr. Crawford, the person elected.

It seems Gen. McDougald received an anonymous letter, stating that Col. Hepburn was coming to shoot him; McDougald prepared himself, supposing that Col. Hepburn did, in fact, intend to shoot him. It so happened that Col. Hepburn did call to see McDougald, as stated in the anonymous letter, and putting his hand into his pocket to take a letter out, McDougald instantly drew a pistol and shot him through the heart. About Hepburn's person, after examination, no weapon of any kind was found.

The difficulty grew out of a claim Hepburn had on McDougald, for having paid more than his share, on speculations in cotton, some years ago; recent settlements having made the sum much less than that paid.

The coroner's verdict was "Justifiable homicide."

"We'll all be Queens in our Turns."—In Queen Anne's reign, Lord Bateman married three wives, all of whom were his servants. A beggar women meeting him one day in the street made him a very low courtesy. "Ah, Heaven bless you," said she, "and send you a long life; if you do but live long enough, we shall be all ladies in time."

The Florida Indians.—The St. Augustine News, of the 10th inst., says: It is with much pleasure we learn that there is a prospect of our difficulties with the Indians being finally ended. They are daily coming into the settlements around Tampa and the neighboring posts, and express a willingness to emigrate, being very friendly with the whites. We hope General Worth may shortly succeed in shipping them to the West.

Indian Anecdote.—John Sequashquash, an Indian of the remains of a tribe in Connecticut, was some years since brought before a justice of the peace, on some charge or other which I do not recollect. John happened to be drunk at the time, and instead of answering directly to the question put by the justice, merely muttered out, "Your honor is very wise—very wise—very wise—y—your honor is very wise. I say, I am unable to get any other answer from him, the justice ordered him to be locked up till the next day, when John was brought before him perfectly sober. "Why, John," said the justice, "you were drunk as a bear yesterday. When I asked you any questions, the only answer you made was—'Your honor's very wise—very wise.' "Did I call your honor wise?" said the Indian, with a look of credulity. "Yes," answered the magistrate. "Then," replied John, "I must have been drunk sure enough."

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843. no42 tf.

O. C. SKINNER,

Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office with G. Hills, Esq., a few rods south east of the Temple.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.

G. B. Holt, Dayton,

G. P. Bell, Hamilton,

Wm. Bursey, Cincinnati,

Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill. Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

BOOKS! BOOKS! BOOKS!!

THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions. School Writing Books, Mail-rel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Sates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,

in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	whole	bound	plain	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	hf	bound	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	hf	bound	plain	.51
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.

B. W. TOWNSAND,
A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at

Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29 tf.

TO BRICKMAKERS AND LABORERS.

THE undersigned wishes to contract for the making of one million of bricks.

Also for the making of 1200 rods of ditch and turf fence.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

January 13 1843.

NOTICE.

THOSE that have orders that I have given or accounts for labor, or materials for the last year, will bring them in immediately, so that I can settle up my business.

J. W. COLIDGE.

Jan. 13, 1843. no38-

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-tf.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE,

FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.

Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.

Jan. 21, 1843.—3m*

DR. J. F. WELD.

PRACTITIONER IN

MEDICINE, SURGERY, & OBSTETRIC.

Returns his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo & adjoining country for the liberal patronage heretofore extended to him and respectfully solicits a continuation of the same. From the experience and success he has had during six years practice in the various diseases prevalent with this country he feels enabled, by his assiduous attention to business to give ample satisfaction to all those who may favor him with a call. Particular attention will be paid to all sections of the eye.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. April 30, 1842.

DRUG STORE

THE subscriber has just opened a Drug Store in the New Store house of Ira S. Miles, on Mulholland Street—Two squares East of the Temple, where may be found a general assortment of Medicines, Paints and Oils, Pure, Wines, Glass, Putty, School, Books, Stationary.

JAMES H. HAVEN.

Nauvoo Nov. 28, 1842. 31 3m.*

BRADFORD & BROWN,

Commission and Forwarding Merchants, Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,

Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.

A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,

Wintemur & Springer, Cincinnati.

December 1st, 1842. no32-6m*

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent

HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo January 13 1843. tf

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK renders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula, mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic. no35-6m.

NO CURE NO PAY.

DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.

Nauvoo, Jan. 28, 1842.

39-tf.

SHERMAN'S MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, Insult and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after disipation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22 y1)

J. SNIDER.

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ELEMENTARY Specier's for sale at J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31 3m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASH.

ILLINOIS

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.

Joseph John on Ramus

J. Salisbury, Plymouth.

Harow R. Field, Pittsfield, Pike

L. R. Chiffin, Lohar, Hancock co. Ill.

Wm. Walker, M. Comb, M. Donough co. Ill.

Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.

Levi Moffet, Augusta.

Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm Crutchlow, Leachburg.

John E. Pug, Pittsburgh.

B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.

James Curtis, Horners Town.

W. L. Appleby, Recluse Town.

Israel Ivins, Jones River

MASSACHUSETTS.

Eastes Snow, Salem.

Freeman Nicerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.

INDIANA.

John Johnson, Kirt and

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.

L. R. Foster, city of New York.

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 44

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, March 1, 1843.

Whole Number 44

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,
At the corner of Water and Main Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING.
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1/2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

KINGDOM COME.

I do not believe the sad story
Of ages of sleep in the tomb;
I shall pass far away to the glory
And grandeur of Kingdom Come.
The paleness of Death and its stillness
May rest on my brow for awhile;
And my spirit may lose in its chillness
The splendour of Hope's happy smile:
But the gloom of the grave will be transient,
And light as the slumbers of worth;
And then I shall blend with the ancient
And beautiful forms of the Earth.
Through the climes of the sky and the bowers
Of bliss evermore I shall roam;
Wearing crowns of the stars and the flowers
That glitter in Kingdom Come.
The friends who have parted before me,
From life's gloomy passion and pain,
When the shadow of death passes o'er me,
Will smile on me fondly again.
Their voices are lost in the soundless
Retreats of their endless home;
But soon we shall meet in the boundless Effulgence of Kingdom Come.
—Warsaw Message.

THE TURKISH GOVERNMENT.

The following account of the Turkish Government is extracted from McCulloch's recently published Geographical, Statistical and Historical Dictionary.

The dependence of the sultan on the Koran, though it limits in some degree his power to tyrannize over his subjects, opposes at the same time the most formidable obstacles to his attempts to introduce any organic changes, how expedient or necessary soever. The rights and social condition of the people living in the Turkish empire, who have not embraced the religion of the conquerors, are supposed to be determined by the Koran. And hence the difficulty—without, as it were, overturning the very foundation on which the monarchy rests—of effecting any material changes in the situation of the dependent population. The Turks cannot unless they abandon their own religion, amalgamate with them, or raise them to the same level as themselves; so that the nation must always consist of two distinct parts—the Turkish or ruling portion, and the rayhas, of subjugated infidels, who exist upon sufferance, and who can never arrive at any situation of power or emolument. The character of the Mahomedan religion is, in truth, an all but insuperable obstacle to any thing like reform. Though less intolerant than many others, it inculcates on the minds of its votaries the most exalted ideas of their own importance, and the most profound contempt for all sort of unbelievers. There may, no doubt, be an imitation of European tactics, and an attempt to introduce something like the practices and institutions that prevail in the European States; but it is impossible, so long as the religion of the prophet maintains its ascendancy, that they can have any considerable influence. Submission to their power has saved the unbelieving population of the country from death; but nothing short of their embracing the religion of the conquerors can effectually protect them from insult and contempt, and, consequently, also from extortion and tyranny.

The Grand Seignor is assisted in the government of the empire by a cabinet council, or divan, consisting of the principal ministers of the empire, and of the mufti, or head of the law. Until very recently the Sultans were in the habit of delegating the greater portion of their authority to the grand vizier, (vizir azmen), who became as it were, regent of the empire, being at the head of the civil government, and generalissimo of the naval and military forces. But of late years the powers of this functionary have been very much curtailed. Indeed the place was wholly abolished by the late, though it has been revived by the present emperor. The functions of the other Ministers correspond with those of Ministers of Foreign Affairs, (reis efendi) of the Interior. Commerce and finance, (seraskier) at Grand Admiral, etc. The court of Constantinople is generally known in other European countries by the title of the Sublime Porte, a designation derived from the Bab humayon, or principal outer gate of the seraglio, whence the hatti schesis, or imperial edicts are usually issued.

The sheik-ul islam, (mufti) or head of the clergy and chief interpreter of the Koran and the canonical laws, is a very important functionary. He nominates to all the principal offices in church and takes precedence of every other subject in the empire; even of the grand vizier. On most great occasions the Sultan applies to the sheik-ul islam for a fatwa, or legal opinion, to ascertain whether his intended course of action be in accordance with the Sharia. The sheik-ul islam is indispensable, and has very rarely been refused. Lately, too, the opinions of the mufti have become of less importance.

The mufti is always chosen from the ulema, a body comprising the clergy with the interpreters and administrators of the law. But, though they all study together, the lawyers and the judges are quite distinct from the clergy; it being left to every young man brought up in the colleges of the order to determine for himself when he has attained a proper age and acquired a sufficient stock of learning, whether he will become a priest, or a doctor of law, or a judge; but it is to the latter, or the lawyers, that the title of ulema is more peculiarly appropriated.

Throughout Turkey the ministers of religion are all subordinate to the civil authorities, who exercise over them the powers of diocesan. Magistrates may supersede and remove clergymen who misconduct themselves, or who are unequal to the discharge of the duties of the office. The magistrates may also, whenever they judge proper, perform all the sacerdotal functions, and it is in virtue of this prerogative, joined to the influence which they derive from their judicial power and their riches, that they have so marked a pre-eminence, and so preponderant an authority, over the ministers of public worship.—Thornton, i, 126.

The members of the ulema constitute a sort of aristocracy. They pay no taxes or public imposts and by a peculiar privilege, their property is hereditary in their families, and is not liable to arbitrary confiscation. Their persons are sacred; their blood may on no account be shed; nor can they be legally punished in any way but by imprisonment and exile. It is to be observed, however, that the power and dignity of the ulemas are not hereditary in individuals, but in the order. Formerly they held their offices for life; but about the end of the 17th century they were made removable at pleasure, like all other public functionaries. They now are appointed only for a year. Each individual, however, enjoys all the privileges of the order, independently of holding any office, or exercising any public employment. There have been instances of muftis declining to obey the grand seignor, and of their remonstrating with him on the impropriety or illegibility of his conduct; though as the Sultan makes the mufti; and can depose and exile him at pleasure, such conduct must necessarily be very rare, except when some formidable conspiracy is on foot, and when the powers of the Sultan consequently circumscribed. In the reign of Mustaba, the people put to death the mufti for having, as they alleged, misled the Sultan. Catemic says Murad IV. commanded a mufti to be pounded in a marble mortar, saying that heads whose dignity exempts them from the sword ought to be struck with the pestle; but the fact is doubtful.—(Thornton, i, 130.) Speaking generally, the mufti and ulema is uniformly opposed to all measures of reform, at least, to such as might be supposed to militate in any way against the peculiar doctrines and regulations enforced by the Koran.

Besides the ulema, there is a privileged order, limited to the descendants of Mahommed by his daughter Fatima. These are called oomra, or ameers, have sayd prefixed to their names, and are authorized to wear green turbans. Innumerable, oomra, like the Brahmins in India, are found even in the most abject ranks of life.

The government of the provinces is extremely rude, and is, indeed, little less than a tissue of abuses. European Turkey was formerly divided into two great governments, or eyalets, of Roumelia and Bosnia; the former of which was divided into sixteen sanjacks, or great governments, or pachaliks; and the latter into seven, besides some inferior governments. The power of the pachas within their respective districts; is in many respects unlimited. They have under them *musselim*s, or suppachas, to whom they delegate a portion of their authority, and who watch over a certain extent of territory. Every pacha or governor is supposed to represent the sovereign within the limits of his own jurisdiction, is invested with his authority, and exercises his prerogatives in all their plenitude. Nominally, however, contentious jurisdiction, or the determining differences between subjects, is left to the principles of musselman government and the practice of the Sultan.

MORE FOSSIL REMAINS.

We see by an article in a late number of the Osage Valley, published at Warsaw Missouri, that a great number of bones have recently been found about two miles from that town. They are described as follows:

The place where these bones were found, is about two miles from town, and is familiarly known by the western people as a lick. There are many seeps of a brackish sulphur water, breaking thro' the ground, which has been resorted to by various animals, till there is an acre or more of ground excavated to the depth of eight or ten feet. The bones were found two or three feet below this surface, embedded on a black level. The probability is that these animals resorted to this place for the salt held in solution by the water and heedlessly plunging themselves into the mire, were frequently unable, despite their gigantic strength, to extricate themselves; and thus their remains accumulated to such an amount.

The number of different heads found amount to seventy or eighty, and the large amount of detached teeth shows that a greater number of these monsters have found a common grave in this basin. The bones which are found near the head of this basin, are in a much better state of preservation than those near the outlet. The skeleton of various species of animals are found deposited in this basin, as the buffalo, elk, deer, etc. There are two species only found, which are worthy of admiration; of the one there are but few specimens, only some teeth and part of the maxillary bones in which they were set. These teeth are fissured on the sides, much like the elephant's molar teeth, and smooth on the masticating surface, which measures 12 by 14 inches. The other species of bones, which are great in number, and stupendous in size have differently shaped teeth, and out of their superior maxillary grow tusks, some of which are 25 inches in circumference, and ten or twelve long. The tusks are not preserved entire. Many of the maxillary bones have their molars entire, and tightly retained in their sockets. These molar teeth are 8 or 9 inches by 4 or 5, on their grinding surface, with deep eminences of the antagonizing molar played. This formation of the molar of this animal is very different from that of the genus herbivorous, the grinders of which have smooth continuous surfaces. The inferior maxillary is armed with a tusk fifteen or twenty inches in length. The former is six or seven inches in its diameter, and presents an articulatory surface, with the acetabulum of ten or twelve inches. The connexion of the bone of the fore leg with the shoulder blade presents a similarly large articulation. Few of the vertebrae have resisted the corrosion of time. They are entirely denuded of their processes, so that we can only observe on a few of them the canal for the spinal marrow, which must have been three or four inches in diameter.

A striking peculiarity of these bones is, they have no cavity for the marrow, but are solid bone. They are not petrified, but are preserved as osseous matter, which is a conclusive argument that they have not been imbedded many centuries.

From the Harrisburgh Capitolian.

Capt. McKenzie and his fellow officers have been honorably acquitted by the unanimous decision of the Court of Inquiry.

The Captain and his associates have demanded of the President, a Court Martial to try them for murder on the high seas. Their request has been complied with. This saves them further trouble from the civil laws, and this was perhaps the object in demanding a trial by Court Martial.

We have to apologize to our correspondent H. Tate, for the following errors which were made by the compositor in his last communication. We shall make two decisions of the morbid variety. Should read two divisions, &c. Pu, should be pu. Ius is either derived from decomposed solids or coagulated blood. Should read pus is matter derived from decomposed solids &c. Emluent, poultice should be emollient poultices. Ergat should be ergot. Extravasated should be retroverted (from the Latin extra and verso). Forced or let out of its proper vessels. One of the properties of living matter consists in the power of resisting putrefaction, &c. Lutan, soon as a part mortifies this character is lost; property is a spontaneous decomposition, should be, but as soon as a part mortifies, this character property is lost; a spontaneous decomposition in the mortified part.

THE WASP.

W. DUESDAY, MARCH 1, 1843.

The weather.—Our prospects at present are not very flattering, for a breaking up of the ice, we have had very severe weather for the last two or three days. March has indeed come in like a lion; we hope that rude Borealis will soon finish his freaks for this winter, and that it may go out like a lamb. The Mississippi continues low.

Oregon.—There has been a large meeting held in Cincinnati lately in favor of the immediate settlement of Oregon, and approving Senator Linn's bill on that subject. Similar meetings have been held in other places, and a strong feeling in behalf of the measure generally pervades the community.

Traian Navy.—The N. O. Bulletin of the 11th says. "We are informed from a respectable quarter, that Com. Moore has received orders to sail from this port for Galveston, to defend that place against any attacks that may be made against it by the Mexicans."

A dreadful accident occurred in the Galway Catholic Chapel on the 25th December. An immense concourse of people had assembled at early mass, when some persons gave the alarm that the gallery was giving way, which, it appears was not so; but the rush was so great, the numerous persons were trodden upon and seriously bruised, and it is stated that 29 were killed.

Extraordinary Hailstorm.—During the thunder-storm that visited Carimathen on the evening of Sunday week, a shower of hailstones fell in and about Coychurch, near Bridgend, and some of the hailstones were of the extraordinary size of hen's eggs, and weighed about three ounces each. Scarcely any one so small as marbles were seen. A shower of very large hailstones also fell at St. Donats, on the sea shore; but the stones were not so large as those that fell at Coychurch. The stones were of different shapes—round, oblong, and square. Fortunately they came down straight, for had they come in an oblique direction, they must have caused brisk work for the glaziers in the neighbourhood.

Something in the Wind.—A postscript in the Toronto (Canada) Herald, of the 20th ult., says:

We are informed that a special express from Kingston, arrived here early this morning, conveying letters from his Excellency's Military Secretary, to the Hon. W. H. Draper and Dr. Gwynne, requesting their immediate attendance at the seat of government. Both gentlemen left Toronto at 11 o'clock, a.m. and rumour is of course busy with all sorts of conjectures respecting the probable object of the movement.

Singular Shower.—It is stated in some of the papers, in the upper part of Missouri, that immediately after the heavy snow on the 1st inst., the fall of a dark substance resembling steel dust was noticed. On the 21st ult., it is said that the sun was obscured all day, by dense clouds of this substance, extending over several counties.

A fatal epidemic called the "black tongue," is raging at Saratoga, N. Y. Some twenty or thirty of the inhabitants have already fallen victims to it.

London and the English Market.—They are packed in bidders, in Cincinnati, for the English market. Mr. H. L. Redder's establishment has already filled about a thousand, of which the Gazette says:—Nothing can exceed the neatness of this article, and we do not see how it is possible the experiment should fail.

The Chinese Treaty.—The great seal of England was, on Saturday the 31st, affixed to the Treaty recently ratified between that country and China, at the residence of the Lord Chancellor, after which it was transmitted to the War Office, for the purpose of being forwarded to the Celestial Empire.

A number of farmers of corn merchants had occurred. Among them was Mr. Dugg of Wakefield, whose debts amounted to 1,500,000L.

A New Carbine.—A new carbine has been invented, which throws a ball 600 yards, or a distance which was formerly supposed a cannon could not reach.

MR. MCCLIVLAND, FROM THE COMMITTEE ON FINANCE, TO WHOM WAS REFERRED A BILL FOR "AN ACT TO REDUCE THE PUBLIC DEBT," REPORTS BACK THE FOLLOWING AMENDMENT:

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the People of the State of Illinois, represented in the General Assembly, That the Governor shall be authorized to negotiate a sale of the stock held by the State in the Bank of Illinois, to said bank, upon the following terms; that is to say, that the bank shall surrender to the Governor for the use of the State, as an equivalent for its stock, an amount of the liabilities of the State, equal on their face to the sum of one million of dollars; one-half of said amount to be surrendered as aforesaid within five days after the passage of this act, and the residue, with six per cent. interest thereon, from the date of sale, within twelve months after the passage hereof.

Sec. 2. If the Governor shall sell the stock of the State as aforesaid, he shall, upon the receipt of the first half of the consideration therefor, assign to the bank, for the use of the private stockholders therein, one half of the stock of the State in said institution, and an undivided half of all the interest and right of the State in the claims in action, moneys and properties of the bank, both real and personal; but the residue of said stock shall be subject to a lien in favor of the State, until the residue of the consideration therefor shall be fully paid and discharged; and if the bank shall pay the residue of said consideration, at the time appointed in the preceding section, then the said residue of the State stock, and all the right and interest of the State in the claims in action, moneys and property of the bank, both real and personal shall be assigned thereto by the Governor as and for the use aforesaid; but if the bank shall fail to make payment as aforesaid, then the said residue of stock shall revert to, and be held by the State in the same right in which it is now held.

Sec. 3. Upon the receipt of the first half of the consideration for the stock of the State, as aforesaid, the directory of the bank shall be reduced to eight in number, three of whom shall be appointed by the Governor and Senate, whose tenure of office shall be the same as now provided by law, and five by the private stockholders of the bank, according to usage in that respect; Provided, That the directors on the part of the State shall be forever withdrawn from the bank upon full payment being made, by the bank, for the stock of the State as aforesaid.

Sec. 4. If the bank shall accept of the following provisions of this act, under its corporate seal, within thirty days after the passage hereof, to be filed in the office of Secretary of State, then, and in that case it shall go into liquidation and be finally wound up according to the rules and regulations thereby established.

Sec. 5. The Governor shall nominate, and by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, appoint a commissioner, to be styled the "commissioner of the Bank of Illinois," who shall be commissioned by the Governor, and under his direction shall enter into bond, with approved security, in the penal sum of one hundred thousand dollars to the Governor, or for the use of all persons interested, or to be interested, conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, according to law, and who shall also, before entering upon the duties of his said office, be sworn faithfully and truly to perform the duties thereof, which oath shall be in writing and be filed in the office of Secretary of State. Said Commissioner shall receive such compensation for services actually performed, not exceeding three dollars per day, as may be allowed by the Governor, and shall hold his office for two years, unless sooner removed by the Governor for good cause, to be reported to the next General Assembly, and in case of such removal, the Governor shall have power to fill the vacancy, by an appointment to endure until the next succeeding session of the General Assembly.

Sec. 6. The "Bank of Illinois" shall go into liquidation within thirty days after the passage of this act, and at the end of that time shall pay out all its specie on hand, except fifteen thousand dollars. The said payments of specie shall be made at the counter of the principal bank, at Shawneetown, pro rata, that is, proportionably on all its liabilities and indebtedness, whether of the principal bank or branches, except upon its indebtedness to stockholders, as the same may be presented for payment; and shall annually thereafter pay out the specie found on hand, except the fifteen thousand dollars reserved as aforesaid, including like payments upon the certificates of balances hereinafter provided for, except to stockholders as aforesaid; and the said bank shall make and deliver certificates, signed by the president and cashier, to each creditor for the residue of his debt, after deducting the payment in specie from the whole amount of such debt; which certificate shall be registered by the commissioner aforesaid, in a book by him kept for that purpose; said certificates shall be issued for such sums, not less than ten dollars, as will suit the convenience of the creditors of the bank, and shall be received in payment of any debt due, or to become due, to the bank, and in payment for any real estate purchased, or to be purchased, of the bank, and in redemption of any lands sold, or to be sold, by the bank on execution; but the bank shall not, directly or indirectly, purchase any of the certificates issued under the provisions of this act.

Sec. 7. The said bank shall not, in return, or count any note, lend any money, buy or sell any bill of exchange, issue any paper for circulation, or receive any deposits, or do any other act usually done by banks, but shall confine all its operations to winding up its affairs, collecting and securing its debts, paying the debts of the bank, selling its real and personal estate, issuing the certificates for balances provided for in the fourth section of this act, and to renewing the notes of its debtors from time to time, upon the payment of one-fifth part each time, and to suing and being sued in relation to all its dealings; for which purposes, and for no others whatever, the charter of said bank is continued for the term of four years from the fourth day of March A. D. 1843, provided, That the charter of the same, shall be, and is hereby repealed, at and upon the expiration of the said term of four years from the fourth day of March as aforesaid.

[Concluded next week.]

An Ordinance in relation to the duties of City Attorney.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that it shall be the duty of the City Attorney to defend the interests of the Corporation in all suits instituted by or against the Corporation, to make such returns to the Mayor, of the state and condition of the said suits, at such periods, and in such manner as he shall prescribe, and generally to give such legal advice on matters pertaining to the interests of the Corporation, as the Mayor and Aldermen shall from time to time require.

Sec. 2. Be it ordained, that the salary of fifty dollars per annum, be, and the same is hereby allowed to the said Attorney, in full for such legal advice and services as the Mayor and Aldermen are authorized to require of him by the first section of this act, payable semi-annually out of the general fund.

Sec. 3. This act to take effect from and after its passage.

Passed Feb. 25th 1843.
JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance in relation to Interment.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That all graves in the burying ground, or grounds, belonging to the City of Nauvoo, shall be dug fully six feet deep from the surface, and in covering the same it shall be left well filled, raised up, and rounded up on the top; and the Sexton shall receive the sum of two dollars for digging the grave and interring the body of every person, and shall keep a regular record thereof in a book set apart for that purpose, as hereinafter set forth.

Sec. 2. Any person who has not procured a lot or place in the City burying ground, and who wishes to dig a grave, and inter therein without the assistance of the Sexton, shall call upon the Sexton, whose duty it shall be to point out the place where such interment shall be made, for which he shall receive the sum of twenty-five cents.

Sec. 3. Any person having a lot or place in the City burying ground may inter their dead without the assistance of the sexton, and they are hereby required to make a due return to the Sexton of each case of interment so made, within three days thereafter.

Sec. 4. The City Sexton shall keep a Book of Record in which he shall record the names and ages of all persons deceased, coming to his knowledge, and the nature of the diseases of which they died, and to enable him the better so to do, he is to procure such information as he may require from the persons referred to in section two (2.) of this Ordinance, and he shall also make a weekly report for publication, to the editor of some newspaper published in this city.

Sec. 5. Should the City Sexton be unable to procure his pay from the relations or assets of the deceased, or from overseers of the poor, upon substantiating these facts to the satisfaction of the City Council he shall receive pay therefor out of the City Treasury.

Sec. 6. Any person acting in violation of this Ordinance, respecting the manner and order of interments, shall be fined in any sum not exceeding fifty dollars, to be recovered before the Mayor or Aldermen of this city at their discretion.

Sec. 7. This Ordinance to take effect, and be in force from and after its passage, all laws or ordinances to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Passed Jan. 3rd 1843.
JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

To the Editors of the Wasp—

Dear Sir: I have, of late, had repeated solicitations to have something to do in relation to the political force about dividing the county; but as my feelings revolt at the idea of having any thing to do with politics, I have declined in every instance having any thing to do on the subject. I think it would be well for politicians to regulate their own affairs. I wish to be let alone, that I may attend strictly to the spiritual welfare of the church.

Please insert the above and oblige
JOSEPH SMITH.
Nauvoo, Jan. 23, 1843.

We insert the above for the benefit of certain priests who are eternally ranting about abolition and perverting the pulpit to subserve their political ends; and yet who abuse Mr Smith upon suspicion of doing what every body knows they themselves actually do. If Smith would become a good federal abolitionist, it would alter his character much in their eyes.—
Chicago Democrat.

Flowing heavy soils when wet does more injury than if the team were standing idle.

In plowing green sward deeply, the furrows must be always at least one half water than deep, else the soil will not turn well.

All grain fields seeded to grass should be rolled.

Musty grain is made sweet by putting it in boiling water (double the quantity of the grain) and then dry it well, skim the water.

A single weed may draw out the nourishment that would have given fullness to some half a dozen ears. To be free from taxes is far less important than to be free from weeds.

Barley seed may be freed from oats intermixed, by pouring water upon it, when the oats will float, and may be skimmed off.

I resorted leached or unleached ashes, which have accumulated during the winter, to be applied to corn in the hill or row.—Pulla. Mucum.

ISTHMIUS OF DARIEN.

A project of much importance to the citizens of the United States, both commercially and in a national point of view, has recently been brought to the notice of Congress by Seth Sweetzer, Esq. of Garyaquit, our worthy consul, who has resided many years on the coast of the Pacific. The project is to establish an overland mail to the Pacific from the Atlantic across the Isthmus of Darien. The plan proposes to employ a regular line of monthly packets to Coahuila, Guaymas, Juarez, thence by overland mail to El Paso, by which the communication with the principal towns on the Pacific, Guaymas, Laredo, Valparaiso, and with the Sandwich Islands and China, will be made in one half the time than by Cape Horn. To reach Panama by the Cape requires 130 days. Every one knows that we can see the Pacific in 25 days, going overland from Chicago to Panama, and in 40 days, by the same route, the great city of Lima, in Peru, may be reached; in 50 days the Sandwich Islands, and in about 60 days the Cape of Good Hope. This would bring us nearly one thousand miles nearer to the latter places than the Europeans are, and of course give our commerce great advantages over theirs. Recent events in China, and the claim which Great Britain sets up to a large portion of Oregon territory, render it necessary that we should have some more expeditious route for conveying intelligence to and from those remote quarters. The shortest known is believed to be the one now proposed by Mr. S., which will enable us to approach, in one half the time now required, Oregon, California, the Sandwich Islands, Marquesas, China, the mines of Peru, the products of Cali, and the rich fruits of the Equator. The Home Squadron, it is proposed, particularly the small vessels, might be engaged in this important service, and serve as packets to Chagres in the routine of their cruise. The expense of transporting the mail overland would be supplied to the full extent by the postage on the letters, and the freight on the treasures carried across. This subject has been presented to Congress in a memorial, and we hope to see it at once promptly taken into consideration, and acting upon its suggestions. It must strike every member as a matter of the highest importance.—Pail. Ledger.

REPEAL OF THE CHARTER.

A petition is now circulating through the city of Springfield. This petition is numerously signed already, and have little doubt will secure a majority of the voters. Our people are laid down with the most enormous taxation, laid on by the city authorities. Yet, notwithstanding this heavy taxation, they have been managed in this city in such a one-sided manner as to create great dissatisfaction. The residents in passing from the one part of the city to another, have to wade through the black mud, knee deep, half the winter. The members of the Legislature, justly complaining of this. In passing from their boarding houses to the State House, they must wade through water and mud, and wading words set in the mud with cold wet feet. The consequence has been, that many of the members are constantly sick. We have known as many as three sick at a time in one boarding house.

How easy it would be for our corporation to remedy all this. They have the power, under their charter, to lay pavements before any man's property and put a tax on that property to pay it. Yet the corporation, for years past, have neglected to do it. Under these circumstances we would rather have no charter, and sincerely hope the Legislature will repeal it.—Springfield Register.

Power of Industry.—It was a beautiful expression of a Chinese sage, that by time and industry a malberry leaf became a silk shawl. If the following statement be correct, it affords a still more striking proof of what human ingenuity can accomplish. In the manufacture of steel, an article may be raised from one halfpenny to thirty-five guineas! A pound of crude iron costs one halfpenny; it is converted into steel, into watch-springs, every one of which is sold for half a guinea, and weighs only the tenth of a grain, after deducting for waste, there are in a pound weight 70,000 grains. It affords steel for 70,000 springs; the value of which, at half a guinea each, is 35,000 guineas.

HURRICANE!—A violent gale passed over Potsville, a few days since, which prostrated trees, tore off the roofs of houses and dwellings, and caused other material damage.

Let us remember the poetical description of his sweetheart, who is a bouncing Dutch girl he says.

My love wears a beautiful blue tie,
Not made up of cotton or bran,
But out of the genuine muscle.

According to nature's own plan.

The City of Shanghai.—In the London papers it is stated that this city and its dependent villages, contain 2,000,000 weavers of cotton cloth. This it must be remembered, is only one of the manufacturing towns. The number of silk weavers is more numerous than those in cotton.

Hint to Married Women.—The following anecdote is "going the round" of all the newspapers, that are edited by married men:—When Livia had attained such an ascendancy over her husband Augustus, that he could hardly refuse her any thing, though emperor of the world. Many of the married ladies of Rome were anxious to know the secret and the source of her success; to whom she replied, "I rule by obeying."

To de trop Art.—Mix an ounce of powdered arsenic with a quart of water, boil it half an hour with some sugar, and place the syrup in small shallow vessels—oyster shells will do—in places infested by them. The sweetness attracts them, and the consequences are speedily fatal.

Eruption on Mount Etna.—After many years repose, says a London paper, Etna has, during the last three weeks, poured forth immense masses of fire. It seems that considerable torrents of lava are flowing in the direction of Bronte. The damages already done are said to be immense.

The paper at W. saw, Hancock co. is much excited for its abuse of the Monitor, has come out strong whiz for Henry Clay, John Davis and that sort of old iron.—Columbia Democrat.

A Scene, Morning after Election.—Pa. does wine make a beast of a man?

•Pshaw! child—Perhaps once in a while.

•Is that the reason why Mr. Giggins, the tavern keeper, has on his sign "entertainment for man and beast"?

•Nonsense, child, what makes you ask?

•Because, my says that last night you went to Giggins a man, and came home a beast; and that he entertained you!

•That's mother's nonsense, dear. Run out and play; papa's head aches!—Fustling Journal.

Reading the Sile.—The citizens of Marion county, Missouri, have held a meeting and resolved that no property belonging to a citizen of that county should be exposed to public sale.

The effects of the earthquake of the 4th inst., as experienced at Memphis, Tennessee, are thus described in the Enquirer.

"It was the seventh shock, we imagine which has been felt in this region since the 'Great Skirmish' of 1911. The particulars listed show that a more violent, which time the firm set earth did 'swell to and fro as a drunken man' so violent indeed, as to make hundreds run into the streets from the fear that the houses they were in, were about to tumble down. No damage, however, was done. The vibrations of the earth might have lasted in all nearly two minutes, and were accompanied by a heavy, rumbling sound, as if some seventeen hundred and fifty heavy loaded wagons had been driving briskly along the street. We understand there was quite a rush at the theatre, and indeed every where else, to get out of doors.

We ourselves heard the shrieks of the females, in several quarters of the town."

FIRE-PROOF CEMENT.—The French cement for the roof of houses, to preserve the wood and protect it from fire is made in the following manner:

Take as much lime as is usual in making a pot full of whitewash, and let it be mixed in a pail full of water; in this put two and a half pounds of brown sugar, and three pounds of fine salt; mix them well together and the cement is completed. A little lampblack, yellow ochre, or other coloring commodity, may be introduced to change the color of the cement, to please the fancy of those who use it. It has been used with great success, and been recommended particularly as a protection against fire.

Small sparks of fire, that frequently lodge on the roofs of houses, are prevented by this cement from burning the shingles. So cheap and valuable a precaution against the destructive element ought not to pass untried. Those who wish to be better satisfied of its utility can easily make the experiment, by using it on a small temporary building—or it may be tried by shingles put together for the purpose, and then exposed to the fire.

ISTHMIUS OF PANAMA—REMARKABLE FACTS.—Among the reports made to the Academy of Science at Paris, December 20, was one from M. de Humboldt, on the subject of connecting the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans by means of a canal at the Isthmus of Darien. If the statement made in this report be correct, the object can be accomplished with little difficulty and a trifling expense. He informs the Academy that the preparatory labors for cutting a canal across the Isthmus of Panama are advancing rapidly. The commission appointed by the Government of New Grenada for the construction of a canal to unite the two oceans has terminated its examination of the locations, and has arrived at a result as fortunate as it was unexpected. The chain of the Cordilleras does not extend, as was supposed, across the Isthmus; but, on the contrary, a valley very favorable to the operation has been discovered.—The natural position of the waters is also favorable. Three rivers, over which an easy control may be established, and which may be made partially navigable, would be connected with the canal. The excavations necessary would not extend to more than 12.1-2 miles in length. The fill may be regulated by four double locks, 133 feet in length; and the total length of the canal will be 49 miles, with a width of 135 feet at the surface, and 55 at the base; the depth will be 20 feet. The canal thus excavated will be navigable by vessels of from 1,000 to 1,400 tons. According to the estimate of M. Morel, a French engineer, the total cost of canal would be only fourteen million of francs, including the purchase of two steamers.—New York Tribune.

New Orleans Justice.—Will you be tried by me, B. I. Patterson, or a jury of your countrymen? demanded a worthy recorder of an 'unreliable vagabond'. 'Don't care which—I am innocent, and am ready for my trial,' answered Bill. 'Well, sir, I shall set you down for six months!' 'Well, that's one way of trying a man, whispered Bill Patterson, as he took the arm of a terrier of justice.—Crescents.

Newsman Dead.—The Frederick Message, brought by the Independent Captain Nye, was received her yesterday afternoon week at 3 o'clock. A copy of it was forwarded, at a quarter past 4, by an express engine to Birmingham, the distance from the Edge-hill Station of the Grand Junction Railway to that town (97 miles) having been performed, including the stoppages to take in coal and water, in two hours and thirty minutes. From Birmingham it was forwarded by a second express engine to London. At London it was set up, and copies of the Times containing it were received in Liverpool at a quarter to four on Monday afternoon, just 21 hours from the time it left Liverpool, and after having travelled up and down, 420 miles!—Liverpool Albion.

Mitiness of the Season in England.—We see, by a Leeds paper, that the weather there has been remarkably mild, and that the flies, in consequence, have made their appearance, and bats fly through the streets at night, revisiting the glimpses of the gnat lights. Swallows have come out of their unknown hiding places, puzzling the naturalists as to the fact of their hibernation. We read in a Southern Provincial paper of the goldfinch found sitting on her premature eggs, of mushrooms freshly gathered, and other wonders of vegetation.—These unusual symptoms are not, however, confined to the most southern portions of the island, but are found manifesting themselves in the northern countries, and at the upper side of the highlands, this genial change from the signs of ordinary winter are to be found.

State Bank of Indiana.—We are satisfied that the recent attempt to bring the paper of this bank into disrepute in this city, was nothing less than a scheme of the debtors of that institution and of the brokers, to depreciate the value of its bills, so that they might purchase them at a discount. The attempt, we are glad to say, has singularly failed. The public confidence in the solvency and stability of the State Bank of Indiana, is too firmly fixed to be destroyed by trivial causes, such as are invented by usurers and stock-jobbers in order to create a panic. Let the public be wary of imposition.—Cia. Mes.

Memorism.—Am you willing if I memorise you Sambo!

'Sartin I is, Cuffy.'

[Here follow the paraphrases quite a La Mémor and the 'community of sensation' is soon established.]

'Is you gone to sleep Sambo?'

'Yes, Cuffy, I's asleep.'

'Well, de n, what hab I got in my mouth?'

'Tasting a bit of sugar.'

Distinction conferred on a Jew.—A Jew banker, M. Cohen of Antwerp, has been nominated knight of the Spanish order of Isabella. The country in which a Jew some scores of years back could not set his foot without incurring the risk of being burnt alive, now decorates him with an order.—Southport Telegraph.

Anecdote of a parrot.—A Quaker lady in England had a little servant girl, whom she frequently called into the parlor, to instruct her in reading, and as she had a low, mumbling voice, her mistress had frequent occasion to reprove her, telling her to speak up—can if thee will—mutter, mutter. A favorite parrot kept caged in the parlor, from the frequent reiteration, learned to repeat this form of reproof verbatim. It happened that a ministering friend in his travels visited this family, and they had what is called a family sitting, in which the friend felt a concern to speak, and beginning in a rather low voice, the parrot sang out speak up—can if thee will: mutter, mutter, mutter. The preacher raised his voice a little. But presently he heard the same command, speak up, can if thee will; mutter, mutter, mutter, and the reproof was repeated till the preacher found that nothing but the audibility of his voice would silence the pert reproof. It is needless to state that Poil was never after permitted to be present at the family sitting.

REPORT OF DEATHS

For the week ending Tuesday, the 28th inst.

Mary Ann Burgess, 10 years; ague and fever.—Total 1.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, Sexton.

"We" says the John Bull, "often suffer about two years since we represented Mr. Peckas having joined a party of fends in Hampshire for the purpose of shooting peasants; and only last week in a Scotch paper, we saw gravely stated that a surgeon was taken alive in the river, and sold to the inhabitants at 6d. and 10d. per pound."

A serious misunderstanding has arisen between Russia and the Porte, respecting Syria. Accounts from St. Petersburg state, that several regiments of Polanders, engaged by Russia in her war against Circassia, deserted their standard, and went over to the Circassians with all their arms and baggage. They committed dreadful havoc among the Russians, their vengeance was terrible. All right. Go it Polanders. —Springfield Register.

GEORGE BACHMAN,
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-tf.

WANTED.
HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store.
B. W. TOWNSEND,
A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment.
Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. T. & W. no29-tf.

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois. In the matter of the petition of Samuel James, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.
Notice is hereby given, that Samuel James, of Hancock county, Illinois, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 20th day of March next, at the district court room, in the town of Kaskaskia, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.
Dated this 14th day of February A. D. 1843.

GEORGE BACKMAN,
Solicitor for petitioner.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
In the Hancock Circuit Court Ill. Oct. Term A. D. 1842.

IN CHANCERY.
David H. Mathews } Complainant
vs. } Bill of Injunction.
E. A. Nexsen. }
Simeon Albee, & } Defendants.
Chester P. Bradly }

This day came the complainant by his solicitors, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that E. A. Nexsen one of the above named defendants is a non-resident of this State: It is therefore, on the application of complainant's solicitors, ordered that unless the said E. A. Nexsen shall personally be and appear before the Judge of this Court on or before the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court house in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May A. D. 1843, and answer the allegations and charges contained in said complainant's bill which has been exhibited against him in the said Court on the Chancery side thereof, the same will be taken as confessed against him and the matters thereof decreed accordingly. — And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published in some public newspaper printed in this State for four weeks successively, once at least in each week, the first insertion thereof to be made at least sixty days previous to the next term of this Court, to which term this cause is continued.

J. B. BACKENSTOS Clerk
Feb. 24th 1843. 44-4w.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County
In the Circuit Court of said County,
to the May Term A. D. 1843.

Lewis Hyde vs. IN ATTACHMENT.
Robert Allison
NOTICE is hereby given to the said Robert Allison, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the Clerk's office of the said Circuit Court, dated the 22d day of January A. D. 1843, at the suit of the said Lewis Hyde, and against the estate of you the said Robert Allison for the sum of three hundred and fifty-eight dollars, ($358.00) directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock, which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff into the said Clerk's office, levied upon the estate of Robert Allison. Now unless you, the said Robert Allison, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court House in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to the to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Robert Allison, in favor of the said Lewis Hyde, and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.
Dated this 25th day of Feb. A. D. 1843.
J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk.
Geo. Bachman, Plaintiff's Atty.
no 44 tf or sc.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!
THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.
The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,
Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.
All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.
The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,
in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our PRICES.

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	whole	bound	plain	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	hf	bound	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	hf	bound	plain	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.
Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

GEO. P. STILES,
ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. — He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.
Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843.
no42-tf.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE,
FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.
Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.
Jan. 21, 1843. — 3m*

O. C. SKINNER,
Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office with G. Hills, Esq., a few rods south east of the Temple.

REFERENCES.
Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.
G. B. Holt, Dayton,
G. P. Bell, Hamilton,
Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,
Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.
To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO
H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
Whitman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-6m*

NOTICE.
IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
HIRAM KIMBALL.
Nauvoo January 13 1843. if

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic.
no35-6m.

NO CURE NO PAY.

DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.
Nauvoo, Jan. 23, 1842 39-tf.

SHERMAN'S
MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York; and these Lozenges are prepared from medicinal prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.
Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.
The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPHOR LOZENGES.
For Nervous or Sick Head-Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.
The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.
These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S PAIN-EXPELLING PLASTER.
This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents.) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.
A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

ELEMENTARY Speller's for sale at
J. H. Haven's Drug Store, Mulholland Street. 31-3m.

AGENTS FOR THE WEST.

ILLINOIS.
J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus
J. Salisbury, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.
Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.
Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.
Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam. S. Curtis, Horners Town.
W. L. Appleby, Reckless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS.
E. astus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.
S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.
John Johnson, Kirtland.
NEW YORK.
Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BYRANT.

Volume I.—No. 45.

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, March 8, 1843.

Whole Number 45

THE WASP.

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF,
At the corner of Water and Bain Streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING.

One square, one insertion, $1.

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

DEATH-HYMN OF THE FOOD-TAKED.

BY EBENEZER ELLIOT.

Tune—"I waited long, and sought the Lord."
God said to man, "Arise and toil,
To fill thy soul with good;"
But men said, "No! nor food, nor work."
I toil'd, and wanted food,
All ills that man can bear, I bore,
With none to cheer me nigh;
For pain I toiled, of want I died;
God only saw me die.

"Bread, bread for toil!" I ask'd of man,
But death for toil he gave;
And now I ask, "a little earth,
For famish'd man a grave."
Of God I ask, what God will give,
"Rest till the end shall be;
Safe in his hands, oh, sweet is rest,
To woe-worn men like me!"

MR. MCCLERNAND, FROM THE COMMITTEE ON FINANCE, TO WHOM WAS REFERRED A BILL FOR "AN ACT TO REDUCE THE PUBLIC DEBT," REPORTED BACK THE FOLLOWING AMENDMENT:

[Concluded.]

Sec. 8. The aforesaid creditors of the bank shall, before they shall be entitled to receive the certificates aforesaid, deliver up to the bank all notes and other evidences of debt held by them, and receipt for all judgements and other demands in favor of such creditors against the said bank.

Sec. 9. The Bank Commissioner aforesaid shall superintend the proceedings of said bank, and shall exercise due vigilance over the proceedings of the same, and for that purpose, he shall have free access to the books, papers, vouchers, vaults, and cash of said bank, and shall have power, in prosecuting his enquiries, to administer an oath to the president, directors, cashiers, tellers, clerks, and all other persons, and compel them or either of them to testify in relation to the said bank, or in relation to any matter or thing touching the proceedings of its officers, effecting the interest of the State, the creditors of the bank, or of the stockholders; and upon the refusal of any of them to be sworn or testify, he shall have power to issue his warrant to any sheriff, and commit such president, cashier, clerk, teller, or other person to the common jail of the county, until he or they shall consent to be sworn or testify, as the case may be, and if the said commissioner shall at any time discover that any dishonest practices are countenanced by said bank, or any of its officers, in the management of its business or that it is about to violate any provision of law, then the said commissioner shall immediately certify the fact to some justice of the Supreme Court, whose duty it shall thereupon be to issue an injunction against said bank, which shall be executed as in other cases, and made returnable to the circuit court of Gallatin county, sitting as a court of chancery, and shall be proceeded in as in other cases in chancery, except that the said circuit court of Gallatin county, on the chancery side thereof, shall always be and remain open to hear causes arising under this act. The injunction to be issued shall absolutely restrain the said bank and all officers and persons connected with it, from doing any act whatever in relation to the matter enjoined until the further order of said court.—The judge who issued the injunction shall appoint a day for the hearing of the cause, not exceeding ten days after the date of the writ, and he or any other judge may hold the court for that purpose. No depositions shall be required to be taken, but witnesses may be sworn and their evidence heard in open court, and upon a hearing of the cause, the judge shall have power to alter, modify, or dissolve the injunction, or make it perpetual, and if it should manifestly appear that the creditors or stockholders will be defrauded, then the said court shall have power to decree a forfeiture of the charter of said bank.

Sec. 10. If the said bank shall forfeit its charter as aforesaid, it shall not thereby forfeit any of its personal effects; its lands shall not revert, nor shall it be released from any liability; nor shall any person be released from liability to the bank, nor shall any security for the payment of money, either to or from the bank be in any wise impaired or invalidated, but the said court or judge shall appoint three honest and capable men to act as the receivers of said bank, who shall execute bonds, with approved security, conditioned for the faithful, true and diligent performance of the duties of their appointment, and who shall take and subscribe the following oath: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will faithfully, truly and diligently perform the duties of receiver of the Bank of Illinois;" which bonds and oaths shall be filed in the office of the Auditor of Public Accounts. Said receivers shall have the power and perform the duties of receivers, as in other cases, and shall proceed in the management of the affairs of said bank in collecting and paying its debts, in selling its real estate and other property, according to such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with law, as shall be made by such court or judge in that behalf; except that the specie shall be paid out, pro rata, to creditors; and in collecting the debts due the bank, the debtor shall have the right to renew the evidence of his indebtedness, with security, upon the payment of one-fifth part of his debt, every seven months. The said receivers shall not sell any real or personal property of the bank for less than two-thirds of its appraised value, to be ascertained by the appraisal of three house-holders, or a majority of them, on oath, to be appointed by the judge of the circuit court of the county where the property may be situated. All payments to be made by the receivers shall be made pro rata, amongst the creditors, who, upon giving up their demands to the receivers, shall receive a certificate for the residue of their claims; which certificate shall be received as is provided in the fourth section of this act.

Sec. 11. The said bank, in collecting its debts, shall not collect more than one-fifth part of the debt at any one time of any debtor who will pay the said fifth part, and all interest, whether the debt exist by judgement or otherwise, and renew his note or other liability, with good security, to be paid in seven months.

Sec. 12. The real estate of said bank shall be appraised by the house-holders or the majority of them on oath, to be appointed by the judge of the circuit court of the county where the real estate may be situated. Said real estate, when so appraised, shall be subject to sale, and shall be sold whenever thereafter the appraised value shall be offered for the same. The real estate of the said bank shall not be sold on execution for less than two-thirds of its appraised value, to be ascertained as aforesaid. No debtor of the bank shall be garnished by any holder of the certificates authorized to be issued to creditors under the provisions of this act.

Sec. 13. The said bank shall be required to abolish all its branches, and the notes issued at said branches shall be payable at the principal bank.

Sec. 14. If the bank shall fail to make full payment for the stock of the State, and any part of the same shall revert to the State, as herein provided for, it shall be the duty of said commissioner to see that the State, as holder of so much stock, shall receive its pro rata share of dividends and profits of the bank, if any there shall be, upon the final settlement of its affairs.

Sec. 15. It shall be the duty of the Governor, upon the receipt of any of the liabilities of the State, under the provisions of this act, to cause the same to be registered by their numbers, amounts, and dates, in the office of the Secretary of State, and shall then produce the same to be destroyed by fire in the presence of the General Assembly, if the same be in session, and if the General Assembly be not in session, to cause the same to be destroyed, in like manner, in the presence of the Auditor and Treasurer, and make report of his actings and doings in the premises, to the next General Assembly.

Sec. 16. The certificates to be issued under the provisions of this act shall be in the following form:

"This certificate for _____ dollars and _____ cents, will, at all times be received by the Bank of Illinois, in payment of any debt due the bank, and for any property which the bank may have for sale, and in redemption of any lands sold or to be sold under execution, by the bank and will also entitle the bearer to his due proportion of all dividends which may be made to the creditors of the bank."

Cashier.

President.

Sec. 17. If the bank shall accept of the foregoing provisions of this act, within thirty days as aforesaid, then and in that case, the provisions of an act, entitled "An act to put the Bank of Illinois into liquidation," shall be repealed, and for the purpose of enabling the bank to signify such acceptance, the operation of the provisions of the act, the title of which is above recited, shall be suspended for the period of thirty days from and after the passage hereof.

ASTRONOMY.

Messrs. Gallayher & Halsey:

The ardor with which many of our citizens received the sublime Astronomical views given by Prof. MITCHELL, leads me to believe that the following remarks on the same subject, translated from 'La Nouvelle Jerusalem, Revue Religieuse et Scientifique,' will be acceptable to your readers.

J. M.

"To any one who possesses some knowledge of Astronomy, it is evident, that notwithstanding its 25,000 miles of circumference, our globe is yet but a single point in space. The orbit itself of the earth which is more than 630 millions of miles, is but a point relatively, to the immensity of the universe; indeed, if the stars seem to us altogether immovable during the course of the year, though they should, from the motion of the earth correspond to different positions of the heavenly arch, it is evidently because our globe, notwithstanding the 630 millions of miles which it traverses in space, is in respect to them as if it had no motion. But, further—the whole of our solar system, of which the orbit alone of Uranus is 12 milliards of miles, does not itself really occupy but an almost imperceptible part of the universe.

The ancients, those at least from whom there remain some historical monuments, counted but twenty-two thousand fixed stars. But as soon as the telescope was discovered, an innumerable multitude of stars (till then invisible) presented themselves to the astonished gaze of observers. The abbe de la Caille, in one-third of the celestial arch, counted ten thousand—of which he gave a catalogue—thence supposing, for the entire vault thirty thousand stars. The theory of Nebula came afterwards to augment the number considerably; then the telescope being more and more improved, in one single band of the Milky Way, of an extent of fifteen degrees in length by two in width, Herschell counted fifty thousand; lastly, this celebrated Astronomer, presumes, that the number of stars may amount to 65 millions. Here then, are 65 millions of solar systems, of which ours is perhaps but one of the least in extent; but admit for it a proportional mean, still it would constitute no more than the 65 millioneth part of the universe.

But who would dare to say, that there are but sixty-five millions of suns interspersed through space, when the interval which separates the stars from us is of such immensity that it affrightens the imaginations? Huygens found that the distance where we are from the nearest of the stars was 2,885,045,634,600 miles. Other Astronomers having carried their investigations to particular stars, that which Lalande observed was 20,315,100,000,000 miles—that of Builly at 21,482,718,240,000 miles—that of Euler, at 42,000 milliards of miles. This philosopher, in his Letters to a Princess of Germany, has calculated that a ray of light from this star would take six years, notwithstanding its incredible velocity, to reach our earth. If it were possible, adds he, that a cannon ball projected from this celestial body could be transmitted to us, it would take five millions four hundred thousand years to arrive at our planet. Another star, which was observed by Lambert, was at the distance of fifty-one milliards of miles. Lastly—Dr. Derham, Prebendary of Windsor, who observed the Nebula in 1732, acknowledged that they were as distant from the fixed stars as these stars are from our globe.

If from the thirty thousand stars of the abbe de la Caille, we have attained, by the improvement of the telescope, to the sixty five millions of Herschell, to what number may not an extent so immense, permit us to suppose we may attain by means of new improvements? And if an instrument should be discovered which would be to the telescope what the telescope is to the naked eye, we would have to count not by millions, but by milliards, the suns which enlighten the universe.

If the telescope has caused to be made such beautiful discoveries in the field of space indefinitely great, the microscope yields nothing to it upon this point, and every day is discovered with it new wonders in the field, no less surprising, of space indefinitely small.

It is generally acknowledged, that porosity is a quality inherent to matter—thus, all bodies, without exception, are porous. Now, if there are interstices between the different molecules of a body, how many should there not exist before we reach those parts which escape even the best microscopes? And when we reflect on the extreme minuteness of these parts, what relatively immense intervals must there not be between them? It may be conceived, then, from this, that all which we have said on the subject of the indefinitely great, is equally applicable to the indefinitely small things; for, distances which separate the objects of the one are proportional to the distances which separate the objects of the other. Ex. Paper.

Lost, between the Printing Office and Pres. Joseph Smith's house; a Fur Tip-pet, lined with brown cambric. Any person having found it will confer a favor upon the owner by leaving it at the Printing Office.

Navoo Jan. 25th, 1843. J BENBOW.
NOTICE.—If any person has Junius Letters and will bring them to this Office, they will confer a great favor upon the literati!

THE WASP.

(WEDNESDAY, MARCH 8, 1843.)

Last Saturday the City Council passed an ordinance, providing that, nothing but specie should hereafter be received in payment for taxes, and that gold and silver alone should be received as a lawful tender for all debts within the limits of this corporation.

Since this ordinance was passed, we believe, so far as we have been informed, that it has given general satisfaction.

Situated as we are, with a flood of emigration constantly pouring in upon us, we consider that it is not only prudent but absolutely necessary to protect the inhabitants of this city from being imposed upon by a spurious currency. Many of our eastern and old country friends are altogether unacquainted with the situation of the banks in this region of country, and as they generally bring specie with them, they are in danger of being gulled perpetually by speculators. Besides there is so much uncertainty in the solvency of the best of banks, that we think it much safer to go upon the hard money system altogether. Some may consider that it will have a tendency to drive money away from us, a greater mistake than which could not be made. Those persons who are here, and those that may come here have a certain amount of money in dollars and cents; the passing of this ordinance will not take from, nor add to that amount one dollar, if a man before had five hundred, one, or ten thousand dollars, he has the same amount yet. It will however have the effect of driving from our midst an unsound depreciated currency, and of placing our monetary affairs upon a firm and substantial basis.

It may affect in a small degree many of our citizens who may have a certain amount of paper currency by them, but as many things are necessary to be purchased out of, as well as in the city they can lay it out for such purposes, but if they have a large amount let them send it back to the banks that issued it, and get a substance, instead of a shadow.

In common with other citizens of this State, and the United States, we have long been galled with a depreciated paper currency, and the speculation of bankers and brokers; we have had to pay from five to fifty per cent, on the various notes that have been, and are in circulation, and we think it high time that a stop should be put (so far as we are concerned at least) to this high handed speculation.

In our report of deaths for the week ending Friday the 10th of February, we inserted Samuel instead of Susannah C. Perry (of Columbus;) aged 24 years; Dropsy.

Several smart shocks of an earthquake had been felt in the southern part of Wales, and in Cornwall.

It is rumored in town that Mr. Clay is dead. The rumour is founded on a statement published in a New Orleans paper, that the Steamboat Creole which left that place for Mobile, with Mr Clay on board, has not since been heard of, and is supposed to be lost.

Flying Machine.—The flying man of New Orleans, had better make haste, or he will be too late. From the following in a Paris Journal, it will be seen that he has a competitor—not in the field, but in the air—who is already making some headway.

"An aeronaut named Schwartz has just made at Lyons, an experiment of a new system of ascension. He suspends himself at the bottom of his balloon, by means of straps and cords, binding his body, legs and feet in a manner similar to that used by painters and other workmen when employed on the outside of houses. His weight is calculated at two pounds beyond the ascending force of the balloon. To obtain this buoyancy he employs a pair of large wings made of light frame work, covered with cloth, and which, when fixed to his arms, have the appearance of two ancient bucklers. These wings, whose ascending power is equal to 14 pounds, when once they have raised the man and the balloon, serve to direct their movement. To effect their descent it is merely necessary to allow them to fall by the side of the man, and his state in relation to the balloon becomes the same as when they started. On the 14th inst. Mr. Schwartz raised himself by this apparatus to the height of about forty yards, and then alighted again after traversing a short distance."

HER MAJESTY'S LIEGE SUBJECTS.—It appears, by the Liverpool Steamer, that the event which is to give another cause of rejoicing to Her Majesty's liege subjects has been postponed from March, the original period fixed upon, until May next. The reasons for the delay of an event so important in its consequences to a part, at least, of the civilized world, are not given.

A London paper contains the subjoined in relation to the present and future members of the royal family.

As all the almanacs have given the Royal family for the present year, Punch, determined to outstrip all competition, has used the greatest exertion, and given much attention to the subject with a view of preparing a list of the Royal family ten years hence. The following may be depended on, as being, if not quite correct, at least as nearly so as circumstances will admit of:—

Queen Victoria born 1819; Prince Albert 1819; Victoria Adelaide, (Princess Royal) Albert Edward, (Prince of Wales) Augustus Leopold, (Duke of Brompton) 1843; Sophia Maria, 1844; Elizabeth Leonora Jane, 1845; Henry Philip William, (Duke of Bambath) 1846; Mary Alexandria, 1847; John Charles Peter, (Duke of Chelsea) 1848; Timothy Theobald Thomas (Duke of Kensington) 1849; Matilda Seraphina, 1850; Richard Stephen, (Duke of Deptford) 1851; Ethelred Guthram; (Duke of Buttersea) 1852; Serphina Susan Cecilia, 1853.

The above are, as nearly as we can give them, the arrangements of the royal family for the next ten years, and the above table may be looked upon as a sort of perpetual calendar of information on the subject it embraces. The returns are at present made up only to the year 1853, but we may carry our calculations further on a future occasion. The above will be thought by any reasonable person enough for the present.

To the Editor of the Wasp—

Sir: I am informed by letter dated, 1st Feb. last, received from a friend in New York, a gentleman of high legal attainments that the "Somers' Tragedy" then about to be reviewed, was not likely to end with the acquittal of Mackenzie:

that the court martial convened on that day, "was not competent to try him for this high crime, executing three men on mere suspicion."

This opinion, Sir, I find is in accordance with the 41st article of court martial laws. "No such sentence (that of death) shall be carried into execution until confirmed by the President of the United States, or, if the trial take place out of the United States, until it be confirmed by the commander of the Fleet or Squadron;" and Capt. Mackenzie, not ranking as either,—could not legally or equitably take the life of the boys only in self-defence, and so far as reports have been published, it does not appear that any violence was offered on the part of the condemned,—but fear, that there might be appears to have been the rule of action on the part of the Officers of the Somers. Is it not time for our nation to clothe herself in garments of mourning, when her officers no longer support her flag, only by childish and guilty fear? Who will suffer their boys to enter our naval schools, or enlist in the service if they are to be taken to the sultry shores of Africa, and there be hurled to the yard arm merely because they have stood under a torrid sun till the brain has become excited, and mania or Insania follows, so as to produce some fanciful freaks of the imagination in embryo? Oh! justice, glory, honor where art thou fled? How long wilt thou be chased around the world by cowardice and shame?

Yours,—W.

An Ordinance concerning a Market on Main Street.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Navoo, That the Mayor of the city be, and he hereby is authorized, to contract with any competent person, to furnish materials for, and erect and furnish a good, substantial, and convenient market house for this city, on the ground that shall be selected for that purpose by the City Council, which said building shall be built on the most approved plan, and cost not less than five hundred dollars.

Sec. 2. When said market house shall be finished, the Mayor is hereby authorized to make, execute, and deliver unto the competent person building the market house aforesaid, a lease of the same for five years for and as a full consideration for the materials furnished, and labor bestowed in and about the erection and finishing said building by said person as aforesaid; and that said competent person may lease out the stalls thereof at public auction in this city, to the highest bidder for such period of time as he may think best within the five years above mentioned; and the rents and profits arising from the same during the said five years shall be payable to, and for the sole uses of the said competent person aforesaid, for the consideration aforesaid; and at the expiration of said term said competent person shall surrender the possession of said market house, in good order, to the market master of this city, or to such other person as the City Council shall direct.

Sec. 3. That as soon as said market house shall be completed, and the stalls thereof leased and furnished with good wholesome meats for sale and delivery, that from and after that time a market shall be established in this city, and no person or persons shall vend sell or buy any fresh meat or meats at any other place in this city than at the market house aforesaid, and every person offending against this section shall forfeit and pay to this city twenty dollars for each offence, with costs. Provided however any person may sell by the quarter in this city at any other place, and that nothing in this ordinance or in the lease to be given to said competent person as may be contracted with by the Mayor as aforesaid, shall be so constructed as to prohibit or in any manner obstruct the right of the Council of this city from building an addition to said market house, and leasing the stalls thereof, or from establishing in this city any other market or markets whenever the City Council shall be of opinion that the interest of the inhabitants of this city shall require either to be done, and this proviso, shall be inserted in the lease to be given by the Mayor to the competent person contracted with aforesaid.

Sec. 4. That the market shall be held in said market house every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, or every day except Sunday, to be regulated by the City Council.

Sec. 5. There shall be a passage lengthwise through the entire market house ten feet in width, and the space between the piers or pillars shall be deemed stalls for butchers, which stalls may extend from each side of the building towards the centre thereof, so as to leave the space for passage aforesaid.

Sec. 6. That all that space of ground outside the market house and under the eaves of the same may be used free of charge for the sale of fish, poultry, butter, eggs, and vegetables, and that the roof of said building shall extend over the outside of the house so as to cover about four feet of ground on each side thereof.

Sec. 7. No vegetables, eggs, or poultry of any kind shall be sold or bought within this city during market hours, except at the market or markets in this city every person who shall violate this section shall forfeit and pay to this city two dollars with cost of suit.

Sec. 8. No person or persons shall obstruct the passages of the market with wheel barrows or other articles during market hours under the penalty of two dollars, to be recovered with costs of suit, for this city.

Sec. 9. That all lessees or occupiers of stalls shall keep the same clean and free from any disagreeable smell, and shall cleanse the same as often as necessary, and every person for a failure to comply with the provisions of this section shall forfeit and pay to the city the penalty of two dollars for each offence.

Sec. 10. It shall be the duty of the market master of this city to superintend the market and put in force all the ordinances of this city concerning markets, or having relation thereto; he is hereby authorized if required by any one, to weigh measure, try, and examine all butter, lard, fruit, and other articles of provision offered for sale, in lump, parcels, tubs, or other vessel, or vessels, and all weights and measures in said market; and in case the same are less than the required weight or measure, then to seize the butter lard weights or measure or other articles aforesaid so found deficient, and sell the same at auction, and pay the proceeds thereof into the city treasury. Provided, that the owner of the article or articles so seized may appeal to the Mayor of the city who shall hear try and determine the same, making such disposition of the matter as he shall deem just and right in the premises. The market master shall do and perform all things belonging to the office of clerk of markets, or market masters, within this city, he shall enforce obedience to all rules and regulations herein contained, and to such others as from time to time shall be ordained respecting the market; he shall prevent all unsound and unwholesome provisions from being sold or exposed for sale by seizing the same and making such disposition thereof as the Mayor shall order or direct; and shall try all seals weights and measures used in market, and shall enforce the payment and recovery of all penalties and forfeitures which by any law or ordinance are inflicted on any person offending against the rules and regulations of the market, and shall decide all disputes that may arise between buyer and seller, touching the weight, measure, or quality of things bought and sold.

Sec. 11. That the market aforesaid shall be open of a morning at daylight, and during summer months shall close at 11 o'clock in the morning, and in the winter at one o'clock afternoon each market day. Nothing herein contained shall prohibit the butchers from opening market and selling meats between sunset and nine o'clock at night to steamboats, and also selling to citizens every Saturday night to ten o'clock at night, if they shall think necessary.

JOSEPH SMITH Mayor.

Passed Feb. 25, 1843.
JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

An Ordinance regulating the Currency.

Sec. 1. Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, That from and after the passage of this bill, gold and silver coin only be received as lawful tender in payment of city taxes, and of debts; and also of fines imposed under the ordinances of the city.

Sec. 2. That city scrip shall not hereafter be emitted as moneyed currency; provided however that nothing in this bill shall be so construed as to prevent the redemption of previous emissions.

Sec. 3. That any person passing counterfeit gold, or silver or copper coin, or counterfeit or spurious paper currency, or aiding or abetting therein, or holding the same with intent to pass it, knowing it to be such; shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or to imprisonment or hard labor in the city, for a term not exceeding fourteen years, or all these penalties at the discretion of the court.

Sec. 4. That any person passing a paper currency, or aiding and abetting therein, or holding the same with intent to pass it within the bounds of this city corporation, shall be liable to a fine of one dollar for every dollar thus offered or passed, to be recovered as in action of debt; one half of said fine to be paid to the complainant the other half to said corporation.

JOSEPH SMITH, Mayor.

Passed March 4th, 1843.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

THE INDIAN'S DEATH SONG.

See on his mat—as if of yore,
All life-like, sits he here!
With that same aspect which he wore,
When light to him was dear.
But where the right hand's strength? the breath?
That breathed so stoutly—where?
What time the pipe its lusty wreath
Sent cheerily throng the air?
And where the hawk-like eye, alas!
That wont the deer pursue,
Along the waves of rippling grass,
Or fields that shone with dew?
Are they the limber, bounding feet,
That swept the winter snows?
What stateliest stag so fast and fleet?
Their speed outstripped the roe's!
These arms, that then the sturdy bow
Could supple from its pride,
How stark and helpless hang they now,
Adown the stiffened side!
Yet weal to him thus passed away,
Where snow can fall no more.

To fields where dwell eternal May,
And toil itself is o'er.
Where birds are blithe on every braid;
Where forests teem with deer;
Where glide the fish through every lake;
One chase from year to year!
With spirits now he feasts above,
He leaves what glory gave—
The deathless deeds for praise to love,
The dead elay for the grave!
While high the Death song wails for thee,
Thy wants shall we forget!
All in thy grave shall buried be
Which pleased—they please thee yet!
We lay the axe beneath his head
He swung, when strength was strong;
The bear on which his banquets fed—
The way from earth is long!
And here, new sharp en'd place the knife,
That sever'd from the clay,
From which the axe had spoiled the life,
The conquered scalp away,
The paints that deck the dead, bestow—
Yes, place them in his hand—
That red the kingly shade may glow
Amidst the Spirit Land.

—St. Louis Gazette.

From the Frankfort correspondence of the Britannia.

CONSPIRACY TO MURDER THE EMPEROR OF RUSSIA AND THE KING OF PRUSSIA.

All England will be startled and horrified at this announcement. It is but too true. It comes from a source which defies contradiction. The grand day of the nuptial jubilee at St. Petersburg had nearly proved a day of deep and dreadful mourning. Under Divine Providence, the terrible calamity was averted only by the wonderful presence of mind of the King of Prussia. From the very first moment that the Emperor of Russia resolved upon promulgating the ukase which has redeemed millions of slaves from the chains of their tyrants, the nobles became enraged against him to the utmost pitch of exasperation, and entered into a dark and widely spread conspiracy to take his life upon the first opportunity that might present itself. Believing that the emancipation of the serfs had been earnestly suggested and recommended to the Emperor by the King of Prussia they determined that the latter great and good monarch should perish at the same moment with their sovereign. With the fixed and tell purpose of carrying their atrocious project into execution, they waited with impatience for the hour which was to bring both monarchs together, amidst the acclamations of hundreds of thousands.

In the meantime the Emperor received private information of their diabolical design, but, concealing it from his illustrious brother in law, he ordered that the chiefs of the conspiracy should be seized and sent off to Siberia. His orders were promptly executed, but this only served to increase the number of murderous villains who had previously doomed him to death, and decided that he ought never to have been permitted to live, unless as the passive instrument of their will. Looking forward to the 25th of July (O. S.) as their Ides of March, they prepared to muster in overwhelming numbers on that day, caring not whether they deluged the streets of St. Petersburg with blood, provided they shed the blood of their intended victim. The signal for slaughter was to be given at a late hour of the day, when all their forces should have assembled. Meanwhile the Emperor being accurately informed of all their proceedings and machinations, throughout his European dominions, adopted every possible precaution to guard against danger so awful and imminent. He ordered to the camp all those troops on whose fidelity he thought he could rely; and removed to a considerable distance those whom he distrusted. He quadrupled the number of his body guards, selecting his augmentation from corps of tried and devoted loyalty. By this time the King of Prussia was on his way to St. Petersburg, and scarcely had his Majesty landed on the shores of the Neva, when he could perceive, from his reception, the envenomed feelings of prejudice and hatred which the nobles had excited against him. Hastening on to the palace of Peterhoff with all possible speed, he resolved to go back to his own country with as little delay as decency would permit being impatiently anxious to escape from a rude barbarous and inhospitable land. There is no doubt however that fearing the worst, he was prepared to be continually upon his guard. The interchange of domestic and affectionate regards between him and the members of the Imperial family were short and abrupt on this account. But it was deemed politic that, at any risks, a public demonstration of family union and family happiness should be made upon a scale of unprecedented grandeur. The Prussian monarch, however was immovably resolved that the time which his part in the pageant was to occupy should not exceed one short hour! Leaving the palace of Peterhoff amidst compact masses of faithful guards, both cavalry and infantry, their imperial majesties arrived in the great square of St. Petersburg at a much earlier hour than those who were intent upon their destruction were led to expect. The admirable foresight of the King of Prussia thus disconcerted all the plans of the conspirators, for while they thought the grand scenes of the day were only about to commence, they were nearly all over. The monarchs embraced each other in the midst of the grand square with evident emotion—the troops presented arms, and peals of artillery resounded in all directions, as well from the land side as from the shipping in the Neva. The guards were then put through some few evolutions, but in no instance so as to interfere with the compactness of their lines and immediately afterward their Majesties returned in safety to Peterhoff which was in all respects, converted into a strong garrison, while every spot of ground was covered with the imperial guards, and all the staunchest troops of the line occupied all the principal streets in St. Petersburg. In the mean time, as the hour for giving the signal approached, the conspirators were seen advancing in separate detachments towards the spot where they were to act—a vast united host: but the force opposed to them being overwhelming they were obliged to disperse in various directions; not, however, before they gave convincing proofs that among the Russian nobles and their adherent are to be found thousands of the most ferocious and blood-thirsty savages in the universe. Thus ended the grand jubilee of the imperial marriage!—Having providentially escaped from the hands of noble assassins, the King of Prussia lost not a moment in making arrangements for his final departure from their abominable country. He conferred several marks of distinguished favor on the principal officers of the imperial household and most munificently rewarded certain persons who were the first to apprise him of his danger, and to suggest to him the means of guarding against it. On quitting the imperial palace, never more to enter it; his Majesty travelled with the greatest possible rapidity until he reached Koenigsburg, the capitol of his hereditary dominions, where he was received with reiterated acclamations.

FROM MATAMORAS—CONFIRMATION OF THE CAPTURE OF THE TEXIAN ARMY.

By the arrival of the schooner Doric, we have advices from Matamoras confirmatory of the intelligence received by the last steamer from Texas, that the division of the Texian army under Colonels Fisher and Green had been captured at Mier.

On the 15th December General Ampudia received a despatch from General Woll, informing him that the Texians, 800 or 1,000 strong, had taken Loredo, and that he, Gen. Woll, had been compelled to fall back; that the Texian forces were taking the northern route towards Matamoras. On the receipt of this intelligence Gen. Ampudia left Matamoras, with two battalions of sappers and miners, in quest of the enemy, and reached Mier, 50 leagues distant, on the 22d Dec. A body of Texians, under the command of Colonels Fisher and Green, had, in the meantime, crossed the river and attacked the town in the night. The Mexican troops stationed in that neighborhood immediately went to the assistance of the city, when an engagement took place, which lasted seventeen hours.

Every house and street was desperately defended. After the battle had been maintained on both sides with determination and obstinacy for such a great length of time, the Texians, finding themselves surrounded on all sides, resolved to surrender, and finally capitulated on honorable terms. It is feared, however, that the articles of surrender will not be faithfully complied with on the part of Mexico.

The Mexicans report their loss during this engagement at 420 and 130 wounded. The loss on the part of the Texians was 11 killed and 10 wounded. This disparity evinces the superior skill of the Texians in the use of fire-arms, and the invading army after so slight a loss would lead us to suppose that they only surrendered after having exhausted their ammunition. The success of the Mexicans, after suffering so severely, speaks favorably of their courage and perseverance.

General Ampudia returned to Matamoras on the 7th January, and was received by the citizens with great rejoicings and applause. He brought with him 212 Texian prisoners, including Colonels Fisher and Green. The Texians were to leave Matamoras on the 15th instant for the city of Mexico, there to await their destiny from the hands of Santa Anna. Colonels Fisher and Green and the prisoners generally, acknowledge the treatment they received from Gen. Ampudia, since the capitulation, to have been humane and gentlemanly.—[N. O. Bee, 26th.

St. Pauls Clock, London.—A writer in the Hartford Courant thus describes the clock works in the tower of this cathedral:

"The pendulum is fourteen feet long, and the weight at the end is one cwt.; the dials on the outside are regulated by a smaller one within the length of the minute hand on the exterior dials is eight feet, and the weight of each is seventy five pounds; the length of the hour hands is five feet five inches, and the weight forty four pounds each; the diameter of the dials is eighteen feet ten inches; and the length of the hour figures two feet two and a half inches.

"The fine toned bell, which strikes, is clearly distinguished from any other bell in the metropolis, and has been distinctly heard at the distance of twenty miles. It is about ten feet in diameter, and is said to weigh four and a half tons. The bell is tolled on the death of any member of the royal family, of the lord mayor, bishop of London, or dean of the cathedral.

"The whole expense of building the cathedral was about a million and a half bound sterling; in the United States currency, is about six and two-thirds millions of dollars."

MARRIED.—In this city, on the 4th ult. by President Joseph Smith, Geo. P. Stiles Esq. of this city, to Miss Sophia J. Scofield, recently of the city of New York.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
In the Circuit Court of said County to May Term A. D. 1843.

Alanson Taylor } Plaintiff
vs. } In foreign attach-Elias H. Maine & } ment.
James D. Band } Defendants.

The plaintiff's agent and attorney herein having filed affidavit, that the defendants Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, are non-residents of this State. Notice is hereby given to the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court of the said County of Hancock, against the estate of you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band dated the 2d day of March A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Alanson Taylor, for the sum of one hundred and forty dollars with interest thereon from the 9th day of February A. D. 1842, directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock to execute, which said writ has been returned into the said Clerk's office, by the said Sheriff with an endorsement thereon, as follows, to wit: "Executed the within writ by reading the same to the within named Charles C. Maine, March 2d A. D. 1843. No property found in my county on which to levy this attachment." Now unless you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said circuit court for the County of Hancock on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court House in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to said plaintiff's action, judgement will be rendered against you the said Elias H. Maine and Jas. D. Band, in favor of the said Alanson Taylor, and execution will issue against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, of the said Charles C. Maine, as garnishee to satisfy the said debt and cost.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clk.
J. H. Sherman, Atty. for plaintiff.
March 3rd 1843. 1f.

NOTICE.

I HEREBY warn the public against purchasing or receiving certain notes which I James Huddleston gave to Josiah Ellis dated thirteenth of Sept. 1841, being three in number, $40 each; one payable the 13th Sept. 1842, the 2d on the 13th Sept 1843, and the 3d on the 3th Sept 1844. The above notes were given for a certain piece of land which has been paid for in part. The payment on the above notes will not be made until the said Ellis will secure unto me a good and sufficient title to the land for which the notes were given.

JAMES HUDDLESTON.
no 45 3w. *

The German Peasantry.—In Germany the peasants are the great and ever-present objects of country life. They are the great population of the country, because they themselves are the possessors. This country is, in fact, for the most part, in the hands of the people. It is parcelled out amongst the multitude; and wherever you go, instead of the great halls, the vast parks, and the broad lands of the nobility and gentry, as in England, you see the perpetual evidences of an agrarian system.

The peasants are not, as with us for the most part totally cut off from property in the soil they cultivate, totally dependent on the labor afforded by others—they are themselves the proprietors. It is perhaps from this cause that they are probably the most industrious peasantry in the world. They labor, busily, early and late, because they feel that they are laboring for themselves. The women and children all work, as well as the men, for it is family work; nay, the women often work the hardest.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE.

FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.

Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.

Jan. 21, 1843.—3m*

District Court of the United States, within and for the District of Illinois.

In the matter of the petition of Samuel James, of Hancock county, to be declared a bankrupt and to be discharged from his debts.

Notice is hereby given, that Samuel James, of Hancock county, Illinois, has filed his petition in this court to be declared a bankrupt, and to be discharged from his debts under the act of Congress in such case made and provided, and that an order has been duly entered in this court, appointing the 20th day of March next, at the district court room, in the town of Kaskaskia, in this District as the time and place for the hearing of said petition, all persons interested may then and there appear and show cause if any they have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted.

Dated this 14th day of February A. D. 1843.

GEORGE BACKMAN, Solicitor for petitioner.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County. In the Hancock Circuit Court Ill. Oct. Term A. D. 1842.

IN CHANCERY.

David H. Mathews } Complainant
vs. } Bill of Injunction.
E. A. Nexsen, }
Simeon Albee, & } Defendants.
Chester P. Brady }

This day came the complainant by his solicitors, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that E. A. Nexsen one of the above named defendants is a non-resident of this State: It is therefore, on the application of complainant's solicitors, ordered that unless the said E. A. Nexsen shall personally be and appear before the Judge of this Court on or before the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court house in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May A. D. 1843, and answer the allegations and charges contained in said complainant's bill which has been exhibited against him in the said Court on the Chancery side thereof, the same will be taken as confessed against him and the matters thereof decreed accordingly.—

And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published in some public newspaper printed in this State for four weeks successively, once at least in each week, the first insertion thereof to be made at least sixty days previous to the next term of this Court, to which term this cause is continued.

J. B. BACKENSTOS Clerk
Feb. 24th 1843. 44-4w.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County. In the Circuit Court of said County, to the May Term A. D. 1843.

Lewis Hyde vs. Robert Allison

IN ATTACHMENT.

NOTICE is hereby given to the said Robert Allison, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the Clerk's office of the said Circuit Court, dated the 22d day of January A. D. 1843, at the suit of the said Lewis Hyde, and against the estate of you the said Robert Allison for the sum of three hundred and fifty-eight dollars, (358.00) directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock, which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff into the said Clerk's office, levied upon the estate of Robert Allison. Now unless you, the said Robert Allison, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court House in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to the to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Robert Allison, in favor of the said Lewis Hyde, and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.

Dated this 25th day of Feb. A. D. 1843.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk.
Geo. Bachman, Plaintiff's Atty.

no 44 lf or sc.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Millenial Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on

BOOK BINDING,

in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.
Quartos	half	bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	whole	bound	plain	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	hf	bound	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	hf	bound	plain	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 23, 1842. no36.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.

Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843. no42 lf.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians, in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPFUR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after disipation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER,

This plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22-y1.) J. SNIDER,

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

NO CURE NO PAY.

DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.

Nauvoo, Jan. 28, 1842 39-1f.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-1f.

WANTED.

HIDES & SKINS wanted by the subscribers, in exchange for Boots and shoes, or to be tanned on shares, at their shop, on Parley Street, near Royce's store. B. W. TOWNSEND, A. WASHBURN.

Three or four shoe makers wanted at the above establishment. T. & W. Nauvoo, Nov. 3, 1842. no29-1f.

O. C. SKINNER, Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office with G. Hills, Esq., a few rods south east of the Temple.

REFERENCES.

Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.
G. B. Holt, Dayton.
G. P. Bell, Hamilton.
Wm. Burney, Cincinnati.
Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

BRADFORD & BROWN, Commission and Forwarding Merchants, Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw.
Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-6m*

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo January 13 1843. lf

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula, mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic. no35-6m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus.
J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chiffin, Leharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY:

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reelless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS:

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiar.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Charles Thompson, Batavia.
L. R. Foster, city of New York

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 46

Nauveo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, March 15, 1843.

Whole Number 46

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF
At the corner of Water and Bain Street,
Nauveo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING,
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

From the Boston Weekly Bee.

The following eloquent ADIEU, written by the much lamented TYRONE POWER, the Prince of Irish comedians, a short time previous to his untimely death, is full of beauty and patriotism, and will be responded to with feelings of regret by all who ever had the pleasure of witnessing his inimitable performances.

ADIEU COLUMBIA!

BY TYRONE POWER.

Adieu Columbia! I have marked thee well,
Nor yet forever do I leave thee now,
And busy thoughts of thee my bosom swell,
And thronging recollections load my brow;
Far have I roamed through thy eternal woods,
Have dreamed in fair St. Lawrence' regal isle,
Have breathed Mississippi's hundred floods,
And wooed on Alleghany's top, Aurora's winking wail.

And now we part, the ship is flying fast,
Her path-way deck'd by wreaths of whirling foam,
And all the swelling sails that bend the mast, Obey the flag, that fluttering points "to home,"
Home, home, that tender word let me retrace,
And bid each letter conjure o'er the sea
Each cherished wish and every well-known face,
To banish thoughts of those from whom I flee.

Yet shame I not to bear an e'er full heart,
Nor blush to turn behind my tearful eyes;
'Tis from no stranger coast I now must part,
'Tis to no strangers left I yield these sighs—
Welcome and home were mine in this dear land,
Whose sons I leave, whose shores fade fast
from me;
And cold must be mine eyes, and heart, and hand,
When fair Columbia! they turn cold on thee.

(From the Little Rock Times)
RED RIVER FLOOD.

GREAT LOSS OF LIFE.—An extra from the Washington Telegraph Office, dated Friday night, Feb. 3rd, contains the following,

It becomes our painful and melancholy duty to record one of the most fearful and calamitous disasters that ever befel our Red river country.

In consequence of the falling weather or the melting of the snow in the mountains, the sources of Red river have been supplied so abundantly with water, that our hitherto quite gentle stream has been so flooded that all of its bottoms lie buried beneath the heavy mass of moving water; whose appearance was so sudden and rapid, that it has borne resistless down every vestige of human industry cotton bales, cotton presses, corn, cattle, horses, hogs, &c. in one wide and general ruin.

In common with every stream on the globe, Red river has been subject to occasional but partial inundations, but during the period of half a century, there was never known such an overwhelming flood as that with which we are now visited.

At fort Towson on the 25th ult. the river rose fifteen feet higher than it was ever before known, spreading over the whole bottom, destroying the warehouse at the public landing and sweeping in one common grave all species of animation.

From a letter, politely furnished us, it appears that Jonesborough, Rowland and Berlin, in Texas, have been wholly inundated, some of the houses washed away, and many of the inhabitants drowned. The letter further states, that some few negroes escaped from Jonesborough on a raft, and when passing the house of Col. Johnson, they saw him with his family, on the house top but could render them no assistance; and soon after passing, they heard a crash and one wild scream, and all was silent again except the roar of the rushing torrent!

Amid the general distress, Capt. Crooks of the steam boat Hunter, proceeded to Mill creek, and rendered the sufferers every possible succor in his power—going from place to place, picking up the survivors from the tops of the houses and trees; thus rescuing from a watery grave some seventy five or a hundred persons.—Some were necessarily left to perish in the cane and timber, as there was no possible way of reaching them: their cries often being heard above the noise of the element. Six families of Indians, 14 miles this side of Jonesborough, are reported lost, and Col. Milam, of Ky., with a lady, his niece, and a Mr. Mc Kinney, perished.

It is thought that over a hundred lives have been lost between Fulton and Jonesborough—how many, we as yet, cannot with certainty predicate, as our sources of information will not always justify an implicit belief. Owing to the great number of settlers on the bottoms of Red River, the loss of property and human life must be immense; yet we would fain believe not so great as is generally reported, for we hope that the accounts given us have been exaggerated.

The river is still rising, but very slowly.

From the Ohio Statesman.
WHAT IS WHAT?

There is no doubt that the meaning of words change with the manners, customs, and laws of society. For example; it is a moral and christian maxim to "owe no man any thing." It is this golden rule, the beautiful compendium of that law of Moses, or rather of God, to pay the laborer his hire and not withhold it.

Well, look at society and its customs; then look at the Old and New Testaments and their golden, imperishable rules. Behold the contrast and contemplate it.

Examine the Bible from Genesis to Revelations. Where do you find authority, direct or indirect to enable the rich to make two, three or more paper dollars [I mean promises] out of one silver dollar, wherewith to pay the poor man the wages of his sweat and toil?—Where?

Where in the Bible do you find authority to clothe a few rich men, here and there, with power to contract debts, for only one third of which they shall be liable in case they mismanage, speculate, or do some swindling trick to induce suspension or failure? Where? Where in the Bible do you find a principle or maxim, or a sentiment that does not most prominently set forth, and most triumphantly vindicate the maxim of individual liability in all human transactions and affairs? Where?

And yet some—I say some, for I am glad I have not to say all—who profess to venerate the foundation, the source, the spring, the fountain, the head, the very constitution and fac simile of all true divine and moral principle, very hypocritically apologize for the villainies of incorporated rascality; yet have no sympathies for the poor who suffer by those villainies, except a shrug of the shoulders or a blank look of shame.

Where is Nick Biddle?—where is Farrington?—where are the rich bankers of the land?—Some wallow and luxuriate in voluptuous wealth extorted from the sinews of honest humble labor; and others, though but few, are confined in the solitary Penitentiary, "where there is weeping and wailing, and gnashing of teeth? Who amongst them can say like Samuel of old, "whose ox have I taken, whose house have I taken, or whom have I defrauded? If any, speak, and I will restore it four fold!" Who?

Who among these cormorants, these vultures, these hyenas, these rapacious Shylocks, can say like Zacheus: "Behold the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have wronged any man of aught, let him restore it four fold!" Who, I say?

Go to, now, ye rich men—howl for the trouble that is come upon you. Behold the people whom ye have defrauded will hold you collectively and individually liable, even as the Bible does.

But, Mr. Editor, I must stop, lest I be charged with religious fanaticism; for I have found that lately he who endeavors to establish the truth by the Bible, is sure to meet with the imputation of fanaticism. When will we learn wisdom?

"WHAT IS TRUTH?"

Mesmerism.—We thought that this contemptible imposition; this medical and surgical thimble rigism, had been exploded; but we are sorry to see that some eminent members of the medical and surgical profession disgrace themselves to the extent of attending a meeting of the Medical-Chirurgical Society, to hear a paper read which narrated a case of amputating a leg, the patient being relieved from pain by having previously been charmed by mesmerism. We are glad to say, that the medical men, both surgeons and physicians, treated the case with deserved contempt, and some of them went as far as even to treat the whole narration as a downright falsehood. If one patient can be so charmed by mesmerism as to feel no pain on the amputation of a leg, why not let the charmed antidote to pain be applied to all patients and to all surgical operations whatever? If it be a case of idiosyncrasy, affecting only one plucked out of ten thousand, or rather ten hundred thousand, it is of little or no utility. Mesmerism would be a blessing indeed, if after a battle, on land or at sea all the wounded could be mesmerised, and have their limbs amputated without their feeling pain or knowing any thing of the operation, except by finding, on waking from the trance, that their limbs were gone. Hitherto the most that mesmerism pretends to is but negative. May not mesmerism become positive, and a man receive his leg and thigh back again in a perfect state, under a mesmeritic charm? If mesmerism annuls all pain, even in the amputation of a limb, why does it not annul the pains which makes amputation necessary. The doctors pick out pecular patients, and try their experiments upon them. Nothing can justify medical or surgical experiments but the object of arriving at some strong and general good, but here we have the most wanton cruelties inflicted on our fellow creatures, without the pretender arriving at, or even aiming at, any medical or surgical advantage. On this occasion statements were made most sadly to the disgust of the medical profession. Dr. Elliotson said that a patient of Edinburgh had the flesh dug out of her hands, and this without the patient feeling pain. These atrocious experiments are of course made upon paupers. Did this poor person feel no pain when she awoke from the charm of mesmerism, and found the bones of her hand stripped of her flesh. How was the poor creature to return to daily labor? Elliotson does not tell us why, or wherefore, the flesh was plucked, and we trust that the case is as false as his statements are ridiculous. The case was read to the Society, not by a medical man, but by a barrister. Really this mixing of professions is rather scandalous. Would our Law Courts permit a man to take the prominent lead of a case in virtue of being a physician or a clergyman? The medical profession scouted the whole case, with one or two insatuated mesmerites. Coulson regretted that the paper had been read, and wished that the paper had been supported by affidavits. We wish nothing of this sort, for affidavits are common and cheap, especially with men under illusions, and we have no doubt affidavits could have been procured, that it was the man's head and not his leg, that had been cut off. Mr. Wood said that there were Clergymen present at the operation, and they ought to produce their affidavits. Could these be of the slightest value? What does a clergyman know of a medical case, and of its previous treatment with the quantity of laudanum administered to the patient to lull pain. Mr. Liston, the most eminent of our surgeons, asked the mesmerisers how they could make blind men read with their bellies and elbows, as they pretended to do. We dismiss the case with the most sovereign contempt, lamenting that the public are in so gross a state of ignorance, and so prone to illusions that frauds of this sort are sure to entrap plenty of dupes. A very useful work might be made of the illusions and impositions of the medical profession. [London Despatch.]

Better Times.—We have touched Boston, as they say in Wall street. Our prospects brighten—the public mind seems more cheerful; stocks are looking up, and the late sales of real estate are a shade better. The bankers admit that there is more specie in the United States at the present moment than there ever was before at any time, and the quantity of produce here and "in transitu," and preparing for market, is enormous, notwithstanding a great exhibition during the last three months.

The elements of prosperity then we have in abundance, all that is wanted is "commercial confidence," and this will soon come if Government will only let us alone, and not destroy by bad legislation, the natural result of our enterprise and industry. Then let us adopt the cheering motto spero meliora, go heart in hand to work, resolve to act justly and repudiate repudiation public and private. The sun of prosperity will again burst forth and cheer the heart and impart comfort and content to all, and dispel the gloom that has so long depressed our energies and exertions.

We have not room for "A Mechanic" this week.

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1843.

It will be seen by the proceedings in the Legislature, that our charters have again been made the subject of Legislation, by that body; and that the House of Representatives has done its best to deprive us of our chartered rights; so that if we possess any privileges connected with our charter we have no thanks to give to that honorable body; for they would have deprived us of them if they could. The bill has not yet passed the Senate, consequently our charter yet remains just as it was. And as the legislature is now dissolved, there is no danger of any alteration being made this session.

In making the above remarks we do not implicate the whole of the house; for there are many honorable exceptions, as will be seen by a reference to their votes; nor have we any reflections to cast upon our representatives from this county; we believe they have done their best; they have quitted themselves like men, and have fully redeemed the pledge that they gave to this people. Both Messrs. Owens and Smith have done their duty. An outline of Mr. Owen's speech on this subject will be found in this paper. Mr. Smith delivered an excellent speech on the occasion which on account of its length we are unable to insert this week.

What reliance can be placed upon a Legislature that will one session grant a charter to a city with "PERPETUAL SUCCESSION," and another session take it away. We expect however that this honorable body believe in the common adage, "promises and pie crusts are made to be broken;" and we have sometimes ourselves seen boys crying for their marbles again, after they have given them away.

We suppose however with them that the words perpetual succession do not mean what they say. The house in the dignity of its standing passes a bill, at the request of the people, telling them that they shall have a charter granting them certain privileges, and telling them that it shall be perpetual, without any repealing clause. It is made a law of and the grand seal of state appended to it. The people on the good faith of the state go to work, and improve under the provisions of that charter; companies are formed, buildings are erected, and money expended; but by and by they find out that they have been leaning upon a broken reed, that there is no dependence to be placed in government; that they have broken their most sacred promises, violated their plighted faith, and wantonly and wickedly, sought to injure thousands of men who relied on their promises, by an unprecedented, unconstitutional, and tyrannical law, trampling under foot the faith of the state and virtually saying that the members of the Legislature that granted the charter were all fools, or knaves, and that we the pure representatives of the people must break the plighted faith of the state to set them right.

Yet this immaculate house in the course of three short days could pass the following acts to incorporate the different towns, and companies mentioned therein.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Thursday, March 2, 1843.

Bill to incorporate the Galena manufacturing Company.

Bill to incorporate the Juliet Seminary.

IN SENATE, March 4.

Act to incorporate the Lamoille agricultural and mechanic association.

Act to incorporate Academies and Seminaries.

Act to incorporate the Naperville Cemetery Association.

Act to incorporate the Morgan Institute.

Act to amend an act to incorporate the town of Ottawa.

I would not give them five straws for all their charters, for they are liable to be repealed as soon as they get organized, buildings erected, and other improvements made. This liberal and enlightened government however may not interfere with them, because they are not norm me.— Well might Mr. Smith, indignant at such proceedings, wish to amend the title of the bill, concerning repeal, by calling it "A bill, for an act, to humbug the citizens of Nauvoo."

We are pleased to find that this unprecedented course of conduct has not been produced by anything injudicious on the part of our representative, Mr. Smith. We quote the following from the Sangamo Journal, a whig paper:—

The Nauvoo charters were not repealed. The Senate refused to take up the bill for this purpose which passed the House.

We may here very properly say, that the action of the House, on this subject did not arise from any course adopted by Mr. Smith, the Mormon Representative. So far as we have heard or know, his conduct was unexceptionable to men of all parties.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

Thursday, March 2.

Mr. DAVIS, of Bond, moved to take up the bill to repeal a part of the Nauvoo Charter; objections being made by several members, it was decided, in the affirmative, and placed on the orders of the day. The question being on ordering the bill to a third reading.

Mr. SMITH moved the previous question.

Mr. LOGAN hoped the previous question would not be sustained; some of the provisions proposed to be repealed, are very innocent ones; and he thought the house would be willing to retain them; he wanted to repeal the provisions allowing the writ of Habeas Corpus, and some others. The previous question was then lost.

Mr. LOGAN denied that any discussion had been had on the provisions of the Charter proposed to be repealed. He wanted the gentlemen interested to have an opportunity to be heard.

Mr. OWING went into the subject at some length. He compared the Charter of Nauvoo with any other city in the State; and showed that the bill repealed the same powers in the Nauvoo Charter which others contained, and are permitted to retain. He thought this unjust, and was opposed to the principle of making such distinctions. He bore testimony to the good order and industry of the Mormons; and he had no doubt but that they were much abused.

He alluded to the course of the Whigs during the canvass for the last election; and appealed to his party to sustain the Mormons, as they had so nobly carried last election; he cautioned them against taking the other course; and predicted if they did, that they would be the means of electing a whig to Congress in that district; and at the next gubernatorial election would elect the Governor also; that the arms of the Whigs were open to receive them.

Friday, March 3.

House bill repealing certain portions of the Nauvoo charter, was taken up, the question being on the passage of the bill.

Mr. SMITH of Hancock, moved a call of the House. (some members leaving.)

The bill passed by yeas and nays as follows.

YEAS—Messrs. Aldrich, Baillache, Bell, Blakeman, Bone, Brinkley, Brown, of Sangamon, Burdick, Caldwell, Cloud, Cochran, Compton, Courtwright, Danner, Dollins, Douglas, Edwards, Epler, Ervin, Ewing, Ficklin, Flanders, Fowler, Glass, Gobble, Haley, Hambaugh, Hick, Hickman, Hinton, Horner, Howard, Hunsucker, Keorner, Kuykendall, Lawer, Lov, McClelland, Marshall, Menard, Mitchell, Murphy, Nesbit, Norris, Penn, Saurley, Sinms, Thomson, Turner, Vance, Vinard, Weatherford, Wacat, White, Whitten, Wilson and Woodworth—56.

NAYS—Messrs. Adams, Ames, Andrus, Arnold, Brown of Pike, Browning, Collins, Cushman, Dougherty, Dubois, Graves, Hanniford, Hanson, Harper, Haten, Jackson of Mr. Henry, Jackson of Whiteside, Jones, Kendall, Langworthy, Lockard, Logan, McDonald of Calhoun, McDonald of Joe Davis, Owen, Pickering, Smith of Crawford, Smith of Hancock, Spicer, Stewart, Tackettberry, Vandever, Whitcomb and Mr. Speaker—33.

The SPEAKER. The bill is passed. The title of the bill.

The Speaker recited the title of the bill. Mr. SMITH of Hancock. I wish to amend the title of the bill.

(Profound silence.)

The SPEAKER. The title has passed.

By several members. In time, in time.

Mr. SMITH sent his amendment to the chair.

The SPEAKER. The amendment is not respectful and not in order.

Great sensation. Several members called for a reading of the amendment.

The amendment was read—A bill for an act to humbug the citizens of Nauvoo.

(Profound sensation.)

Mr. SMITH said he considered the amendment as perfectly describing the contents of the bill. He was anxious that things should be called by their right names.

The chair decided that the amendment was not in order.

A member. I wish a vote to ascertain if the House does not sustain the decision of the chair.

Mr. SMITH withdrew his amendment.

The title of the bill then passed.

Saturday, March 4.

Mr. WARREN moved to take from the table the bill to repeal the charter of the city of Nauvoo; the Senate refused to suspend the rules—ayes 16, nays 17.

An Ordinance to amend an Ordinance regulating the currency, passed March four A D 1843.

It is ordained by the City Council of the City of Nauvoo, that nothing in the ordinance regulating the currency shall be so construed as to prevent the receiving of City Scrip or Treasury Orders for taxes or city dues.

JOHN TAYLOR, Pres. pro. tem.

Passed March 11th 1843.

JAMES SLOAN, Recorder.

A Profitable Tree.—The Sago palm tree on the Oronoco supplies the natives with all that they need. It is the house in which they live. In the branches they suspend mats which they fill with clay, and on this kindle their culinary fires. The tree gives them their food in its sago fruit. Its bark is farinaceous; its sap abounds with sugar. Its fibrous stalks are like a pleasant fruit to eat, they yield a wine to drink, and thread for cordage and hammock. It is curious to see a whole race living like insects on a single palm.—Humboldt.

Attempt at Murder and Piracy.—We learn from Capt. Towle, of brig Lucy, from Pernambuco, the following particulars in relation to an attempt of the first and second mates of the brig Poultney, of Baltimore, to murder Capt. Mouatt and take the vessel. The attempt was made about the 25th of November, when the Poultney was north of the equator, and about 18 or 20 days before her arrival. It was on a moonlight night, and during the second mate's watch. At 1 A. M. Capt. Mouatt went on deck, not feeling satisfied with the look-out kept by the mates. He found the second mate (a young man of Charleston, S. C. of wealthy and highly respectable parentage and educated at some university) walking the deck in a hurried manner, quite contrary to his usual custom.—Capt. M. then went below and turned in. He awoke about 3 o'clock, and found the light in the cabin extinguished. As he proceeded up the companion way he observed the second mate looking down into the cabin, but before he reached the deck he received a severe blow on the head, and was knocked down upon the cabin floor. The chief mate, instead of coming to his assistance left his berth and went on deck, where he prevented the men, who heard the noise, from going below, telling them that if they went below the Captain would shoot the first man who came into the cabin. When Capt. M. recovered his consciousness, he was prostrate upon the cabin floor, his wounds bleeding freely, and the second mate standing near him with a marling-spike fastened around his wrist with a lanyard. Capt. M. begged hard for his life, telling the second mate that he had a young family, and promising not to trouble him if he would cease from his murderous intentions. In the meantime, the steward had come into the cabin, and the second mate, becoming aware that the crew had ascertained what was going on desisted. Capt. M. then went to his state-room, to get the key of his medicine chest, when the second mate followed him, seized Capt. M.'s pistols, which were under his berth, and threw them overboard. On the arrival of the vessel at Pernambuco, the U. S. Consul, Mr. Snow, had the second mate arrested, but advised Capt. M. to take the chief mate to Rio Janeiro, as he could not supply his place at Pernambuco, and on his arrival at Rio Janeiro, to deliver him to the U. S. Consul there. On investigation before the Consul at Pernambuco, the crew testified that they had heard the two mates conversing as they sat together on the main hatch, the day before the attack, and heard the second mate tell the chief mate that he, the chief mate was two chicken-hearted; and if he would be quiet, he (the second mate) would despatch the old man. The crew had been asked by the second mate to join in taking the vessel, but had refused. He told them it was their intention to take the vessel around Cape Horn. Three or more of the crew were colored men, and they gave as reason for not informing Capt. M. that they did not believe the mates would do what they purposed. Captain Mouatt is 65 years of age, an old trader to South America, and much respected. He had no difficulty either with the mates or the crew, but was rather remarkable for being too easy with his men, and too indulgent to his mates.

Both mates will probably be sent to Baltimore for trial. The wounds received by Capt. M. were highly dangerous in their nature, and the physicians at Pernambuco expressed great astonishment that he survived them.—[Boston Advertiser.

Fire and Loss of Life.—The Painesville (O.) Telegraph, states that the Mills in Madison township, in that county, known as "Trumbull's Mills," including a large woolen factory, were destroyed by fire early in the morning of the 3rd inst. and two men perished in the flames! The loss of buildings, machinery and tools, is estimated at from 4,000 to 5,000 dollars—stock, &c. belonging to the owners of the mills, about 1,000 dollars—property belonging to customers, 500 dollars—making the total loss 5,000 to 6,000 dollars.

The persons who perished were Gilead Parker and Daniel Chidisher, two young men who were asleep in the mill. Newton Colson, a workman in the mill, and who discovered the fire, was rescued with difficulty, very badly burned upon his face, shoulders, arms, and hands; it is thought, however, with skillful attention, he will recover.

Hard Times Indeed.—The following sad picture is from the Philadelphia Spirit of the Times. "The strongest evidence of distress which we have observed, lie in the fact that our hotels are fairly broken in now-days from morning till night with a hungry crowd whose hands fight convulsively for the bits of bread and victuals ejected from the kitchen table. Even the slop barrels, into which are thrown the scraps and offals, have become the scene of a dismal scene, where the pale ragged boys and girls, with their thin wan faces, long bony fingers, and the elder specimens of shivering humanity that cluster with them around the spot, grasping at food from which the rich man's dog would turn contemptuously, all form a picture of want and wretchedness which makes the heart sick, and speaks volumes in confirmation of the hardness of the times."

Destruction of a vessel by Lightning.—The Canton Free Press, of September 3rd, gives the following interesting details of the destruction of the British brig Mavis, which was destroyed by lightning on the coast of China:—"A most dreadful accident occurred to the brig Mavis on the evening of Wednesday last, by which her commander, Jones, and many of her crew lost their lives. The Mavis was on her way from the West coast, with about 20,000 Spanish dollars in specie, and had brought the Grand Ladron to bear east, when the severe squall which occurred on Wednesday night overtook her about 7, P. M. She was struck by lightning immediately abaft the mainmast, and instantly blew up, the electric fluid having passed through the Magazine. The gunner, from whom this information is derived, was in the chains at the moment of this catastrophe, from whence he was thrown back into the vessel, her decks having been entirely torn up. On her going down, which she did immediately, he found himself in the water with 15 Lascars, who had escaped from having been out on the jibboom at the time. One of the boats was floating near them, and in her, comparatively uninjured, they reached the British Sovereign, then standing to the southward.—The men reached here in the Chinese boat, and all clinging to a spar. We do not remember ever before hearing of so sudden destruction of a vessel by lightning, and only by the proximity of the land, and by another vessel being near, the survivors were saved to tell the disastrous tale."

War.—The nation has just been shocked again with the idea of approaching difficulties with Great Britain which may lead to a speedy war with that country. The ground of the difficulty appears to be this. The American Government understood by the late treaty that Great Britain had relinquished the right of visit or search to our vessels on the high seas, but it appears by the late speech of Sir Robert Peel that they still claim the privilege of visiting our ships!! Thus, the treaty is annulled by them and we have left to us the only alternative to submit or resist! We hope that every American stands ready to defend the honor of his country, even to fight against a country who is now flushed with the murder of thousands of the inhabitants of China and Afghanistan. There is now more cause, for alarm than ever, the Oregon question and the right of search are fairly between the two countries.

Almost a Mob.—The Baltimore Sun speaks of a crowd of six or seven hundred negroes who assembled round a mulatto's house, named Dixon, armed with sticks and stones, to take vengeance on him for putting an iron collar on a little colored boy's neck. The collar was filed off and Dixon arrested which ended the commotion.

From the New York Herald.

STATE DEBTS.

Debts of the States, distinguishing those which pay and those which have been dishonored.

States which pay.	Dishonored States.
States. Debt.	States. Debt.
Vermont, —	Penn. 29,129,123
N. Hampshire, —	Georgia, 3,184,823
Connecticut, —	Indiana, 12,129,339
R. Island, —	Maryland, 20,991,040
N. Jersey, —	Louisiana, 21,213,000
Delaware, —	Mississippi, 5,500,000
N. Carolina, —	Illinois, 13,836,379
Maine 1,678,367	Alabama 9,843,533
Mass. 7,272,839	Arkansas 3,900,000
New York 27,416,152	Michigan 5,611,000
Virginia 10,281,685	Florida 3,500,000
S. Carolina 7,553,779
Kentucky 3,992,783
Tennessee 3,016,916
Ohio 19,947,325
Missouri 1,592,000
D. Columbia 1,330,000
D's Cities 32,180,000

Total $116,221,818 Dish'd $138,739,258
U.S. gov. 29,130,000 Yet good 136,351,818

Grnd'tl 136,351,818 Total 275,111,076
These debts are all collected from the Michigan is down at 5,611,000, but the Governor, in his late message, states that only that will be acknowledged for which a consideration has been received, and that amounts to 3,535,336 dollars. One is as likely to be paid as the other, however, and, therefore, we give the full sum. We have put down the whole debt of Indiana as dishonored, whereas, as yet, but 900,000 dollars is delinquent. It appears then that ten States owing 138,739,258 dollars have stopped; and the position of Virginia in consequence of her tampering with her rickety banks is very precarious, and Ohio for the same reason, has nearly lost the confidence of the public. As yet, however, ten states pay, and their debts amount to 84,011,818 dollars. This latter sum is more than the United States can pay out of the country, in cash or produce, and the debts of the delinquent States can never be paid at all unless the bond holders choose to take what the States now offer, which are the lands public works and other State property. These they are willing to give up in exchange for their liabilities, and the wisest course is to take them and make the most of them. The London holders of the southern stocks hold cotton lands and slaves as security, and they are in fact the real slave owners.

THE WILD WOMAN.—It will perhaps be recollected that about a year and a half ago, the St. Louis papers gave an account of a woman who had been discovered in the woods near that city, almost naked and apparently quite wild. It appears that she had lived in this manner until lately, when the severity of the weather drove her to a human habitation, and there, being much exhausted for want of food and badly frost bitten she expired. Previous to her death she became quite rational and gave the following account of herself which we condense from the St. Louis Organ. She was born in New Jersey, whence with her parents she had removed to Cincinnati, where they lived until she grew up to womanhood. A young man whom her father did not like paid his addresses to her and they eloped for St. Louis. At Louisville he persuaded her to take lodgings with him as his wife, promising to go with her to a clergyman and get married in the morning. He left her in the morning to go for a minister and never returned. All day she remained almost distracted with fear for the safety of her lover, whom she could not think had abandoned her, but finally she learned that he had taken a boat going down the river in the morning. The shock to her feelings was so great that she fainted and fell in the street. She was taken up by some kindly disposed person who, as soon as she recovered, paid her passage back to Cincinnati. Her heart almost failed her when she approached her home. She could see her father's residence as the boat passed along up the river, and it was her intention to go directly home, and throw herself upon the mercy of her father and mother, and tell them how she had been deceived. On approaching the door of the dwelling, there appeared to be an unusual bustle in the house, and on entering it she saw her father lying dead upon the floor. The old man had heard which way she had gone, and took passage on the unfortunate steamboat Moselle, which blew up at Cincinnati, and being one of the unfortunate sufferers, the body had just been recovered and brought home. As soon as the mother saw her, "there," said she, "there is your murdered father." She run from the house, but not before her mother's curse was upon her, she says it rang in her ears for many a long day and night as she wandered through the woods. It was then summer, and at times severe hunger would induce her to go near the habitations of the people, as she wandered along through the country, and at one time she slipped in and took the hocke from the fire, while the farmer's wife was gone to the spring—at other times she caught the fowls from the fence, and devoured them raw. How she lived so long, she is unable to tell, but berries, nuts, fruit, and such game as she was enabled to catch, has been her food, and for two winters she lived in an old deserted cabin on the

ly full of dried leaves in the fall and would creep into them in cold weather. Somebody burnt down the cabin last fall, with some little stores of nuts and dried fruit she had laid up for winter, since, which time she has been sleeping in a large hollow tree. She says "her clothing being almost entirely gone, the cold was very severe, and I thought I would come to a house and get them to bury me. How I have suffered no human tongue can tell, but I had made up my mind to die in the wild woods and never again to suffer a human being to speak to me, but my resolution failed, and I am indebted to the kindness of this poor family for what little comfort they could afford me on my death-bed."—Pittsburg Chron.

Late from Texas.—The steam packet New York, Captain Wright, arrived from Galveston, at New Orleans on the 14th inst. bringing dates to the 15th inst. being six days later than those received by the Neptune.

Since the adjournment of Congress Exchequer bills have gradually risen in value. The merchants of Houston were taking the bills at sixty cents for goods; the cash price, however, was somewhat less than sixty cents.

The reports in relation to an invasion of Mexico are various and contradictory. Some think that General Rusk is not disposed to undertake an invasion, while all say that he has the ability. It may be recollected that Congress appropriated 50,000 dollars for the purpose, the money to be placed at the disposal of General Rusk. This bill was vetoed by General Houston, but was afterwards passed by a constitutional majority; Houston will now show every object in his power to the way of invasion.

The Brazos and Colorado rivers have overflowed their banks to an unprecedented degree. The accounts of the loss of life and property are truly lamentable. In consequence of the sudden inundation of the bottom lands, several thousand head of cattle have been drowned. The planters on the river above and below Washington estimate the damage from this freshet at ten thousand dollars per mile. In the bottom opposite Washington the water was from fifteen to twenty feet deep, and extended out to the hills, a distance of nine miles. Whole farms are inundated—houses and fences have been swept away, and large quantities of cotton and corn destroyed.

The Colorado, it is stated, within the last three weeks was higher than it has been within the recollection of the oldest settlers in its vicinity—being six feet higher than it was in 1833. Houses and fences have been swept from its banks; and it is thought that at least ten thousand head of cattle have either been drowned in the bottoms or carried off by the current. Cotton, corn and other property to a large amount have also been destroyed.

At an election in the town of Houston for Sheriff of Harris county, on the 6th inst, Magnus T. Rogers received 332 votes and Joseph Waterman 90. For Coroner William G. Evans received 300 votes and Solomon Childs 116.

Railroads in Massachusetts.—There are eight Railroads in Massachusetts of which four lead directly from Boston. The following tables are given of their respective cost, income and expenditures: Whole cost of the Western Road. $7,566,731 Receipts of income for 1842. 512,688

Expenditures, except interest and sinking fund 265,619
Net income. 246,069
Balance of preceding year. 103,371
Total number of miles run on the road 597,297
Total number of passengers. 190,486

	Length.	Cost.
Boston and Worcester.	45 miles	$2,764,396
Boston and Lowell.	26 "	1,978,286
Boston and Providence	42 "	1,892,431
Eastern, in Mass. and N.H.	53 "	2,698,417
Total.	166 "	$9,334,530

The receipts from transportation of passengers, merchandise and mails, with the current expenses, including interest on loan, and net income in the year 1842 were as follows: Recl. Exps. Net Inc.
Boston & Worcester $349,206 $168,509 $180,697
Boston & Providence. 236,467 112,824 123,643
Boston & Lowell. 278,310 131,012 147,298
Eastern 260,168 144,039 125,129

Total $1,133,151 $556,364 $576,787
The Religion of the United States.

The following statements of the religious population of the United States, is said by the Rochester Democrat, to be derived from various sources—several of which are authentic:

Baptists.	4,000,000	Dutch Ref'm'd.	450,000
Methodists.	3,000,000	Friends.	220,000
Presbyterians.	2,175,000	Unitarians.	180,000
Congregationalist.	1,400,000	Dunkers.	31,000
Rom. Cath.	1,300,000	Mormonites.	18,000
Episcopalians.	1,000,000	Shakers.	6,000
Universalist.	600,000	Moravians.	5,000
Lutherans.	540,000	Swedenborgians.	6,000

REPORT OF DEATHS.

For the week ending Tuesday, the 7th inst.
Bushrod W. Wilson, 2 y. 2 m. 26 d.; burned.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, Sexton.
For the week ending Monday the 13th inst.
Dolly Wightman, of Ramus, 29 years; child birth.

W D HUNTINGTON, Sexton.

PUBLIC SALE.

WILL be sold at public auction on Monday the tenth day of April next at the late residence of Mrs. Lucy P. Oatman deceased in the town of LaHarpe Illinois, the personal property of the said deceased, consisting of house, and kitchen furniture, and a variety of clothing and other articles not enumerated. Terms of sale—all sums over five dollars, a credit of twelve months, the purchaser giving bond with approved security; all sums under five dollars cash in hand. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock A. M. and continue from day to day until all is sold.

GEORGE COULSON,
Executor of the estate of Lucy P. Oatman deceased.
LaHarpe March 8th 1843. 46 3w

State of Illinois, Hancock County.
In the Hancock County Circuit Court Ill. to the May Term A D 1843.

Joseph Carman
vs.
William H. Tinsly

IN ATTACHMENT.

Notice is hereby given to the said William H. Tinsly, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court, dated the fourth day of February 1843 at the suit of the said Joseph Carman, and against the estate of you, the said William H. Tinsly, for the sum of one hundred and ten dollars ($110.00) directed to the Sheriff of Hancock county; which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff into the clerk's office, levied upon the estate of William H. Tinsly. Now unless you, the said William H. Tinsly, shall be and appear before the judge of the said circuit court on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the court house in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail, and plead to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said William H. Tinsly, in favor of the said Joseph Carman and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk.
Geo. Bachman Pl'tiff's Atty.

Dated March 9th 1843. 46 4w

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned has taken letters of administration on the estate of Jacob Earnest late of the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, deceased. All persons indebted to the said estate are requested to make immediate payment; and those having claims against the same are notified to present them to me at the Court of Probate of said county for settlement by the first Monday of July next.

REBECCA EARNEST,
Administratrix.

February 20th, 1843. 46 4w

BOOT AND SHOE MAKER.

THE subscriber respectfully begs leave to inform the inhabitants of the City of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has lately arrived from Scotland (Britain) and has commenced business in the above line and from his long experience in the trade in all its branches and his determination to execute all orders that he may be favored with in a neat and fashionable manner, and at the same time warrants satisfaction of all work performed by him and upon the most reasonable terms; he therefore begs to merit a share of public support.

THOMAS JAAP.

Main st. opposite the Masonic Hall.
Nauvoo, Feb. 10th 1843.

N. B. All orders from the country punctually attended to, and upon the shortest notice.

no 46 4w.

NOTICE.

Nauvoo Ill. March 13, 1843.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo that he has on hand a variety of Boots and Shoes manufactured from the best of eastern leather; and will do any work in his line, on the shortest notice; also wishes to purchase hides and skins, for which he will pay boots, shoes, or cash at his shop, on the corner of Hyrum and Page street, north of the Temple.

46-1f J. BAIR.

LOOK HERE!

THE undersigned will exchange city or country property for the breaking of seventy or more acres of prairie, and a first rate two horse waggon, he will also pay cash for green calf skins.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

March 15th 1843.
N. B. Those concerned, will recollect the first of April is near at hand, a hint to the wise is sufficient.

H. K. Agent.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House.
no 29-1f.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE,
 For the first fifteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.
 Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.
 Jan. 21, 1843. —3m*

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
 In the Circuit Court of said County to May Term A. D. 1843.
 Alanson Taylor } Plaintiff
 vs. } In foreign attachment.
 Elias H. Maine & }
 James D. Band } Defendants.

The plaintiff's agent and attorney herein having filed affidavit, that the defendants Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, are non-residents of this State. Notice is hereby given to the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court of the said County of Hancock, against the estate of you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band dated the 2d day of March A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Alanson Taylor, for the sum of one hundred and forty dollars with interest thereon from the 9th day of February A. D. 1842, directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock to execute, which said writ has been returned into the said Clerk's office, by the said Sheriff with an endorsement thereon, as follows, to wit: "Executed the within writ by reading the same to the within named Charles C. Maine, March 2d A. D. 1843. No property found in my county on which to levy this attachment." Now unless you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said circuit court for the County of Hancock on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court House in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to said plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, in favor of the said Alanson Taylor, and execution will issue against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, of the said Charles C. Maine, as garnishee to satisfy the said debt and cost.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clk.
 J. H. Sherman, Atty. for plaintiff.
 March 3rd 1843. if.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
 In the Hancock Circuit Court Ill. Oct. Term A. D. 1842.

IN CHANCERY.
 David W. Mathews } Complainant
 vs. } Bill of Injunction.
 E. A. Nexsen. }
 Simeon Albee, & } Defendants.
 Chester P. Brady }

This day came the complainant by his solicitors, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that E. A. Nexsen one of the above named defendants is a non-resident of this State: It is therefore, on the application of complainant's solicitors, ordered that unless the said E. A. Nexsen shall personally be and appear before the Judge of this Court on or before the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court house in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May A. D. 1843; and answer the allegations and charges contained in said complainant's bill which has been exhibited against him in the said Court on the Chancery side thereof, the same will be taken as confessed against him and the matters thereof decreed accordingly. And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published in some public newspaper printed in this State for four weeks successively, once at least in each week, the first insertion thereof to be made at least sixty days previous to the next term of this Court, to which term this cause is continued.

J. B. BACKENSTOS Clerk
 Feb. 24th 1843. 44 4w.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County
 in the Circuit Court of said County,
 to the May Term A. D. 1843.

Lewis Hyde }
 vs. } IN ATTACHMENT.
 Robert Allison }

NOTICE Is hereby given to the said Robert Allison, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the Clerk's office of the said Circuit Court, dated the 22d day of January A. D. 1843, at the suit of the said Lewis Hyde, and against the estate of you the said Robert Allison for the sum of three hundred and fifty-eight dollars, ($358.00) directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock, which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff into the said Clerk's office, levied upon the estate of Robert Allison. Now unless you, the said Robert Allison, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court House in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to the to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Robert Allison, in favor of the said Lewis Hyde, and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.

Dated this 25th day of Feb. A. D. 1843.
 J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk.
 Geo. Bachman, Plaintiff's Atty.
 no 44 if or sc.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

THE subscribers have just recieved a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.
 The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,
 Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,
 in all its various branches: and having employed skillfull and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.
Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	do	whole bound	plain	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	hf	bound	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	hf	bound	plain	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.
 Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

GEO. P. STILES,
 ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple.
 Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843.

no42 if.

SHERMAN'S MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.
 Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.
 The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPOR LOZENGES.
 For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.
 The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.
 These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.
 This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents.) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
 (22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
 Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

NO CURE NO PAY.
DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.
 Nauvoo, Jan. 28, 1842 39-if.

NOTICE.
 I HEREBY warn the public against purchasing or receiving certain notes which I James Huddleston gave to Josiah Ellis dated thirteenth of Sept. 1841, being three in number, $40 each; one payable the 13th Sept. 1842, the 2d on the 13th Sept 1843, and the 3d on the 3th Sept. 1844. The above notes were given for a certain piece of land which has been paid for in part. The payment on the above notes will not be made until the said Ellis will secure unto me a good and sufficient title to the land for which the notes were given.
 JAMES HUDDLESTON.
 no 45 3w. *

O. C. SKINNER,
 Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.

WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office with G. Hills, Esq., a few rods south east of the Temple.

REFERENCES.
 Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.
 G. B. Holt, Dayton,
 G. P. Bell, Hamilton,
 Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,
 Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
 Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
 Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
 Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO
 H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
 Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
 A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
 Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
 December 10, 1842. no32-6m*

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage, to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
 HIRAM KIMBALL.
 Nauvoo January 13 1843. if

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic.
 no35-6m.

AGENTS FOR THE WEST.

- ILLINOIS!
 J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
 Joseph Johnson, Ramus
 J. Salsbery, Plymouth
 Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
 L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
 Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
 Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.
 IOWA TERRITORY.
 Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
 Levi Moffet, Augusta.
 Elias Smith, Nashville.
 PENNSYLVANIA.
 Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
 John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
 B. Winchester, Philadelphia.
 NEW JERSEY.
 Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
 James Curtis, Horners Town.
 W. I. Appleby, Reelless Town.
 Israel Ivins, Toms River.
 MASSACHUSETTS
 Erastus Snow, Salem.
 Freeman Nickerson, Boston.
 MICHIGAN.
 S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.
 OHIO.
 John Johnson, Kirtland.
 NEW YORK.
 Charles Thompson, Batavia.
 L. R. Foster, city of New York

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 47

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, March 22, 1843.

Whole Number 47

THE WASP.

EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

At the corner of Water and Main streets,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

Terms: $1.00 per annum in advance.

One square, one insertion, 5¢.

Every subsequent insertion, 2¢. 1-2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor.
(John Taylor,) post paid, to receive attention.

Lines occasioned by the death of Elder George W. Gee, late of Ambrosia, Lee County, I. T. who died in the city of Pittsburgh, Penn., on the 20th of Jan. 1842.

THE HERO'S REWARD.

BY MISS E. R. SNOW.

Well may the fire of glory blaze
Upon the warrior's tread;
And nations twine the wreath of praise
Around the hero's head:
His path is honor, and his name
Is written on the scroll of fame.

His deeds are deeds of courage, for
He treads o'er gory ground,
Amid the pride and pomp of war
When carnage sweeps around:
With sword unsheathed, he stands before
The foe, amid the cannon's roar.

If such the meed the warrior gains—
If such the palm he bears—
If such insignia he obtains—
If such the crown he wears:
If laurels thus his head entwine,
And stars of triumph round him shine;

How noble must be his reward
Who, midst the crafts of men,
Chad in the armor of the Lord
Goes forth to battle, when
The powers of darkness and of hell,
And Satan's host around him rage.

Who goes opinion to unbend,
That reason may go free,
And liberate the human mind
From clerical tyranny,
To sever superstition's rod,
And propagate the truth of God.

Who wars with prejudice, to break
Asunder error's chain,
And make the sunny path
Where human dogmas reign,
Who dares to be a man of God,
And bear the Spirit's sword abroad!

Above all earthly, his shall be
An everlasting fame;
The archives of eternity
Will register his name
With gens of sacred honor rife—
His crown will be eternal life.

From the Cincinnati Daily Times. DESTRUCTIVE FIRE—EXPLOSION AND LOSS OF MANY VALUABLE LIVES!!!

On Saturday last, about 5 o'clock, P. M. the extensive pork packing establishment of Messrs. Pugh & Alvord, corner of Walnut and Canal streets, was discovered to be on fire. The firemen repaired to the spot with their usual alacrity, and while engaged in combatting the destructive element, many on the roof of a smaller building connected with the main one, a dreadful explosion took place, occasioned, it is conjectured, by the combustion of gas, generated by the fire inside the building, which was very close.

The roof of the small house was blown off, and the walls of the other thrown outward, burying many of the firemen and spectators under the ruins, while some of those on the roof sunk into the house, or were precipitated to the ground, some few without material injury. At this moment, the flames for the first time burst out. The concussion of the air was so great, that persons on the opposite side of Walnut street, who were standing on some tiers of barrels of pork, were thrown down, and part of the upper tier of barrels were thrown upon one or two, whose limbs were broken by them.

Such was the consternation created by the shock of the explosion—which was heard and felt in distant parts of the city—that several minutes elapsed before the spectators recovered from the panic. Assistance was then given to the sufferers, some of whom were dead—some so dreadfully mutilated and wounded that they could scarcely be recognized, many of whom died in a short time, and some may possibly recover.

The general appearance of the ruins shows that an immense force operated. The upper part of the building down to the first story was thrown into the street, covering Walnut street and Canal street with bricks and heavy timber, kegs of iron, &c. About 200,000 lbs. of meat, which was in the smoke house, will be lost. We understand the building and its contents were fully insured. Measures will no doubt be taken to ascertain and lay before the public the cause and extent of the loss.

A deep, appalling, and mournful feeling pervades the city: those rescued from the ruins, are amongst our most respectable, intelligent and enterprising citizens, in the prime of life, with families, and noted for their public spirit and social qualities. So many conflicting statements are afloat in relation to this great calamity that at this time it is impossible to speak with any degree of accuracy either of the extent or effects of this afflicting dispensation.

No such heart rending and tragical event has ever occurred in our city, if we except the explosion on board the steamboat Moselle, some years since.

[Nine persons were killed, and about thirty wounded.]

In the afternoon of Sunday, the City Council met and passed the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, by an afflicting dispensation of Divine Providence, a number of our fellow citizens were suddenly deprived of life by the accident which occurred during the fire at the corner of Walnut street and Canal, on Saturday, Feb. 25, 1843—therefore be it

Resolved, by the City Council, That the Mayor be requested to issue his proclamation, inviting our citizens to suspend their several occupations and employments during Monday next, and to attend the funerals of the deceased whenever they may occur, and thus pay the last tribute of respect to their memory.

Accordingly, His Honor, the Mayor, issued his Proclamation.

AWFUL CALAMITY AT TROY.

THIRTY LIVES LOST.

About 4 o'clock, P. M. on last Friday, a great land-slide occurred, from the very high hill called Mount Ida, at Troy, N. Y. Part of the hill gave way and slid down upon the town, as it did in January 1837, crushing houses and killing a number of people.

Some eight or ten dwellings, occupied by poor families, were crushed and buried beneath the mass of earth. In these, it is supposed there were not less than thirty or forty persons, only ten or twelve of whom escaped.

Within an hour, nine bodies had been dug from the ruins—five of which were without life, one partially injured, and three not beyond recovery.

Had this avalanche occurred in the night, the destruction of life would have been still greater, as many occupants of the houses were absent at their labor or elsewhere.

Babies in their cradles, mothers with their children in their arms, and stout, smart men, who but two hours before breathed freely and in health, have been taken from the ruins, mutilated and mingled corpses.

A man from the country, passing at the time with his team, leaped from his sleigh and escaped. The horses and load of wood were buried beneath the earth.

The Budget says:—"We just left the scene of disaster. It is one of horrid desolation. Thousands were congregated on the spot, and a corps of efficient men engaged in penetrating the earth and clearing away the fragments of buildings."—Doylestown Democrat.

ERUPTION OF MOUNT ETNA.

The following account of the recent eruption of Mount Etna, is from a correspondent of the London Dispatch. The eruption took place in the fore part of December last.

We started from Palermo, by the Messina road, at half past 7 o'clock on Monday morning, December 5, and towards sunset on the following day, arrived at Aderno, (114 Sicilian or 115 English miles from the capital,) and thence, while changing horses, we had the first view of the eruption. We could plainly discern the fiery stones rising and falling, but at that distance looking like sparks. A ball of fire seemed to roll up from the crater, swelling as it rose into the form of a vast balloon, from the top of which proceeded a blazing column, which at length, burst at its summit, and fell in soft showers of slowly descending fire. Next morning we arranged for our excursion up the mountain, and started at 12 at night. The lava light grew stronger as we advanced, and on turning a projecting point of the mountain, the crater and the upper part of the stream of lava burst upon our sight in all its magnificence.

We were now 4500 feet up the mountain, and about six miles distant from the center. I do not think it looked grander at any higher point. The volcano was spouting out fire and red hot stones to a prodigious height (fully twice as great as that of the cone, which is 1100 feet high) in a large column, apparently of the size of a marble tower, at the mouth of the crater, and discharging an enormous bulk, till at its utmost height, it burst into myriads of fiery fragments, those on the left being particularly conspicuous, because there was no lava there, and the red hot stones contrasted with the dark side of the mountain. As they fell they cast a bright glow on the snow, and each particular fiery fragment lighted up its own portion of the snowy surface, while a column of illumined steam arose wherever the hissing balls of fire sunk upon the ground.

The higher we climbed the longer line we saw of lava; and after another hour and a half's ascent we reached a plain of seeming sand and (being in fact, pulverized scoria) of about a mile square in extent, and studded with genista or broom, the only plant that grows at this height, which was above that of the Casa del Bosco. Here the guides required us to stop, as it would be highly dangerous to proceed further during the night. We were, however, well content to halt in the position we had now attained, as we enjoyed a complete view of the crater, and of the whole stream of lava from its source to the lowest depth it had yet reached. The crater thus seen, resembled an enormous bowl brimming over with molten metal, such as one sees in the carron foundries, which streamed down in cascades of living fire, and it struck against some stupendous rock upon the mountain side, and separated into various currents, twisting and winding in rivulets of fire, snake-like, along the surface of the mountain; so tortuous in its course that where the stream of lava was full ten miles long, no part of it had yet reached above two miles from its source in the volcano.

Along with the volume of smoke incessantly vomiting forth by the crater, we now heard at every burst a booming sound like the roaring of the sea against an iron bound coast, gradually swelling louder and louder, as if beginning far down in the bowels of the earth, and below more fearfully as it approached the outlet, whence it issued ever and anon with fresh explosions like terrific peals of thunder. In the prodigious blaze of light we could not for some time perceive that the lava did not, as we at first supposed, brim over the lip of the cup, but burst a passage through the side of the cone some one hundred feet deep, and presently flowed in an impetuous flood, and presently flowed in bubbling runnels of liquid fire that ran along the ground, at first in narrow streams sometimes as fine as chains of forked lightning linked together, flashing along the snow, but these as they descended fell into one another, and united in one wide meandering lava flood. Another current swept down the hill side with a statelier march, the flood of fire occasionally overflowing, flinging a golden gleam upon the surrounding snow, till at a distance of about two miles from its source it struck against a tall rock overhanging a shelving precipice, many hundred feet deep, and splashing itself on the rock into two divided torrents, like the falls of the Rhine, at Schaffhausen; it leaped in twin cascades of fiery flood clear down into the gulf, of desolation that yawned below. Occasionally we could see huge rocks spouted out from this fall of fire, and shoot away in separate masses into the ravine, thundering along the blocks of old lava in the Val del Boio, into which this fresh stream poured, stretching like strings of burning beads along the distant snow.

When the first excitement which this sight, "horribly beautiful," produced, had partially subsided, we began to feel the pinching cold insufferable. Our feet were stony, as if all circulation had departed, and on dismounting from our mules it was with great difficulty that we could stand. Indeed, no wonder, for we were within a few hundred feet of the line of perpetual snow, and the wind, though happily very moderate, cut through us like a razor, bringing water to our eyes, and freezing our ears and noses. But any temporary sufferings, any toil would have been amply repaid by the splendor and magnificence of the majestic sight upon which we were gazing. It is pleasant to know that the eruption has not ceased, and is not likely to cease, much damage, by reason of the desolate soil over which the lava has this time directed its course. It is not expected to last much longer.

MISSOURI.

We extract the following from the St. Louis Gazette, from which it would seem that the inhabitants of Missouri are not quite all peaceable, innocent, harmless, and unoffending; but that there are some among them (although the Mormons are gone) that will kill one another, that follow the legal council of the celebrated Judge Lynch, and are governed by the principles of mobocracy. It is a wonder that they have not made out that the Mormons have made some predatory excursions among them, and in their route killed these people, the same for instance, as Joseph Smith killed the Governor Baggs. What would be thought if such circumstances as the following had taken place in any of the eastern states?

(From an occasional correspondent.)

Jefferson City, Feb. 21, 1843.

EXTRAORDINARY DOINGS.—I have just seen a letter dated Warsaw, Benton County, February 14, from the tenure of which it would appear that Benton County generally, and the town of Warsaw in particular, is now a scene of civil war. You must recollect that a violent feud has for some time past existed between two parties in Benton County, the one headed by Andy Jones, and the other by the family of Turke. Col. Turk was some time since waylaid and shot on the public road, by one of the Jones party—his eldest son, James Turk, had been previously killed in an affray, on the road to Benton Court, by a man named Norrell—Norrell was subsequently tried and acquitted, and within a few months he was shot in his own yard. The Turkes then undertook to rid the country of Jones and his party, who lived on the Pomme de Terre, and were suspected, and with strong reasons, of being a gang of counterfeiters and home thieves, &c. Thomas Turk raised a company of Slickers, with the ostensible reason of discovering the murderer of his father—many outrages of law followed, and Jones left the country. There were others, however, who had sided with Jones in the feud, and a predatory war has existed ever since. The letter I allude to says that there are 150 of these Slickers now in Warsaw, and that they are preparing to meet the forces of Andy Jones, ready to meet them, both parties well armed, and it was expected a fight would come off that night. This you will think rather an unusual method of celebrating the nativity of St. Valentine—this meeting of armed forces are queer bullet doings.

Some time ago we inserted (from a Missouri paper) an account of one of their public functionaries, who was entrusted with money to pay the militia for their services, in the so-called Mormon war, had taken the "sabbine slope," it would seem from the following that some more of these honorable gentlemen do not superabound with honesty. People may count war-torn, and without provocation, destroy the amount of millions in property, butcher in cold blood, men, women, and children, and drive fifteen thousand people from their lawful possessions, will not make many bones either of fighting each other, or robbing the government.

Mr. Miller introduced a resolution that the Committee on the Judiciary be instructed to report a bill authorizing suit to be brought against all disbursing officers in the Mormon and other difficulties, who have neglected to make settlement, which was adopted.

MORE RIOTS IN CANADA.

The Montreal papers of the 6th, received yesterday morning, bring information that the workmen on the Lachine canal had again broken out in riot. The cause appears, to be the old story—the sectional differences of the Corkonians and Connaught men. On the evening of the 4th, a party of 300 Corkonians, armed with guns, scythes, hatchets, &c. marched from Lachine to the village of the tanneries, where they were fortunately met and dispersed by a detachment of the 71st regiment, which had been summoned from Montreal. Twenty seven were arrested and lodged in jail. But for this there would probably have been a desperate conflict, as the Connaught men were mustering in force to receive their assailants.—N. H. Statesman.

WAR WITH ENGLAND!

This is a startling heading for our leader—but we must inform our readers we are serious when we place it there. The English journals discovered, just as the Steamer Acadia was leaving Liverpool, that "Mr. Webster, far from preserving peace, has taken the most effectual means ever devised by a Minister for involving two countries in a deadly war." This is not our own language—for we find it in the third edition of the London Sun, published at seven o'clock on the evening of Saturday, February fourth—a copy of which we discovered with our files of English papers last evening—and which we could not find time to examine carefully when we first received them.

And now we proceed with the article in the London Sun—which journal says:—“In an appendix to a pamphlet just published by Mr. FEATHERSTONHAUGH, entitled, ‘Observations on the Treaty of Washington there is a statement taken from the Washington Globe, which if we mistake not, will yet make some noise in the political world. Mr. Sparks, an American, who is engaged in writing a history of the United States, was at Paris last year, employed in collecting documents for his work in the State Paper office of France; among others, he found an official note from Dr. Franklin to the Count de Vergennes.

The London Sun continues—“Mr. Sparks, on reading this note, proceeds at once to the Bureau Topographique, and finds to his surprise that the strong red line, marked by Dr. Franklin, runs wholly to the south of the St. John's River. ‘In short,’ he says, ‘it is exactly the line now claimed by Great Britain, except that it concedes more than is claimed.’ This occurred about the beginning of 1842, and it further appears that Mr. Webster, unknown to Lord Ashburton, had this map in his possession during the whole of the negotiations, while he solemnly assured the British Plenipotentiary of his belief, not only in the justice of the whole of the American claim, but his conviction that the framers of the treaty of 1783, intended that the line should be carried to the north of the St. John. It is stated, also, that when the Senate discussed, with closed doors, the treaty agreed to by the two Commissioners, a number of members refused to vote for the ratification upon which the Chairman produced the map received from Mr. Webster, and the affair was instantly settled. We are reluctant to believe Mr. Webster, and the Senate of a great State, guilty of conduct that bears on the face of it such duplicity and want of good faith, and will therefore suspend our judgment till the question is brought before Parliament, and these statements are confirmed or disproved. Should they unfortunately be confirmed, Mr. Webster will find, that far from preserving peace, he has taken the most effectual means ever devised by a Minister for involving two countries in a deadly war.”

The fire from this spark was just beginning to kindle when the Steamer Acadia left England, and probably at this moment the press and the people of Great Britain are showering red-hot shot upon

AMERICA AND THE AMERICAN.

War, and Rumors of War.—A report was brought up to New Orleans on the 14 ult. says the Picayune, by the steamship New York, to the mouth that when she passed the Balize the U. S. cutter Woodbury was at anchor, there, having on board our Minister to Mexico, General Thompson, and Mr. Southall, who left here a few weeks since in the same vessel with despatches. If this report be true there must be something of importance in the movement. The recent hurrying backwards and forwards of bearers of despatches show that our affairs with Mexico are in an unsettled state, and if Gen. Thompson was really on board the cutter it is possible our relations have assumed an unfriendly character towards that country. We have understood that our Minister was to return in the Falmouth, and can hardly credit the report that he is on board the Woodbury.—[Baltimore Clipper.]

Progress of Bigotry.—It appears that the town council of Liverpool have decided by a large majority to refuse to the children of the Roman Catholic poor, secular education in the public schools; Christianity must be growing rapidly in Liverpool!—[Portland American.]

Seven Weeks More.—The editors of the “Midnight Cry”—the Millerite paper in New York—refuse to take subscriptions for more than seven weeks, when they expect the cry will be heard as well as seen. The Millerites of Portland will please to take notice and govern themselves accordingly. [Port. American.]

Bloody Thanksgiving.—A day has been set apart by the British Government for public thanksgiving, for the success of the war in China and Afghanistan; the Archbishop of Canterbury has been directed for that purpose to prepare a form of prayer to Almighty God. “Let all things be done decently, and in good order.”

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 22, 1843.

THE BOUNDARY TREATY.

It would seem that after all the time that has been expended by Lord Ashburton and Daniel Webster, on this perplexing subject—and after it was thought by all parties that the difference between the two nations was amicably adjusted, and forever settled, that we are as far from a good understanding both in regard to the boundary line and the right of search, as we were before the negotiation.

In regard to the boundary question the British papers are charging Daniel Webster and this nation with duplicity and dishonor in regard to the affair, stating that Daniel Webster had in his possession an old map on which the boundary lines in question were distinctly marked which was the line claimed by the British government, and the one agreed upon in 1783 by the commissioners of England and the United States, which was marked by Dr. Franklin, and found among the documents of the French government, and also that a similar map marked in the same way by the commissioners that made the treaty, in behalf of the British Government, was seen and examined by Mr. Webster; that Mr. Webster knew this at the time of the negotiation, and that other statesmen knew it; but that Mr. Webster withheld this information and represented a very different line to Lord Ashburton as the one that we had a just right to claim. We suppose that this is the map marked with red lines that Mr. Benton of Mo. refers to in his speech on the Boundary Question. We are not prepared to say whether this map is authentic or not at present; but from the aspect of things serious difficulties may grow out of it.

Concerning the right of search, Sir Robert Peel has lately made a speech in the House of Commons in England, shewing that the American government have misunderstood Lord Ashburton, in regard to this subject—that there is a material difference between the right of search, and the right of visitation; that although the British never claimed the right of search, yet they always had, and did claim, the right of visitation. Whatever may have been the views of the British Nation in regard to this matter, it is evident that this nation never made any such distinction, and however the British Nation may have regarded this matter, it is evident that Lord Ashburton knew what he was doing when he was negotiating this matter; and knew in what light the Americans viewed the right of search, and if on the one hand Daniel Webster has deceived Lord Ashburton, on the other, Daniel Webster has been deceived by his Lordship. There may exist such a difference as is pointed out by the following article; but if Lord Ashburton knew this it was dishonorable in him not to make it known. Suffice it to say the difficulty is no nearer adjustment than it was before.

RIGHT OF VISITATION & SEARCH.
We find the following in the New York Evening Post:
There is in the practice of the ocean, a distinction between a visitation and a search. It is the practice for men-of-war, while on their cruising ground, to hail, to order, to lay to, and to send a boat on board merchantmen whenever the commander may deem it expedient. We have seen the commanders of our own American men-of-war, overtake merchant vessels and packets, sailing under the Spanish flag, and with Spanish papers, command the same vessel to lay to, and send an officer on board and inspect the ship's papers. They have also fired a twenty-four pound ball across the path of a foreign merchantman, and thereby caused that vessel to steer from her course, pass under the man-of-war's stern, and answer for themselves. It is not, we presume, the practice to approach every vessel that may be discovered. A suspicious appearance of the stranger determines the commander. In some cases we have seen the American man-of-war give chase, and crowd sail upon sail, and at the same time fire ball after ball over the chase; and in one instance, of a chase between two swift ships the Baltimore clipper, was determined to raise no flag, and to continue a defiance until she saw the American flag, when the man-of-war lulled to fire. This kind of visit is a distinct thing from search.

It is said that the Chinese lost in their late difficulty with England, about fifteen thousand men, and as many hundred pieces of cannon, and nearly their entire navy!

Head Quarters, Nauvoo Legion,
March 20th, 1843.

GENERAL ORDER.

The Commandants of companies, Battalions, and Cohorts, are ordered to give due notice to those under their respective command, that there will be Company musters on the 2d Saturday, Battalion musters on the 3d Saturday, and Cohort Parades on the 4th Saturday in April next, at the usual places of parade. The Band is also required to attend the Cohort parade.

All commissioned officers of the Nauvoo Legion will take notice that an officer drill will be on the review ground, in this city, on the day previous to the Cohort parade.

Also that a general Court Marshall will be held on the 3d Saturday in May.
By order of the Lieut. General.

WILSON LAW,
Major General N. L.

PETITION.

Nauvoo March 10th, A. D. 1843.
To His Honor, Joseph Smith, Mayor of the city of Nauvoo.

The undersigned would respectfully ask that your honor will have the goodness to publish, for the public good, your very able decision on the case of Chas. R. Dana, vs. Wm. B. Brink, for mal practice; and by so doing, we believe many will receive information, genuine in its place, and very important to husbands and wives; and we will ever pray.

ALPHEUS CUTLER,
REYNOLDS CAHOON,
PETER HAWS,
H. SMITH,

and forty others.

The above petition has been duly considered, properly appreciated and is granted.

JOSEPH SMITH.

[We give the following as requested in the above petition, with pleasure, and would only add that Messrs. Emmons and Skinner were counsel for the plaintiff; and Marr and Rigden for Defendant, and occupied two days before the Court, in the examination of Witnesses.]

DECISION.

Charles R. Dana, vs. William B. Brink, In Assumpsit.

Mayor's Court, City of Nauvoo,
March the 2nd & 3rd, 1843.

This is an action of assumpsit commenced by summons and brought by the plaintiff to recover damages, as he avers in his bill of particulars, sustained by the plaintiff by reason of the defendants failing to perform his undertakings, as physician, in an usual and skillful manner, which he had undertaken by his employment and his engagement in attending as such physician the wife of the plaintiff in the city of Nauvoo in the year 1842, to do

Also for damage sustained from the malfeasance and misfeasance of the defendant in the treatment of plaintiff's wife while employed as physician by the plaintiff to attend his said wife at Nauvoo in 1842; contrary to the defendants undertaking as such physician, by reason of which bad acts and treatment of the defendant to plaintiff's said wife in the premises, plaintiff's said wife is greatly injured in her health and put to lasting pain and suffering; and the plaintiff has thereby lost the services, company and comfort of his said wife, since said bad treatment of defendant; and been put to pain, trouble, expense and anxiety not only from the present loss of his said wife's health, but also from well grounded apprehensions of the fatal consequences of the injury done to his said wife, by said defendant in the premises, to his damage $99.00.

After the witnesses were sworn for the plaintiff, the defendants counsel raised an objection to them, on account, that one school of physicians is arrayed against the other. Plaintiff's counsel replied that the physicians were only to give their evidence as an opinion of skill &c. for which he read Harrison's Digest p 1047. Defendant's counsel resumed, but the court decided that it could not determine the incompetency of the witnesses till there was something before the court to shew the fact; therefore the court heard the witnesses.

Mrs. Miles—was at plaintiff's house, on Saturday the 22nd of October, 1842, when Doctor Brink, the defendant, was called to administer to plaintiff's wife, in a case of fever or diarrhea; this was about noon; plaintiff's wife told witness she did not expect to be confined then, nor for ten days, she had been injured by a fright; witness went home, and was recalled about 11 o'clock at night; plaintiff's wife had some pains then, witness thought they were labor pains; defendant said he had given her medicine,—that her child was pitched one side—had given her Smut Rye, (Ergot) said the amnion fluids were discharged; witness thought the Dr. hurt Mrs. Dana in his operations; he used force and violence, she screamed, and begged him to desist. Mrs. Dana said she did not expect to be confined, nor did she know when she should be, nor did she know that the amnion fluids had discharged. Witness saw the Dr. introduce his hand, per vagina; patient manifested great pain, and urged him to quit, said he was hurrying her too fast, witness proposed having somebody else; has heard Mrs. Dana say that defendants' treatment to her, was the cause of her sickness since that time.

Mrs. Duell—was present when plaintiff's wife was confined on the 24th of October, 1842; was called on the 22nd at 11 o'clock at night. Defendant called upon witness to borrow a syringe, said Mrs. Dana was sick, and that he thought her child had been dead two or three days; when witness came, Mrs. Dana was in considerable distress; defendant thought she was ready for parturition, and would be delivered by three pains more. Defendant resorted to unusual means.

Witness continued against his course, to let nature have time; while Mrs. Dana screamed, do let me alone! you will kill me! do let go! but defendant was then plying his hand, and said he could not, for something would go back; had given ergot and pepper, said the child was wrong and must be turned before it could be born; that it was necessary to keep up irritation in order to create pains and hasten delivery. Witness proposed to have some one else called. Defendant opposed it, but finally consented. Witness saw patient next day at 11 o'clock, and she seemed free from pain.

Mrs. Sessions—attended Mrs. Dana, plaintiff's wife, as an accoucheur, last October; defendant was there when witness arrived, shook her hand and held it fast sometime; said he had sent for witness because he had a very bad case; the child was wrong and dead; that the membrane was broken, and the amnion fluids escaped, and the child turned; had sent for witness because her hand was small, and she could turn it. Witness asked defendant what he had done; he replied nothing. What have you given her? he answered, nothing but a little nerve and cayenne pepper; however he admitted he had given one dose of ergot, of eleven grains; defendant had ergot of witness the previous week. Witness proceeded to examine Mrs. Dana, plaintiff's wife, and by touching the child's ear, discovered it was a natural presentation; and by examination of the fontanella found the child was alive by putation; and that instead of the amniotic fluids having escaped, they had not gathered. Witness also discovered three ruptures on the tinea Os; and fresh blood upon the patients under garment, and the bed clothes, as though bloody fingers had been wiped thereon. The color of the spots was different from hemorrhage at parturition. On the evening of the 24th of October, witness delivered Mrs. Dana of a living child, which, according to its small size was rather a premature birth. When witness visited patient the day previous, there were no regular pains. Mrs. Dana, told witness, since her confinement, that defendant's treatment to her had caused a weakness in her back, that she could not hold her urine, and had been troubled with the piles, also, all of which she believed resulted from the injuries she received from defendant; and witness believed it was so too; has practiced obstetrics 30 years, and has never seen a physician conduct towards a woman as defendant did to Mrs. Dana according to appearances.

Mrs. Dana, plaintiff's wife, was objected to as a witness for her husband, by defendant's counsel, on the ground that the interest of the husband and wife are both one in law, Phillip's Evidence 159.

Court overruled the objection. "In cases of evident necessity, when the fact is presumed to be particularly in the wife's knowledge, there is an exception to the general rule: Thus, a wife may be a witness on the prosecution of her husband for an offence committed against her person," 1 Blackstone 144, n. Bull's Nisi Prius, S. C. 287. "There are several exceptions to the general rule upon this subject, where from the nature of the injury, the information to be expected is peculiarly within the knowledge of the husband or wife; and where, to exclude such evidence, would occasion insecurity to that relation of society, which is the object of the rule to protect, Phillip's Evidence 169. Other authorities might be shown, but the foregoing are sufficiently to the point to warrant the court in saying that husband or wife can be a competent witness, where the injury has been committed upon the person of either, and where the testimony to be given is presumed to be beneficial for public security, and of general importance to guard individuals against imposition.

Mrs. Dana—testified that defendant, Dr. Brink, was called on the morning of the 22d of October last, to administer to witness in case of a fever, but did not arrive till noon. He then mixed some medicine, in which was pepper, which gave her great pain. Got a syringe, and administered two injections himself, to witness, in which she thinks there was pepper, they were very hot, and gave her great pain, seemed almost to burn, actually gave her the cramp. Defendant stayed all the afternoon; during the night he insisted the patients time had come, and that she should be delivered. He continued to give doses from time to time, which gave her great pain every time she took them. Patient told defendant it was not her time under four weeks, told him her labor pains were not on her. Defendant told her the child was dead and every thing wrong. He interfered in such a way as to cause great pain; said an inflammation had taken place in her bowels, which had caused the death of the child; and used force which gave greater pain than she had ever endured before; patient begged of defendant to desist, and let her alone, saying, there was nothing unnatural before taking his medicine, and that she believed the child was right. The blood mentioned by the former witness, Mrs. Sessions, was discharged from no other cause, than the violence which the Doctor used in his operations. After he let her alone she was easier. Patient had no labor pains till Monday 24th. Had had six children, and her reckoning had always been regular. Never endured such suffering before; since then has been troubled with weakness, a difficulty of retaining her urine, was never troubled so before; has not been able to do anything since her confinement; has not been free from pain. Defendant used an unusual means in his operations, he placed his head on the patient's abdomen, and exerted his strength otherwise which caused the most severe pain.

Doctors, Bennett, Weld, Foster and Higbee, from hearing the testimony of previous witnesses, say that defendant's treatment to Mrs. Dana was unusual and uncalled for, and had they operated in like manner it would be unjustifiable, and that it was contrary to the general practice of physicians.

From a close and rigid cross examination of all the witnesses, (save Mrs. Dana, who was not cross examined,) nothing was elicited to vary the main points of the evidence,—

That, Dr. Brink, the defendant, was called to administer to Mrs. Dana, in a case of fever or diarrhen, and not for parturition:

That his doses of ergot, or something else, to hasten delivery, were not expected but was an imposition; as he was informed that her time had not come:

That he declared the child was dead without justifiable evidence, and practiced violence upon supposition, to bring on a speedy delivery; thus endangering the health and constitution, if not the life of the patient:

That he practiced a fraud upon a sick woman, declaring things wrong that were right:

That he pronounced the amniotic fluids discharged, before they had gathered:

That he gave hot injections, himself, which, (aside from the over-heat, which caused great pain,) was beneath the dignity of a gentleman:

That he gave ergot and mixtures, which in connection with the force and violence which he used, (leaving out the dangerous idea of using such poisonous potions, even "in extreme cases,") produced great pain:

That he introduced his hand, per vagina, without any necessity therefor, and by so doing made three ruptures in the tinea Os, thereby endangering life:

That all his efforts seemed to have been directed, both by medicine and force to bring on a premature birth, even at the risk of tampering with life:

And, that the whole treatment has resulted in weakness, and other impediments to health and comfort.

The only witness examined on the part of the defence, was

Dr. Bostwick,—said he had practiced medicine twenty-four years, and had attended as accoucheur about 2,300 cases. If the testimony against defendant was true, he had done an injury. Gave some explanations and instructions of ousteries, and defined the use and nature of ergot; had found some cases without labor pains, but said nothing that tended to invalidate the testimony of the witnesses, who attended Mrs. Dana; and counteracted the opinions of the physicians who had previously been examined.

The defendant filed an account, (with leave of plaintiff's counsel,) for services rendered plaintiff's wife on the 22d and 23d of October, 1842, of $10.00.

The court refuses to allow this account as a set off, for this reason, that "the law implies an undertaking on the part of apothecaries and surgeons, that they will use a reasonable degree of care and skill in the treatment of the patients. This is the duty of the medical practitioner, and he is responsible to his patient for a breach of it, as for a tort, although the patient was not the party, who retained, or was to remunerate him. And for gross carelessness or unskillfulness an action lies, although no reward was to be given. And if the patient is rather injured than benefited in his health, in consequence of any gross unskillfulness or carelessness, on the part of his medical attendant, an action for fees cannot be maintained." Chitty on Contracts p. 439, 8 East. 348.

Charles Ivins,—called as witness for the defendant, was rejected for the legal reason that this is an action of skill, not general character; that "the character of the parties to a civil suit, affords, in general, such a weak and vague inference as to the truth of the points in issue between them, that it is not usual to admit evidence of this description." Phillip's Evidence, 488.

The defendant has failed to use his privilege, and rebut the plaintiff's testimony by other credible witnesses, if he had any; or to impeach a single witness of the plaintiffs.

The foregoing summary of facts, relating to the case before the court, is deemed sufficiently full, without bringing in every minutia, in the recital and cross examination of witnesses, with their technicalities, objections, and exceptions, which while they enlighten one point, too often darken another.

The law knows no person till he comes within its purview; and injuries, affecting health, are among the most important cases that call for redress; such "as the neglect, or unskillful management of physicians, surgeons, or apothecaries. For it has been solemnly resolved that malapraris, is a great misdemeanor and offence at common law," Blackstone 122. The law implies a contract on the part of a medical man, as well as those of other professions, to discharge their duty in a skillful and attentive manner, and the law will grant redress to the party injured by their neglect, or ignorance, by an action on the case, as for a tortious misconduct,—1 Saund. 312, n. (2 Blackstone, 122 n. 7).

Independent of usage or practice, poisonous potions should not be administered to females in any case whatever. The law for such offences declares, that "To kill a child in utero is now no murder, but a great misprison; but if the child is born alive, and dieth by reason of the potion, or bruises it received in utero, it seems, by the better opinion, to be murder in such as administered or gave them. 11 Blackstone 198, and note 3. Hawkins Pleas of the Crown 80.

The highest authority upon injuries to women is the law of God: that says, "If men strive and hurt a woman with child so that her fruit depart, and yet no mischief follow, he shall be surely punished according as the woman's husband will lay upon him; and he shall pay as the judges determine. Exodus 21: 22.

The law acts by rules and facts, and when clothed in its dignity knows no distinction; though modesty may suffer violence in darkness, yet upon testimony, justice is bound to bring the offender to light, whether his footsteps are traced among the tombs of the illustrious dead, or his head is pointed out among the homes of the honorable living.

The court decides that the plaintiff recover from the defendant, the sum of $10.00, with interest and costs.

REPORT OF DEATHS

For the week ending Monday the 20th. inst.
Hannah Bennet, aged 87 years, 10 months; Old age.
Israel Burges, aged three months. Consumption.
W. D. HUNTINGTON, Sexton.

NOTICE.

Nauvoo Ill. March 13, 1843.
The subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo that he has on hand a variety of Boots and Shoes manufactured from the best of eastern leather; and will do any work in his line, on the shortest notice; also wishes to purchase hides and skins, for which he will pay boots, shoes, or cash at his shop, on the corner of Hyrum and Page street, north of the Temple.
J. BAIR.

LOOK HERE!

THE undersigned will exchange city or country property, for the breaking of seventy or more acres of prairie; also for a pair of Mules; a sett of Blacksmith's tools; and a first rate two-horse wagon. He will also take Illinois State and Shawnee-town paper in exchange for property, or on debts due him at fifty-cents on the dollar, if delivered before the 15th of April. He will pay cash for green calf-skins.
HIRAM KIMBALL.

March 15th 1843.

N. B. Those concerned, will recollect the first of April is near at hand, a hint to the wise is sufficient.

H. K. Agent.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
In the Hancock County Circuit Court Ill. to the May Term A D 1843.

Joseph Carman

vs.
William H. Tinsly

IN ATTACHMENT.

Notice is hereby given to the said William H. Tinsly, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court, dated the fourth day of Feb. A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Joseph Carman, and against the estate of you, the said William H. Tinsly, for the sum of one hundred and ten dollars ($110.00) directed to the Sheriff of Hancock county; which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff, into the clerk's office, levied upon the estate of William H. Tinsly. Now unless you, the said William H. Tinsly, shall be and appear before the judge of the said circuit court on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the court house in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail, and plead to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said William H. Tinsly, in favor of the said Joseph Carman and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk
Geo. Bachman Pl'tiff's Atty.

Dated March 9th 1843. 46 4w

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned has taken letters of administration on the estate of Jacob Earnest late of the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, deceased. All persons indebted to the said estate are requested to make immediate payment; and those having claims against the same are notified to present them to me at the Court of Probate of said county for settlement by the first Monday of July next.

REBECCA EARNEST,

Administratrix.

February 20th, 1843. 46 4w

BOOT AND SHOE MAKER.

THE subscriber respectfully begs leave to inform the inhabitants of the City of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has lately arrived from Scotland (Britain) and has commenced business in the above line and from his long experience in the trade in all its branches and his determination to execute all orders that he may be favored with in a neat and fashionable manner. He at the same time warrants satisfaction of all work performed by him and upon the most reasonable terms; he therefore begs to merit a share of public support.

THOMAS JAAP.

Main st. opposite the Masonic Hall.

Nauvoo, Feb. 10th 1843.

N. B. All orders from the country punctually attended to, and upon the shortest notice.

no 46 4w.

PUBLIC SALE.

WILL be sold at public auction on Monday the tenth day of April next at the late residence of Mrs. Lucy P. Oatman deceased in the town of LaHarpe Illinois, the personal property of the said deceased, consisting of house, and kitchen furniture, and a variety of clothing and other articles not enumerated. Terms of sale—all sums over five dollars, a credit of twelve months, the purchaser giving bond with approved security; all sums under five dollars cash in hand. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock A. M. and continue from day to day until all is sold.

GEORGE COULSON,

Executor of the estate of Lucy P. Oatman deceased.

LaHarpe March 8th 1843. 46 3w

Geo. Bachman,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no 20-1f.

NOTICE.

TWO house carpenters and one brick mason, with families are wanted at Shokoken. Constant employ will be given.
JOHN F. COWAN.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE.
 FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner in the state of Ohio, and the most and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.
 Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.
 Jan. 21, 1843.—3m.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
 In the Circuit Court of said County to May Term A. D. 1843.
 Alanson Taylor Plaintiff
 vs.
 Elias H. Maine & James D. Band Defendants.
 The plaintiff's agent and attorney herein having filed affidavit, that the defendants Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, are non-residents of this State. Notice is hereby given to the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court of the said County of Hancock, against the estate of you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band dated the 2d day of March A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Alanson Taylor, for the sum of one hundred and forty dollars with interest thereon from the 9th day of February A. D. 1842, directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock to execute, which said writ has been returned into the said Clerk's office, by the said Sheriff with an endorsement thereon, as follows, to wit: "Executed the within writ by reading the same to the within named Charles C. Maine, March 2d A. D. 1843. No property found in my county on which to levy this attachment." Now unless you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said circuit court for the County of Hancock on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court House in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to said plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, in favor of the said Alanson Taylor, and execution will issue against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, of the said Charles C. Maine, as garnishee to satisfy the said debt and cost.
 J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clk.
 J. H. Sherman, Atty. for plaintiff.
 March 2d 1843. tf.

IN THE HANCOCK CIRCUIT COURT III. Oct. Term A. D. 1842.
IN CHANCERY.
 David W. Mathews Complainant
 vs.
 E. A. Nexsen, Simeon Albee, & Chester P. Brady Defendants.
 This day came the complainant by his solicitors, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that E. A. Nexsen one of the above named defendants is a non-resident of this State: It is therefore, on the application of complainant's solicitors, ordered that unless the said E. A. Nexsen shall personally be and appear before the Judge of this Court on or before the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court house in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May A. D. 1843, and answer the allegations and charges contained in said complainant's bill which has been exhibited against him in the said Court on the Chancery side thereof, the same will be taken as confessed against him and the matters thereof decreed accordingly.—And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published in some public newspaper printed in this State for four weeks successively, once at least in each week, the first insertion thereof to be made at least sixty days previous to the next term of this Court, to which term this cause is continued.
 J. B. BACKENSTOS Clerk
 Feb. 24th 1843. 44 4w.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
 In the Circuit Court of said County, to the May Term A. D. 1843.
 Lewis Hyde vs. Robert Allison
IN ATTACHMENT.
 NOTICE Is hereby given to the said Robert Allison, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the Clerk's office of the said Circuit Court, dated the 22d day of January A. D. 1843, at the suit of the said Lewis Hyde, and against the estate of you the said Robert Allison for the sum of three hundred and fifty-eight dollars, (358.00) directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock, which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff into the said Clerk's office, levied upon the estate of Robert Allison. Now unless you, the said Robert Allison, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court House in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to the to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Robert Allison, in favor of the said Lewis Hyde, and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.
 Dated this 25th day of Feb. A. D. 1843.
 J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk.
 Geo. Bachman, Plaintiff's Atty.
 no 44 tf or sc.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!
 HE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:
SCHOOL BOOKS.
 The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.
ALSO,
 Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.
 All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.
 The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,
 in all its various branches; and having employed a number of experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.
 The following is a list of our
PRICES.

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	do	whole	bound	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	do	half	bound	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	do	half	bound	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.
 Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.
GEO. P. STILES,
 ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.
WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Khigh and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843.
 no42 tf.

SHERMAN'S MEDICATED LOZENGES.
THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity, and cure for more. They consist of
COUGH LOZENGES.
 Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.
WORM LOZENGES.
 The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.
CAMPBOR LOZENGES.
 For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally. Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.
CATHARTIC LOZENGES.
 The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.
FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.
 These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.
SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.
 This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, chest or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
 (22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
 Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

NO CURE NO PAY.
DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.
 Nauvoo, Jan. 28, 1842 39-tf.

NOTICE.
I HEREBY warn the public against purchasing or receiving certain notes which I James Huddleston gave to Josiah Ellis dated thirteenth of Sept. 1841, being three in number, $40 each; one payable the 13th Sept. 1842, the 2d on the 13th Sept 1843, and the 3d on the 3th Sept. 1844. The above notes were given for a certain piece of land which has been paid for in part. The payment on the above notes will not be made until the said Ellis will secure unto me a good and sufficient title to the land for which the notes were given.
JAMES HUDDLESTON.
 no 45 3w. *

O. C. SKINNER,
 Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.
WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office with G. Hills, Esq., a few rods south east of the Temple.
REFERENCES.
 Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.
 G. B. Holt, Dayton.
 G. P. Bell, Hamilton,
 Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,
 Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
 Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
 Commission and Forwarding Merchants.
 Poydras St., New Orleans.
LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible. To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.
 Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.
REFER TO
 H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
 Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
 A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
 Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
 December 10, 1842. no32-6m.

NOTICE.
I S. hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.
ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
HIRAM KIMBALL.
 Nauvoo January 13 1843. tf

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.
DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.
 He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and respect of a liberal and enlightened public.
 Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula, mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic.
 no35-6m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.
ILLINOIS.
 J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
 Joseph Johnson, Ramus
 J. Salsbery, Plymouth.
 Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
 L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
 Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
 Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.
IOWA TERRITORY.
 Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
 Levi Moffet, Augusta.
 Elias Smith, Nashville.
PENNSYLVANIA.
 Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
 John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
 B. Winchester, Philadelphia.
NEW JERSEY.
 Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
 James Curtis, Horners Town.
 W. I. Appleby, Reeces Town.
 Israel Ivins, Toms River.
MASSACHUSETTS
 Erastus Snow, Salem.
 Freeman Nickerson, Boston.
MICHIGAN.
 S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.
OHIO.
 John Johnson, Kirtland,
NEW YORK.
 L. Charles Thompson, Batavia.
 L. R. Foster, city of New York

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume J.—No.—48

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, March 29, 1843.

Whole Number 48

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF
At the corner of Water and Bain Street,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING,
One square, one insertion, $1
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

THE SHOEMAKER.

BY MISS H. F. GOULD.

"Act well your part, there all the honor lies."
The shoemaker sat amid wax and leather,
With lap-stone over his knee,
Where snug in his shop, he defied all weather,
Drawing his quarters and sole together:
A happy old man was he.

This happy old man was so wise and knowing,
The worth of his time he knew,
He bristled his ends, and he kept them going,
And felt to each moment a stiffen was owing,
Until he got round the shoe.

Of every deed that his wax was sealing,
The closing was firm and fast,
The prick of his awl never caused a feeling
Of pain to the toe: and his skill in healing
Was perfect and true to the last.

Whenever you gave him a foot to measure,
With gentle and skilful hand
He took its proportions, with looks of pleasure,
As if you were giving the costliest treasure,
Or dubbing him lord of the land.

And many a one did he save from getting
A fever, or cold, or cough;
For many a foot did he save from wetting,
When, weather in water or snow, 'twas settling,
His shoeing would keep them off.

When he had done with his making and mend-
With hope and a peaceful breast, [ing
Resigning his awl, and his thread was ending,
He passed from his bench, to the grave descend-
As high as a king to rest. [ing,

ARRIVAL FROM ENGLAND.

The Steamer Acadia has arrived at Boston, bringing the latest dates from England.

We clip out a few items.
Important Speech of Sir Robert Peel on the Right of Search.

In the course of a debate on the 3d inst.,
in Parliament, Sir Robert Peel, in reply to a member who had alluded to the recent treaty, spoke as follows—

I rejoice that the Hon. gentleman has given me an opportunity of making some observations on the late message of the President of the United States. The sincere and honest desire I have always entertained for the maintenance of a good understanding between this country and the United States, and the spirit in which I have always spoken of America, makes it a doubly painful duty to me to have to refer to that message, which I am sorry to say, does not give a correct account of the negotiations relative to the right to visit. Perhaps I may do right to confirm what the honorable gentleman has said, that there is nothing more distinct than right of visit is from the right of search.

Search is a belligerent right, and not to be exercised in time of peace except when it has been conceded by treaty. The right of search extends not only to the vessel but to the cargo also. The right of visit is quite distinct from this, though the two are often confounded. The right of search, with respect to American vessels, we entirely and utterly disclaim; nay, more, if we knew that an American vessel were furnished with all the materials requisite for the slave trade, if we knew that the decks were prepared to receive hundreds of human beings within a space in which life is almost impossible, still we should be bound to let that vessel pass on. But the right we claim, is to know whether a vessel pretending to be American, and hoisting the American flag, be a bona fide American.

There must be some great understanding upon the subject; but considering the importance of maintaining this right—a right not peculiar to England—considering that we are contending for a right which is the only security against fraud, against the grossest abuses by parties interested in this iniquitous traffic, considering that we are now the advocates of a principle necessary for the interests and security of all maritime nations—it is my duty to state, in the face of the House of Commons, that the claim to the right of visitation contended for in the despatch of Lord Aberdeen has not been relinquished; that on this subject there was made no concession whatever, and that to the principles laid down in the despatch of Lord
Aberdeen we adhere at this moment.—
(Cheers from both sides of the House.)

With respect to the treaty which we entered into with the United States, in signing that treaty we consider that we have abandoned no right of visitation.—
We do not understand from the United States that they entered into that treaty with any engagement from us to abandon the right of visitation, which, as not necessarily connected with the question of the slave trade, we thought that it was a step in advance when the United States professed a readiness to despatch a naval force to the coast of Africa, for the purpose of suppressing the slave trade. We did not accept the detachment of that naval force as an equivalent for any right which we claimed; yet still we thought that for a great country like the U. States to take that step with us on the coast of Africa, although the power of visitation is limited under the treaty in such case, although we claim no right to visit slavers, bona fide American, and the right is to be exercised by vessels of the United States—we thought it, I say, a step in advance towards the ultimate suppression of the slave trade to accede to the proposition of the United States.

But in concluding that we have not abandoned our claim in the slightest degree, nor did it ever make any part of our intention, during the controversy, to abandon the right to which we lay claim in the despatch I have mentioned. (Hear, hear, hear.) We have not contested ourselves, sir, with leaving this fact to become known by a declaration in this house; but since the appearance of the President's Message, we have taken an opportunity of intimating to the United States the construction we place on the treaty. (Cheers.) I trust, sir, that I have said enough to satisfy the house on this point; I trust, also, that although compelled to avow a material difference of opinion between the two governments upon this material question, I have stated this difference of opinion with the respect which I wish to maintain towards the high authorities of the United States. (Hear, hear.)

FOR OREGON TERRITORY.

About one thousand persons are preparing to emigrate to the Oregon Territory, they will rendezvous at Fort Leavenworth; about the first of May.
As small parties cannot venture through the Black Foot Indians; we invite all who have an idea of emigrating, to be ready to join them. We look upon the occupancy of this immense region with no small degree of enthusiasm.

The Oregon Territory embraces an area of about three hundred millions of acres of land in a climate, at once a guarantee of the improvement of our species, a soil yielding almost all the products of the world. The mouth of the Oregon River presents as natural a location for a Custom House, as the mouth of the Hudson.

The bill under discussion in the U. S.
Senate, provides first for each male emigrant 640 acres of land, 160 acres for his wife, and 160 for each child born there for five successive years. It also provides for five Forts, and appropriates one hundred thousand dollars. This is more than we looked or asked for. Let every man who is not surrounded with plenty, prepare to accompany us. In this land you are made rich just by going to it; let all those out of employment be ready. We advise our young men who are going, to look round among the pretty, and get each a wife before they start.
[Pittsburg Sun.]

Indian Mode of dressing Skins.—Mr.
Callin gives the following as the method by which the Indians in the far west dress their skins—

The usual manner of dressing the buffalo and other skins, is by immersing them for a few days under a ley from ashes and water, until the hair can be removed, when they are strained upon a frame, or upon the ground, with stakes or pins driven through the edges into the earth, where they remain for several days, and are at last finished by graining as it is termed by the squaws, who use a sharpened bone, the shoulder blade or other large bones of the animal, sharpened at the edge something like an adze, with the edge of which they scrape the fleshy side of the skin, bearing on it with the weight of their bodies, thereby drying and softening the skin and fitting it for use. The greater part of the skins, however, go through another operation afterwards, which gives them a greater value, and renders them much more serviceable; that is the process of smoking. For this, a hole is dug in the ground, and a fire is built in it with rotten wood, which produces a great quantity of smoke, without much blaze; and several small poles of the proper length stuck into the ground around it, and drawn and fastened together at the top, around which a skin is wrapped in form of a tent, and generally sewed together at the edges to secure smoke within it; within this the skins to be smoked are placed, and in this condition the tent will stand a day or so, enclosing the beating smoke; and by some chemical process or other, which I do not understand, the skins thus acquire a quality which enables them after being so many times wet, to dry soft and pliant as they were before, which secret I have never yet seen practised in my own country and for the lack of which all of our dressed skins, when once wet, are I think, chiefly ruined. An Indian's dress of deer skins which if wet a hundred times upon his back, dries soft;
and his lodge also, which stands in the rain, and even through the severity of the winter, is taken down as soft and as clean as when first put up.

Effects of Insanity.—Some few, I am happy to say, exhibit more mental vigor and ability than previous to the attack of insanity. Of this I feel confident, from my own observation, and the declarations of their friends, and of the individuals themselves; besides, it is not very surprising that such should occasionally be the result, as it can be explained on physiological principles,—the unusual and long continued excitement of the brain, having permanently increased its power and activity. I suspect this is often the case, or rather that slight disease of the brain is often the cause of the remarkable genius and talent exhibited by some individuals. Dryden correctly says,

"Great wits are sure to madness mar-rallied,
And thin partitions do their bounds divide."

The observation is as old as Aristotle, and innumerable examples, from his time to our own, might be referred to in support of its truth. In the writings of Fielding, Metastasio, Pope, Dryden, Ras-seau, Madame Roland, Dr. Johnson, Byron, and many others, are descriptions of incipient madness evidently drawn from their own sensations. Metastasio wept over his own Olympiad, and says
"when I apply with attention, the nerves of my censorium are put in violent tumult, and I grow as red as a drunkard."
Pascal often sprang from his chair while composing his most celebrated works—seeing a fiery gulph opening by his side.
Luther maintained that he saw and conversed with Satan. Descartes was often followed by an invisible person, calling on him to pursue the search of truth. Benvenuto Cellini saw a resplendent light hovering over his own shadow, and Raffaele says, alluding to his celebrated picture—the Transfiguration—that when engaged upon it, he might be looked upon as an enthusiastic madman; that he forgot himself, and fancied he saw the whole action passing before his eyes. Cowper was decidedly insane, even at the time he wrote his most celebrated poems. All this time, and for many years, he doubted the identity of his most intimate friend, the Rev. Mr.
Newton. Cruden, the author of the Concordance of the Bible, was insane more than thirty years, during which time he prepared and published that learned and valuable work. Robert Hall might be mentioned, if not as an instance of the improvement of the mental powers by insanity, certainly as one in whom this disease did not injure them.—[Dr.
Baikie.]

Remedy for Chinese lying.—A Chinese silversmith to whom the English gave the name of Tom Workwell, brought home some silver spoons, as he called them to a captain of a ship who had ordered them. The gentleman, suspecting his friend Tom had played him a trick common in China, of adding no small quantity of tutenague to the usual proportion of alloy, taxed him with the cheat, which he denied, with the greatest assertions of his innocence. The captain then told him he had brought with him a famous water which being placed on the tongue of a person suspected of telling an untruth, (if the case were so) burned a hole; if otherwise, the party escaped with honor and unhurt. Tom, thinking it a trick readily consented, upon which, with much form, a single drop of aquafortis was put upon his tongue: he instantly jumped about the room in violent pain, crying out, "Very true half tutenague, half tutenague" in hopes that confessing the fact might stop the progress of the water, which, from the pain he felt he had some reason to think possessed the qualities ascribed to it. Several Europeans who were present, and who had bought several pieces of plate from him, now put similar questions to him and he confessed that it had been his uniform and constant practice to add a very large quantity of tutenague to every article made at his shop, for which, during the continuance of pain, he promised ample reparation.—
Cheltenham Chronicle.

Mr. Editor:—Having been informed that the price of labor has been agitated by some of our worthy citizens, I thought it would not be amiss to express myself on this subject; which if you think worthy, you are at liberty to give a place in your valuable paper.

I do not presume to set myself up as a standard in judgment, on a subject so important to community, including as it does, both the employer and the laborer; but that both are seriously affected, there can be no doubt. It is a fact well known not only in our community, but all others, that the want of a circulating medium has caused much inconvenience to all classes of society, and especially to the laborer, because the laboring class compose by far the greater portion, and a second reason, the laborer is depending day by day, on his labor for his daily bread, assisted by the blessings of Providence. Such has been, and is the state of things by the cause referred to, that in the midst of plenty we are in want, surrounded by all the comforts of life, yet they are, comparatively speaking, out of our reach; for this state of things there must be an exerting cause, and we are gravely told that cause is the high price demanded for labor; that produce is a cash article and that as an offset for the price of labor, we must take our pay in something that can be more easily procured, or produce at an advance price from what it is generally sold at in market, for cash, and not unfrequently in clothes and other articles, from the eastern markets at an advance price of from 2 to 2 hundred per cent. above cost and transportation. This, to say the least, is a source of much inconvenience to the laborer; it deprives us in many instances of sharing the common comforts of life, and puts its luxuries entirely beyond our reach, which is essentially necessary to make life agreeable, and our situation happy. It occurs to my mind that there is a wrong existing somewhere, and I will briefly state where, in my opinion, a wrong exists. In our communications with our eastern friends, we encourage them to bring to this place articles which are manufactured in the east, telling them they can get labor, and make improvements, and at the same time receive a large advance on goods. This then is an inducement for them to leave their money in the hands of eastern merchants and factors, whilst we have, as a reward for our folly, to be imposed upon by paying from one to two hundred per cent. as has been before stated. But perhaps the question may arise, "are we overstocked with goods?" I would say in my own opinion, we are not; but we are oppressed with high prices; while at the same time the demand for labor is lessened and many branches of mechanism entirely neglected; and the means expended in foreign markets to enrich the few, whilst it impoverishes the many.

It would be useless for me to enumerate the many advantages we possess for manufacturing. It is a well known fact that we possess all the advantages of any other country, both in the materials and workmen, and I am confident that notwithstanding the complaint of high wages, goods can be manufactured here for less than we are paying at present, and at the same time afford a profit to the manufacturer. Labor in all countries is generally governed by the price of produce, and at the same time manufactured articles by the price of labor; consequently all harmonize or balance in the great scale of industry; and until this can be done, it is useless in my opinion to contemplate a reduction of wages without oppressing the laborer. — A MECHANIC.

A Mechanic, although we do not altogether agree with him, has made many true remarks; there are many wrongs existing among us. One is, that goods are sold here twenty five and fifty per cent higher than in other places. Another is, that we have in our city cash prices, and trade prices, which all militates against the laborer. A third is, sending for manufactured articles that we could make at home. Let the prices be equalized, and every thing be reduced to its cash value; and let our storekeepers sell for a reasonable profit; and if they will not do it, we would advise them to commence storekeeping, that we may have competition, and be able to have things at a fair rate; and let our money be expended at home, instead of abroad, and many of our evils will be done away with. Then, as produce sells, the laborer might afford to work for something less than he now obtains, and be better off. There are many things of this kind that we wish to speak about, when we get time and room; in the mean time our columns are open for any well written article on this subject. — Ed.

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 29, 1843.

We have read with deep interest, the following speech of our respected Representative, Mr. Wm. Smith; than which, a more eloquent, patriotic, logical, and soul stirring appeal, has not been made within the walls of the Legislative Hall. We are proud that we have a Representative having such dignified, independent, and patriotic feelings; possessing such refined ideas, and brilliancy of talent; but we are sorry that he should be necessitated to use his talents on this subject; we had indeed hoped better things from many whose names we see recorded on the list, whom we cannot look upon as our friends, nor the friends of equal rights, whatever their pretensions may be to patriotism, democracy, or republicanism. The withering influence of such legislation is like a pestiferous breath, which poisons all that comes within its reach, and spreads a deadly bane as far as its influence extends; and much as we would desire to respect and esteem such men, whom of all others ought to be honorable, and honored; yet we cannot withhold the expression of our feelings, when so flagrant a breach of confidence, and so gross a departure from the noble, dignified, patriotic, and democratic principles which ought to characterize the proceedings of the Honorable members of a free and independent State, like that of Illinois.

In the proceedings of the House, the aim at a society, and not on account of any exclusive privileges that we enjoy, is so apparent that it cannot fail to strike every superficial observer, for it has not been shown in that House that we possess any privileges which other chartered cities do not.

This legislation against religion, and taking from cities that which they have had solemnly given, and pledged to them merely on account of their religion is too bad, such conduct might comport very well with the legislators of Missouri, and be quite in keeping with their other deeds; but it is rather too little, too contracted and antirepublican, for the legislators of Illinois to dirty their hands with, and their wrapping it up in the Nauvoo charter does not hide its deformity, it may indeed cover the body of the animal, but its ears stick out, and it is seen too plainly to what it belongs.

Mr. SMITH, of Hancock, said he did not arise to discuss the subject now before the House. He had on some occasions before, when similar propositions were brought before this body, given his views of their unfairness, injustice and intolerance. He thought at this time, when we were approaching rapidly a termination of the session that the time of the House might be better occupied than in discussing a measure which must be regarded by all men, who have looked with candor and fairness upon it, to be unequalled for—not necessary to promote the welfare of any portion of the people of this State—but which, if carried out, must do manifest injustice to a large and rapidly increasing body of people, whose highest ambition is to be good citizens—to perform their duties to the government under which they live—to each other, and to their God. I repeat, said Mr. S., that I think the time of this Legislature could be better occupied, at this late period of the session in maturing important bills which now lie on your table. And I hope I may be permitted to say, without offence, that I am greatly surprised at the course of some members on this floor, who are proclaiming aloud for retrenchment and reform—and yet will spend weeks in legislating upon subjects which are of little importance to the people. We make great display of our disposition to cut off the fees of constables, and justices, and county and circuit court clerks—we spend days upon these and similar matters,—but when it comes to our own pay we have little hesitation in taking the full amount which members of the Legislature received in "ordinary times," and we have lost no chance to get that pay in specie even if the school fund was robbed to obtain it. It requires scarce a moment to pass a bill or resolution to enable members of the Legislature to draw money; but there is a great waste of time, upon bills of little importance to the people in these times of pecuniary suffering. Thousands of dollars have been spent in legislating upon efforts to repeal the Nauvoo charters. Indeed, a very considerable portion of the time of this session has been spent to wrest from the people called Mormons their vested rights, and all, as I have before said, and now repeat, without any just pretext whatever. I make this assertion boldly and fearlessly. Have not the Mormons been good citizens? Have they abused the chartered rights conferred upon them by the Legislature? Is not the city of Nauvoo as distinguished for its order, the sobriety of its inhabitants, its efficient police, as any city in your State? Is there a single instance of just complaint either in your courts or in the community against the management of the municipal concerns of that city? Is there a better corps of military troops than the abused Legion of Nauvoo—better disciplined—better officered in your State—and which would more cheerfully yield their aid in defence of our laws?

There is no well grounded reason for the course which has been pursued towards the people I represent, and more especially of those called Mormons. It is founded on liberal prejudices and an abandonment of that principle which should be ever dear to an honest democrat—religious toleration. Political considerations have been brought to bear upon this subject. Leading members of the democratic party (and I would be glad if in my remarks I could avoid reference to this fact) on whom myself and friends have relied in this emergency, are against us. We thought, in other times, we could rely upon them. How groundless was that assumption? How little reliance can be placed upon men who cry aloud for democratic principles, and when they are called to carry those principles into practice, abandon them at the cry of the illiberal and intolerant? No, sir, gentlemen may practice on this new democratic principle of equal rights; they may boast of their belief in the doctrine of religious toleration, but to me these professions are the "sounding brass and the tinkling cymbal,"—there is no soundness, justice or honesty in them.

There has been no call for this repeal from those people who are most interested. If the charters had deprived citizens of their rights—if those most affected by them had cause of complaint—would not petitions have been laid on your table on this subject? Is there one? Has a single individual, high or low, uttered a complaint? No sir—and members who have no interest with us—who live hundreds of miles from us, suspend their labors in behalf of their local interests, and voluntarily come forward and direct their whole zeal and efforts to interfere in the business of others,—who, to say the least, do not feel under obligations for their interference.

Why is it that these men, as in some other cases of proposed repeal, in this House, have not recollected that private rights have arisen under the Nauvoo charters;—that men have invested property which otherwise they would not have done—that a numerous population has made the city their home, on account of privileges secured to them by these charters. Are these facts of no moment with an intelligent assembly of democratic legislators? Where is the consistency—where is the fairness—where is the justice of this proposed repeal? "Consistency! thou art a jewel." And how many of these precious jewels do such gentlemen wear, who not only thus willingly, but wontonly, legislate to the injury of my constituents?

Sir, if these great republicans effect a repeal of the Nauvoo charters, what good have they secured for the State? We were sent here to carry out the principle of reform and retrenchment, and to administer justice to the people by enacting equal laws?—Would the repeal of the Nauvoo charters effect these objects? Would it not rather show that we were disposed in legislating to gratify the bigoted and intolerant portion of the community? that the majority in this would sacrifice their friends to silence the clamors of the intolerant, and those influenced by unfounded prejudices? Sir, I ask if the course proposed is democracy, if it is republicanism? If it is, deliver me from it. It is not such democracy as I have contended for; it is a spurious democracy, designed to promote private ends, and private interests. It is intolerant, illiberal, and working manifest injustice to the people.

Sir, I ought, again to thank those disinterested gentlemen, who have stepped so far from home, a distance, in some cases, of more than two hundred miles, to represent my constituents. Their constituents probably would be better pleased if they would devote their attention to their interests. The people of my county have never asked for their favors. They have never asked them to amend or repeal their charters; and will not feel under obligations to them for their services. And for myself, I do not thank them for proposing to cripple the charters of other cities—to injure their efficiency, for the sake of having a better excuse to destroy ours.

Now, Mr. Speaker, a few words more, and I shall be done. The course which has been adopted in relation to the Nauvoo charters, I feel it my duty to say in my place and in behalf of my constituents, is most unfriendly to them; injurious to their welfare; as far as possible destructive to their property; anti-republican; anti-democratic; and I implore honorable gentlemen, not to sustain such an unhallowed proceeding as is contemplated by the bill now before the House. If they do pass this bill, I, and my people may well conclude that they have failed to find the honor, the magnanimity, the justice, extended towards them, which they had looked for, and relied upon, in the halls of this Legislature. I have done.

THIEVES! ROBBERS!! VILLAINS!!!

To the Editor of the Wasp.

Sir—please publish in your paper, the articles on stealing, found in the "Times & Seasons" of Dec. 1, 1841; on pages 615, 16, and 17, and disabuse the public mind.

JOSEPH SMITH.

HYRUM SMITH'S AFFIDAVIT.

Whereas it hath been intimated to me by persons of credibility, that there are persons in the surrounding country, who profess to be members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter day Saints, who have been using their influence and endeavors to instill into the minds of good and worthy citizens in the State of Illinois, and the adjoining States, that the First Presidency, and others in authority and high standing in said church, do sanction and approve the members of said church in stealing property from those persons who do not belong to said church, and thereby to induce persons to aid and abet them in the act of stealing, and other evil practices. I therefore, hereby disavow any sanction or approbation by me, of the crime of theft, or any other evil practice, in any person, or persons whatever, whereby either the lives or property of our fellow men may be unlawfully taken or molested: neither are such things sanctioned or approved by the First Presidency, or any other person in authority or good standing in said church, but such acts are altogether in violation of the rules, order and regulations of the church, and the laws of both God and man. I caution the unwary, who belong to the aforesaid church, and all other persons, against being duped, or led into any act or scheme which may endanger their character, lives or property, or bring reproach upon the church; and I certify that I hold my person and property ready to support the laws of the land, in the detection of any person or persons who may commit any breach of the same. To which I subscribe my name and testify, this 26th day of November 1841.

HYRUM SMITH.

Sworn to, and subscribed before me, this 26th day of November, 1841.

E. ROBINSON, J. P.

Proceedings of a meeting of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, held at Ramus, Nov. 18th 1841.

Opened by singing and prayer by Elder Brigham Young. The object of the meeting was then stated by the president. Which was for the purpose of taking in, to consideration the cases of Alanson Brown, Joseph Holbrook, John Telford, James B. T. Page, and Wm. H. Edwards, who stand indicted for Larceny, &c.—After the evidence was brought forward, it was unanimously resolved that said five persons be expelled from the church.

Appropriate remarks were then made by Elders Young, Richards, Savage, Gurley and others, for the occasion.

A charge was then preferred against Thomas S. Edwards for Assault and Battery, with evidence that a warrant was issued for his apprehension, and against Wm. W. Edwards for being accessory to the same, after the evidence.

Unanimously resolved that Thomas S. Edwards, and Wm. W. Edwards also, be expelled from the church.

Resolved that the proceedings of this meeting be published in the Times and Seasons.

Resolved that all other church business be laid over to Conference.

Resolved that this meeting be adjourned.

JOEL H. JOHNSON, Prest.
J. E. JOHNSON, Church Recorder.

We are very glad that the perpetrators of the above crimes have been caught in their iniquitous practices; and we are only sorry that any body should be found who would bail them out of prison; for such individuals if the charges are true ought to be made an example of, and not be suffered to run at large.

We have been informed that some of them have been talking of moving into this place; but we would here inform them, that persons whose conduct has exposed them to the just censure of an indignant public, can have no fellowship amongst us, as we cannot, and will not, countenance rogues, thieves and scoundrels, knowingly; and we hereby warn them that the law will be as rigorously enforced against them in this place as in any other, as we consider such characters as a curse to society, whose pestilential breath withers the moral and blasts the fame and reputation of any people among whom they may sojourn. There is no poison that is and ought to be despised more than the thief by any respectable community; yet more especially ought such persons to be abhorred who have taken upon them the name of Christ, and thus with the pretext of religion, and garb of sanctity, cloak their nefarious practices.

We have been told that some individuals or individuals, have, under false pretences, been wishing to palm their wicked and devilish principles upon the authorities of the church, stating it was part and parcel of the gospel which God had revealed, and that it is one of the mysteries which the initiated only are acquainted with. We know not how to express our abhorrence at such an idea, and can only say it is engendered in hell, founded in falsehood, and is the offspring of the devil; that it is at variance with every principle of righteousness and truth; and will damn all that are connected with it; for all mysteries are only such to the ignorant, and vanish as soon as men have sufficient intelligence to comprehend them, and there are no mysteries connected with godliness, and our holy religion, but what are pure, innocent, virtuous, just and righteous; if this is a mystery, it is the 'mystery of iniquity.' We are at a loss to know who could be vile enough to propagate such base and unfounded statements, and we would say to the church, beware of such men! set them down as the worst of scoundrels; and reject their foul insinuations, with that indignation and disgust, that such unhallowed and vicious insinuations deserve; for such men are either avowed apostates, or on the eve of apostacy, or have only taken the name of religion to cloak their hypocrisy; we fear the latter, in some instances, is the case, and that Mississippi scoundrels palm themselves upon us to cover their guilt. We further call upon the church to bring all such characters before the authorities, that they may be tried, and dealt with according to the law of God, and delivered up unto the laws of the land.

It is scarcely possible that any virtuous man could be made to believe any such statements however ignorant—yet lest through false pretences the innocent might be drawn into a snare, we would quote the following from the book of Doctrine and Covenants: Sec. xii, Par. 22. And if any man or woman shall rob, he or she shall be delivered up unto the law of the land. And if he or she shall steal, he or she shall be delivered up unto the law of the land. Again Sec. xiii, Par. 2.

Thou shalt not steal, and he that stealeth and will not repent shall be cast out.—The broad law of God is 'thou shalt not steal,' and thieves, together with liars and whoremongers, will eventually be found without the city, with sorcerers. We need only say that if we find such characters engaged in their nefarious practices, whether in or out of the church, we shall take them up and deal with them according to the law of God at Nauvoo—and we wish the church to inform of such delinquents, or the sinners, at their own door.

As there are gangs of robbers up and down this river, from whom we have suffered much, having had many horses, cattle, and other property stolen; we purpose instituting a police for the protection of our property, and the vigorous enforcement of the laws of our country; and should any, who call themselves Latter Day Saints, be found in their midst, they will be cut off from the church, and handed over to the law of the land.

We hope that what we have written may suffice, and take this opportunity of expressing our decided and unqualified disapprobation of any thing like theft, in all its bearings, as being calculated to destroy the peace of society, to injure the Church of Jesus Christ, to wound the character of the people of God, and to stamp with eternal infamy all who follow such diabolical practices; to blast their character on earth, and to consign them to eternal perdition.

BRIGHAM YOUNG,
HEBER C. KIMBALL,
PARLEY P. PRATT,
JERSON HYDE,
WILLIAM SMITH,
ORSON PRATT,
JOHN E. PAGE,
WILLARD RICHARDS,
LYMAN WIGHT,
WILFORD WOODRUFF,
JOHN TAYLOR,
GEO. A. SMITH.

Nauvoo, Ill. Dec. 1st. 1841.

PREST. J. SMITH'S AFFIDAVIT.
City of Nauvoo, Ill.,
Nov. 20th A. D. 1841.

TO THE PUBLIC:—

The transpiration of recent events makes it criminal for me to remain longer silent. The tongue of the vile yet speaks, and sends forth the poison of asps—the ears of the spoiler yet hear, and he puts forth his hands to iniquity. It has been proclaimed upon the house-top and in the secret chamber, in the public walks and private circle, throughout the length and breadth of this vast continent, that stealing by the Latter Day Saints has received my approval; nay, that I have taught the doctrine, encouraged them in plunder, and led on the van—than which nothing is more foreign from my heart. I disavow the perpetrators of all such abominations—they are devils and not saints, totally unfit for the society of Christians, or men. It is true that some professing to be Latter Day Saints have taught such vile heresies, but all are not Israel that are of Israel; and I wish it to be distinctly understood in all coming time, that the church over which I have the honor of presiding will ever set its brows like brass, and its face like steel, against all such abominable acts of villainy and crime; and to this end I append my affidavit of disavowal taken this day before General Bennett, that there may be no mistake hereafter as to my real sentiments, or those of the leaders of the church, in relation to this important matter.—

STATE OF ILLINOIS, ss.
Hancock County.

Before me, John C. Bennett, Mayor of the City of Nauvoo, personally came Joseph Smith, President of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, (commonly called Mormons,) who being duly sworn according to law, depose and saith, that he has never directly or indirectly encouraged the purloining of property, or taught the doctrine of stealing, or any other evil practice, and that all such vile and unlawful acts will ever receive his unqualified and unreserved disapproval, and the most vigorous opposition of the church over which he presides, and further this deponent saith not.

JOSEPH SMITH, President,
of the Church of Jesus Christ
of Latter Day Saints.

Sworn to, and subscribed before me, at my office, in the City of Nauvoo, this twenty-ninth day of November, Anno Domini 1841.

[L. S.] JOHN C. BENNETT,
Mayor of the City of Nauvoo.
Now it is to be hoped that none will hereafter be so reckless as to state that I, or the church to which I belong, approve of thieving—but that all the friends of law and order will join in ferreting out thieves wherever, and whenever, they may be found, and assist in bringing them to that condign punishment which such infamous crimes so richly merit.

JOSEPH SMITH, President
of the Church of Jesus Christ
of Latter Day Saints.

COURT MARTIAL.

City of Nauvoo, Ill. Nov. 30, 1841.

To Brev. Maj. Gen. Wilson Law:—

We, the undersigned, members of the General Court Martial, detailed by you on the order of Lt. Gen. Smith, through Maj. Gen. Bennett, for the trial of David Smith and Joseph Holbrook, officers of the Nauvoo Legion charged with theft, and being accessory thereto, are of the opinion that they are guilty of the charges preferred against them, and our unanimous decision is that they be cashiered, and their names stricken from the rank roll.

Witness against David Smith—Hazen Kimball.

Witnesses against Joseph Holbrook—B. Young, and W. Richards.

HYRUM SMITH, Brev. Maj. Gen.,
President of the Court.

WM. LAW, Brev. Maj. Gen.,
C. C. RICH, Brig. Gen. 2d Cohort.
H. McFALL, Adj. Gen.,
DANIEL H. WELLS, Com. Gen.,
S. BENT, Col. 3d Reg. 2d Cohort.,
T. BILLINGS, Col. 1st Reg. 2d Ct.,
J. T. BARNETT, Capt. 2d Com. 1st Reg. 2d Cohort,

Members of the Court.

To Maj. Gen. Bennett:—

I approve of the above decision, and submit it to you for your action on the case.

WILSON LAW, Brev. Maj. Gen.

To Lt. Gen. Smith:—

The General Court Martial detailed for the trial of David Smith, and Joseph Holbrook, officers of the Nauvoo Legion, have made the above report to me, and ask my concurrence in the same, which, under the circumstances cannot be withheld; it is, therefore, submitted to you for your final approval or disapproval.

JOHN C. BENNETT, Maj. Gen.

Approved—

JOSEPH SMITH, Lt. Gen.

PROCLAMATION,

To the Citizens of Nauvoo.

Whereas it appears by the republication of the foregoing proceedings and declaration, that I have not altered my views on the subject of stealing: And whereas it is reported that there now exists a band of desperadoes, bound by oaths of secrecy, under severe penalties in case any member of the combination divulges their plans of stealing and conveying properties from station to station, up and down the Mississippi and other routes: And whereas it is reported that the fear of the execution of the pains and penalties of their secret oath, on their persons, prevents some of the members of said secret association, (who have, through falsehood and deceit, been drawn into their snares,) from divulging the same to the legally constituted authorities of the land:

Know ye therefore, That I, Joseph Smith, Mayor of the city of Nauvoo, will grant and ensure protection against all personal mob violence, to each and every citizen of this city, who will freely and voluntarily come before me, and truly make known the names of all such abominable characters as are engaged in said secret combination for stealing, or are accessory thereto in any manner; and I would respectfully solicit the co-operation of all ministers of Justice, in this and the neighboring states, to ferret out a band of thievish outlaws from our midst.

Given under my hand at Nauvoo City, this, 25th day of March, A. D. 1843.

JOSEPH SMITH,
Mayor of said City.

THE subscriber having taken out letters of administration from the court of probate of Hancock county, Illinois, on the estate of J. D. Groves dec'd, late of said county, requests all persons having claims against said estate, to present the same to him or the court of probate of said county for settlement, on the first Monday in May. All persons indebted to said estate, are requested to make immediate payment to the undersigned.

A. P. RINGER,
Administrator of
J. D. GROVES, dec'd.
March 18, A. D. 1843. no 47 6t

NOTICE.

TWO house carpenters and one brick mason, with families are wanted at Shokokon. Constant employ will be given.

JOHN F. COWAN.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
In the Hancock County Circuit Court,
Ill. to the May Term A D 1843.

Joseph Carman
vs.
William H. Tinsley

IN ATTACHMENT.

Notice is hereby given to the said William H. Tinsley, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court, dated the fourth day of Feb. A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Joseph Carman, and against the estate of you, the said William H. Tinsley, for the sum of one hundred and ten dollars ($110.00) directed to the Sheriff of Hancock county; which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff, into the clerk's office, levied upon the estate of William H. Tinsley. Now unless you, the said William H. Tinsley, shall be and appear before the judge of the said circuit court on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the court house in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail, and plead to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said William H. Tinsley, in favor of the said Joseph Carman and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk;
Geo. Bachman Plaintiff's Atty.
Dated March 9th 1843. 46 4w

NOTICE.

Nauvoo Ill. March 13, 1843.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo that he has on hand a variety of Boots and Shoes manufactured from the best of eastern leather; and will do any work in his line, on the shortest notice; also wishes to purchase hides and skins, for which he will pay boots, shoes, or cash at his shop, on the corner of Hyrum and Page street, north of the Temple.

46-1f J. BAIR.

PUBLIC SALE.

WILL be sold at public auction on Monday the tenth day of April next at the late residence of Mrs. Lucy P. Oatman deceased in the town of LaHarpe Illinois, the personal property of the said deceased, consisting of house, and kitchen furniture, and a variety of clothing and other articles not enumerated. Terms of sale—all sums over five dollars, a credit of twelve months, the purchaser giving bond with approved security; all sums under five dollars cash in hand. Sale to commence at 10 o'clock A. M. and continue from day to day until all is sold.

GEORGE COULSON,
Executor of the estate of Lucy P. Oatman deceased.
LaHarpe March 8th 1843. 46 3w

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned has taken letters of administration on the estate of Jacob Earnest late of the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, deceased. All persons indebted to the said estate are requested to make immediate payment; and those having claims against the same are notified to present them to me at the Court of Probate of said county for settlement by the first Monday of July next.

REBECCA EARNEST,
Administratrix.
February 20th, 1843. 46 4w

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE.
 For the last thirteen years, a practitioner in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.
 Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.
 Jan. 21, 1843.—3m*

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
 In the Circuit Court of said County to May Term A. D. 1843.
 Alanson Taylor } Plaintiff
 vs. } In foreign attachment.
 Elias H. Maine & }
 James D. Band } Defendants.
 The plaintiff's agent and attorney herein having filed affidavit, that the defendants Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, are non-residents of this State. Notice is hereby given to the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court of the said County of Hancock, against the estate of you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band dated the 2d day of March A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Alanson Taylor, for the sum of one hundred and forty dollars with interest thereon from the 9th day of February A. D. 1842, directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock to execute, which said writ has been returned into the said Clerk's office, by the said Sheriff with an endorsement thereon, as follows, to wit: "Executed the within writ by reading the same to the within named Charles C. Maine, March 2d A. D. 1843. No property found in my county on which to levy this attachment." Now unless you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said circuit court for the County of Hancock on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court House in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to said plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Elias H. Maine and Jas. D. Band, in favor of the said Alanson Taylor, and execution will issue against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, of the said Charles C. Maine, as garnishee to satisfy the said debt and cost.
 J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clk.
 J. H. Sherman, Atty. for plaintiff.
 March 3rd 1843. tf.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
 In the Hancock Circuit Court Ill. Oct. Term A. D. 1842.
 IN CHANCERY.
 David W. Mathews } Complainant
 vs. } Bill of Injunction.
 E. A. Nexsen, }
 Simeon Albee, & } Defendants.
 Chester P. Brady }
 This day came the complainant by his solicitors, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that E. A. Nexsen one of the above named defendants is a non-resident of this State: It is therefore, on the application of complainant's solicitors, ordered that unless the said E. A. Nexsen shall personally be and appear before the Judge of this Court on or before the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court house in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May A. D. 1843, and answer the allegations and charges contained in said complainant's bill which has been exhibited against him in the said Court on the Chancery side thereof, the same will be taken as confessed against him and the matters thereof decreed accordingly.—And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published in some public newspaper printed in this State for four weeks successively, once at least in each week, the first insertion thereof to be made at least sixty days previous to the next term of this Court, to which term this cause is continued.
 J. B. BACKENSTOS Clerk
 Feb. 24th 1843. 44-4w.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
 In the Circuit Court of said County, to the May Term A. D. 1843.
 Lewis Hyde
 vs.
 Robert Allison
 IN ATTACHMENT.
 NOTICE is hereby given to the said Robert Allison, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the Clerk's office of the said Circuit Court, dated the 22d day of January A. D. 1843, at the suit of the said Lewis Hyde, and against the estate of you the said Robert Allison for the sum of three hundred and fifty-eight dollars, (358.00) directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock, which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff into the said Clerk's office, levied upon the estate of Robert Allison. Now unless you, the said Robert Allison, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court House in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to the to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Robert Allison, in favor of the said Lewis Hyde, and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.
 Dated this 25th day of Feb. A. D. 1843.
 J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk.
 Geo. Bachman, Plaintiff's Atty.
 no 44 tf or sc.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!
 THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.
 The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,
 Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING.

in all its various branches; and having employed skillfull, and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

	PRICES.
Quartos half Bound plain	1.50
do do do neat	2.00
do whole bound plain	2.00
do do do neat	2.50
Octavo full bound plain	1.00
do do do neat	1.50
do hf bound plain	0.75
do do do neat	1.00
do do do extra	1.37
Twelves full bound plain	.62
do do do neat	.87
do hf bound plain	.50
do do do neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.
 Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843.
 no42-tf.

MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispenation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.
 This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are prepared, is the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by
 (22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
 Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

NO CURE NO PAY.

DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.
 Nauvoo, Jan. 28, 1842 39-tf.

LOOK HERE!

THE undersigned will exchange city or country property, for the breaking of seventy or more acres of prairie; also for a pair of Mules; a sett of Blacksmith's tools; and a first rate two-horse wagon. He will also take Illinois State and Shawneetown paper in exchange for property, or on debts due him at fifty-cents on the dollar, if delivered before the 15th of April. He will pay cash for green calf-skins.
HIRAM KIMBALL.
 March 15th 1843.

N. B. Those concerned, will recollect the first of April is near at hand, a hint to the wise is sufficient.
 H. K. Agent.

J. C. SKINNER,
 Attorney and Counsellor at Law, and Solicitor in Chancery.
WILL practice in Hancock and the contiguous counties. Office with G. Hills, Esq., a few rods south east of the Temple.
 REFERENCES.
 Hon. H. Bell, Greenville, Ohio.
 G. B. Holt, Dayton,
 G. P. Bell, Hamilton,
 Wm. Burney, Cincinnati,
 Hon. S. A. Douglass, Springfield Ill.
 Dec. 31, 1842. no35-3m.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
 Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
 Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO
 H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
 Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
 A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
 Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
 December 10, 1842. no32-6m*

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage, to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
HIRAM KIMBALL.
 Nauvoo January 13 1843. tf

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic.
 no35-6m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS!
 J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
 Joseph Johnson, Ramus
 J. Salsbery, Plymouth,
 Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
 L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
 Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
 Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.
IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
 Levi Moffet, Augusta.
 Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.
 Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
 John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
 B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.
 Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
 James Curtis, Horners Town.
 W. I. Appleby, Recluse Town.
 Israel Ivina, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS!
 Erastus Snow, Salem.
 Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.
 S. S. Holmes, Lapeer.

OHIO.
 John Johnson, Kirtland.
NEW YORK.
 L. Charles Thompson, Batavia.
 L. R. Foster, city of New York

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 49

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, April 5, 1843.

Whole Number 4

PROSPECTUS

OF A
WEEKLY NEWSPAPER.

CALLED

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR.

We feel pleasure in announcing to our readers and to the public generally, that we have determined to enlarge the Wasp to double its size; as soon as the present volume shall be completed, which will be on the 19th of April.

It made its appearance in the world near twelve months ago; small in stature, dressed in a very humble garb, and under very inauspicious circumstances. It was then thought by many that its days would not be long in the land, and that at any rate it would not survive the sickly season. Many of its elder brethren who thought that they had attained to the size of manhood sneered contemptuously at the idea of their smaller, and younger brother taking the field, and like David's brethren they thought that he was but a stripling, and that he would certainly fall by the hand of some of the great Goliath's; but on the contrary while some of advanced years, noble mein, and possessing a more formidable appearance have given up the ghost, the little Wasp has held on the even tenor of his way the untiring, unflinching supporter of integrity, righteousness and truth; neither courting the smiles, nor fearing the frowns of political demagogues, angry partizans, nor fawning sycophants. Partaking so much of the nature of the industrious bee, it has gathered honey from every flower, and its pages are now read with interest by a large, and respectable number of subscribers.

As the young gentleman is now nearly a year old, we propose on his birth day to put him on a new dress, and to make him double the size, that he may begin to look up in the world, and not be ashamed of associating with his older brethren; and as he has acted the part of a good samaritan, we propose giving him a new name.—Therefore his name shall no longer be called THE WASP, but the NEIGHBOR.

The "Nauvoo Neighbor" will be published on a large improved sheet, got up in good style, and with care, and taste. It will be edited by JOHN TAYLOR, and will be devoted to the dissemination of useful knowledge of every description;—The Arts, Science, Religion, Literature, Agriculture, Manufactures, Trade, Commerce and the general news of the day.

We propose publishing from the best authorities a Bank Note Table corrected weekly; and also a list of the prices current, in the principle Eastern and Western cities, as well as in our own city.

We shall publish a weekly record of deaths in our city, and all ordinances passed by the City Council; the proceedings of Courts Martial, Military Parades, the principal transactions of the Municipal Court, and every thing of interest that transpires in, and about our city.

Articles on agriculture will be furnished from the best sources, which will make the Neighbor a welcome visitor to our farmers and gardeners.

Concerning Politics we shall not be silent; but reserve to ourselves the right of judging of all measures, parties, and men; and without respect to party, award to all individuals of whom we may have occasion to speak, the true reward of merit or demerit, without prejudice or restraint.

We have sent to Europe to effect an exchange with some of the principal newspapers, in London, Berlin, Paris, and Liverpool, from which we shall be able to furnish to our European friends, as well as American, news that will be interesting. And as we do now exchange with most of the principal papers in the United States, both east, west, north and south, we flatter ourselves, that with the facilities of obtaining information that we possess, and a little care and attention on our part, that the "Nauvoo Neighbor" will be second to none in the west.

The "Neighbor" will be published every Wednesday, by TAYLOR & WOODRUFF, at the corner of Water and Bain streets, Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill. and its price will be two dollars payable in all cases in advance. Any person procuring five new subscribers and forwarding us ten dollars current money, shall be entitled to one volume gratis.

It must be obvious to all business men, that from the character of the Nauvoo Neighbor, and on account of its extensive circulation, it will afford a first rate medium of advertising. ADVERTISEMENTS conspicuously inserted on reasonable terms.

LETTER FOURTH.

Lung fever and Canker.

Agreeable to promise, inflammation of the lungs, or what is commonly called "lung fever," will now receive our attention. The lungs are one of the most delicate organs in structure, and important in office, of any in the human system.

The elements which compose the lungs, are the ramifications of the windpipe, those of the pulmonary artery and veins, together with the organic elements, which appertain to every living structure, such as arteries, veins, nerves, &c.

The ramifications of the windpipe, form the cavity of the organs of respiration.

Nothing is better established than the fact that no being can continue to live, unless it is supplied with blood, which has become arterial by exposure to the air.—This change takes place in the lungs, by the blood coming into contact with the air in the air cells. The blood absorbs a portion of oxygen from the air, and gives out a portion of carbonic acid gas to it. The surface afforded by the air cells is immense. It is estimated to be not less than 20,000 square inches, or near 140 square feet. This extent of surface is surprising when we consider the small size of the lungs themselves. Breathing or Respiration is carried on without volition, it being as necessary in the sleeping, as in the waking state. I will now mention a case, that occurred under my own observation, about six years ago. A man of common size, aged sixty years, apparently in good health, was found to cease breathing on going to sleep; but immediately on waking would again resume a natural breathing. He frequently became so exhausted for sleep, that he would go to sleep standing, or in any other position. This condition continued until he expired.

No medical gentleman has ever given me a satisfactory solution of this anomalous case. Who will account for it? But to return. The lungs affording so large a surface, and being spread over with, and formed of so many minute vessels, are very liable to inflammation, on account of the various states, and sudden changes of the air, that must come into contact with them.

Symptoms, pain in the breast, cough, with difficulty of breathing, attended with fever, and a flushing of one or both cheeks. One of the distinguishing symptoms of this disease is a frequent pulse, from one hundred and thirty to one hundred and forty beats in a minute.

Sympathetic fever will attend the inflammation of any important organ, hence the impropriety of calling this disease "lung fever." We could, with the same propriety, say liver fever, when the liver is inflamed, or stomach fever in inflammation of the stomach, &c. This would be nonsense, but not more so than to call an inflammation of the lungs, "lung fever." Besides, this term is liable to mislead the mind, by conveying a wrong idea of the disease, as some physicians say "this lung fever must run its course; which they assert it will do in from seven to nine days. But it is as evident that the fever will cease when the inflammation is removed, as that an effect will cease, when the cause is removed.

But to make a short story of a long one, the fever will cease as soon as you can arrest the inflammation, which may be accomplished within the first forty eight hours, by lessening the frequency of the pulse and throwing the patient into a general perspiration. I am aware, that inflammation of the lungs may be attended, with bilious derangements, which would most likely take place in the fall season, and in persons of a bilious temperament. It may also be attended with a degree of intermittent fever in miasmatic districts, that is to say, where ague is prevalent, or it may be attended with a Typhus Fever in cold weather, when the system is low and hard pressed for the want of bracing air, and suitable nourishment.

This last case requires great medical discrimination, the system must be supported with tonics, therefore, you cannot deplete to remove the inflammation, which is about to destroy the lungs, and tonics, which are necessary to support life, must be given with great care, or you will increase the inflammation.

Then the above diseases would be named as follows: Simple inflammation of the lungs, (improperly called lung fever;) ague with inflammation of the lungs; bilious fever with inflammation of the lungs; typhus fever with inflammation of the lungs, which is a most fatal disease.

I shall now notice a disease commonly called canker, which is prevalent in some parts of the western country. With a certain class of enthusiasts, especially those laboring under that form of Mental Disease called Tomsonian Mania almost every thing is canker, from the slightest fur or coating on the tongue, up to that alarming form of gangrene and mortification, which sometimes makes its appearance and destroys the flesh speedily, in whatever part it attacks, by consuming it away.

I wish to state in as few words as possible, the cause of this disease, with its proper treatment. It is similar to sea scurvy, and originates from nearly the same causes; namely, want of pure air, proper nourishment, &c. Many persons are subject to the inconvenience of small rooms, some of them in a damp situation, they are restricted in their diet to corn bread and salt meat, this diet being more readily obtained than any other. A child, whose nature requires milk, will become unhealthy on the above food, or if it receives its nourishment from the mothers breast, when she is confined on the above diet, its blood may become putrid. The remedy to be prescribed is an improvement in our houses, in our diet, &c. Fresh vegetables, ripe acid fruits, and wheat flour bread, are necessary, with cows milk, and a peck of sour kroust instead of a pound of baberry or canker medicine of any kind. Sour kroust is an excellent remedy for grown persons, being good against that putrescent state of the blood in which the gangrene above mentioned takes place. I will now say to exclusive or ultra Tomsonians that we ought to rejoice in all the truth that Dr. Thompson has advanced in his system, and every medical gentleman would do well to take heed thereunto.—But it would be folly in the extreme, to embrace one truth in any system, to the rejection of every other true principle. We might as well say, because any one of the religious systems of the day contains one truth, that is sufficient to accomplish the salvation of all mankind in the great work of God, in the last days. It is characteristic of human nature to run into extremes. Is there any propriety in saying we will no longer be priest ridden, and yet we will submit to the foolish dogmas of the day in medicine; for what can be said of one system in medicine may be said of them all; they are purely sectarian.

Arise and shine ye intelligencies of the earth, who have thrown off bigotry, and superstition, and imposition of every kind.
H. TATE.

China—Western Products.—The quantity of Missouri Lead shipped to China in 1842 was about 100,000 pigs, weighing 3300 tons, and valued at $250,000 and upwards. The whole quantity of lead exported in 1842 was 300,000 pigs—one half of which, it will be seen, went to China. The whole quantity of lead produced in the U. States, is about 500,000 pigs, and China takes one-fifth of the whole. The article of Ginseng also a product of our western states, is shipped largely to China, and the value of this wild western root sent thence, within the last twelve or fifteen months, amounts to upwards of a million of dollars.

THE DEVIL.—A lady meeting in the street a gentleman who was frightfully ugly, took him by the hand led him to the shop of a satuary, to whom she said, "just like this," and departed. The gentleman, astonished, asked the meaning of this: the lady has employed me to make a figure of the devil, and as I had no model she promised to bring me one.

An Irishman writing a sketch of his life says he ran away from his father because he discovered he was only his uncle!

Whirlpool.—A large one, it is said has been formed in the Mississippi river, about 300 miles below St. Louis, since the recent earthquake.

HALOS AND PARHELIA.

This morning, between the hours of six and nine o'clock, the heavens exhibited a splendid and delightful appearance, of halos or circles, accompanied with parhelia or mock suns. Clouds of a white and fleecy appearance were, at the time, floating in the atmosphere, but so thin, as not to entirely obscure the blue sky.—The wind blew very gently from the west by north-west. The cold being intense, especially for the time of year, and small crystals of ice or snow were visible, floating in the air.

The following diagram represents these beautiful phenomena as they appeared about half past seven o'clock, A. M. The magnitudes of the circles given in the following description may not be exact, as I was destitute of the proper instruments for their accurate measurement.

1st. Let z be the zenith directly under which the observer is stationed, looking to the east. Let the outer circle represent the horizon, s the true sun about 18 degrees above the horizon, surrounded by a very bright prismatic circle not far from 45 degrees in diameter; the lower limb of which extended below the horizon nearly 4 1-2 degrees. Its breadth and colours were about the same as that of a common rainbow; nearly all the prismatic colours were discernible; the red being on the concave part of the circle next the sun.

On each side of the sun, at a and b towards the north and south, there were two mock suns of different colours, very splendid and bright in their appearance.

2nd. The sun was encircled by another halo, $k n i m$, much larger than the former, and parallel to it, being nearly 90 degrees in diameter, and its lower limb being sunk below the horizon about 27 degrees. It exhibited the same colours as the first, though not so bright.

3d. At the tops of these circles, $m c$ and i , were two inverted arches whose common centre seemed to lay in the zenith. The upper arch, $f i h$, was exceedingly brilliant and beautifully coloured, and appeared to be about 54 degrees in diameter, and that of the lower one, $d e$ about 99 degrees. Another parhelia or mock sun, appeared in the middle of the lower arch, at c , where it coincided with the circle first described, but its colours and brightness were much inferior to those of the collateral mock suns at a and b .

4th. There appeared a circle, $m b s a n t r$, much larger than any I have yet described, being about 144 degrees in diameter, and of a uniform whiteness. It was about 18 degrees above the horizon, and parallel to it, passing through the true sun, s , and the collateral parhelia, a and b , and also through two other parhelia, t and r , something about 90 or 100 degrees from the sun, one towards the north the other towards the south. The parhelia, t and r , were of a whitish colour, and not very distinctly seen. The intersections, m and n , of this circle with the circle $k i m$, were rendered more distinctly visible than other portions of the two circles.

These beautiful and curious phenomena, doubtless owe their origin to the refraction of the sun's rays through the minute, though differently shaped prismatic crystals of ice and snow, which float in the atmosphere.

Equilateral and quadrilateral prisms of ice and snow, are formed by the process of crystallization; the former prisms having angles of 60 degrees, the latter, angles of 90 degrees. Rays of light from the sun, passing through the former, would necessarily, according to the established laws of refraction, produce a coloured or prismatic halo of about 45 degrees in diameter; while rays passing through the latter, would, as may be geometrically demonstrated according to the known laws of Dioptrics, produce a colored halo of about 90 degs. in diameter.

Halos may be artificially produced, by interposing transparent crystals between the eye and a luminous body, the diameters of which will depend on the refractive power and shape of the substance composing the crystals.

O. PRATT, A. M.

Professor of Mathematics in the University of the City of Nauvoo.
March 23, 1843.

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 5, 1843.

It will be recollected that we published two or three weeks ago an extract from a letter written to one of our correspondents, by a friend of his in the east, stating that the Somers case was likely to go against Captain McKenzie. Our eastern exchanges at the present, strongly confirm that idea, and show clearly that the case is turning against him. It is considered by many, that the course which he took was illegal, and some think that he will be tried for murder; nor are factitious alone in this thing, it would seem, from the following extracts, that according to British law, such proceedings would be considered murder.

From the London United Service Journal.

LYNCH LAW AFLOAT!—The papers tell us of an awkward, but we term it a most horrible affair, which is stated to have happened on board the United States brig Somers, on her recent voyage home from Africa. We own that at the first reading of the account, we concluded it was a mere galley-yarn, spun by some admirer of Cooper's novels; but as the Commander's own description has appeared, we feel bound to notice the transaction, and may, perhaps, at a future day discuss it at large.

Mutiny is a frightful thing in a ship, and when once hatched, requires prompt and decisive measures to prevent its contamination spreading. But the case before us is singularly remarkable in its several bearings; for the plan said to be under concoction had not been manifested by any tangible act, and the embryo projects were revealed to the proper authority, which authority must have been fully competent to the suppression, or the crew would not have become executioners of the mutineer prisoners. We hope, for the cause of general humanity, that the affair will be properly and rightly enquired into; and that due investigation will place the matter in an equivocal light. We own, on the face of the affair, that we are surprised how Lieut. McKenzie could prevail on the generous sons of America—America so free and enlightened—to clap on the yard ropes in such Lynch like fashion; but we suddenly recollected all about back woods gouging, and biting, and slaving and other ferocious practices, and were satisfied that Jonathan has yet much to learn in civilization.

From the London Standard, of Jan. 30.

The United States Service Gazette contains a very able and useful article upon the late shocking case of Lynch, in the American navy. The case to which we allude, is that of Capt. Sidel Mackenzie, who, upon pretence of mutiny, hanged one of his midshipmen and two of his petty officers without trial, and upon suspicions wholly unsupported by proof. This monstrous cruelty would be incredible upon almost any testimony but that of the murderer himself; but our readers have seen Capt. McKenzie's own statement—have even seen his confession, that a principle reason with him for hanging Mr. Midshipman Spencer, (one of the unfortunate victims,) was the conviction that Spencer could not be put to death if brought home to be legally tried; and also the postscript, requesting for his own (Capt. McKenzie's) nephew the vacancy in the midshipman's berth, which he (the captain) had made by the sailor that strangled Spencer. How the American authorities may dispose of Capt. S. McKenzie, we are yet unable to say; but that the murderer can anticipate less than to find his own neck encircled by Spencer's halter, proves an extremely unwholesome state of feeling in the American navy. Lynch law is bad enough in the back woods, but when it finds its way among the responsible servants of the state, we may pronounce the near approach of anarchy. The particulars of McKenzie's case are too well treated by our excellent weekly contemporary to allow that we allude to them very minutely. To us it is plain that the wretched murderer committed his crime under the influence of the most abject, the most seditious cowardice.

If ever there was any purpose of mutiny, which may be doubtful, it was perfectly in his power to frustrate it, by running the vessel into any of the neighboring ports, (several British and other ports being within a few hours' sail of him); for he does not pretend, that even for a single moment he lost the command of the ship and crew. Indeed, the fact that he hanged his three (we believe innocent) shipmates by the hands of his crew, is proof beyond dispute that he had complete command of the ship? And why did he hang them? No mutiny had exploded—no blow had been struck. An intention only was suspected, and suspected upon very doubtful evidence, and for this suspected intention these young men were taken from the irons in which they had been three days fastened, (one would think tolerable security for their behavior,) and upon ten minutes' notice that they must prepare for death, without trial, hanged at the yard arm. If McKenzie's conduct is supported by law, the law must be changed, or the American navy is doomed. If, as we suspect, that in the idiocy of his poltroonery he violated the law, then the service can be saved in no other way than by hanging up the cowardly butcher.

THE BRITISH TREATY.

The Speaker laid before the House the following communication from the President, in answer to a resolution on the subject of the construction of that portion of the treaty of Washington which relates to the right of visitation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27, 1843.

To the House of Representatives:

In compliance with the resolution of the House of Representatives of the 22d inst. requesting me to communicate to the House "whatever correspondence or communications may have been received from the British Government respecting the President's construction of the late British treaty concluded at Washington, as it concerns an alleged right to visit American vessels," I herewith transmit a report made to me by the Secretary of State.

I have also thought proper to communicate copies of Lord Aberdeen's letter of the 20th December, 1841, to Mr. Everett, Mr. Everett's letter of the 23d December, in reply thereto, and extracts from several letters of Mr. Everett to the Secretary of State.

I cannot forego the expression of my regret at the apparent purport of a part of Lord Aberdeen's despatch to Mr. Fox. I had cherished the hope that all possibility of misunderstanding as to the true construction of the 8th article of the treaty lately concluded between Great Britain and the United States, was precluded by the plain and well weighed language in which it was expressed. The desire of both Governments is to put an end as speedily as possible to the slave trade, and that desire, I need scarcely add, is as strongly and as sincerely felt by the United States as it can be by Great Britain. Yet it must not be forgotten that trade, though now universally reprobated, was up to a late period, prosecuted by all who choose to engage in it, and there were unfortunately but very few Christian Powers whose subjects were not permitted and even encouraged to share in the profits of what was regarded as a perfectly legitimate commerce. It originated at a period long before the United States had become independent, and was carried on within our borders in opposition to the most earnest remonstrances and expostulations of some of the colonies in which it was most actively prosecuted. Those engaged in it were as little liable to enquiry or interruption as any other. Its character thus fixed by common consent and general practice, could only be changed by the positive assent of each and every nation, expressed either in the form of municipal law, or conventional arrangement. The United States led the way in efforts to suppress it. They claimed no right to dictate to others, but they refused, without waiting for the co-operation of other Powers, to prohibit it to their own citizens, and to visit its perpetration by them with condign punishment. I may safely affirm that it never accrued to it from the position it had thus assumed in regard to the slave trade. If before, our laws for its suppression, the flag of every nation might traverse the ocean unquestioned by our cruisers, this freedom was not, in our opinion, in the least abridged by our municipal legislation.

Any other doctrine, it is plain would to an arbitrary and ever varying system of maritime police, adopted at will by the great naval Power for the time being, the trade of the world in any places or in any articles which such Power might see fit to prohibit to its own subjects or citizens. A principle of this kind could scarcely be acknowledged without subjecting commerce to a constant and harassing vexation.

The attempt to justify such a pretension from the right to visit and detain ships upon reasonable suspicion of piracy, would deservedly be exposed to universal condemnation, since it would be an attempt to convert an established rule of maritime law, incorporated as a principle into the international code by the consent of all nations, into a rule and principle adopted by a single nation, and enforced only by its assumed authority. To seize and detain a ship on suspicion of piracy, with probable cause and in good faith, affords no just ground either for complaint on the part of the nation whose flag she bears, or claim of indemnity on the part of the owner. The universal law sanctions, and the common good requires, the existence of such a rule. The right, under such circumstances, not only to visit and detain, but to search a ship, is a perfect right, and involves neither responsibility nor indemnity. But, with this single exception, no nation has, in time of peace, any authority to detain the ships of another upon the high seas on any pretext whatever beyond the limits of the territorial jurisdiction. And such I am happy to find, is substantially the doctrine of Great Britain herself, in her most recent official declarations, and even in those now communicated to the House. These declarations may well lead us to doubt whether the apparent difference between the two Governments is not rather one of definition than of principle. Not only is the right of search, properly so called, disclaimed by Great Britain, but even that of mere visit and inquiry is asserted with qualifications inconsistent with the idea of a perfect right.

In the despatch of Lord Aberdeen to Mr. Everett of the 20th of December, 1841, as also in that just received by the British Minister in this country, made to Mr. Fox, his lordship declares that if, in spite of every precaution which shall be used to prevent such occurrences, an American ship, by reason of any visit or detention by a British cruiser, "should suffer loss and injury, it would be followed by prompt and ample remuneration;" and in order to make more manifest his intentions in this respect, Lord Aberdeen, in the despatch of the 20th of December, makes known to Mr. Everett the nature of the instructions given to the British cruisers. These are such as, if faithfully observed, would enable the British Government to approximate the standard of a fair indemnity. That Government has in several cases fulfilled her promises in this particular by making adequate reparation for damage done to our commerce. It seems obvious to remark, that a right which is only to be exercised under such restrictions and precautions, and risk, in case of assignable damage, to be followed by the consequences of a trespass, can scarcely be considered any thing more than a privilege asked for, and either conceded or withheld on the usual principles of international comity.

The principles laid down in Lord Aberdeen's despatches, and the assurances of indemnity therein held out, although the utmost reliance was placed on the good faith of the British Government, were not regarded by the Executive as a sufficient security against the abuses which Lord Aberdeen admitted might arise in even the most cautious and moderate exercise of their new maritime police; and, therefore, in my message at the opening of the last session, I set forth the views entertained by the Executive on this subject, and substantially affirmed both our inclination and ability to enforce our own laws, protect our flag from abuse, and acquit ourselves of all our duties and obligations on the high seas. In view of these assertions, the Treaty of Washington was negotiated, and upon consultation with the British negotiator as to the quantum of force necessary to be employed in order to attain these objects the result to which the most deliberate estimate led was embodied in the eighth article of the treaty.

Such were my views at the time of negotiating that treaty, and such in my opinion, is its plain and fair interpretation. I regarded the eighth article as removing all possible pretext, on the ground of mere necessity, to visit and detain our ships upon the African coast because of any alleged abuse of our flag by slave traders of other nations. We had taken upon ourselves the burden of preventing any such abuse by stipulating to furnish an armed force regarded by both the high contracting parties as sufficient to accomplish that object.

Denying, as we did, and do, all color of right to exercise any such general police over the flags of independent nations; we did not demand of Great Britain any formal renunciation of her pretension, still less had we the idea of yielding any thing ourselves in that respect. We chose to make a practical settlement of the question. This we owe to what we had already done upon this subject. The honor of the country called for it, the honor of its flag demanded that should it not be used by others to cover an iniquitous traffic. This Government, I am very sure, has both the inclination and the ability to do this; and, if need be, it will not content itself with a fleet of eighty guns, but sooner than any foreign Government shall exercise the privilege of executing its laws and fulfilling its obligations, the highest of which is to protect its flag alike from abuse or insult, it would, I doubt not, put in requisition for that purpose its whole naval power. The purpose of this Government is faithfully to fulfil the treaty on its part, and it will not permit itself to doubt that Great Britain will comply with it on hers. In this way, peace will best be preserved, and the most amicable relations maintained between the two countries.

JOHN TYLER.

ELDER ADAMS AND MILLER.

In his discourse, on Sunday evening, at Boylston Hall, Mr. Adams stated that he was listening to one of Miller's lectures in New York, when he requested to know of Miller how he had determined the time of the world's end, without a special revelation from God. Miller said he did not pretend to be a prophet or to have received a revelation, as all prophecy and revelation ceased forever with the apostles; but he said he had got his knowledge by reckoning the days of Daniel. Elder Adams then replied—"It was said by Jesus,—"that no man, neither the angels, nor the Son knew the time;" yet the angels, and the Son, and the apostles could have counted up the figures of Daniel, as well as you can; so that, unless you have had a revelation from God, you are yourself above the angels, and the Son, and all the apostles."

Indeed, this argument is very conclusive; for the 2300 days of Daniel are Miller's conclusive argument. Yet it was an angel who revealed this to Daniel, and surely the angels, and the Savior, could have reckoned up the time, from those days as well as Miller!

Now, neither Miller, nor his disciples, have ever pretended to answer this argument. We leave every honest man to draw the inference.

There is another little affair which has not been explained. Before the last day, there was to be a season of dreadful persecution. Miller said, in his book.

"Mankind will, for a short season, give loose to all the corrupt passions of the human heart. No laws, human or divine, will be regarded; all authority will be trampled under foot; anarchy will be the order of government, and confusion fill the earth, with horror and despair. Murder, treason, and crime will be common law, and division and disunion the only bond of fellowship. Christians will be persecuted unto death, and dens and caves of the earth will be their retreat. All things which are not eternal will be shaken to pieces, that that which cannot be shaken may remain."

All this was to happen two or three years before the destruction of the world! If people would only use their common sense, they would perceive that, thus far, Miller's predictions have failed in every thing.—But Miller and his friends quietly pass over all these things and say nothing about them.—Uncle Sam.

SUBMARINE TELESCOPE.

Among the many important inventions of the age none is likely to equal that of the Submarine Telescope, a description of which we find in the American Mechanic. This Telescope is the invention of a lady, Mrs. Sarah P. Mathers, and by means of it a person is able to examine the bottom of rivers, bays, lakes, and other deep waters, from the surface. The water is perfectly illuminated by it, and thus becomes perceptibly clear and distinct, as though air instead of water intervened. Experiments have fully tested the practical utility of this Telescope; but since submitting it to these tests, the fair inventress is said to have made an improvement; by means of which, when standing on the deck of the vessel, we may examine every part of the hull as distinctly as we can see ourselves in a mirror; and this is accomplished by the application of a well known principle—that of placing mirrors or reflectors within the Telescope, by means of which a side light reflects, and shows the bottom of the vessels perfectly plain. We agree with the editor of the American Mechanic, "that this invention should be at once applied to the removal of the obstructions in the Mississippi and other rivers, and for the discovery of those unfortunate boats, and the recovery of the imperishable parts of the cargoes which have been almost daily lost there, and amount to many millions of dollars per annum. Another great advantage this Telescope affords, is its illuminating turbid or 'rily' water—no matter how turbid—is effectually as though it was clear as crystal. A pin has been distinctly seen in the muddy bottom of our bay, on a windy day, at the depth of two and twenty feet! The object once discovered and illuminated there needs no invention to raise it to the surface."

If a title of the benefit which is here proposed can be accomplished by the use of this invention, Congress should not hesitate about adequately rewarding the inventress, nor in appropriating it to every purpose of which it is susceptible.—[St. Louis New Era.

An Artificial Soprano.—"A mechanism of a little town in Bohemia," says the Paris Constitutionnel, has constructed an automaton which imitates perfectly the human voice, particularly the soprano notes. It sings several difficult airs with the greatest accuracy. Snakes, runs, and chromatic scales are all executed with surprising precision. This automaton, in singing, even pronounces certain words, so as to be easily understood. The inventor hopes to arrive at such a point of perfection as to bring his machine to pronounce all the words of the best operas. He intends shortly making a journey to Prague and Vienna; to give concerts, and from thence to Paris and the other cities of Europe."

HEAD QUARTERS.

NAUVOO LEGION,

April 3d, 1843.

SPECIAL ORDER.

THE Nauvo Legion are hereby ordered to parade on the usual ground, in this city on Saturday the 6th day of May next, at 10 o'clock, A. M., completely armed and equipped, for inspection.

It is hoped that every company, both in the city and throughout the whole country, belonging to the Legion will turn out on that day, in such style as to do honor to themselves, the Legion and the State of Illinois, as the Inspector General Major General, Arlington Bennett will be here on that day in glittering uniform, cap-a-pie, from his residence on Long Island, N. Y. to inspect the Legion.

Any field officers or volunteer companies in the regions round about, who may wish to parade with us on the occasion, will be received with proper respect and courtesy. The order of the day will be made known on the day of the cohort parade.

By order of the Lieutenant General,

JOSEPH SMITH.

WILSON LAW,
Major General, N. L.

Blacker.—He was brave as a lion, an adroit and ready tactician, and, as Bonaparte observed of the British soldier, never knew when he was beaten. "His jests," says the Quarterly Review, "frequently of a description ill calculated for chaste ears, extorted grim smiles from lips black with cartridge, and sent laughter through the column, while grape shot was tearing its ranks. When he checked his horse in the hottest cannonades, to light his pipe at the linstock of the gunner, the piece was probably not the worse served. Towards the close of the campaign in France, the infirmities of age at one moment almost induced him to contemplate the abandonment of his command, and to retire into the Netherlands, but the spirit triumphed over the flesh, and though unable to remain in the saddle for the last attack on Montmartre, he gave his orders with clearness and precision from a carriage. His appearance on this occasion must have taxed the gravity of his staff, for to protect his eyes, then in a state of violent inflammation, the grisley veteran had replaced his cocked hat by a French lady's bonnet and veil!"

Great Storm.—On the 13th ult, a dreadful hurricane occurred on the British Coast. The exact amount of loss which it has occasioned will perhaps never be ascertained. Upwards of seventy fishing boats, with an hundred, were lost on Galway Bay, and the distress which this calamity has inflicted on the population of the place is truly melancholy. On the coast of Morne, several fishing boats were overtaken by the gale, and, together with the crew of the boat which mercifully, attempted to rescue them, were utterly lost. The vicinity of the catastrophe which has left fifty families destitute is described as one wide scene of mourning. The steamer Monk was lost in Carnarvon Bay, and more than thirty souls perished. A magnificent ship, the Conqueror, of 800 tons burthen, on her voyage from Calcutta to London, was wrecked off the coast of Boulogne; of the 80 persons on board of her, all, with the exception of a boy, perished. The Jessie Logan, of 1000 tons burthen, from India to Liverpool, after encountering fearful hardships in the channel, was totally lost off the Cornish coast.

Eggs Eggs.—There was a statement made in some of the Boston papers, respecting the produce of eighty-three hens, belonging to Mr. H. G. Tucker of Milton, which was said to be six hundred dozen during last year. A person in this town purchased some hens last January, for an experiment, and from ten had ninety-three dozen eggs, besides raising fifteen chickens. The whole expense of keeping the hens was defrayed by the avails of forty-one dozen of eggs sold. Corn and barley was their principal food, and this was kept before them continually.

[Newburyport Herald.

The Ohio House of Representatives has voted to adjourn on the 13th inst. The Senate will concur.

DEATHS, for the week ending Monday the 27th ult.—Elizabeth Burns, aged 38 years; of consumption.

For the week ending Monday the 3rd inst. Levi Knight, aged 20 years; of consumption. W. D. HUNTINGTON, Sexton.

FOR SALE.

THE south half of section 19, 7 n 5 w. s w of n w 20, 7 n 5 w. s w of n e 20 7 n 5 w. The above land lays west of LaHarpe from one to two miles. Also the n e of n w 19, 6 n 5 w. about six miles south of LaHarpe. And the west half of n e 6, 6 n 6 w; near Pilot Grove; the n w of the n e q r of sec 22, 5 n 5 w near Bartlett's Mills, on Crooket creek; the north half of the s w of sec two 4 n 4 w and s w of the s e of sec 35 5 n 4 w in McDonough county. All the above tracts are congress titles. The s w q r of 14, 6 n 7 w. s e q r of 29, 5 n 7 w. s w q r of 17, 7 n 5 w. and 20 acres adjoining the town of Macomb, in McDonough co. the last mentioned tracts are patent or tax titles. Also town lots in the towns of Warsaw, Pulaski, Appanoose &c. and about one thousand acres of good land in Iowa Territory. The above lands and lots will be sold on liberal terms, most of it in good trade; those wishing to purchase any or all of the tracts can enquire of

HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvo April 4th 1843.

P. S. Also two new milch cows for sale. no 49 tf.

THE subscriber having taken out letters of administration from the court of probate of Hancock county, Illinois, on the estate of J. D. Groves, dec'd, late of said county, requests all persons having claims against said estate, to present the same to him or the court of probate of said county for settlement, on the first Monday in May. All persons indebted to said estate, are requested to make immediate payment to the undersigned.

no 47 6t

A. P. RINGER,

Administrator of

J. D. GROVES, dec'd

March 18. A. D. 1843. no 47 6t

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
In the Hancock County Circuit Court, Ill. to the May Term A. D. 1843.

Joseph Carman

vs.

William H. Tinsly

IN ATTACHMENT.

Notice is hereby given to the said William H. Tinsly, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court, dated the fourth day of Feb. A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Joseph Carman, and against the estate of you, the said William H. Tinsly; for the sum of one hundred and ten dollars ($110.00) directed to the Sheriff of Hancock county; which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff, into the clerk's office, levied upon the estate of William H. Tinsly. Now unless you, the said William H. Tinsly, shall be and appear before the judge of the said circuit court on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the court house in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail, and plead to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said William H. Tinsly, in favor of the said Joseph Carman and the estate so attached with be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk

Geo. Bachman Pltiff's Atty.

Dated March 9th 1843.

46 4w

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no 29-if.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE.

FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvo and the surrounding country.

Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.

Jan. 21, 1843.—3m*

MILITARY NOTICE.

THE third regiment, second cohort of the Nauvoo Legion, are hereby notified that there will be an election for Colonel, to fill the place of Samuel Ben, resigned. The election will be held at the stone school house, on the third Saturday of April next, at one o'clock, P. M.

CHARLES C. RICH,
Brig'dr Gen'l.

BOOT AND SHOE MAKER.

THE subscriber respectfully begs leave to inform the inhabitants of the City of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has lately arrived from Scotland (Britain) and has commenced business in the above line and from his long experience in the trade in all its branches and his determination to execute all orders that he may be favored with in a neat and fashionable manner. He at the same time warrants satisfaction of all work performed by him and upon the most reasonable terms; he therefore begs to merit a share of public support.

THOMAS JAAP.

Main st. opposite the Masonic Hall. Nauvoo, Feb. 10th 1843.

N. B. All orders from the country punctually attended to, and upon the shortest notice.

no 46 4w.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County. In the Circuit Court of said County to May Term A. D. 1843.

Alanson Taylor } Plaintiff
vs. } In foreign attachment.
Elias H. Maine & }
James D. Band } Defendants.

The plaintiff's agent and attorney herein having filed affidavit, that the defendants Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, are non-residents of this State. Notice is hereby given to the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court of the said County of Hancock, against the estate of you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band dated the 2d day of March A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Alanson Taylor, for the sum of one hundred and forty dollars with interest thereon from the 9th day of February A. D. 1842, directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock to execute, which said writ has been returned into the said Clerk's office, by the said Sheriff with an endorsement thereon, as follows, to wit: "Executed the within writ by reading the same to the within named Charles C. Maine, March 2d A. D. 1843. No property found in my county on which to levy this attachment, now unless you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said circuit court for the County of Hancock on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court House in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to said plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Elias H. Maine and Jas. D. Band, in favor of the said Alanson Taylor, and execution will issue against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, of the said Charles C. Maine, as garnishee to satisfy the said debt and cost.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clk.

J. H. Sherman, Atty. for plaintiff.
March 3rd 1843. if.

ADMINISTRATOR'S NOTICE.

NOTICE is hereby given that the undersigned has taken letters of administration on the estate of Jacob Earnest late of the county of Hancock and State of Illinois, deceased. All persons indebted to the said estate are requested to make immediate payment; and those having claims against the same are notified to present them to me at the Court of Probate of said county for settlement by the first Monday of July next.

REBECCA EARNEST,

Administratrix.

February 20th, 1843. 46 4w

NOTICE.

TWO house carpenters and one brick mason, with families are wanted at Shokokon. Constant employ will be given.

JOHN F. COWAN.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County. In the Circuit Court of said County, to the May Term A. D. 1843.

Lewis Hyde }
vs. } IN ATTACHMENT.
Robert Allison }

NOTICE Is hereby given to the said Robert Allison, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the Clerk's office of the said Circuit Court, dated the 22d day of January A. D. 1843, at the suit of the said Lewis Hyde, and against the estate of you the said Robert Allison for the sum of three hundred and fifty-eight dollars, ($358.00) directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock, which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff into the said Clerk's office, levied upon the estate of Robert Allison. Now unless you, the said Robert Allison, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court House in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to the to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Robert Allison, in favor of the said Lewis Hyde, and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.

Dated this 25th day of Feb. A. D. 1843.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk.

Geo. Bachman, Plaintiff's Atty.

no 44 if or sc.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Millenial Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING.

in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.

Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	do	whole	bound	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	hf	bound	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	hf	bound	plain	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843.

no42 4f.

SHERMAN'S MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES. These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community. A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22-y1.) J. SNIDER.

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

LOOK HERE!

THE undersigned will exchange city or country property, for the breaking of seventy or more acres of prairie; also for a pair of Mules; a sett of Blacksmith's tools; and a first rate two-horse wagon. He will also take Illinois State and Shawnee-town paper in exchange for property, or on debts due him at fifty-cents on the dollar, if delivered before the 15th of April. He will pay cash for green calf-skins.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

March 15th 1843.

N. B. Those concerned, will recollect the first of April is near at hand, a hint to the wise is sufficient.

H. K. Agent.

NOTICE.

Nauvoo Ill. March 13, 1843.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo that he has on hand a variety of Boots and Shoes manufactured from the best of eastern leather; and will do any work in his line, on the shortest notice; also wishes to purchase hides and skins, for which he will pay boots, shoes, or trade at his shop, on the corner of Hyrum and Page street, north of the Temple.

46-4f

J. BAIR.

NO CURE NO PAY.

DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.

Nauvoo, Jan. 28, 1842

39-4f.

BRADFORD & BROWN, Commission and Forwarding Merchants, Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw,
Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-6m*

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo January 13 1843. if

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic.

no35-6m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS.

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph Johnson, Ramus "
J. Salsbery, Plymouth, "
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike "
L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
James Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Rectless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS

Erastus Snow, Salem.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

L. Charles Thompson, Batavia.
R. L. Foster, city of New York

THE

WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 50

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, April 12, 1843.

Whole Number 50

PROSPECTUS

WEEKLY NEWSPAPER.

CALLED

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR.

We feel pleasure in announcing to our readers and to the public generally, that we have determined to enlarge the Wasp to double its size; as soon as the present volume shall be completed, which will be on the 19th of April.

It made its appearance in the world near twelve months ago; small in stature, dressed in a very humble garb, and under very inauspicious circumstances. It was then thought by many that its days would not be long in the land, and that at any rate it would not survive the sickly season. Many of its elder brethren who thought that they had attained to the size of manhood sneered contemptuously at the idea of their smaller, and younger brother taking the field, and like David's brethren they thought that he was but a stripling, and that he would certainly fall by the hand of some of the great Goliath's; but on the contrary while some of advanced years, noble mein, and possessing a more formidable appearance have given up the ghost, the little Wasp has held on the even tenor of his way the untiring, unflinching supporter of integrity, righteousness and truth; neither courting the smiles, nor fearing the frowns of political demagogues, angry partisans, nor fawning sycophants. Partaking so much of the nature of the industrious bee, it has gathered honey from every flower, and its pages are now read with interest by a large, and respectable number of subscribers.

As the young gentleman is now nearly a year old, we propose on his birth day to put him on a new dress, and to make him double the size, that he may begin to look up in the world, and not be ashamed of associating with his older brethren; and as he has acted the part of a good samarian, we propose giving him a new name.—Therefore his name shall no longer be called THE WASP, but the NEIGHBOR.

The "Nauvoo Neighbor" will be published on a large imperial sheet, got up in good style, and with care, and taste. It will be edited by JOHN TAYLOR, and will be devoted to the dissemination of useful knowledge of every description.—The Arts, Science, Religion, Literature, Agriculture, Manufactures, Trade, Commerce and the general news of the day.

We propose publishing from the best authorities a Bank Note Table corrected weekly; and also a list of the prices current, in the principal Eastern and Western cities, as well as in our own city.

We shall publish a weekly record of deaths in our city, and all ordinances passed by the City Council; the proceedings of Courts Martial, Military Parades, the principal transactions of the Municipal Court, and every thing of interest that transpires in, and about our city.

Articles on agriculture will be furnished from the best sources, which will make the Neighbor a welcome visitor to our farmers and gardeners.

Concerning Politics we shall not be silent; but reserve to ourselves the right of judging of all measures, parties, and men; and without respect to party, award to all individuals of whom we may have occasion to speak, the true reward of merit or demerit, without prejudice or restraint.

We have sent to Europe to effect an exchange with some of the principal newspapers, in London, Edinburgh, Dublin, and Liverpool, from which we shall be able to furnish to our European friends, as well as American, news that will be interesting. And as we do now exchange with most of the principal papers in the United States, both east, north and south, we flatter ourselves, that with the facilities of obtaining information that we possess, and a true care and attention on our part, that the "Nauvoo Neighbor" will be second to none in the west.

The "Neighbor" will be published every Wednesday, by TAYLOR & WOODRUFF, at the corner of Water and Bain streets, Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill. and its price will be two dollars payable in all cases in advance. Any person procuring five new subscribers and forwarding us ten dollars current money, shall be entitled to one volume gratis.

It must be obvious to all business men, that from the character of the Nauvoo Neighbor, and on account of its extensive circulation, it will afford a first rate medium of advertising. ADVERTISEMENTS conspicuously inserted on reasonable terms,

ILLINOIS LAW.

An act in relation to the Revenue of 1842.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the people of the state of Illinois represented in the general assembly, That the clerks of the county commissioners courts of the several counties in this state, who may not have delivered to the collectors of their respective counties, the list of taxable property for the year 1842 be required to deliver the same forthwith to such collectors, and take duplicate receipts therefor as already provided by law, and the collectors of the several counties shall on or before the twentieth day of March, next charge fifteen cents upon every hundred dollars worth of property embraced in the lists of taxable property for the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-two for state purposes, and shall thereupon proceed to collect the amount thus charged, from the owners of such property, or the person in whose name the same may have been listed or assessed for taxation in gold and silver coin and author's warrants except those warrants issued under a settlement with the Bank of Illinois at Shawneetown by virtue of the provisions of an act to provide for the payment of certain debts due from the state to the bank approved February 25th 1844, and the payment of the amount charged, as aforesaid by the owners of taxable property shall be, in lieu of the tax as-essed for the year 1842 upon such property for state purposes and in full discharge of the same and the said collector in the settlement with the treasurer of the state shall account for the amount thus charged and no more.

Sec. 2. All collectors who may have collected the taxes of 1842 at the rate of thirty cents on each hundred dollars worth of property in gold or silver coin shall on the application of the person or persons from whom the same was collected refund the amount so collected over and above the amount required to be collected by the previous section and take receipts for the same.

Sec. 3. The collectors of the revenue of the several counties shall pay into the treasury on or before the first Monday of September next in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-three, all the taxes of the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-two, collected by them for the use of the state, deducting their commission for collection, and the said collectors are hereby released from all penalties which may have heretofore accrued against them in consequence of neglect in collecting the revenue of 1842, provided they comply with the provision of this act, and they are hereby authorized to advertise and sell delinquent lands and do all other acts at any convenient time to enable them to make the aforesaid collections and settlements with the treasury as provided for in this act.

Sec. 4. If any of the collectors of the revenue in the different counties or this state shall fail to give bond and security as now required by law or shall refuse to accept the office or resign, and no person shall be immediately appointed who shall accept the office, then the sheriff of the county upon being notified of the same by the clerk of the county commissioners court shall be ex-officio collector and shall do and perform all the duties of said office and receive the emoluments of the same.

Sec. 5. The county commissioners of the respective counties shall have power to collect any pro rata amount of tax assessed for the year 1842 for county purposes in gold and silver coin and county orders only and remit any amount of the taxes assessed for said year provided that any amount remitted shall be pro rata among the tax-payers, that according to the amount of tax to be paid by each tax-payer, and provided further that this section shall not be construed as compulsory upon the said courts to remit any portion of the taxes for the year 1842 but only as vesting them with discretion for that purpose.

Sec. 6. All warrants now outstanding which may have been drawn on the State Bank, shall be considered as drawn upon the treasury and shall be payable by the treasurer as other warrants.

Sec. 7. The provisions of an act entitled an act regulating the sale of property on judgments and executions approved Jan. 6th, 1843, shall have no force or effect upon the valuation of the same.

Sec. 8. This act shall be immediately published in the newspaper printed by the public printer. The act to be in force from and after its passage.

Sec. 9. This section fourth, fifth and six, of an act entitled an act to provide for the payment of interest on the public debt approved Feb. 27th, 1841, and all acts coming within the provisions of this act is hereby repealed.

SAMUEL HACKLETON.

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

JOHN MOORE,

Speaker of the Senate:

THE DECISION OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.—THE STAY LAWS.

A paragraph is going the rounds of the newspapers which states that a late decision of the Supreme Court of the United States pronounces as unconstitutional the property or two-thirds laws of this State passed in 1841. The questions in the cause alluded to, says a Washington letter writer, "arose upon a certificate of division in opinion between the Judges of the Circuit Court of the United State for the district of Illinois in the case of Bronson and Kinzie, involving the constitutionality of two Acts of Assembly of that State, the one passed the 9th of February 1841, the other the 27th of the same month and year." The following is a copy of the answer of the Supreme Court to the question:

"First—The decree should direct the premises to be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, without regard to the law of 19th February, 1841, which gives the right of redemption to the mortgagor for twelve months, and to the judgment creditor for fifteen months.

"Second—The decree should direct the sale of the mortgaged premises without being first valued by three householders, and without requiring two thirds of the amount of the said valuation to be bid according to the law of February 27th, 1841.

We learn that no question with regard to the constitutionality of the property laws of 1841, was before the Court. The question to be decided was, whether certain mortgaged property held in trust, with an express power to sell to the highest bidder, which power was contained in the mortgage itself should be sold, subject to the provisions of the two-thirds laws of 1841, or whether it should not be so sold. The Court decided that it should not. Such we learn are the real facts of the case; hence the Supreme Court of the United States has not decided the "stay laws of Illinois" to be unconstitutional.—State Register.

The Revenue.—The decrease in the revenue of the year ending on the 5th of January, 1843, as compared with that which ended 5th of January, 1842, is 922,630, while the decrease in this quarter's revenue, as compared with the corresponding quarter of the last year, is no less than 940,052. The greatest falling off is under the head of excise; the deficiency for the year being 1,173,614, that for the quarter 716,252. The customs also exhibit a great, though not equally alarming diminution in their returns, the quarter's deficiency being 531,185; the year's 824,265. The only consoling contrast is presented in the post office return, which show an increase for the year of 150,000; for the quarter of 14,000.

[English Paper.]

State of the Navy.—The navy, at the present moment, consists of 234 vessels of all sorts, amounting in the whole, 3,980 guns, which is about 670 guns less than last new year's day, and consequently we have about 7000 seamen fewer in employ. It appears we have 18 sea-going line-of battle ships, being seven less than last year; 32 frigates, five less than last year; 39 sloops, one less; 33 smaller vessels, nineteen less than last year; 64 steamers, four additional; 21 surveying vessels; 12 troop ships, and 10 receiving ships.—Our force at home comprises 604 guns; packets 45; Mediterranean 2035; Brazils 403; East Indies 880; North America and West Indies 476; Cape and coast of Africa 309; surveying 93; troopships 56.—Id.

EARTHQUAKE IN THE WEST INDIES.

By the arrival of several vessels at different ports, we have further accounts of the dreadful effects of the earthquake in the West India Islands. Intelligence from the schooner Chappelle, Capt. Sawyer, which arrived at Wilmington, N.C., direct from St. Thomas, states that all the buildings in Point Petre were thrown down by the shock, and that immediately upon its occurrence, about two thousand of the inhabitants rushed from their houses into the public square, which they had scarcely reached when the earth opened, beneath their feet and swallowed the whole mass! It was supposed that full seven thousand people were destroyed altogether in various ways. Directly after the earthquake a fire broke out among the ruins, which burnt five days and completed the work of destruction.

Capt. Gill of the brig Sarah Jane, which arrived at Norfolk, Va., from St. John's, P. R. states that information had reached that place previous to his departure, that not a single house was left standing at Antigua, except one that had been used for bathing, and that Basseterre, (Guad.) Nevis St. Pierre's and Fort Royal (Martin) were nearly all destroyed.

The steamer Ellen, Capt. Knowles, arrived at New York on the 13th inst. from St. Thomas. Capt. Knowles states that previous to his sailing, passengers had arrived from Guadalupe, by whom he learned that the earthquake there had been most disastrous. In a few seconds after the shock commenced every house and building was laid prostrate and of 21,000 inhabitants only one third escaped. The American Consul was buried in the ruins, and dug out with both legs shockingly injured. He underwent an amputation, but died immediately after. Of a regiment of soldiers of 800 strong, only 70 were left alive. At St. Eustatia, St. Christopher and St. Vincent the shock was comparatively slight, and the damage confined mainly to buildings.

SENTENCE OF WHITE.—The trial of Benj. L. White, for the murder of his father, on the 16th of March last, came on at the late term of the Genesee Court of Oyer and Terminer. The trial occupied four days, and resulted in the conviction of White. He is to be hung on Wednesday, the 26th of April next.

A Good Sign.—In 1837, there were 1147 licensed taverns in the city and county of Philadelphia; and now there are only 561—less than one half! So much for the temperance reformation.

improve rather by other men's errors, than find fault with them.

Postage.—The Post Master General, in a report recently made to Congress, remarks, that "since the reduction of postage upon letters in England, the number of letters mailed in the United States has greatly increased." No doubt a reduction in this country would increase them still farther—enough, in fact, to largely increase the revenue. The same report furnishes the following statistics:

Number of postmasters and clerks, 18,733.
Number of contractors and agents, 2,343.
Mails conveyed during the year, 43,835,991 miles.
Whole length of mail road, 149,732 miles.
Of the above there are of railroad, 3,091 miles.
Whole cost of mail transportation, $3,987,796.
Of the above that by railroad cost $432,568.
Amount of postage accruing, $1,516,246.
Increase since 1841, $168,928.
Gross expenditure of the Department, $4,827,717.
Exceeding the amount derived from postage, $3,311,470.
Whole number of free letters conveyed, about 3,000,000.

THE PRINTER.

"Pay the printer," said my uncle Toby. "He's a poor creature," rejoined Tim. "How so?" said my uncle. "Because, in the first place, (continued the corporal looking full upon my uncle) because he must endeavor to please every body. In the negligence of a moment, perhaps a small paragraph pops upon him; he hastily throws it to the compositor—it is inserted—and he is ruined to all talents and purposes.

"Too much the case, Tim," said my uncle with a deep sigh, "too much—the case."

"An please your honor," continued Tim, elevating his voice and striking into an imploring attitude, "an please your honor, this is not the whole."

"Go on Tim," said my uncle feelingly.

The printer sometimes (pursued the corporal) hits upon a piece that pleases him mightily, and he thinks it cannot but go down with his subscribers; but alas, sir, who can calculate the human mind! He inserts it and it is all over with him. They forgive others but they cannot forgive a printer. He has a host to print for, and every one steps up for a critic. The pretty Miss exclaims, "why don't he give us more poetry, marriages and bon mots! away with these stale pieces." The politician clips spees upon his nose runs it over in search of some violent invective; he finds none, foists them, sticks them in his pocket, declaring the paper good for nothing but to burn. So it goes. Every one thinks it ought to be printed expressly for himself, as he is a subscriber, and yet after all this complaining, would you believe it, sir, said the honest corporal, clasping his hands beseechingly, "would you believe it, sir, there are some subscribers who do not hesitate to cheat the printer out of his pay! Our army swore terribly in Flanders, but they never did any thing as bad as that!"

"Never!" said my uncle Toby, emphatically.

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 1843

The special conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, was held at the Temple on Thursday last. Our city presented a scene of animation and joy at a very early hour; and by the time the sun had shed his gladdening rays from the east, numbers were seen in all directions driving near to the House of the Lord, at ten o'clock the large room was crowded with an anxious and attentive audience. There has never been a more interesting conference held, for general benefit and instruction, than this. The way the prophet enlivened the Scriptures and the people, would have been an honor to an Israelite in Moses' day, or a disciple of the old apostles. Great harmony prevailed and great good was done. The elders' conference, too, which commenced on Monday, and which is not yet terminated, was equally creditable and interesting. We shall give the particulars in the Times and Seasons.

The New Orleans Tropic of the 16th inst. The ship De la Mer, from Liverpool, arrived here yesterday afternoon, bringing out, amongst other passengers, two hundred and thirty emigrants, for the Mormon colony of that arch-intriguer Joe Smith, who will no doubt find his account in this multitude of victims to his pseudo-heavenly mission. [Mo. Republican.]

The river is at last opened, and after our hard winter the spring begins to dawn upon us, thawing out the river, and frozen feelings of the people; and filling every heart with joy and gladness, at the approach of a welcome spring.

The Mail of Iowa, arrived here yesterday, with about 250 saints on board. We are informed that she proposes making regular trips between Nauvoo and St. Louis. We are pleased to find that this is the case, as she will afford a good medium of communication between this place and St. Louis for our business men, and for the travelling community. She is a small, but a new and well built boat, and although she may not be so swift as some others, yet by performing regular trips, and being enabled at all times to navigate the rapids, in consequence of her light draught, we presume that these difficulties will be more than counteracted by the facilities she will otherwise afford.

The "Osprey and Amaranth" arrived at Keokuk yesterday with passengers and freight for this place and are expected along to-day.

Epitaph.—The following simple, beautiful, and appropriate metaphor was inscribed upon the tombstone of an infant: "It sparkled, was exhaled, and went to Heaven."

But the blundering compositor of an obscure paper, in printing it, made the following typographical error.

"It sparkled, exhaled, and went to Havana."

We dislike what the world calls a dignified man—one whose intense vanity and egotism makes him inaccessible. Such a precious piece of mortality is like a hedge hog—a person, than as you may, the bristling quill of self stands out in such a bold relief, that even though you offer the fellow food, you are certain to get your fingers pricked.

A truly polite and well-bred man, will never fail to rise and touch his hat, when similarly saluted, in the street.

A young man proposed marriage to a young lady, and was answered with "Get out you nasty fellow! do you suppose I'd sleep with a man? I'll tell your mother—I will."

Worse than the toothache.—A Dutch man in proceeding to a place from whence he heard the cries of distress, discovered one of his neighbors lying under a stone wall, which had fallen upon him and fractured one of his legs. "Vell den, neighbor Vandoriken, vat ish de matter vid you?" "Vat! vy you see mine condition, vid all dish big stones upon me, and poth mine legs broke off close py mine podies." "Mine God! vat! Honie, vat! dat ail! you hollowed so like te tivil, I tot you vas got te toothache."

We understand the Small Pox is prevailing to a considerable extent in St. Louis.

An Apostate's Nuptials.—Prince Galitzin, an apostate to the Roman Catholic religion during the reign of the Empress Anna in Russia, was punished for his conversation with misplaced severity. This unfortunate nobleman was forced to marry a woman of low extraction, and his nuptials were celebrated with every circumstance of baroque pomp that ingenuity could invent. The bride and bridegroom were carried in a cage of iron, on the back of an elephant, followed by a procession of rustics, two by two, dressed in the costumes of the various nations of Siberia. On their arrival at the place of destination they were conducted to a sumptuous edifice of ice, which was illuminated with candles and lamps. A salute of ordinance was fired from pieces made of the same substance, while every article of furniture, even to the nuptial couch, on which they were constrained to pass the night, was framed of this cold material.

School Room.—"Geography class come up Ephraim, how is the State of Maine bounded?"

It's bounded on the north by Kennebec, on the northeast by the Boundary Question, on the east by Scovy Notia, on the south by the Chinese Wall, and on the west by the Mississippi river."

"Very good, describe the soil and climate."

Its climate is very salubrious and the soil ingubrious; producing immense swarms of herbacious animals called gilly nippers. They are about the size of daddy's windmill, with puddling tails, fence rail legs, and kin bite through a file; they infest the forest in herds, frequently destroying vegetation for whole miles round, and they are taken in steel traps by the natives, for the purpose of imigration."

"For what is this State celebrated?"

"It is famous for flat head babies and pretty gals, who go to meetin' to practice animal magnetism. It is also the birth place of Mizohy the Moore of Venice."

Elegant what are its productions?"

"Flour barrels, bean puddings cod-fish, and cotton pods; also ten-penny nails—sheet iron coddings, and red flanning sassingers."

The Late Earthquake.—We find the following singular circumstance stated in the St. Louis New Era:

On Saturday, we received a note from a gentleman in the country, dated that day in which he says—

The Earthquake on the evening of the 4th inst. was severely felt in this county and attending it is one of the most interesting phenomena of nature. Neamy dwelling has been a pond which from former appearances, was supplied by subterranean springs. On the morning of the 5th, I discovered it empty, and in its place a large sink hole, similar to those near your city. During the day, my family noticed it belching forth steam at intervals of three or four hours. On yesterday I remained at home to watch and satisfy myself. You are aware of its being a rainy day. After the small stream had formed by the falling of the rain, it commenced smoking steam of a warm nature, and at times we heard a rumbling, hissing sound, similar to that we heard on the evening of the 4th inst. On this morning snow covers all my grounds, except the center of this gulf, which has thawed, and all the snow contiguous is fast thawing.

NAUVOO LEGION.

The commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the second Cohort of said Legion are hereby ordered to attend officer drill upon the usual parade ground in this city, at the hour of nine o'clock A. M. precisely, upon Friday the 21st day of April instant, armed and equipped as the law directs.

By order of
CHARLES C. RICH, Brig. Gen.
JOHN BILLS, Brigade Major.
City of Nauvoo,
April 8th, 1843.

General Orders for the second Cohort of the Nauvoo Legion, and orders of the day.

The Cohort is hereby ordered to parade on the usual parade ground in this city on the fourth Saturday in April, as follows.—The companies will parade at 8 o'clock A. M. The Regiments will be formed at 9 o'clock. The Cohort will be formed at 10 o'clock, and the Brigadier General take command immediately after.

The Lieutenant General and Major General will be escorted to the review station, the escort to consist of the band and light infantry, under the command of Major General. Discharge of cannon when they arrive at the review station, and the honors paid to the reviewing officers which are due to their rank.

Review, and firing in review, and such other movements as the time will admit of until 12 o'clock. Intermission from that time until one o'clock, when the line will be again formed for inspection.

Movements from line Nos. 234 & 5 in Macomb's Tactics, echelon movements, and such other movements as the time will admit. The square will then be formed for address.

The Brigadier General's staff will meet at his residence at 9 o'clock A. M.

CHARLES C. RICH, Brig. Gen.
Second Cohort, Nauvoo Legion.
City of Nauvoo,
April 8th 1843.

A Roman Catholic protracted Meeting—Burning of Bibles by hundreds.

A letter from a gentleman in Chezy, Clinton county New York, dated the 23th Nov. says;

"We had a sort of auto-da-fe at the Corbo, (a village in the township of Champlain) a short time since. The Roman Catholics had a protracted meeting, and during its progress they called in all the Protestant Bibles which had been distributed and purchased among them, (except some few who would not give them up,) and made a public bonfire of them. It was said by those who witnessed it, that the number thus burned was between two and three hundred. Efforts were made to purchase them, but to no effect.

We have had public meetings both here and in Champlain, to give some expression of sentiment in regard to this wicked outrage."—New York Journal of Commerce.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE WASP.

Sir,—I perceive, by the Quincy Whig, that "An Englishman, growing weak in the faith, but who dare not tell his name for fear of the Danites," has addressed a letter to me, requesting my advice. I do, as a sincere friend, advise him to be very cautious what he is about, or the Danites will surely be "down upon him," for, judging from what I have seen the last few days I think they must be very numerous indeed, just now. He bids fair for the mourner's bench—the "room without doors or windows in it." I would whisper in his ear—go back again, and tarry not in all the plain. If he will call to see me I will give him my best counsel how he may, if possible, escape the "murtherer." Alas! my poor countryman. Yours, &c.
JOHN GREENHOW.

Income of English Bishops.—William Hawley, Archbishop of Canterbury, receives annually in round numbers, 126,000 dollars; C. J. Bloomfield, Bishop of London, 265,000 dollars; Charles Sumner, Bishop of Winchester, 154,000 dollars; George Henry Low, Bishop of Bath, 120,000 dollars; John Caye, Bishop of Lincoln, 374,000 dollars; John Henry Monk, Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol, 159,000 dollars; Henry Phillips, Bishop of Exeter, 194,000 dollars; Samuel Butler, Bishop of Litchfield and Coventry, 170,000 dollars; Edward Denison, Bishop of Salisbury, 134,000 dollars; Edward Stanly, Bishop of Norwich, 332,000 dollars; John Sumner, Bishop of Chester, 120,000 dollars; Edward Harcomb, Bishop of York, 223,000 dollars.

A Sovereign Remedy for an Offensive Breath.—Mrs. Child has published a communication in the Newark Advertiser, in which after describing an offensive breath as a most unpleasant thing, she says the careful removal of substances between the teeth, rinsing the mouth after meals, and a bit of charcoal held in the mouth after, will always cure a bad breath.—Charcoal used as a dentifrice, (that is, rubbed on to powder with a brush) is apt to injure the enamel; but a lump of it held in the mouth two or three times a week and slowly chewed, has a wonderful power to preserve the teeth and purify the breath. The action is purely chemical. It counteracts the acid arising from a disordered stomach, or food decaying about the gums, and it is this acid which destroys the teeth. She adds: "A friend of ours had, when about twenty years of age, a front tooth that turned black, and decayed, and broke off piece-meal. By frequently chewing charcoal, the progress of decay was not only arrested, but nature set vigorously to work to restore the breath, and the crumbled portion grew again, till the whole tooth was sound as before. Every one knows that charcoal is an antiputrescent. It thus tends to preserve the teeth and sweeten the breath."

A Smile.—Who can tell the value of a smile? It costs the giver nothing, but it is beyond price to the erring and relenting—the sad and cheerless—the lost and forsaken. It disarms malice—subdues temper—turns hatred to love—revenge to kindness, and paves the darkened path with gems of sunlight. A smile on the brow betrays a kind heart—pleasant friend—an affectionate brother—a dutiful son, and a happy husband. It adds a charm to beauty—decorates the face of the deformed, and makes lovely woman resemble the angels of paradise. Who will refuse to smile? [Portland Tribune.]

A Strange Gal.—Every thing is arranged for your wedding with Susan Tompkins, said a father to his only son the other day. "I hope you will behave yourself like a man, Thomas."

The individual was a young man, seated in a chair, despatching a piece of bread covered with molasses. His only answer was a sigh, accompanied with a flood of tears. The parent started, and in an angry voice demanded, "What objection can you have? Susan is handsome and wealthy, and married you must be some time or other. Your mother and I were married, and it is my command that you prepare for your nuptials."

"Yes, finally sobbed Thomas, that's a different case, you married mother! but I'm sent out to marry a strange gal!"

Anecdote of Rowland Hill.—The eccentric Rowland Hill, among the numerous religious notices which it was his custom to read every Sabbath after service, once delivered the following. "An humble partaker in Christ, desires to know why Brother Hill finds it necessary to ride to church in a sumptuous carriage, when his Divine Master never rode any where except on an ass? Upon which pious inquiry, Brother Hill, shoving up his spectacles on his forehead, and with an air of great humility, thus commented: 'I would say in answer to my humble brother, that I have a carriage, but no such beast as our master rode. However, if my worthy brother will present himself at the door of my dwelling on next Lord's day, ready saddled and bridled, I will ride him to church.'"

Powerful Microscope.—A London paper gives the following description of a new microscope recently exhibited at the Polytechnic Institution, which is said to be the most powerful ever made: "It consists of six powers. The second magnifies the wings of the locust to twenty-seven feet in length. The fourth, the sting of the bee to twenty-seven feet. By the sixth, each lens in the eye of the fly is so magnified that it appears to be fourteen inches in diameter; and a human hair, eighteen inches in diameter, or four feet in circumference."

Cold weather and Eloquence.—Handy Andy sometimes draws a long bow—as for instance; you talk here of a sharp wind—but the wind is so sharp there that it cut off our beard and whiskers. Boreas is a great Barber, sir, with this North Pole for a sign. Then as for frost I could tell you such incredible things of its intensity—our butter, for instance, was as hard as a rock, we were obliged to knock it off with a chisel and hammer, like a mason at a piece of granite, and it was necessary to be careful of your eyes at breakfast the splinters used to fly about so; indeed one of the party did lose the use of his eye from a butter splinter.—But the oddest thing of all was to watch two men talking to each other; you could observe the words as they came out from their mouths, suddenly frozen and dropping down in little pellets of ice at their feet, so that after a long conversation, you might see a man standing up to his knees in his own eloquence.

A man without money is a body without a soul—a walking death—a speer that frightens every one. His countenance is sorrowful, and his conversation languishing and tedious. If he calls upon an acquaintance he never finds him at home, and if he opens his mouth to speak he is interrupted every minute, so that he may not have a chance to finish his discourse, which is feared, will end in asking him for money. He is avoided like a person infected with disease, and is regarded as an incumbrance to the earth. Want wakes him up in the morning, and misery accompanies him to his bed at night. The ladies discover that he is an awkward booby; landlords believe that he lives upon air, and if he wants any thing from a tradesman, is asked cash before delivery.

Scene in an Ohio Court.—The Judge is supported on the right and on the left by his associates, and an old lady is called up to give evidence.

Presiding Judge.—Take off your bonnet, madam.

Lady—I would rather not sir.

P. J.—I desire you to pull off your bonnet, madam.

L.—I am informed in public assemblies the women should cover the head.—Such is the custom—and of course I will not take off my bonnet.

P. J.—Why, you are a pretty woman, indeed; I think you had better come and take a seat on the bench.

L.—I thank you kindly, sir; but I really think there are old women enough there already.—[In. Rep.]

A word to Boys.—Begin in early life to collect books of your own. Begin with a single book; and when you find or hear of any first rate book obtain it if you can. After awhile get another, as you are able, and be sure to read it. Take the best care of your books, and in this way, when you are men, you will have good libraries in your heads, as well as on your shelves.

A List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock County Illinois, April 1, 1843; which if not taken out before the first of July next, will be sent to the Post Office Department as dead letters.

Any person calling for any of the following letters will please say they are advertised, or they may not get them.

Alben Allen	Elijah Everett
Rufus Abbott	Joe Alley
Isaac Aired	Joe Armstrong
Richard Abbott	Lewis Abbott
J. F. Abbott	Richard Atwood
Laurinda M Atwood	Richard Ashley
Wm S Bachelor	Dennis Boren
Chas Bird	Joel Bullard
Almon Babbitt	G W Brannan
A Bates	Jacob Brown
Israel Bulow	M L Bates
Joe Bottoms	Thos Bateman
Joe Barghardt	Daniel Brownell
Martin Bushman	Jacob Bart
Geo W Bryant	V H Bruce
H C Booth	W W H Beby
Mr. Brown	J M Burk
Anna Brooks	Miles Burns
Francis Clark	W B Corbin 2
J M Chittister	Eunace Cane
H Chamberlin	Thos Carrio
Israel Colkins	Wm Clark
Isaac Cooper	Wm Carper
John Cairns	Polly M Colton
W M Campbell	H Chezebrough
John Crossbey	D
Erastus Dodge	R W Dimpsey
J Downton 2	Henry Davis
Bartley Dehart	S Davis
	G H Dudley
	E
Essias Edwards	Elisha Edwards
Jos Egbert	Milo Everts
	F
R D Foster	Mr Fletcher
Mrs Fedor	W D Fisher
C B Fisher 2	Ed F Finch
A G Fellows
	G
L S Gilber	Mr Green
Y Green	J P Green
Wm Garner	James F Green
Sarah Gibbs	Sarah Gibbons
Job Gibbs	Joseph D Gilbert
	H
G W Harris	Elliot Hartwell
Richard Hewett	Wm Hamilton
Thos Harris	Elliot Hartwell
William Hewett	Ed Havie
Jefferson Hunt	W G Hansacker
Thos Hays	James Hutchinson
J A Hicks	J C Haight
Oran Hyde	Peter Haws
J F Harmon 3	R Hardman
	I
Mary E Jones	Margaret Johnson
Samuel Johnson	Wm Jones
Benj Johnson	Joanna Jenkins
A Jeffers
	K
Wm Kidd	Leonard Kilbourn 2
T R King	Ezekiel Kellora
William Knight	Nancy Kayle
E B Keys	P T Kelley
	L
Ebenezer Landers	E & M Lawrence
T L Lancaster
	M
B Miller	Jarvis Minor
C Marsh	D A Miller
Laban Manill	Peter McIning
Wm Marks 2	George Moore
S McMartray	Mathew More
Abram Michael	Eyette Marks
Hiram McKesell	Alex McKee
Harriet Marsh	Thos Miller
L J Mndock	Ann McIntire 2
H B Monahan	Geo Miller 5
A S Merrills	J A Mikesell 2
P Merils
	N
Edmond Nelson	Wm Niswanger
	O
Mr Orr	Thos Orr
	P
Joe Price	Ezra Parrish
Joe Peck 2	Mary Pugh
Joe Parker	Ed Philip
David Pratt	Wm Parsons
Finley Page	P P Pratt
A Penney	Adam Pittington
Deborah Patter	Amos Perry
Mary Ann Peck	Thos Prince
Thos Pitt 2	Albert Peure
	R
Wm Robinson	Wm Roslance
E Robinson	Alonzo Reed
Wm Ruce	Lewis Robertson
Geo Ritchie	Jas Rodeback
J W Reynolds	Chas Roberts
H Roberts	H J Rodde
Alfred Randol	N W Rodde
Malvin Ross
	S
Daniel Shearer	Joe Scott
Joshua Smith 3	Elder Sherwood
Moses Smith	Jacob Shoemaker
Thos Sher	Wm Stanley
Chester Southwath	S M Strong
R Scott	Ezra Strong
Mr Springer	Albert Smith
G Stonett	Alex Simpson 3
J T Sanger 2	Wm Stughey
Robt Stone
	T
H Tate	Jonathan Taylor
C Thompson	Joe Tranter

Thos D Tambull 2	Solomon Tindal
Thos Taylor	W
Horace Wilds	P Waggoner
S S Wilber	Wm A Weston
Wm Walker	Henry Warren
Daniel Wood	Jacob Wiggle
W Wallia	J H Wells
W Walwork	Samuel Williams
Chas Wields	Amelia Wilsey
Joe Wardell	Albert Wright
P M Wheeler	Robert Wright
Lyman Wight	Benj Warrington
P L Wert

Y
B Young
SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

TAKE NOTICE.

THE citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity who wish to improve their stock of horses at a very low rate, will do well to avail themselves of the present opportunity of securing stock from the splendid and thorough bred

YOUNG MARSHAL.

He will stand the ensuing season at the stable of the subscriber in Nauvoo, and will render service at the extremely unusual low rates of two dollars single service, to be paid at the time, four dollars the season if paid within the season, six dollars to insure, to be paid as soon as it is ascertained the mare is with foal. Parting with a mare forfeits the insurance. The season to commence the 15th of April, A. D. 1843, and end the first of July following.

PEDIGREE.

Marshal was sired by old Cherokee, of Kentucky, he by sir Archy, of Virginia. Marshal's dam was by Old Bedford, and he by old Doublehead.

Most kinds of country produce will be received in payment.

DAVIDSON HIBBARD.
no 50 3 w.

MILLINERY & DRESSMAKING.

MISS H. Ellis, tenders her most respectful thanks for the patronage she has received. Wishes to inform the ladies of Nauvoo and its vicinity that she continues to carry on the above business in all its branches, in which she trusts to give that satisfaction which will insure a continuance of their favors.

Next door to brick store Water St.

FOR SALE

THE south half of section 19, 7 n 5 w. s w of n w 20, 7 n 5 w. s w of n e 20 7 n 5 w. The above land lays west of LaHarp from one to two miles. Also the n e of n w 19, 6 n 5 w. about six miles south of LaHarp. And the west half of n e 6, 6 n 6 w; near Pilot Grove; the n w of the n e q r of sec 22, 5 n 5 w near Bartlett's Mills, on Crooket creek; the north half of the s w of sec two 4 n 4 w and s w of the s e of sec 35 5 n 4 w in McDonough county. All the above tracts are congress titles. The s w q r of 12, 6 n 7 w. s e q r of 29, 5 n 7 w. n w q r of 17, 7 n 5 w. and 20 acres adjoining the town of Macomb, in McDonough co. the last mentioned tracts are patent or tax titles. Also town lots in the towns of Warsaw, Pulaski, Appanooce &c. and about one thousand acres of good land in Iowa Territory. The above lands and lots will be sold on liberal terms, most of it in good trade; those wishing to purchase any or all of the tracts can enquire of

HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo April 4th 1843.

P. S. Also two new milch cows for sale. no 49 ff.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no 29-ff.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE,

FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.

Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.

Jan. 21, 1843.—3m*

MILITARY NOTICE.

THE third regiment, second cohort of the 10th of Leg. are hereby notified that there will be an election for Colonel to fill the place of Samuel Ben, resigned. The election will be held at the school house, on the first Saturday of April next, at one o'clock P.M.

CHARLES C. RICH,

Brig. Gen'l.

BOOT AND SHOE MAKER.

THE subscriber respectfully begs leave to inform the inhabitants of the City of Nauvoo and vicinity, that he has lately arrived from Scotland (Britain) and has commenced business in the above line and from his long experience in the trade in all its branches and his determination to execute all orders that he may be favored with in a neat and fashionable manner. He at the same time warrants satisfaction of all work performed by him and upon the most reasonable terms; he therefore begs to merit a share of public support.

THOMAS JAAP.

Main st. opposite the Masonic Hall. Nauvoo, Feb. 10th 1843.

N. B. All orders from the country punctually attended to, and upon the shortest notice.

no 46 4w.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County. In the Circuit Court of said County to May Term A. D. 1843.

Alanson Taylor Plaintiff vs. Elias H. Maine & James D. Band Defendants.

The plaintiff's agent and attorney herein having filed affidavit, that the defendants Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, are non residents of this State. Notice is hereby given to the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court of the said County of Hancock, against the estate of you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band dated the 2d day of March A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Alanson Taylor, for the sum of one hundred and forty dollars with interest thereon from the 9th day of February A. D. 1842, directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock to execute, which said writ has been returned into the said Clerk's office, by the said Sheriff with an endorsement thereon, as follows, to wit: "Executed the within writ by returning the same to the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, March 2d A. D. 1843. No property found in my county on which to levy this attachment." Now unless you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said circuit court for the County of Hancock on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court House in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to said plaintiff's action, judgement will be rendered against you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, in favor of the said Alanson Taylor, and execution will issue against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, of the said Charles C. Maine, as garnishee to satisfy the said debt and cost.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clk.

J. H. Sherman, Atty. for plaintiff. March 3rd 1843. if.

THE subscriber having taken out letters of administration from the court of probate of Hancock county, Illinois, on the estate of J. D. Goves dec'd. late of said county, requests all persons having claims against said estate, to present the same to him or the court of probate of said county for settlement, on the first Monday in May. All persons indebted to said estate, are requested to make immediate payment to the undersigned.

no 47 6t

A. P. RINGER,

Administrator of

J. D. GOVES, dec'd

March 18. A. D. 1843. no 47 6t

NOTICE.

TWO house carpenters and one brick mason, with families are wanted at Shokoken. Constant employ will be given.

JOHN F. COWAN.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County. In the Circuit Court of said County, to the May Term A. D. 1843.

Lewis Hyde vs. Robert Allison.

IN ATTACHMENT.

NOTICE is hereby given to the said Robert Allison, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the Clerk's office of the said Circuit Court, dated the 22d day of January A. D. 1843, at the suit of the said Lewis Hyde, and against the estate of you the said Robert Allison for the sum of three hundred and fifty-eight dollars, ($358.00) directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock, which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff into the said Clerk's office, levied upon the estate of Robert Allison. Now unless you, the said Robert Allison, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court House in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next give special bail and plead to the to the plaintiff's action, judgement will be rendered against you the said Robert Allison, in favor of the said Lewis Hyde, and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.

Dated this 25th day of Feb. A. D. 1843.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk.

Geo. Bachman, Plaintiff's Atty.

no 44 1f or sc.

LOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following.

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, E. L. 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books; Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Malin's Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,

in all its various branches; and having employed skillful and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to leave it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.
Quartos	half	bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	whole	bound	plain	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	hf	bound	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	hf	bound	plain	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no 36.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843.

no 42 1f.

SHERMAN'S MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and civ for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c. &c. offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES.

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 40,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Falutations of the Heart, Lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after disipation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

EMETIC LOZENGES.

The best Emetic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S FOUR DAYS PLASTER.

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, when prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by

(22 y 1.) J. SNIDER,

Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

LOOK HERE!

THE undersigned will exchange city or country property, for the breaking of seventy or more acres of prairie; also for a pair of Mules; a set of Blacksmith's tools; and a first rate two horse wagon. He will also take Illinois State and Shawneetown paper in exchange for property, or on debts due him at fifty-cents on the dollar, if delivered before the 15th of April. He will pay cash for green calf-skins.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

March 15th 1843.

N. P. Those concerned, will recollect the first of April is near at hand, a hint to the wise is sufficient.

H. K. Agent.

NOTICE.

Nauvoo Ill. March 13, 1843.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo that he has on hand a variety of Boots and Shoes manufactured from the best of eastern leather; and will do any work in his line, on the shortest notice; also wishes to purchase hides and skins, for which he will pay boots, shoes, or trade at his shop, on the corner of Hyram and Page street, north of the Temple.

46-1f

J. BAIR.

NO CURE NO PAY.

DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.

Nauvoo, Jan. 23, 1842.

39-1f.

BRADFORD & BROWN, Commission and Forwarding Merchants, Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce, and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Mortimer, New Orleans, Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis, A. H. Mathews, Warsaw, Whitman & Springer, Cincinnati. December 10, 1842. no 32-6m.

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the foreclosed lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent HIRAM KIMBALL. Nauvoo January 13 1843. if

EDWARD H. BRINK.

DR. W. B. BRINK renders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic. no 35-6m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill. Joseph John on, Ramus. J. Salisbury, Plymouth. Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike. L. R. Chiffin, Labarp Hancock co. "Ill. Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill. Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose. Levi Moffat, Augusta. Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg. John E. Page, Pittsburgh. B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt. James Curtis, Horners Town. W. I. Appleby, Recluse Town. Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS

E. astus Snow, Salem. Freeman Nicolson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirt and. NEW YORK. I. Charles Thompson, Batavia. R. L. Foster, city of New York.

THE WASP.

TRUTH CRUSHED TO EARTH WILL RISE AGAIN.—BRYANT.

Volume I.—No. 51

Nauvoo, Hancock County, Illinois, Wednesday, April 19, 1843.

Whole Number 51

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF

At the corner of Water and Bain Street,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.

TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.

RATES OF ADVERTISING,

(One square, one insertion, $1

Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.

Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) post paid, to receive attention.

SYMPATHY.

BY MRS. SOPHIA J. STILES.

Kind sympathy—how sweet the word,
When spoken by a heart that feels;
Its name does even peace afford,
And comfort to the mind reveals.

How oft we meet its healing balm,
When clouds of sorrow gather round;
It helps to bring a peaceful calm;
But where, Oh where! can it be found?

In this unfriendly world, alas!
There's few who do this gem possess;
And on the other side they pass,
And leave the poor, the sad, oppress'd.

But if with riches we are bless'd,
And all the joys this world bestows;
'Tis then that friends will warm y press—
'Tis then the social feeling flows.

But when our fortunes are revers'd,
And want and poverty arise;
Where then our friends? all gone—dispers'd!
'Tis then the painted bubble flies.

Friendship like this I lost away;
'Tis bought—I cannot give it place:
To Christ, who loves the poor I'll pray,
And wait to see his smiling face.

(From the South Carolinian.)

MESMERISM AND THE "SNAKE CHARM."

Extract of a letter from a highly respectable gentleman of Alabama—formerly of this State—dated

PERRY Co. Ala., Feb. 26, 1843.

"I see from your late papers that the good people of your town and Charleston, have all become Mesmerized. It is really startling, and notwithstanding the highly respectable array of names mentioned, I must insist, in this matter, at all events, that 'seeing is believing.' I was reading an account the other day in my office, when Mr. A—W—, an old friend, and a most excellent and truthful citizen, having heard what I read, related a snake story as confirmatory of the fact of a perfect sympathy between the Mesmerizer and Mesmerizee. As the story goes to prove the identity of what is usually called 'charming' (by snakes) and Mesmerism, allow me to put you to sleep with a brief recital of it.

"He says that many years ago he was travelling in Mississippi and found on the road side a rattle snake. The road was narrow, and it is important to say that the snake was on the right hand, Mr. W—dismounted, and procured a stick to kill the snake, struck it a blow, so as to disable it, and to his astonishment, heard a partridge flutter on the left hand side of the road at the instant the blow was inflicted on the snake. The partridge was eight or ten feet from the snake, and he immediately went to it, and picked it up, intending to secure it first, and then dispatch the serpent. He recollected, however, having heard that the charm on the bird was communicable, by contact with it, to any other animal, deposited it in the place whence he had taken it, and resumed his 'labor of love' upon the 'charmer.' To his great astonishment, he observed that every blow on the snake, seemed to tell on the partridge, which fluttered at every one; and as the work of death progressed with the snake, it seemed to proceed pari passu with the bird. When the snake writhed, the bird fluttered, and when the snake died, the bird absolutely fell on its side, made sundry gapes, and expired almost simultaneously with Mesmerizer, I suppose I should say!

"The story is undoubtedly true, and as I am at the end of my sheet, I leave you to philosophize on it."

If mesmerism is as snakish and dangerous as the above, we should entertain a very unfavorable opinion of it.

The Strange Light.—The luminous beam which has recently appeared in the south western portion of the heavens; has no doubt attracted the attention of many of the readers of this paper. As a brief record of the phenomenon may be of future service, I offer the following particulars for publication.

The light appears to have been seen so early as the 6th inst. its latest appearance here was on the 13th; not being visible on subsequent evenings in consequence, perhaps, of the cloudiness of the atmosphere.

It was visible between the hours of 6 and 9, P. M. but not during the whole of this interval.

It was apparently a straight trail of light 40 degrees in length; about 2 deg. in width; gradually fading in brightness, and diminishing in breadth toward the extremities; and having considerable resemblance to the delineated tail of the comet of 1680.

It seemed to extend from near the sun, upward at an angle of about 26 deg. with the horizon, toward and nearly to a star of the 4th magnitude in the check of the constellation called the Hare; or more technically expressed, to the star Mu Leporis.

VESPER.

THE COMET.

As the comet has excited considerable attention to-day, the following extract from an article on comets, in Rees' Cyclopædia, published some thirty years ago, may be of interest. "The elements of the orbits of the comets in 1264 and 1556, were so nearly the same, that it is very probable it was the same comet; if so, it ought to appear again about the year 1848." The error here of five years; is a very small one when we consider that the period of this comet is about 292 years, or a little more than that.

From its first appearance in	1264
to its second appearance in	1556

was a period of	292
Adding to this period the time of its last appearance, viz.	1556

We have for its third appearance the year	1848
---	------

The idea that this was the planet Venus, and that the increased size and brightness of it, and its long tail, were owing to the action of the sun's rays upon it, by reflection or otherwise, we consider absurd. It is far more reasonable to suppose that it is the comet of 1264, and 1556 making a third visit to the earth.

By referring to the American Almanac, it will be seen that Venus is now at it's aphelion, or greatest distance from the sun. It was stated recently in a French journal, that the French Astronomers were expecting the approach of a comet to the earth about this time. Al.

Feb. 28.

A STRANGE TALE—BUT A FACT.

Some few months ago one of our townsmen left for America, in company with his wife. After having set foot on Eldorado of the West, they found to their unspeakable disappointment that they had travelled far without mending matters. They tramped over a great part of America, till they were reduced to ask charity from strangers. One day the husband asked charity from a black gentleman, who, instead of giving him any, offered him 250 dollars for his wife, who, by the bye, was a fresh, blooming red cheeked specimen of the daughters of Halifax. The offer was refused by the husband with becoming indignity. The wife immediately turned to him and said, in an under tone, 'Thou fool, take t' brass—let me go away, then I'll come to thee.' Entering into the spirit of the dodge, he pocketed the money, and bade farewell to his wife, with the understanding that she should return to him directly. Three days afterwards he saw his wife in a carriage attended by black servants, and had an interview with her. She told him to go home and think no more about her, as she had found a good shop and was determined to keep it. She still remains under the influence of the black gentleman, or the 'gentleman in black,' just as the reader wills it; and the disconsolate husband returned to our town last week, to tell his own miserable tale, and to exhibit himself as a living proof of the treachery and inconstancy of woman.—[Leeds (England) Times.]

To cure Sheepskins with the Wool on.

Take a table spoonful of alum and two of saltpetre, pulverize and mix well together; sprinkle the powder on the flesh side of the skin, and lay the two flesh sides together, (that is, with the wool outside.) Then fold up the skin as tight as you can, and hang it in a dry place; in two or three days, or as soon as it is dry, take it down and scrape it with a blunt knife till clean and supple. This completes the process, and makes you a most excellent saddle cover. If when you kill sheep you treat the skins this way, you can get more for them from the saddler than for the wool and skin separately disposed of otherwise. Other skins which you desire to cure with the fur or hair on, may be treated the same way.

Militia.—The total number of the enrolled military force in the United States, in 1842, was one million six hundred and seventy four thousand, four hundred and eighty-six. A very respectable little force, in case of a scratch.

Mount Etna.—An eruption of Etna commenced in the latter part of last year, and to the latest accounts still continued. The smoke, and flame, have been clearly discernable at Palermo, distant by an air line, at least 90 English miles from the Mount. This is the first eruption which has been visible at Palermo since 1822. The height of Etna by Cacciatar, Sir J. Herschell, and Capt. Smyth, is fixed at 10,874 feet, English.

Arkansas Minerals.—Rich veins of lead have been found in Marion county, Arkansas, pronounced by the best judges of the ore to be capable of yielding 90 per cent. Copper ore is also found in the same region. It also promises to yield a rich reward for labor. It has been the opinion of the oldest settlers of the northern part of Arkansas, that it abounds in mineral of almost every kind—iron, copper, lead, gold and silver, &c.

During the confusion occasioned by a time of war in 1535, a nest of peasants assembling in Hohnstern, in Thuringia, attempted to pillage the house of the minister of Eleude, who, having in vain employed all his eloquence to dissuade them from their design, ordered his domestics to fetch his bee hives, and throw them in the middle of the furious mob. The effect was what might be expected; the peasants were immediately put to flight, and those were happy who escaped unstung.—[Sentinel and Witness.]

The Hard Currency.—It is stated, on the authority of official documents, that there are now, in the United States, in gold and silver, the sum of $130,000,000.

The Singing Mouse.—This curious phenomenon, which has created a great deal of interest, it will be seen by the advertisement, will be exhibited for a few days at 23 North Pearl street.—Among the strange things that now agitate the world, the singing mouse takes a high rank. [Albany Atlas.]

Japan Next.—It is implied in some English papers, that the British forces in China, having nothing to do since that country has been brought to terms, are to be amused with an attack upon Japan, the inhabitants of that island having hitherto obstinately refused all intercourse with British vessels.

Yankee Enterprise.—The schooner George, Captain Parker, of Gloucester, arrived yesterday from George's Bank, with a cargo of 204 halibut, weighing 9000 lbs. and which were sold for 3 1-4 cents per lb. amounting to $293.00.—[Boston Post.]

Most Distressing Occurrence.—We are just informed of a most melancholy accident that took place on one of the prairies in the western part of the State. A family of emigrants eleven in number, while on their way to Iowa were frozen to death in the wagon. The horses stopped at a house, when the inmates, not seeing any one alight from the wagon, were induced by mere curiosity to make a closer examination. Upon looking into the waggon they were horror struck at the appalling spectacle that presented itself to their view. The father and nine children were lying dead in the bottom of the waggon, the mother, probably the last survivor, was sitting up and holding the reins as if driving. We did not learn the name of this unfortunate family, or from what part of the country they were removing.

[Illinois Palladium.]

The effects of Whiggery.—Clover seed is selling at $3 00 per bushel at Louisville Ky. When Mr. Van Buren was President, the farmer received $10 00. Surely the whigs were joking when they promised us better prices for produce.—[Vermont Age.]

Later from Texas.—The Nuptune arrived at New Orleans on the 21st bringing dates up to the 18th from Galveston. The only important news is the disposition of the Texans generally to organize an invasion force to carry on the war against Mexico. A public meeting was held in Richmond, at which it was determined to raise such a force, if aided by the other counties, as will push forward and release all Texan prisoners. The Houston Telegraph expresses the hope that Capt. M' Cullough, who is at the head of a well armed and well trained body of brave troops, will dash forward to Laredo as speedily as possible, as he may thus be enabled to cover the retreat of Col. Fisher and his men, and escort them with safety into the settlements.

PROSPECTUS

OF A

WEEKLY NEWSPAPER,

CALLED

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR.

We feel pleasure in announcing to our readers and to the public generally, that we have determined to enlarge the Wasp to double its size; as soon as the present volume shall be completed, which will be on the 19th of April.

It made its appearance in the world near twelve months ago; small in stature, dressed in a very humble garb, and under very inauspicious circumstances. It was then thought by many that its days would not be long in the land, and that at any rate it would not survive the sickly season. Many of its elder brethren who thought that they had attained to the size of manhood sneered contemptuously at the idea of their smaller, and younger brother taking the field, and like David's brethren they thought that he was but a stripling, and that he would certainly fall by the hand of some of the great Goliath's; but on the contrary while some of advanced years, noble men, and possessing a more formidable appearance have given up the ghost, the little Wasp has held on the even tenor of his way the untiring, unflinching supporter of integrity, righteousness and truth; neither courting the smiles, nor fearing the frowns of political demagogues, angry partisans, nor fawning sycophants. Partaking so much of the nature of the industrious bee, it has gathered honey from every flower, and its pages are now read with interest by a large, and respectable number of subscribers.

As the young gentleman is now nearly a year old, we propose on his birth day to put him on a new dress, and to make him double the size, that he may begin to look up in the world, and not be ashamed of associating with his older brethren; and as he has acted the part of a good samaritan, we propose giving him a new name.—Therefore his name shall no longer be called THE WASP, but the NEIGHBOR.

The "Nauvoo Neighbor" will be published on a large imperial sheet, got up in good style, and with care, and taste. It will be edited by JOHN TAYLOR, and will be devoted to the dissemination of useful knowledge of every description;—The Arts, Science, Religion, Literature, Agriculture, Manufactures, Trade, Commerce and the general news of the day.

We propose publishing from the best authorities a Bank Note Table corrected weekly; and also a list of the prices current, in the principal Eastern and Western cities, as well as in our own city.

We shall publish a weekly record of deaths in our city, and all ordinances passed by the City Council; the proceedings of Courts Martial, Military Parades, the principal transactions of the Mayor's and the Municipal Court, and every thing of interest that transpires in, and about our city.

Articles on agriculture will be furnished from the best sources, which will make the Neighbor a welcome visitor to our farmers and gardeners.

Concerning Politics we shall not be silent; but reserve to ourselves the right of judging of all measures, parties, and men; and without respect to party, award to all individuals of whom we may have occasion to speak, the true reward of merit or demerit, without prejudice or restraint.

We have sent to Europe to effect an exchange with some of the principal newspapers, in London, Edinburgh, Dublin, and Liverpool, from which we shall be able to furnish to our European friends, as well as American, news that will be interesting. And as we do now exchange with most of the principal papers in the United States, both east, west, north and south, we flatter ourselves, that with the facilities of obtaining information that we possess, and a little care and attention on our part, that the "Nauvoo Neighbor," will be second to none in the west.

The "Neighbor" will be published every Wednesday, by TAYLOR & WOODRUFF, at the corner of Water and Bain streets, Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill. and its price will be two dollars payable in all cases in advance. Any person procuring five new subscribers and forwarding us ten dollars current money, shall be entitled to one volume gratis.

It must be obvious to all business men, that from the character of the Nauvoo Neighbor, and on account of its extensive circulation, it will afford a first rate medium of advertizing. ADVERTISEMENTS conspicuously inserted on reasonable terms.

From the Daily Sun.

FULL PARTICULARS OF THE WONDERFUL SIGHTS SEEN BY THE PILOT OF THE WM. PENN IN THE SKY ON TUESDAY NIGHT, MARCH 21.

On Saturday afternoon Mr. Wm. Frances, pilot of the Wm. Penn Steamboat, a packet that runs between this city and Rising Sun, Ia. called personally at our office to give us the full particulars of the wonderful sight seen by him on the night above mentioned, fully impressed with the solemnity of the subject, and the awful responsibility of telling any thing of this nature but what is strictly true. Mr. F. informed us that he is a member of the church, and assured us in the most solemn manner, that what he was about to relate was truth and nothing but the truth, and he is ready to convince any gentleman or lady that will call upon him.

He states that as the Penn was on her trip to this city, when between Rising Sun and Aurora, about 11 or 12 o'clock, P. M. he was steering the boat along, it being a star bright night, excepting a few clouds in the west, low down, sky clear, when of a sudden a light burst forth, the whole face of the earth appearing to be lit up, which so blinded him that it was with difficulty he could see any thing, even the most near object. His first impression was that it lightened very sharply, but its continuing convinced him it must be something else, which he could not account for. The Captain of the Penn, James Pratzman, was sitting in the cabin at the time with three or four candles; he saw the light notwithstanding, ran out to the guard anxious to know the cause—asked Mr. Frances if he saw the light: Mr. Frances said he did. What is it? said Captain Pratzman. Dear only knows answered Mr. Frances, for I don't. From that the Captain disappeared from looking over the hurricane deck and went below.

Mr. Frances now being very anxious to discover whence this strange light came, looked diligently out at the side of the pilot-house, in rather a south-west course, but nearly over head, when he saw the outlines of a Serpent in the sky, in a crooked position, except the tail which was straight, the head toward the east. It turned to a livid bright red, deep and awful, and remained stationary in the stars. Mr. Frances watched it for two or three minutes, when the tail part disappeared nearly to the middle, and the remainder in a gradual manner formed into a distinct Roman

Mr. Frances had time now to mind the channel of the river, and deliberate upon the beauty and grandeur of a letter in the sky! It was remarkably interesting to him, as may well be supposed, from the accuracy of its formation. After about one minute and a half, he watching it and the boat alternately, it changed, turning into a distinct as perfect as was ever seen, in which position it remained as before. Mr. Frances stated that he was surprised greatly at this, but not scared or frightened in the least, and immediately tapped the bell for the Captain to witness the scene. The Captain did not come immediately, but after a moment or two appeared, but ere this, the figure in the heavens had changed to a plain distinct letter

D

The Captain said to Mr. Frances, 'What's wanting?'

'Come here quick, said Mr. Frances, 'and look up yonder, did you ever see the like?'

The Captain answered, 'I see it!' and looked at it till it disappeared.

Mr. F. states that when the O turned to a D it formed a kind of oblong shape, and then came straight on one side as a D should be. When it disappeared it turned into the same oblong shape as before, and, gradually the sky returned to its original appearance.

Mr. Frances states that he did not leave the wheel of the boat, but steered it to this city. He declares that let others think or say as they will, what he has related is strictly true. He is no Millerite, neither is he crazy nor frightened, and if gentlemen or ladies will call upon him he will convince them that what he has told is truth. Captain Pratzman remarked at the time, that it was something quite inexplicable, and was sorry he did not come to the deck sooner so as to have had a full view of this grand, wonderful and unaccountable phenomenon.

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 19, 1843.

We should judge from the following paragraph from the Warsaw Message, that the editors of that paper are about taking a different course towards the citizens of this place, than that taken by the editor of the Warsaw Signal; we are also glad to see that the editors of the Message, are willing to have all offenders against law and order brought to justice.

'Thieves—It would seem by the following proclamation of the Mayor of Nauvoo, that there exists in our community a regularly organized band of rogues and outlaws, who prowl about the country, and clude the vengeance of the law by their oaths of secrecy. We trust that this proclamation will be the means of bringing to light a portion of this infernal rascality, and hope that every good citizen and officer of justice will lend their aid in ferreting out, and bringing to condign punishment the whole clan.'

INTERESTING FROM MEXICO.

The following is from the New Orleans Picayune of the 24th ult.

'By the United States brig-of-war Dolphin, arrived at the Balize on the 22d inst. from Vera Cruz, via Tampico, we have dates from the former place up to the 3rd inst.

'The United States sloop-of-war Fulmouth, with Mr. Curson on board, arrived at Vera Cruz on the last day of February, and remained there when the Dolphin sailed. Mr. Curson proceeded on his way to Mexico, with his despatches immediately.

'Among the passengers on board the Dolphin, were Henry Connolly, Esq. a merchant of Chinahau, and Judge Robinson, of the San Antonio prisoners who has been liberated by order of Santa Anna. While in chains at the Castle of Perote, the latter was sent for by Santa Anna, and after a personal interview, received propositions thought to be of a favorable nature towards the final independence of Texas. These, Judge Robinson now has with him; and he will proceed with all haste to lay them before the Government of Texas. It is thought by many that the Texan prisoners, now confined at Perote, will soon be liberated.

'It was reported, at Vera Cruz, on the 3d inst. that a large conductu with specie had left Mexico for the former place, some $200,000 of which was for merchants in this city.

'The Fulmouth was to remain at Vera Cruz until the 1st of the coming month, when it was expected that General

Thompson would arrive from the city of Mexico to take passage for this country.

'Official news had been received at the city of Mexico of the escape of the Mier prisoners. A goodly number of Mexicans were killed in the "skirmage," according to their own accounts. One of our correspondents, writing from Puebla, says he has no doubt they have escaped out of the country; but later information leads us to believe that such is not the case.

'While off Tampico, one of the passengers on board the Dolphin received the news of the recapture of the Texians, as contained in an official despatch from a Mexican officer at Monterey. Some one hundred and eleven of them had been recaptured by a large body of Mexican troops, and it was thought the remainder had no chance to escape. We are too fearful this news is true.

'Santa Anna left his residence near Vera Cruz, on the 27th ult., for the city of Mexico, where his services were evidently much needed. All our correspondence from that country, and we have received several letters at different points, represented a strong feeling and even a conspiracy as existing against the dictator in the capitol. A correspondent at Jalapa informs us that a large body of troops stationed there, and which were detained to act against Yucatan, had been ordered by Santa Anna to march forthwith to the city of Mexico.

'It is thought that when Santa Anna arrives at the city of Mexico there will be a change of ministry so far as regards the Treasury and War Departments. It is even surmised by some that, surrounded as Santa Anna is by home difficulties, he will send a commissioner to Texas, with propositions of peace and a recognition of the independence of that republic.

'At all events, a crisis has arrived in the affairs of Mexico, and by the next arrivals we cannot but look for popular and determined movements on the part of the people.

'We hear of no further movements in relation to Campeachy, and, from what we can learn, neither troops nor supplies had been previous to the sailing of the Dolphin.

'The new Mexican schooner, recently arrived from New York, had been much injured in a gale, about the last of February, and is now unfit for service.'

From the St. Louis Organ.

A WORD TO LAWYERS AND PHYSICIANS.

MR. EDITOR:—I cannot but regret, when I look around me and behold how many individuals in our community throw their time and talents away. In this world every individual has been placed by his Creator, with certain duties to perform, and no one can have been left without his share of labor in the great workhouse (if I may so speak) of the eternal father of mankind. The world without is related to the mind of man by certain indissoluble ties; but men are miserable often, because they either do not or cannot know what relation they bear to it and the race of humanity around them.

Look at the professions of law and medicine in this community! How overburdened with practitioners! How many of these linger out days and weeks and years; in constant idleness, (and poverty,) because they have mistaken their callings, and have attempted to violate the laws of nature, inasmuch as they will not prepare themselves for that occupation in life for which nature originally fitted them! Many, many a lawyer who would have made an excellent farmer, now hangs around his office day after day, wasting his time, wasting his talent—neglecting to inquire into the nature of his mind, and neglecting the performance of that duty which his Creator designed him to perform. How many hundreds of lawyers and students of law are there in this city alone whom people say are destitute of talent! And why, say they—'these are men of little capacity?' Is it because they do not possess talent? Not so! It is because their talent is misdirected. One of the most celebrated geometers that ever lived, was at one time of his life given up to be a block-head. His teachers had tried him in geography—he could not learn. They tried him in rhetoric—but yet he was a fool. At last they tried him in Geometry, and there he arose to eminence. So try, and there he arose to eminence. So it is with hundreds of our “lawyers”.

They are the veriest asses that ever snuffed up wind. And why. Because they scorn to be, what nature designed they should be. They have talent there can be no doubt, but it is buried in the soul. Many of those who now live like drones among their race, could have been remarkably talented in cutting out and making shoes.

Many of these who sit around the fires of their offices day after day, year after year, and when their race is run, go down to the silent tomb, leaving nought behind to tell that ever earth supported men so worthless, might have risen to eminence in some one of the mechanical occupations. But not. Such worthy men conclude that they were never made to soil their hands in work. They are exalted above the mechanic, in their opinions, as are the clouds above the world; but see how these clouds pass away, leaving nothing behind to tell that ever once they floated o’er the world beneath them.

And there’s the benevolent profession of medicine. How crammed with men whose minds were never made to grasp its mysteries! How many mortals in this city have groaned beneath the agonies of almost hell itself, when under a slight indisposition at first, they had called in to their aid some one of these “physicians,” who seem in their mistaken callings as scourges from the “bottomless pit.” Many, many a suffering mortal—yea even in this city—has gasped a dying breath and gone “to meet his God,” who, probably, (if my readers are not fatalists,) might have soon recovered had he not called into his assistance, one of these would be physicians. The lawyer gentry cannot do so much harm, but who can set bounds to the mischief which some, who call themselves “physicians,” are capable of doing? It is a happy thing for a depraved world, that there are many of these, like their good neighbors the lawyers, who are permitted to linger out their lives in idleness.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE WASP.

Mr. Editor: Sir, I have just perused a book, written by Elder B. Winchester, on the priesthood, and I have no hesitation in saying that it is a good work, and would recommend it to the travelling elders, as a worthy and valuable pocket companion.

WILLIAM SMITH.

[The above may be had at our office, as well as Elder Winchester’s Scripture Concordance, which will be useful to the elders.]—Ed.

Another Comet.—We understand, says the New York Sun, that several gentlemen saw another comet, about mid heavens, between twelve and one o’clock on Monday morning.

Ireland.—Mr. O’Connell has published a letter to the people of Ireland, in which he says: ‘I am able at present, without doubt or difficulty, to announce that the crisis has come upon us, when, if the people of Ireland, the clergy and laity, will but combine in their overwhelming majority, the repeal of the Union is all but immediate, and the commencement of a new era of Irish prosperity is at hand.’ He enumerates ‘five great measures’ as the basis upon which he seeks to combine all Irishmen in the struggle for the Repeal of the Union. Firstly, the total abolition of the tithe rent charge. Secondly, fixity of tenure for the occupying tenants. Thirdly, the encouragement and perfecting of Irish manufactures. Fourthly, complete suffrage and by ballot. Fifthly, abolition of the present poor law, and augmentation of well regulated charitable institutions. The present year—1844—is, and shall be the great repeal year.

[Buff. Gaz.]

General Jackson’s fine! said Mrs. Quozle, as she studied a newspaper through her spectacles—To be sure he is as fine as silk. I’ve known that for twenty years, and yet these editors and Congressmen have just found it out! Tell us that General Jackson’s fine at this time of day! Why there never was a finer man anywhere.—Pennsylvania.

Acknowledging an Error.—The Hon. N. P. Tallmadge, in the U. S. Senate, recently made the following acknowledgment of an error committed by him several years since. He was discussing his Exchequer plan, and remarked that the charter of the U. S. Bank expired in 1811, and another was established in 1816. That charter expired, and he was one who voted against rechartering the Bank. He recollected well the remark which a distinguished Senator from Kentucky made to him shortly after he had given his vote. “Sir,” said he, “there was a young man from the West in Congress, in 1811, who voted against rechartering the old U. S. Bank. Time went on, and troubles accumulated. We attempted to get along without a National Bank, but we found it indispensable to the proper management of the finances of the country, and the preservation of a sound and uniform currency. That young man was convinced, by experience, that the vote he had given was an erroneous one, and in 1816 he voted to charter another U. S. Bank.—You have now voted as that young man did at first, against rechartering the Bank; but time and experience will, I have no doubt, convince you, as they did him, that you have committed an error.”

And sir, said Mr. T., I stand here to confess that time and experience have convinced me of my error, and to acknowledge that Mr. Clay was right.

Mr. Fox.—The celebrated orator, was one day told by a lady, whom he visited, that she “did not care three skips of a louse for him.” He immediately took out his pencil and wrote the following lines:

A lady has told me, and in her own house,
That she cares not for me “three skips of a louse;”

I forgive the dear creature for what she has said,
Since women will talk of what runs in their head.

Death of Senator McRoberts.—The Cincinnati Republican of the 28th ult. says: ‘The Hon. SAMUEL McROBERTS, a Senator in Congress from the State of Illinois, expired in this city yesterday at the residence of Judge Hart. His death resulted from a cold taken in crossing the mountains.’ Several persons have already been spoken of as his successor.

Beautiful result of Galvanism.—We witnessed yesterday a very interesting experiment made by Mr. S. N. Botsford, to wit: Gilding by galvanic action. The process occupied some ten or fifteen minutes, in which time four silver pencil cases were made to wear the appearance of rich gold ones, so much so that they were pronounced to be gold by many to whom they were shown.

The magnetic electric action upon gold held in solution imparts to the less valuable metals the richness and lustre of the dearer ones, and it will be necessary for purchasers hereafter to be on their guard against counterfeits or impositions of gilding silver for solid gold. We have heard already of the experienced being unable to discover the gilded from the solid article.—Norfolk Beacon.

Abolition Seminary.—W. Beardsly, teacher of the seminary near Quincy in this State, has called, through the Quincy Herald, upon the citizens of that place to aid him in ascertaining whether certain Missourians were not connected with the destruction of the chapel of that seminary by fire on the 8th inst. Whether Abolitionists, Mormons, or otherwise, the citizens of this State must and will be protected, both as regards their persons and property. When they shall violate the laws of the State they will doubtless be properly punished by its authorities. But until then, they will not be injured in either their persons or property with impunity. The Quincy Herald, as is impossibly, too often the case with Locofoco journals, is disposed fully to justify the burning of the chapel by incendiaries from Missouri, if such were the fact.

[Chicago Express.]

DEATHS, for the week ending Monday the 17th inst.
Betsey Ann Cutler, 11 years; black canker.
Daniel Stevens, 14 years; inflammation of the brain.
John Abbot, 52 years; diarrhea.
Total 3.

DEATHS, for the week ending Monday the 24th inst.

Armantha A. Musick, 2 m, 22 d. consumption.
Samuel Hawks, 20 years; consumption.
Ann Watkins, 30 years; fever.
Oiver Walker, 60 years; inflammation of the lungs.
Thomas Heap, 22 years; canker.
Infant of Edmund Kelsul.
Total 7.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, Sexton.

A List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock County Illinois, April 1, 1843; which if not taken out before the first of July next, will be sent to the Post Office Department as dead letters.

Any person calling for any of the following letters will please say they are advertised, or they may not get them.

Alban Allen
Rufus Abbott
Isaac Alread
Richard Abbott
J F Abbott
Laurinda M Atwood
Wm S Bachelor
Chas Bird
Almon Babbitt
A Bates
Israel Barlow
Jno Bottoms
Jno Burghardt
Martin Bushman
Geo W Bryant
H C Booth
Mr. Brown
Anna Brooks
Francis Clark
J M Chittister
H Chamberlin
Israel Calkins
Isaac Cooper
John Cairns
W M Campbell
John Crossbey
Erastus Dodge
J Downton 2
Bartley Dehart
Esaias Edwards
Jos Egbert
R D Foster
Mrs Fedler
C B Fisher 2
A G Fellows
L S Gilber
Y Green
Wm Garner
Sarah Gibbs
Job Green
G W Harris
Richard Hewett
Thos Harris
Wilkinson Hewett
Jefferson Hunt
Thos Hays
J A Hicks
Orson Hyde
J P Harmon 3
Mary E Jones
Samuel Johnson
Benj Johnson
A Jeffers
Wm Kidd
T R King
Martha Knight
E B Keys
Ebenezer Landers
T L Lancaster
B Miller
C Marsh
Laban ManiH
Wm Marks 2
S McMurtry
Abram Michael
Hiram Mesell
Harriet Marsh
L J Mordock
H B Merriam
A S Merrials
P Merils
Edmond Nelson
Mr Orr
Jno Price
Jno Peck 2
Jno Parker
David Pratt
Finley Page
A Pettrey
Deborah Patter
Mary Ann Peck
Thos Pitt 2
Wm Robinson
E Robinson
Wm Ruca
Geo Ritchie
J W Reynolds
Elijah Everett
Jno Alley
Jno Armistead
Lewis Abbott
Rebecca Atwood
Richard Ashley
Dennes Boren
Joel Bullard
G W Brannan
Jacob Brown
M L Bates
Thos Bateman
Daniel Brownell
Jacob Bart
V H Broce
W W H Beby
J M Burk
Miles Burns
W B Corbit 2
Eunace Cane
Thos Carrio
Wm Clark
Wm Carper
Polly M Cotton
H Chezebrouge
D
R W Dimpsey
Henry Davis
S Davis
G H Dudley
E
Elisha Edwards
Milo Events
F
Mr Fletcher
W D Fisher
Ed F Finch
G
Mr Green
J P Green
James F Green
Sarah Gibbons
Joseph D Gilbert
H
Elliot Hartwell
Wm Hamilton
Elliot Hartwell
Ed Havle
W G Hunsucker
James Hutchinson
J C Haight
Peter Haws
R Hardman
I
Margaret Johnson
Wm Jones
Jonna Jenkins
K
Leonard Kilbourn 2
Ezekiel Kellogg
Nancy Kayls
P T Kelley
L
E & M Lawrence
M
Jarvis Minor 1
D A Miller
Peter Meling
George Moore
Mathew More
Fayette Marks
Alex McRae
Thos Miller
Ann McIntire 3
Geo Muler 5
J A Mikesell 2
N
Wm Niswanger
O
Thos Orr
P Ezra Parrish
Marv Pugh
El Philpa
Wm Parsons
P P Pratt
Adam Pilkington
Amos Perry
Thos Prouce
Albert Peure
R
Wm. Roslanco
Alonzo Reed
Lewis Robertson
Jas Rodebeck
Chas Roberts

H Roberts
Alfred Randol
Malvin Ross 1
Daniel Shearer
Joshua Smith 3
Mooses Smith
Thos Sher
Chester Southworth
R Scott
Mr Springer
G Stonett
J T Singer 2
Robt Stone

H J Rodas
N W Rodas
8
Jno Scott
Elder Sherwood
Jacob Shoemaker
Wm Stanley
S M Strong
Ezra Strong
Albert Smith
Alex Simpson 3
Wm Stughey

H Tate
C Thompson
Thos D Turnbull 2
Thos Taylor
Jonathan Taylor
Jno Tranton
Solomon Tindal
W
P Waggoner
Wm A Weston
Henry Warren
Jacob Wiggles
J H Wells
Samuel Williams
Amelia Wilsey
Albert Wright
Robert Wright
Benj Warrington

Y
B Young
SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

BACHMAN & SKELLYER.
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law.
WILL attend to any business in their profession in the Circuit and Supreme Court. Offices—in the Court House Carthage, and at Nauvoo, near the Temple. 3m * no 51.

TAKE NOTICE.

THE citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity who wish to improve their stock of horses at a very low rate, will do well to avail themselves of the present opportunity of securing stock from the splendid and thorough bred

YOUNG MARSHAL.

He will stand the ensuing season at the stable of the subscriber in Nauvoo, and will render service at the extremely unusual low rates of two dollars single service, to be paid at the time. four dollars the season if paid within the season. six dollars to insure, to be paid as soon as it is ascertained the mare is with foal. Parting with a mare forfeits the insurance. The season to commence the 15th of April. A. D. 1843, and end the first of July following.

PEDIGREE.

Marshal was sired by old Cherokee, of Kentucky, he by sir Archy, of Virginia. Marshal’s dam was by Old Bedford, and he by old Doublehead.

Most kinds of country produce will be received in payment.

DAVISON HIBBARD.
no 50 3 w.

MILLINERY & DRESSMAKING.

MISS H. Ellis, tenders her most respectful thanks for the patronage she has received. Wishes to inform the ladies of Nauvoo and its vicinity that she continues to carry on the above business in all its branches, in which she trusts to give that satisfaction which will insure a continuance of their favors.

Next door to brick store Water St.

FOR SALE

THE south half of section 19, 7 n 5 w. s w of n w 20, 7 n 5 w. s w of n e 20 7 n 5 w. The above land lays west of LaHarp from one to two miles. Also the n e of n w 19; 6 n 5 w. about six miles south of LaHarp. And the west half of n e 6, 6 n 6 w; near Pilot Grove; the n w of the n e q of sec 22, 5 n 5 w near Bartlett’s Mills, on Crooket creek; the north half of the s w of sec two 4 n 4 w and s w of the s e of sec 35 5 n 4 w in McDonough county. All the above tracts are congress titles. The s w q of 14, 6 n 7 w. s e q of 29, 5 n 7 w. n w q of 17, 7 n 5 w. and 20 acres adjoining the town of Macomb, in McDonough co. the last mentioned tracts are patent or tax titles. Also town lots in the towns of Warsaw, Pulaski, Appanooce &c. and about one thousand acres of good land in Iowa Territory. The above lands and lots will be sold on liberal terms, most of it in good trade; those wishing to purchase any or all of the tracts can enquire of

HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo April 4th 1843.
P. S. Also two new milch cows for sale.
no 49 ff.

MILITARY NOTICE.

THE third regiment, second cohort of the Nauvoo Legion, are hereby notified that there will be an election for Colonel, to fill the place of Samuel Bent, resigned. The election will be held at the stone school house, on the third Saturday of April next, at one o'clock, P. M.

CHARLES C. RICH,
Brig'dr Gen'l.

GEO. BACHMAN,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW,
WILL practice law in the State and Federal Courts. All business in the line of his profession, entrusted to his care, will be punctually attended to. Office in Carthage, Hancock co., Ill., at the Court House. no29-1f.

DR. CHARLES HIGGEE,

FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.

Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.
Jan. 21, 1843.—3m*

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.
In the Circuit Court of said County to May Term A. D. 1843.

Alanson Taylor } Plaintiff
vs. } In foreign attachment.
Elias H. Maine & }
James D. Band } Defendants.

The plaintiff's agent and attorney herein having filed affidavit, that the defendants Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, are non-residents of this State. Notice is hereby given to the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court of the said County of Hancock, against the estate of you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band dated the 2d day of March A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Elanson Taylor, for the sum of one hundred and forty dollars with interest thereon from the 9th day of February A. D. 1842, directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock to execute, which said writ has been returned into the said Clerk's office, by the said Sheriff with an endorsement thereon, as follows, to wit: "Executed the within writ by reading the same to the within named Charles C. Maine, March 2d A. D. 1843. No property found in my county on which to levy this attachment." Now unless you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said circuit court for the County of Hancock on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court House in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to said plaintiff's action, judgement will be rendered against you the said Elias H. Maine and Jas. D. Band, in favor of the said Alanson Taylor, and execution will issue against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, of the said Charles C. Maine, as garnishee to satisfy the said debt and cost.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Cl'k.
J. H. Sherman, Atty. for plaintiff.
March 3rd 1843. 1f.

THE subscriber having taken out letters of administration from the court of probate of Hancock county, Illinois, on the estate of J. D. Goves dec'd, late of said county, requests all persons having claims against said estate, to present the same to him or the court of probate of said county for settlement, on the first Monday in May. All persons indebted to said estate, are requested to make immediate payment to the undersigned.

A. P. RINGER,
Administrator of
J. D. GROVES, dec'd
March 18, A. D. 1843. no 47 6t

NOTICE.

TWO house carpenters and one brick mason, with families are wanted at Shokokon. Constant employ will be given.
JOHN F. COWAN.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County
In the Circuit Court of said County, to the May Term A. D. 1843.

Lewis Hyde }
vs. } IN ATTACHMENT.
Robert Allison }

NOTICE is hereby given to the said Robert Allison, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the Clerk's office of the said Circuit Court, dated the 22d day of January A. D. 1843, at the suit of the said Lewis Hyde, and against the estate of you the said Robert Allison for the sum of three hundred and fifty-eight dollars, (358.00) directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock, which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff into the said Clerk's office, levied upon the estate of Robert Allison. Now unless you, the said Robert Allison, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court House in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to the to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Robert Allison, in favor of the said Lewis Hyde, and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.

Dated this 25th day of Feb. A. D. 1843.
J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk.
Geo. Bachman, Plaintiff's Atty.
no 44 1f or sc.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

THE subscribers have just received a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,

in all its various branches; and having employed skillfull, and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.
Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1.50
do	do	do	neat	2.00
do	whole	bound	plain	2.00
do	do	do	neat	2.50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1.00
do	do	do	neat	1.50
do	hf	bound	plain	0.75
do	do	do	neat	1.00
do	do	do	extra	1.37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	.62
do	do	do	neat	.87
do	hf	bound	plain	.50
do	do	do	neat	.75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.
Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Knights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843. no42-1f.

SHERMAN'S MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, Lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER,

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents.) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y 1.) J. SNIDER, Sole Agent for the C. ty of Nauvoo.

LOOK HERE!

THE undersigned will exchange city or country property, for the breaking of seventy or more acres of prairie; also for a pair of Mules; a sett of Blacksmith's tools; and a first rate two-horse wagon. He will also take Illinois State and Shawnee-town paper in exchange for property, or on debts due him at fifty-cents on the dollar, if delivered before the 15th of April. He will pay cash for green calf-skins.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

March 15th 1843.

N. B. Those concerned, will recollect the first of April is near at hand, a hint to the wise is sufficient.

H. K. Agent.

NOTICE.

Nauvoo Ill. March 13, 1843.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo that he has on hand a variety of Boots and Shoes manufactured from the best of eastern leather; and will do any work in his line, on the shortest notice; also wishes to purchase hides and skins, for which he will pay boots, shoes, or trade at his shop, on the corner of Hyrum and Page street, north of the Temple.
46-1f J. BAIR.

NO CURE NO PAY.

DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.

Nauvoo, Jan. 28, 1842

33-1f.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St., New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Morton, New Orleans,
Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.
A. H. Mathews, Warsaw.
Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-6m*

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to grantors, the land being incumbered by a mortgage, to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent
HIRAM KIMBALL.
Nauvoo January 13 1843. 1f

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic. no35-6m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.
Joseph John on, Ramus
J. Salisbury, Plymouth.
Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike
L. R. Chaffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.
Wm. Walker, Matoum M. Donough co. Ill.
Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.
Levi Moffet, Augusta.
Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.
John E. Page, Pittsburgh.
B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.
Jam s Curtis, Horners Town.
W. I. Appleby, Reelless Town.
Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS

Erastus Snow, Salem.
Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapier.
OHIO.
John Johnson, Kirtland.
NEW YORK.
L. Charles Thompson, Batavia.
R. L. Foster, city of New York

THE WASP,

IS EDITED BY
JOHN TAYLOR.

PRINTED AND PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY, BY
TAYLOR & WOODRUFF
At the corner of Water and Main Street,
Nauvoo, Hancock county, Ill.
TERMS.—$1.50 invariably in advance.
RATES OF ADVERTISING,
One square, one insertion, $1.
Every subsequent insertion, 37 1-2 cents.
Letters must be addressed to the Editor,
(John Taylor,) POST PAID, to receive attention.

DARBY AND JOAN.

A GOOD LESSON.

When Darby saw the setting sun,
He swung his scythe and home he run,
Sat down, drank off his pint, and said,
"My work is done, I'll go to bed,"
"My work is done!" retorted Joan
"My work is done!" your constant tone?
But hapless woman ne'er can say
"My work is done" till judgment day."

Here Darby hemmed, and scratched his head,
To answer what his Joan had said;
But all in vain, her clack went on—
"Yes, woman's work is never done!"
At early dawn, ere Phoebus rose,
Old Joan resumed her tale of woes;
When Darby said: "I'll end the strife,
Be you the man, and I the wife,
Take you the scythe and mow, while I
Will all your boasted cares supply."
"Content," quoth Joan; "give me my stint;"
This Darby did, and out she went.

Darby rose, and seized the broom,
And whirled the dirt around the room;
Which having done, he scarce knew how,
He hied to milk the brindle cow—
The brindle cow whisked round her tail
In Darby's eyes, and kicked the pail;
The clown perplexed with grief and pain,
Swore he'd ne'er try to milk again;
When turning round, in sad amaze,
He saw his cottage in a blaze;
For as he chanced to brush the room
In careless haste, he fired the broom;
The fire at last subdued, he swore
The broom and he would meet no more,
Pressed by misfortune and perplexed,
Darby prepared for breakfast next;
But what to get he scarcely knew,
The bread was spent, and butter too;
His hands bedaubed with paste and flour,
Old Darby laboured full an hour,
But, hapless wight! he could not make
The bread take form of loaf or cake.

As every door wide open stood,
In pushed the sow in quest of food,
And stumbling onward, with her snout
Overset the churn—the cream run out.
As Darby turned, the sow to beat,
The slippery cream betrayed his feet.
He caught the bread trough in his fall;
And down came Darby, trough and all,
The children, wakened by the clatter,
Start up and cry, "La! what's the matter?"
Old Jowler barked, and Tabby mewed,
And hapless Darby bawled aloud,
"Return, my Joan, as heretofore,
I'll play the housewife's part no more;
Since now by sad experience taught,
Compared to thine my work is naught,
Henceforth, as business calls, I'll rake,
And never more transgress the line
Our fates have marked while thou art mine;
I'll vex thy honest soul no more
By scolding, as I've done before,
Let each our proper task attend—
Forgive the past, and try to mend."

(From the New Orleans Picayune.)

THE CITY OF MEXICO.

The most impressive notion that strikes a new traveller while progressing through the large cities of Mexico, is the inordinate thirst of gold that does still and always must have characterized the rulers and priesthood of the country.—While a great mass of the population are in actual poverty, verging on starvation, the churches and palaces are gorged with wealth and treasure. The tyranny of the conquerors is still alive, and the miserably degraded state to which the poor aborigines have been reduced, and in which the pauper portion of even the Mexicans themselves exist, is truly pitiable.

Much has been written about the mild climate of Mexico, and little is left to say of it that would not assume the appearance of repetition. Yet the traveller beneath those sunny skies can scarcely repress a disposition to record his emotions if once a pen comes between his fingers; and, indeed it would be difficult for even the most poetic fancy to be too warm and glowing upon the subject.—Fire places and stoves are no common thing in the city of Mexico, and houses are built without thought of such a provision as a chimney place. Cooking is done out of doors, in the streets and yards, and a daily spectacle in the public squares is beggars and others, with small furnaces, preparing the scanty fare for use. This fact shows emphatically the nature of the climate.

The great capital is situated in a broad and beautiful plain, encompassed by gigantic mountains, to the summits of which the eye is continually roving; the bold contrast of nature's stupendous work, with the domes and steeple below, irresistibly forcing wonder and admiration upon the mind. Regarding the city itself, the traveller will not always form favorable impressions when first beholding it; and, in fact, those who have indulged in excitement over warm descriptions of the country, are very apt to be stricken with the chillness of disappointment. Nor is even a sojourn of some weeks sufficient to change this frame of enterprise. It lingers upon you, and is likely to remain your strongest bent of feeling when you leave. It is certainly true that there are many buildings—mostly public however—churches, convents, monasteries and so forth, of great and striking proportions, which never fail to arrest the observations of the stranger; but it is more from their antiquated style of structure than anything like real architectural elegance.

These buildings are mostly old, and already remarkable for venerable appearance, though they are all likely to stand as long again and longer, for their durability would seem really to defy the progress of time. The old Spanish mode of building prevails, of course, throughout the city, giving rich novelty at any rate, to the eye of the American visitor, and making the scene quaint and picturesque.

The houses are all similar in construction, being of stone, and very seldom varying in fashion. This sameness, however, is another point coming in unpleasant contrast with the romantic features of the city which we have just mentioned, and its effect is materially to mar the pleasure of the traveller. The general appearance of every thing in the way of architecture is massive, and but little of grandeur is to be found, save in the interior of the churches while real elegance is to be seen nowhere. A heavy and sombre effect is produced by the ancient style of structure. In the houses the floors are of tile or common brick, and the stranger will not fail to observe immediately the absence of fire places.

The streets are but roughly paved, and none of them are at all over cleanly. They are not planned with side walks and gutters as ours are, but sloped downward from each side to the centre, where there is generally a covered drain. By far the greater portion of the thoroughfares are neglected, and our pen shrinks from a description of the filth and wretchedness to be found in some of them.

Mexico lies in the heart of the mountains, high in the torrid regions, seven thousand four hundred and forty feet above the sea; and, here in a vast valley, overtopped by the huge Cordilleras of the south sits the capital of New Spain. It is a great city, and one whose destinies, both of old and to come, are now more than ever engaging the attention of surrounding nations. Strange and semi-barbarous as has been the history of the country through its career until this time, the next ten or fifteen years promise even a more eventful record. Fiercer days than those of the Spanish invader seem likely to gloom over the land, and a deadlier fight than with Montezuma's people, may yet be storied of the new Castilians and their newest neighbors.

The population of the city is now called one hundred and seventy thousand; at least it was so estimated when Santa Anna was garrisoned in his palace with many troops around him. Yet to see the swarms of human beings that almost constantly throng the streets, a natural impression arises that the number must be greater. Many composing these crowds, however, are not residents of the city, but wander about the country in all directions, having homes nowhere. One of the most distinct and at the same time revolting features of the city, and in fact the whole country, is its numerous and wretched pauper population. All cities have their better classes, certainly, and even Mexico has hers, but these are secluded and are seldom seen by the stranger. The intelligent Mexicans deeply reprobate the idleness, rascality, sloth and other vices of the poor mass, and will freely so express themselves to Americans; but vast and mighty convulsions must shake the nation before ever a better state of things will be brought about.

Crimes prevail among the poverty stricken wretches to a frightful extent. Thefts, robberies, and even murders, are of nightly and sometimes daily occurrence. Two or more dead bodies may be seen almost any morning, exposed in the dead house, victims of assassination during the night. Horses are stolen impudently in daylight, in the public streets, and persons robbed of their money almost with impunity. Heaven preserve all decent travellers from the loafers, rascals and leprosy of Mexico.

We have given all the space we can afford to this sketch, and yet we have scarcely touched upon half the points that interest us.

Appalling particulars of the late Awful Earthquake.—A letter in the New York Commercial, dated "Point au Petre, Gaudaloupe, February 16th, states, that the earthquake commenced on the 9th ult. and continued several days—the earth began to rock to and fro, having at the same time an upward and downward motion; then followed the tumbling of buildings all over the city, coming down with a mighty crash; in about thirty seconds the city was in ruins! A few hours after, fire broke out in various parts of the city, destroying what remained after the earthquake. So that nothing is to be seen but the broken walls and a few old wooden buildings in the outskirts of the town. It was called by many the handsomest city in the West India Islands. It contained a population of 18,000, and the buildings were of stone, three and four stories high. A St. Croix paper of February 16th contains accounts from all or nearly all the islands at which the shocks were felt. At Point au Petre, Gaudaloupe, six thousand persons had 'disappeared;' the bodies of four thousand had been dug out of the ruins and taken out to sea, to prevent a pestilence. Of eight hundred soldiers forming the regiment quartered there, only forty remained. The massive fortifications were a heap of ruins, and the mouth of the harbor was completely choked up by rocks forced from the bottom of the sea. It was feared that the vessels in port would never be got out. Only ten lives were lost at Antigua, although almost every building in St. John's was thrown down. At St. Eustatia the damage was confined mainly to buildings, some being very badly injured. At St. Christopher's several of the public buildings were utterly destroyed. At Nevis and St. Bartholomew's the earth opened and water with a sulphurous smell issued from the crevices. Nothing farther had been heard from Montserrat. When last seen the island was enveloped in a dense cloud of smoke or dust. The sea around was violently agitated. At St. Vincent the shock was felt but slightly. The United States Consul at Point au Petre had been so much injured that he survived but a short time. The town and harbor had been put under martial law to prevent plundering.

Rights of Women.—John Neal, an eccentric genius, has been lecturing in New York on the rights of women. Hear what the Brooklyn News says of him:

"He thinks women should vote—should participate in the duties of juries, and have a voice in the civil and military engagements of our government. What absurd stuff is all this prattle about the Rights of Women! Suppose Mr. Neal's motives were carried into operation, what a beautiful spectacle would not this country present in a very short time! The strong vigorous, enterprising Uncle Sam, transformed into a Jerry Sneak—a gigantic specimen of a poor hen-pecked son of sorrow. In time of peace how effective would be our army and navy—the commander-in-Chief in a delicate situation, her officers darning stockings, and the horse-soldiers washing diapers for the infantry! A pretty figure our fleet would cut with our commodores suckling babes, and our lieutenants pining away in love, and letting

"Concealment, like a worm in the bud
Feed on their damask cheeks."

The man who would remove woman from the position God has assigned her, should be condemned to pantaloons and flannels for the remainder of his silly existence."

The papers state that a woman named Susannah Shaw, killed herself in New York on Thursday, by taking at one dose, medicine which had been given her by a physician to be taken in eight doses.

PROSPECTUS

OF A

WEEKLY NEWSPAPER.

CALLED

THE NAUVOO NEIGHBOR.

We feel pleasure in announcing to our readers and to the public generally, that we have determined to enlarge the Wasp to double its size; as soon as the present volume shall be completed, which will be on the 26th of April.

It made its appearance in the world near twelve months ago; small in stature, dressed in a very humble garb, and under very inauspicious circumstances. It was then thought by many that its days would not be long in the land, and that at any rate it would not survive the sickly season. Many of its elder brethren who thought that they had attained to the size of manhood sneered contemptuously at the idea of their smaller, and younger brother taking the field, and like David's brethren they thought that he was but a stripling, and that he would certainly fall by the hand of some of the great Goliath's; but on the contrary while some of advanced years, noble mein, and possessing a more formidable appearance have given up the ghost, the little Wasp has held on the even tenor of his way the untiring, unflinching supporter of integrity, righteousness and truth; neither courting the smiles, nor fearing the frowns of political demagogues, angry partisans, nor fawning sycophants. Partaking so much of the nature of the industrious bee, it has gathered honey from every flower, and its pages are now read with interest by a large, and respectable number of subscribers.

As the young gentleman is now nearly a year old, we propose on his birth day to put him on a new dress, and to make him double the size, that he may begin to look up in the world, and not be ashamed of associating with his older brethren; and as he has acted the part of a good samaritan, we propose giving him a new name.—Therefore his name shall no longer be called THE WASP, but the NEIGHBOR.

The "Nauvoo Neighbor" will be published on a large imperial sheet, got up in good style, and with care, and taste. It will be edited by JOHN TAYLOR, and will be devoted to the dissemination of useful knowledge of every description;—The Arts, Science, Religion, Literature, Agriculture, Manufactures, Trade, Commerce and the general news of the day.

We propose publishing from the best authorities a Bank Note Table corrected weekly; and also a list of the prices current, in the principle Eastern and Western cities, as well as in our own city.

We shall publish a weekly record of deaths in our city, and all ordinances passed by the City Council; the proceedings of Courts Martial, Military Parades, the principal transactions of the Mayor's and the Municipal Court, and every thing of interest that transpires in, and about our city.

Articles on agriculture will be furnished from the best sources, which will make the Neighbor a welcome visitor to our farmers and gardeners.

Concerning Politics we shall not be silent; but reserve to ourselves the right of judging of all measures, parties, and men; and without respect to party, award to all individuals of whom we may have occasion to speak, the true reward of merit or demerit, without prejudice or restraint.

We have sent to Europe to effect an exchange with some of the principal newspapers, in London, Edinburg, Dublin, and Liverpool, from which we shall be able to furnish to our European friends, as well as American, news that will be interesting. And as we do now exchange with most of the principal papers in the United States, both east, west, north and south, we flatter ourselves, that with the facilities of obtaining information that we possess, and a little care and attention on our part, that the "Nauvoo Neighbor," will be second to none in the west.

The "Neighbor" will be published every Wednesday, by TAYLOR & WOODRUFF, at the corner of Water and Bain streets, Nauvoo, Hancock County, Ill. and its price will be two dollars payable in all cases in advance. Any person procuring five new subscribers and forwarding us ten dollars current money, shall be entitled to one volume gratis.

It must be obvious to all business men, that from the character of the Nauvoo Neighbor, and on account of its extensive circulation, it will afford a first rate medium of advertizing. ADVERTISEMENTS conspicuously inserted on reasonable terms.

INDIAN OUTRAGES.

We are indebted to a correspondent at Prairie du Chien, for the following extract of a letter from Fort Atkinson, on Turkey River, Iowa Territory, to a friend at the former place, dated March 27th, 1843:

"Last evening, about 6 o'clock, Mr. Lowry and his son Sylvanus came up here, bringing the news of the murder of three whites, living in Wilcox's settlement; particulars as follows: Three Winnebagoes belonging to Little Hill's Band, went down on Thursday or Friday morning after whiskey as they said; not finding a sufficient quantity on hand, they remained until Friday evening—at which time one Banel arrived—they pretended to find fault with the price, &c. so as to get up a quarrel. One of the Indians then shot a man by the name of Atwell; then they bound the other and killed him with a tomahawk; his name was Zegardner, (or T. Gardner) They then tomahawked three children, (five persons, being all there was in the house) and supposed that they had killed them. They then took possession of the whiskey, then set the house on fire and left. The eldest boy, aged 13, and a little girl were not killed—one received five stabs, the other three—the boy so far recovered before the building burnt, as to be able to take his father's watch, over-coat and boots, and fifty dollars in gold, and also his little sister, and then starten towards Wilcox's house, which was distant one mile. He was found in the morning, with both feet frozen to the ankle. It is supposed that he and his sister will die soon.

Capt. Sumner, with his usual promptness, left the Fort with his mounted men within forty minutes after the news reached him; determined that neither cold nor darkness of the night should prevent him from bringing to justice, the perpetrators of this horrible deed.

He returned this morning, about half past 3 o'clock, with nine Indians as hostages, and at 5 o'clock started again in pursuit of the murderers. He overtook them about four miles south of the agency, (Winnebago) and returned here at 10 o'clock, A. M. with them. He released the hostages, and put balls and chains on the guilty: they cannot escape. A more prompt movement was never made with troops; they were out all night, and a very severe night it was. [Galena Gazette.

Hymenal Statistics.—The Lancaster (Pa.) Examiner has a very humorous article under this head, which is quite too long for us, but it concludes with a tabular summary well worth quoting.
Number of young men now going a courting, in Lancaster 2350

Of which have actually popped the question and been accepted	630
Ditto, and been refused	25
Number who are anxious to pop the question, but can't screw up their courage	1610
Number who have been jilted	85
Number hunting fortunes	2349
Number confirmed old bachelors	850
Of which are not worth having	845
Of which would do as a last resort	5
Number of widowers who wish to marry again	4
Number of widows do do	306
Number of young ladies who are in the market	6649
Of which had actually had offers	655
Of which waiting in a dreadful suspense	1610
Of which will ask her mother	1
Number of young ladies in market with "metaphysical charms"	147
Of which hold bank stock	60
Of which will bear a small farm each	47
Of which have money at interest	30
Number of young ladies qualified to make good wives	6649
Of which would darn their husbands stockings	550
Of which skilful in astronomy	5830
Of which learn'd in the languages	4735
Of which able to spell their own names	502
Of which know how to waltz	4300
Of which know how to make a pudding	1760
Of which know how to use a spinning-wheel	40
Of which know how to spend their husbands' money	6649

Here is a "Lancasterian school" to which our fair young readers will, we are sure, be ready to go.

THE WASP.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 26, 1843.

This week closes our present volume, and our little urchin will have on his new dress and will have grown considerably larger before he again makes his appearance with his new name which will be on next Wednesday.

The opinions of men may have been various in regard to the course he has taken; some may have approved and some disapproved of his course. We have no commendatory remarks to make for him; nor have we any apology to offer; but shall let his past conduct speak for itself, and let him stand or fall upon his own merit.

But whilst his patrons are increasing and a renewed anxiety is still manifest for his company, we may fairly infer that he has been conducive, in some degree to the happiness of his friends. For while he has reminded the thoughtless of the uncertainty of life and the necessity of redeeming the time he has often caused the face of melancholy to be lit up with a smile before they were aware. He has also sent forth intelligence into the wilderness, and made us familiar with the transactions of man, and the judgments of God, in the most distant regions of the earth. It is needless to repeat what has already been stated in the prospectus respecting our future intentions.

We had on Saturday last (according to appointment) a general parade of the 'Nauvoo Legion,' the officers and men seemed to be in good spirits. The evolutions were performed in admirable style, and every thing went off well.

It would seem from our exchange papers that the Japanese are singled out, by the British, as the next victims to their avarice and oppression—we shall give particulars in our next.

Right of Search.—The London Morning Chronicle, (Lord Palmerston's organ) contains this important paragraph: "The Admiralty instructions specifically direct our naval officers at the Cape of Good Hope, coast of Africa, West Indies and Brazil, to stop and visit and ascertain the nationality of any vessel, (even though she bear the American flag) that they may have reason to suspect of being a slave. President Tyler says, if this 'right be enforced upon any vessel bona fide American property, the interference shall be regarded and treated as an offence against public law. And President Tyler adds that he is supported by the authority of Lord Ashburton's Treaty. Is this the fact, or is it not? Has Lord Ashburton surrendered the 'essential right invariably exercised by the British navy?' If he has not, will Lord Aberdeen dare to maintain it in the face of the American President's menace!"

The New Orleans Tropic of the 21st says: We learn from a gentleman who left Merida about ten days since, that the people resident at Sisal, were in hourly expectation of the descent of the Mexican fleet upon that place. It was there rumored to be the intention of that fleet to leave their station at Lerma, near Campeachy, in obedience to orders to that effect. Several vessels at Sisal were in the process of unloading their cargoes of corn, flour &c. some of which weighed anchor and made off with much haste. It is said that one vessel which had disposed of her cargo at Merida, 36 miles from Sisal, had to choose between leaving her cargo and freight money, or by waiting, run the risk of serious detention. The inhabitants of both places were deeply alarmed at the appearance of the comet, the Indian part of the population particularly. A full view of it was had every night in the Gulf, and the nucleus discovered very plainly.

Millerism in St. Louis.—"An immense concourse of persons assembled at Concert Hall, yesterday evening, to hear the disciples of Miller hold forth. The meeting was more like the mass meeting held in this city, or the late Tyler meeting in New York, than anything we can compare it to. Soon after the speaker commenced, clapping and all sorts of noises were uttered. Scotch snuff or cayenne pepper had been scattered over the floor, and all sorts of snuffing and coughing ensued; eggs were thrown at the speakers, their charts were torn down, and the disturbance arose to such an extent that Mr. Xaupf, the lessee of the room, had to appear on the stage and request the audience not to injure the room. On the outside, several hundred were collected in the street, and some evil persons threw stones into the front windows. When this commenced, the meeting broke up. The whole was as unlike a religious meeting as can well be conceived of, in fact, it approached very near a mob."

[Such conduct comports well with the character of Missouri.]

China.—The New York Commercial contains a letter from Canton, received by the Great Western, from which we extract the following:—"Commodore Kearney, who is now here, and will in a day or two leave China in the Constellation, for Manilla, to return in a month or six weeks, has lately addressed a communication to the viceroy, which, from the tenor of the reply, we infer was to ask that the American trade might be placed upon the same footing hereafter, as the British trade with China. We have not had an opportunity of seeing a copy of the commodore's letter, but have seen a translation of the answer, which is a civil one and satisfactory also. The Governor states that the Emperor is aware, as he the Governor is also that the American merchants have been better contented and more observant of the laws than those of other nations, and that therefore he is well disposed to pay attention to the communication made to him. He then informs the Commodore that as soon as the high commissioners and Sir H. Pottinger arrive here and have arranged regarding the British trade, he the Governor, together with the Lieutenant Governor and Tartars' General, will consult and make a representation to the Emperor regarding the American trade, and that its interest will be attended to."

Curious Origin of Cards.—It is generally believed that cards were invented for the amusement of one of the early kings of the line of Bourbon; but this belief is erroneous. Who the man that invented these instruments of amusement is, is not known, neither can we tell in what age they were first invented. Our knowledge is limited to the country from whence they came—namely, Egypt. The colors are two—red and black, which answer to the Equinoxes. The suits are four, answering to the seasons. The emblems formerly were, and still are in Spain—for the heart, a cup, the emblem of the winter; the spade, an acorn, the emblem of summer; the diamond, a rose, the emblem of spring. The twelve court cards answer to the twelve months, and were formerly depicted as the signs of the zodiac. The fifty-two cards answer to the number of weeks in a year; the thirteen cards in each suit to the number of weeks in each lunar quarter. The aggregate of the pips amount to the number of days in a year.

London Mirror.

An Expected Interesting Event.—We have been somewhat amused at the gravity of John Bull in his attempts to give us the exact period when the young and lovely Queen of England will gratify "a nation's hope" by presenting another cause for a universal holiday-show. The fashionable court paper, the London Morning Post, thinks that the "town-trade" will revive with this happy event, and looks forward for the Queen's departure from Windsor with great interest. Her Majesty and the Royal Family were to leave Windsor Castle for Buckingham Palace, London, on the fifteenth of last month, and the journal referred to, remarks, that it will be only from the middle of April that "the days will begin to be reckoned with a view to a critical and happy event. In the mean time, no doubt, our gracious Sovereign has most kindly felt the serious detriment to trade which would result from her Majesty's remaining at Windsor both before and after that event, which the nation at large anxiously expect with heartfelt wishes and most auspicious feelings—these observations and feelings of gratitude the more readily spring up, for the state of the town-trade is deplorable—particularly when contrasted with the same epoch last year, when the Royal Christening, and the visit of the King of Prussia had so happily revived the pleasurable energies of the metropolis and the Court."

The Democrat's Creed.—I believe in Equal Natural Rights to air, water, light, and soil, and that these rights are inalienable. I believe in government for the preservation of these, and the protection from violence of the person, property, and freedom of opinion of every citizen. I believe in Equal Universal Education. I believe in Universal Suffrage and Eligibility to Office. I believe in Free Trade. I believe in Direct Taxation. I believe in a Specie Currency.—The Radical.

Anecdote.—A gentleman of this city, says the Lowell Courier, recently hired an Irishman to work for him for a few weeks. Patrick was not particularly early at his work, and he liked to leave off somewhat before sundown. One day when he was about to close up for the night, his employer said to him—"You needn't be in a hurry about leaving off work—you know you didn't get here in very good season." "Oh, your honor," said Patrick, "wouldn't it be a disgrace to me to be late twice in the same day?"

Death by Fire.—A widow lady by the name of — Scott, who resided in the neighborhood of Greenton, in this county, was left alone at her residence, a few days since, and in the act of stooping over the fire, is supposed to have been seized with a fit, and in her struggles, got into the fire. When discovered she was quite dead, the flesh on her head, shoulders, arms and a part of the body, burned to a crisp. She was about fifty years of age. [—Lex. Express, April 4.]

Shipwreck and Loss of Lives.—Schooner Mary Jane, from St. Mary's Bay, Yarmouth, of and for Grand Menan, was with the crew, totally lost in Long Island Bay, Grand Menan, on Friday evening, 17th inst. during the violent snow storm. Daniel Galcomb, Sidney Bancroft and Charles Otterson, were in the vessel when she left home. Pieces of the wreck drifted on shore near the captain's house, which was the first notice had of the disaster.

November.—No wonder Englishmen hang themselves in the gloomy month of November, if the following description of it by the facetious Thos. Hood, be to the life, or rather, to the death:

NO!
No sun—no moon!
No morn—no noon.
No dawn—no dusk—no proper time of day—
No sky—no earthly view—
No distance looking blue—
No road—no street—no 't'other side the way—
No end to any Row—
No indications when the Crescent goes—
No top to any steeple—
No signs of familiar people—

No courtesies for showing 'em—
No knowing 'em!
No travelling at all—no locomotion,
No inkling of the way—no notion—
"No go"—by land or ocean—
No mail—no post—
No news from any foreign coast—
No park—no Ring—no afternoon gentility—
No company—no nobility—
No warmth, no cheerfulness, no healthful ease
No comfortable feel in any member—
No shade, no shine, no butterflies, no bees,
No fruit, no flowers, no leaves, no birds—November.

Power of Music.—Most of our readers probably remember the expedient resorted to by Napoleon, while crossing the Alps, to rouse the drooping spirits of his brave but fatigued and half frozen legions.—The band, by the General's order, "struck up" the "Marseilles Hymn," which almost instantly had a magical effect upon the spirits and physical powers of the old soldiers of the Revolution. A similar expedient was recently resorted to, with similar success, by a British officer in Afghanistan, as will be seen by the following: The order of march having been again given, several refused to move, from sheer exhaustion, and their situation became one of great embarrassment to their Colonel, who was aware, that if he left them behind they would be instantly sabred by the enemy, who were always hovering on our rear. Recollecting that it was St. Patrick's day, and that most of the recusants were Irishmen, he ordered, as a last resource, that the band of the regiment should strike up their national anthem. The effect was electrical. The poor devils, whose limbs a short time previous had refused to perform their accustomed office, and whose countenance wore the aspect of the most abject despondency, seemed at once to have new life and energy infused into them. They felt that this was an appeal to their proverbial bravery and powers of endurance, and gratified vanity did that which threats and remonstrances had failed to effect. A faint smile lit up their features, and slowly rising from the ground, they tottered on their way.

The editor of the Midnight Cry, the Miller paper published in New York, has published a letter in the Express, in which he says he receives subscriptions for only three months at a time; that there is no truth in the story of the death of a Millerite while endeavoring to ascend to heaven from a tree; and that a clergyman of Washington has embraced all the essential doctrines of Millerism.

DEATHS—for the week ending Monday the 24th inst.

Mary Noble, infant of J. B. Noble.
Margret Clinton, 1 year; hoopingcough.
Adelmon H. Noon, 6 months; fit of Apoplexy.

W. D. HUNTINGTON, Sexton.

A List of Letters

REMAINING in the Post Office at Nauvoo, Hancock County Illinois, April 1, 1843; which if not taken out before the first of July next, will be sent to the Post Office Department as dead letters.

Any person calling for any of the following letters will please say they are advertised, or they may not get them.

Albem Allen
Rufus Abbott
Isaac Alread
Richard Abbott
J F Abbott
Laurinda M Atwood

Wm S Bachelor
Chas Bird
Almon Babbitt
A Bates
Israel Barlow
Jno Bottoms
Jno Burghardt
Martin Bushman
Geo W Bryant
H C Booth
Mr. Brown
Anna Brooks

Francis Clark
J M Chittister
H Chamberlin
Israel Colkins
Isaac Cooper
John Cairns
W M Campbell
John Crossbey

Erastus Dodge
J Downton 2
Bartley Dehart

Edwards

Elijah Everett
Jno Alley
Jno Armistead
Lewis Abbott
Rebecca Atwood
Richard Ashley
Dennes Boren
Joel Bullard
G W Brannan
Jacob Brown
M L Bates
Thos Bateman
Daniel Brownill
Jacob Bart
V H Brace
W W H Beby
J M Burk
Miles Burns

W B Corbit 2
Eunace Cane
Thos Carrico
Wm Clark
Wm Carper
Polly M Colton
H Chezebrouge

R W Dimpsey
Henry Davis
S Davis
G H Dudley

Edwards

Jos Egbert
R D Foster
Mrs Fedler
C B Fisher 2
A G Fellows

L S Gilber
Y Green
Wm Garner
Sarah Gibbs
Job Green
G W Harris
Richard Hewett
Thos Harris
Wilkinson Hewett
Jefferson Hunt
Thos Hays
J A Hicks
Orson Hyde
J P Harmon 3

Mary E Jones
Samuel Johnson
Benj Johnson
A Jeffers

Wm Kidd
T R King
Martha Knight
E B Keys

Ebenezer Landers
T L Lancaster

B Miller
C Marsh
Laban Manill
Wm Marks 2
S McMurray
Abram Michael
Hiram McKesell
Harriet Marsh
L J Murdock
H B Merrian
A S Merrills
P Merils

Edmond Nelson

Mr Orr

Jno Price
Jno Pack 2
Jno Parker
David Pratt
Finley Page
A Petter
Deborah Patter
Mary Ann Peck
Thos Pitt 2

Wm Robinson
E Robinson
Wm Ruce
Geo Ritchie
J W Reynolds
H Roberts
Alfred Randol
Malvin Ross

Daniel Shearer
Joshua Smith 3
Moses Smith
Thos Sher
Chester Southwalh
R Scott
Mr Springer
G Stonett
J T Sanger 2
Robt Stone

H Tate
C Thompson
Thos D Tumbull 2
Thos Taylor

Horace Wilds
S S Wilber
Wm Walker
Daniel Wood
W Wallis
W Walwork
Chas Wilds
Jno Wardell
P M Wheeler
Lyman Wight
P L Wert

Milo Everts
Mr Fletcher
W D Fisher
Ed F Finch

Mr Green
J P Green
James F Green
Sarah Gibbons
Joseph D Gilbert
Elliot Hartwell
Wm Hamilton
Elliot Hartwell
Ed Hayle
W G Hunsucker
James Hutchinson
J C Haight
Peter Haws
R Hardman

Margaret Johnson
Wm Jones
Jonna Jenkins

Leonard Kilbourn 2
Ezekiel Kellogg
Nancy Kayle
P T Kelley

E & M Lawrence

Jarvis Minor
D A Miller
Peter Mellling
George Moore
Mathew More
Fayette Marks
Alex McRae
Thos Miller
Ann McIntire 2
Geo Miller 5
J A Mikesell 2

Wm Niswonger
Thos Orr

Ezra Parrish
Mary Pugh
Ed Phillips
Wm Parsons
P P Pratt
Adam Pilkington
Amos Perry
Thos Prouce
Albert Peure

Wm. Roslance
Alonzo Reed
Lewis Robertson
Jas Rodebock
Chas Roberts
H J Rodes
N W Rodes

Jno Scott
Elder Sherwood
Jacob Shoemaker
Wm Stanley
S M Strong
Ezra Strong
Albert Smith
Alex Simpson 3
Wm Stughey

Jonathan Taylor
Jno Tranton
Solomona Tindal

P Waggoner
Wm A Weston
Henry Warren
Jacob Wiggle
J H Wells
Samuel Williams
Amelia Wilsey
Albert Wright
Robert Wright
Benj Warrington

B Young
SIDNEY RIGDON, P. M.

NAUVOO ROPE MANUFACTORY.

The subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo, and the surrounding country, that he has established a rope manufactory in this city, where he intends to manufacture Cordage of every description; bed cords, clothe lines, chalk lines &c., which he will sell at St. Louis prices. He intends keeping an assortment of the above mentioned articles constantly on hand. Any persons wishing to purchase will do well to examine his stock before purchasing elsewhere.

N. B. All orders promptly attended to.

HOWARD EGAN.

April 26, 1843. 52—tf

PHONOGRAPHY,

OR WRITING BY SOUND.

TWO LECTURES will be delivered by G. D. WATT, on Friday and Saturday evenings next, at the store of Joseph Smith, on the above system of writing; when the advantages in comparison with the best systems now extant will be clearly shown, and the system being founded in nature can be easily acquired by any individual. Admittance free.

This system, which, from its simplicity, is remarkably easy of attainment and pleasing in practice, is so true and perfect a method of writing, that any word in any language, names, of persons and places, the precise pronunciation of a person, &c. can be expressed by it with perfect ease and precision; be read at any distance of time without the possibility of mistake, and with a greater ease than long-hand—it is, therefore, admirably adapted for every species of composition; while, for reporting, it is so remarkably brief, that three simple strokes will invariably write three words! taking the average of all the words in the English Language: "indeed, to compare Phonography with Stenography is like comparing the Newtonian system of astronomy with the systems of Tycho Brahe, Ptolemy and others. The one is truth and order, the others are error and disorder." Or to use a more familiar comparison, phonography as compared with mere systems of stenography is, in writing, what railway locomotives are in travelling, as compared with stage coaches.

TAKE NOTICE.

THE citizens of Nauvoo and vicinity who wish to improve their stock of horses at a very low rate, will do well to avail themselves of the present opportunity of securing stock from the splendid and thorough bred

YOUNG MARSHAL.

He will stand the ensuing season at the stable of the subscriber in Nauvoo, and will render service at the extremely, unusual low rates of two dollars single service, to be paid at the time. four dollars the season if paid within the season. six dollars to insure, to be paid as soon as it is ascertained the mare is with foal. Parties with a mare forfeits the insurance. Season to commence the 15th of April, A. D 1843, and end the first of July following.

PEDIGREE.

Marshal was sired by old Cherokee, of Kentucky, he by sir Archy, of Virginia. Marshal's dam was by Old Bedford, and he by old Doublehead.

Most kinds of country produce will be received in payment.

DAVISON HIBBARD.

no 50 3 w.

MILLINERY & DRESSMAKING.

MISS H. ELLS, tenders her most respectful thanks for the patronage she has received. Wishes to inform the ladies of Nauvoo and its vicinity that she continues to carry on the above business in all its branches, in which she trusts to give that satisfaction which will insure a continuance of their favors.

Next door to brick store Water St.

FOR SALE

THE south half of section 19, 7 n 5 w. s w of n w 20, 7 n 5 w. s w of n e 20 7 n 5 w. The above land lays west of LaHarp from one to two miles. Also the n e of n w 19, 6 n 5 w. about six miles south of LaHarp. And the west half of n e 6, 6 n 6 w; near Pilot Grove; the n w of the n e q of sec 22, 5 n 5 w near Bartlett's Mills, on Crooket creek; the north half of the s w of sec two 4 n 4 w and s w of the s e of sec 35 5 n 4 w in McDonough county. All the above tracts are congress titles. The s w q of 14, 6 n 7 w. s e q of 29, 5 n 7 w. n w q of 17, 7 n 5 w. and 20 acres adjoining the town of Macomb, in McDonough co. the last mentioned tracts are patent or tax titles. Also town lots in the towns of Warsaw, Pulaski, Appanooee &c. and about one thousand acres of good land in Iowa Territory. The above lands and lots will be sold on liberal terms, most of it in good trade; those wishing to purchase any or all of the tracts can enquire of

HIRAM KIMBALL

Nauvoo April 4th 1843.

P. S. Also two milch cows for sale.

MILITARY NOTICE.

THE third regiment, second cohort of the Nauvoo Legion, are hereby notified that there will be an election for Colonel, to fill the place of Samuel Bent, resigned. The election will be held at the stone school house, on the third Saturday of April next, at one o'clock, P. M.

CHARLES C. RICH,
Brig'dr Gen'l.

BRACHMAN & SKINNER,
Attorneys and Counsellors at Law.

WILL attend to any business in their profession in the Circuit and Supreme Court. Offices—in the Court House Carthage, and at Nauvoo, near the Temple. 3m * no 51.

DR. CHARLES HIGBEE,

FOR the last thirteen years, a practitioner, in the states of Ohio, and Illinois; and a graduate of the university of Pennsylvania; offers his services, in every branch of his profession; more especially in diseases of women and children, to the citizens of Nauvoo and the surrounding country.

Office at Mr. Mills' Masonic Hall, Main Street.
Jan. 21, 1843.—3m*

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County.

In the Circuit Court of said County to May Term A. D. 1843.

Alanson Taylor } Plaintiff
vs. } In foreign attachment.
Elias H. Maine & }
James D. Band } Defendants.

The plaintiff's agent and attorney herein having filed affidavit, that the defendants Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, are non-residents of this State. Notice is hereby given to the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the clerk's office of the said circuit court of the said County of Hancock, against the estate of you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band dated the 2d day of March A. D. 1843 at the suit of the said Alanson Taylor, for the sum of one hundred and forty dollars with interest thereon from the 9th day of February A. D. 1842, directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock to execute, which said writ has been returned into the said Clerk's office, by the said Sheriff with an endorsement thereon, as follows, to wit: "Executed the within writ by reading the same to the within named Charles C. Maine, March 2d A. D. 1843. No property found in my county on which to levy this attachment." Now unless you the said Elias H. Maine and James D. Band, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said circuit court for the County of Hancock on the first day of the next term thereof, to be holden at the Court House in Carthage on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to said plaintiff's action, judgement will be rendered against you the said Elias H. Maine and Jas. D. Band, in favor of the said Alanson Taylor, and execution will issue against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements, of the said Charles C. Maine, as garnishee to satisfy the said debt and cost.

J. B. BACKENSTOS, Cl'k.

J. H. Sherman, Atty. for plaintiff.
March 3rd 1843. if.

THE subscriber having taken out letters of administration from the court of probate of Hancock county, Illinois, on the estate of J. D. Groves dec'd, late of said county, requests all persons having claims against said estate, to present the same to him or the court of probate of said county for settlement, on the first Monday in May. All persons indebted to said estate, are requested to make immediate payment to the undersigned.

no 47 6t

A. P. RINGER,
Administrator of

J. D. GROVES, dec'd
March 18, A. D. 1843. no 47 6t

NOTICE.

TWO house carpenters and one brick mason, with families are wanted at Carthage employ will be given.

W. P. COWAN.

STATE OF ILLINOIS, Hancock County
In the Circuit Court of said County,
to the May Term A. D. 1843.

Lewis Hyde }
vs. } IN ATTACHMENT.
Robert Allison }

NOTICE Is hereby given to the said Robert Allison, that a writ of attachment has been sued out of the Clerk's office of the said Circuit Court, dated the 22d day of January A. D. 1843, at the suit of the said Lewis Hyde, and against the estate of you the said Robert Allison for the sum of three hundred and fifty-eight dollars, (358.00) directed to the Sheriff of said County of Hancock, which said writ has been returned by the said Sheriff into the said Clerk's office, levied upon the estate of Robert Allison. Now unless you, the said Robert Allison, shall be and appear before the Judge of the said Circuit Court on the first day of the next term thereof to be holden at the Court House in Carthage in said county on the first Monday in the month of May next, give special bail and plead to the to the plaintiff's action, judgment will be rendered against you the said Robert Allison, in favor of the said Lewis Hyde, and the estate so attached will be sold to satisfy the said debt and cost.

Dated this 25th day of Feb. A. D. 1843.
J. B. BACKENSTOS, Clerk.

Geo. Bachman, Plaintiff's Atty.
no 44 tf or sc.

BOOKS! BOOKS!! BOOKS!!!

THE subscribers have just recieved a quantity of books of various descriptions, of which are the following:

SCHOOL BOOKS.

The Eclectic Primer, Ray's Eclectic Arithmetic, The Eclectic Spelling Book, Eclectic 1st Reader, Eclectic 2nd Reader, Eclectic 3rd Reader, Eclectic 4th Reader, Ray's Little Arithmetic, Olney's Geography and Atlas, also a large lot of Webster's Elementary Spelling Books.

ALSO,

Pocket and School Bibles, Day Books, Ledgers, Journals, Record Books, Pocket Journals, and other Blank Books of various descriptions, School Writing Books, Milleniel Star, published by P. P. Pratt, an assortment of Writing Paper, Slates, Pencils, Wafers, Quills, Lead Pencils, Ever Pointed Pencils, &c. &c.

All of which will be sold by the subscribers at their Book Store in the Printing Office, cheap for CASH.

The subscribers are also prepared to carry on the business of

BOOK BINDING,

in all its various branches; and having employed skillfull, and experienced workmen, they are prepared to do work as reasonable, expeditious, and to have it as neatly executed, as at any other establishment in this State.

The following is a list of our

PRICES.
Quartos	half	Bound	plain	1,50
do	do	do	neat	2,00
do	whole	bound	plain	2,00
do	do	do	neat	2,50
Octavo	full	bound	plain	1,00
do	do	do	neat	1,50
do	hf	bound	plain	0,75
do	do	do	neat	1,00
do	do	do	extra	1,37
Twelves	full	bound	plain	62
do	do	do	neat	87
do	hf	bound	plain	50
do	do	do	neat	75

All other kinds of work not above enumerated, done on the shortest notice, and on the most reasonable terms.

TAYLOR & WOODRUFF.

Nauvoo, Dec. 25, 1842. no36.

GEO. P. STILES,

ATTORNEY AND COUNSELLOR AT LAW.

WILL Practice law in the several Courts of this State, will attend to all business entrusted to his care, in the line of his profession, promptly, and with the strictest fidelity. He can, at all times, be consulted at his office, situated on the corner of Klights and Wells Streets, a few rods north of the Temple. Nauvoo, Hancock co. Ill. 1843.

SHERMAN'S MEDICATED LOZENGES.

THESE celebrated Lozenges are now offered to the citizens of Nauvoo and the West, as the best preparations (for the cure of the various diseases for which they are recommended) ever offered to the public. The proprietor, Dr. Sherman, is a regular graduate of Medicine, a member of the Medical Society of the city and county of New York, and these Lozenges are prepared from medical prescriptions which have been approved by the most celebrated physicians in that city; in addition to which they are prepared in so pleasant a manner that children eat them with avidity and cry for more. They consist of

COUGH LOZENGES.

Which are the safest and most effectual remedy for Coughs, Colds, Consumption, Whooping Cough, Asthma, &c., ever offered to the public. They operate by promoting expectoration, allaying the irritation of coughing, and removing the cause of the disease.

WORM LOZENGES

The only infallible Worm medicine ever discovered. In over 400,000 cases they have never been known to fail. Many diseases arise from worms and occasion long and intense suffering and even death without their ever being suspected; grown persons are very often afflicted with them, and are doctored for various complaints, without any benefit, when one dose of these Lozenges would speedily cure them.

CAMPBOR LOZENGES.

For Nervous or Sick Head Ache, Palpitations of the Heart, lassitude and nervous affections generally, Persons traveling or attending large parties, will find the Lozenges really reviving, and imparting the buoyancy of youth—used after dispensation, they will restore the tone of the system generally, and remove all the unpleasant symptoms arising from too free living.

CATHARTIC LOZENGES.

The best Cathartic medicine for removing bile from the system and preventing attacks of the bilious and intermittent fever of this section of country.

FEVER AND AGUE LOZENGES.

These Lozenges have been tested by a celebrated physician in a practice of twenty years, and have never been known to fail in removing the distressing disease. In addition to which, if the directions be followed, the disease will not return.

SHERMAN'S POOR MAN'S PLASTER,

This Plaster, of which over 1,000,000 are sold yearly, is believed to be the best Plaster for rheumatism, lumbago, pain in the back, side, breast or any other part of the body, ever prepared, and its price (only 12 1/2 cents,) brings it within the reach of every person in the community.

A large supply of these celebrated articles just received and for sale by (22-y1.) J. SNIDER,
Sole Agent for the City of Nauvoo.

LOOK HERE!

THE undersigned will exchange city or country property, for the breaking of seventy or more acres of prairie; also for a pair of Mules; a sett of Blacksmith's tools; and a first rate two-horse wagon. He will also take Illinois State and Shawnee-town paper in exchange for property, or on debts due him at fifty-cents on the dollar, if delivered before the 15th of April. He will pay cash for green calf-skins.

HIRAM KIMBALL.

March 15th 1843.

N. B. Those concerned, will recollect the first of April is near at hand, a hint to the wise is sufficient.

H. K. Agent.

NOTICE.

Nauvoo Ill. March 13, 1843.

THE subscriber wishes to inform the citizens of Nauvoo that he has on hand a variety of Boots and Shoes manufactured from the best of eastern leather; and will do any work in his line, on the shortest notice; also wishes to purchase hides and skins, for which he will pay boots, shoes, or trade at his shop, on the corner of Hyrum and Page street, north of the Temple.

NO CURE NO PAY.

DR. W. B. BRINK will treat cancers on the condition of no cure no pay, and would say to those who are afflicted with cancers to call and try a remedy that has never failed, and I will pay fifty dollars for every case where it will not perform a permanent cure; and persons residing at a distance can communicate by letter, post paid, and they can be informed of the cost and the time it may take to perform a cure.

Nauvoo, Jan. 28, 1842

29-1f.

BRADFORD & BROWN,
Commission and Forwarding Merchants,
Poydras St. New Orleans.

LIBERAL advances made on produce consigned for sale, or to be shipped to other ports. Forwarding done promptly and without storing, when possible.

To meet the hard times one third will be deducted of all bills of forwarding, which amount to 50 dollars or more from the rates established by the Chamber of Commerce; and generally followed.

Whenever groceries are ordered they shall be returned by the same boat that brings the order if funds or produce be sent; and our best exertions shall be used to make all expenses as light as possible.

REFER TO

H. E. Marton, New Orleans,

Aldrich & Rockwood, St. Louis.

A. H. Mathews, Waisaw,

Whiteman & Springer, Cincinnati.
December 10, 1842. no32-6m*

NOTICE.

IS hereby given to all persons who are indebted to Ethan Kimball for lands, are required to make payment in full, on or before the first day of April next, as deeds will not be given to delinquents, the land being incumbered by a mortgage to secure the payment of two thousand dollars, due D. G. Whitney; which mortgage will be foreclosed and the forfeited lands taken to satisfy said mortgage, if payment is not made as required above.

ETHAN KIMBALL, by his agent

HIRAM KIMBALL.

Nauvoo January 13 1843. if

BOTANIC PHYSICIAN.

DR. W. B. BRINK tenders his thanks to the citizens of Nauvoo, for past patronage, and still continues the practice of medicine at his residence, a few rods West of the Temple, where all calls will be punctually attended to, either day or night.

He trusts that the intimate acquaintance and practical experience in the use of the botanic remedies, will secure him the confidence and support of a liberal and enlightened public.

Those who have chronic diseases, such as dyspepsia, liver complaint, rheumatism, scrofula; mercurial diseases, asthma, bronchitis and all affections of the chest or any of the whole list of chronic diseases will do well to avail themselves of a judicious application of botanic remedies. His practice is, however, by no means confined to these diseases; but is equally applicable, whether acute or chronic.

no35-6m.

AGENTS FOR THE WASP.

ILLINOIS

J. B. Backenstos, Carthage, Hancock co. Ill.

Joseph Johnson, Ramus

J. Salsbery, Plymouth,

Harlow Redfield, Pittsfield, Pike

L. R. Chiffin, Laharp Hancock co. Ill.

Wm. Walker, Macomb McDonough co. Ill

Calvin A. Warren, Esq. Quincy.

IOWA TERRITORY.

Daniel S. Davis, Montrose.

Levi Moffet, Augusta.

Elias Smith, Nashville.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Wm. Crutchlow, Leachburg.

John E. Page, Pittsburgh.

B. Winchester, Philadelphia.

NEW JERSEY.

Abraham Burtis, New Egypt.

James Curtis, Horners Town.

W. I. Appleby, Recless Town.

Israel Ivins, Toms River.

MASSACHUSETTS

Erastus Snow, Salem.

Freeman Nickerson, Boston.

MICHIGAN.

S. S. Holmes, Lapiet.

OHIO.

John Johnson, Kirtland.

NEW YORK.

Thompson, Balavia.

Restor, city of New York.